"And never dare to look on the face of any true man or woman? No, no!"

Frantically she has broken from his arms; she is running towards the torch, desperately hoping to snatch it from the hands of the satyr holding it ready to apply it to the fue.

After one unsuccessful step to overtake her swift feet, Danella cries savagely: "Fire the mine!"

Enrico, the fuse in one hand, the blazing torch in the other, is applying the flame to it.

There is a sharp whiff of the still night air like the faint snap of a distant whip and the man with the scar falls, as if struck from Heaven.

"Diavolo, what mystery is this? Myself to light the fuse!" cries Cipriano, and runs to the flambeau flaring on the ground.

But Marina, her eyes baneful with agony, mutters: "I am a Corsican," and as he picks up the torch, the desperate girl seizes him with her delicate hands and struggles with him frantically.

But her slight strength is naught to that of his wiry frame. Danella picks up the torch. "Take your choice," he whispers. "The Englishman lives and your are my mistress; he dies, and you are my honored wife!"

He is holding her down with one knee pressed on her. He is moving the torch slowly to the fuse; he is giving her a chance to save the life she loves by despairing surrender—he is giving himself just one more chance to win the beauty of the woman who loathes him—when, even as the flame is licking the fuse, another whiff rends the atmosphere, and from a spot midway between his longing eyes spouts something that is red in the torch flame, and with one shrill scream, "Morte!" Cipriano, springing high in the air, falls stark dead beside Marina's prostrate form.

The detective and Edwin are thundering at the tower door. Marina staggers to it, with a great effort turns the key and lifts up the steel bars, and stands faintly leaning against the stone masonry as Edwin, springing out, catches her in his arms.

"What did it? What wondrous thing wrought our deliverance?" he asks between kisses that make the girl wife think she is in heaven.

"By gum, was it lightning?" asks the detective, scratching his head. Then hearing a cry he runs down the chasm and moves the swinging bridge into place across the crevice.

Over this comes Mr. Barnes, leisurely walking, humming the sweet romantic tune the minstrels are sending up from the distant sea.

Looking at the two dead men, Tomasso, in his old-time Corsican way, is saying solemnly: "'Tis the hand of God!"

But Marina, running to the American, cries: "I know the 'hand of God!'" and sinks down uttering blessings on the great pistol shot.

"By Goliah, 'tain't possible to do that with a revolver in this light," mutters Emory, pacing off the distance. "Holy smoke, you should be proud of them shots."

"It was that wondrous Orezza water that did it. That toned up my nerves after two days of devilish misery," remarks Burton modestly.

"But grub's what I'm thinking about," says Emory; "you haven't been fed on spoon-victuals for two weeks!" and he dashes into the farmhouse.

Edwin, after slapping Barnes upon the back, has carried his wife, half-swooning now with joy, onto the verandah, when of a sudden, with a roar like that of a hundred-ton gun, the whole tower rises from its base and falls tumbling, a mass of ruined masonry, and on high there is a flight of rocks like fireworks. Fortunately the explosion has been so strong that the missiles nearly all fall into the sea, with great splashing of the water. They can hear the cries of terror from the minstrels in the boat as they hastily row away.

"My last shot wasn't quick enough," says the American dolefully. "Hang me, if Cip didn't get the torch to the fuse before he died." Then Barnes suddenly questions: "Where's my wife? Can't anybody tell me where is my wife?"

"She was not in that tower, anyway; that we know," answered Edwin. "We examined every portion of it, trying to escape."

"Your wife?" cries Marina. "You should know! I left you going up the stairs to her chamber in Bocognano."

"Morte!" Cipriano, Springing High in the Air, Falls Stark Dead Beside Marina's Prostrate Form."

"She wasn't there?" mutters Burton.

"Wasn't there? My servant said she was there. Who was the lady?"

Barnes doesn't answer, but says moodily: "Then I've got to find Enid. My horse is just on the other side of the crevice."

"But you are too tired."

"I'm never too tired to find my best girl," says the poor worn-out fellow, trying to be cheerful, and steps down toward the bridge.

But from a distance a pretty feminine voice is heard crying excitedly: "This is the way to the explosion, young Signore Bellacoscia."

Then Barnes' voice rings, really happy for the first time in twenty-four hours: "Enid, that you? This way, little girl. Look out for the crevice," and his long sought for bride comes cantering across the bridge followed by two young bandits, who announce themselves as Conrad and Rodrigo Bonelli. The next second Enid has been lifted in Barnes' arms from [illegible] saddle.

"Where have you been all [illegible] time?" he asks eagerly.

"Following you ever since [illegible] morning, when the great Bellacoscia sent me on with these two gentlemen, his nephews, charging them with their lives to deliver me safe into your hands. I came from Bocognano."

"And where were you two nights ago when I was seeking you there?"

"I was asleep at Saliceti's home under the influence of a narcotic. Oh, mercy, don't look at me so," stammered Enid. "I was beneath the care of Saliceti's mother."

"Asleep under a narcotic?"

"Yes; when they were planning the ambush for you, I struggled so that Saliceti and his men forced an [illegible] dyne down my throat. When I became conscious, they told me that when the great Bellacoscia demanded my surrender Bernardo was afraid to explain to him, and some other woman was substituted for me. But when Saliceti learnt that Bonelli for his deceit had declared against him a vendetta that meant his certain death, he went to the great bandit, confessed and surrendered me to him. Whereupon, with many kind words, Bonelli sent me to his 'dear friend, Monsieur Barnes, of New York, the celebrated pistol shot.'"

"Oh, the most divine pistol shot upon earth," calls Marina, running up and embracing him. "By his skill Burton has killed the man whose life forever would have been a menace to us." Then gazing at Barnes, she laughs: "And I supposed you happy for the last twenty-four hours. You remember I left you going up to your wife's chamber in Bocognano."

"Going up to my chamber in Bocognano?" almost yells the young English bride. "I cannot understand; I was asleep under opium in charge of Saliceti's mother."

"Oh, no, you were at my house. You were waiting for Burton in the guest chamber on the second floor. Mr. Barnes went up to you—— Good gracious, Edwin, don't! Dio mio, what are you squeezing my hand so for?"

"A word in private with you, Mrs. Barnes," whispers Enid in suppressed tone.

REMINGTON'S INDIAN STORY.

The Winnebago Reservation Choir Didn't Work Well.

Frederick Remington, the artist-author, has had about as strenuous a career as any man that ever touched pen or pencil to paper. He has spent a great deal of time among the Indians in the west. On one of his visits he ran into a story which he is fond of telling.

For some years there had been a Presbyterian mission at the Winnebago reservation in Nebraska, but there were few converts. The missionary hit on a brilliant plan. There were some bucks on the reservation who had been at the Carlisle school, where they had studied singing. He organized a quartet. The bucks liked to show off their hymns. One of them had a yellow dog that always accompanied his master to church.

At first the Indians liked the singing. Then they grew tired of it. Even the choir lost its religion. It became a trio; then a duet; finally the solo quit. A new missionary came into the field. One day he ascended the pulpit and looked around. The only sign of life in the pews was a yellow dog. Calling to the sexton, he said, "Put that dog out!"

"Excuse me," replied the sexton mildly. "I'd rather not. The fact is, he is the only convert."—Saturday Evening Post.

SENT IT TO THE BAR.

Orchestra Leader Misread Request for Schubert's Serenade.

While dining at one of the hotels recently a Washington girl said to her escort, "I wish that orchestra would play Schubert's 'Serenade.' "All we've got to do is to have the waiter tell the orchestra leader," said the man. "But you'd better write it. The waiter will be sure to get the message wrong if you don't." So on the back of an envelope the young woman wrote, in a beautiful angular hand, her request for Schubert's "Serenade," and told the waiter to take it to the leader. The waiter was gone a long time, but at last he appeared with a foaming beaker. "It took some time," he said apologetically. "I understood you to tell me the message was for the orchestra leader, so I took it to him. He read what you wrote and then laughed and told me to carry the order to the bar, for that was the place to get a seltzer lemonade." And angular writing had scored another triumph.

Silk From Japan.

The exports of silk from Japan during the season of 1906-7 aggregated 98,000 bales, a figure never before attained. America took 71,230 bales and Europe 27,436. This season's record will apparently exceed that of any previous season.

DUC DE CHAULNES IS DEAD

HUSBAND OF THEODORA SHONTS SUCCUMBS TO HEART DISEASE.

Tragic End of Love Romance—French Nobleman Passes Away in Arms of His Wife.

Paris.—In the presence of his bride of less than three months, Emmanuel Theodore Bernard Marie d'Albert de Luynes d'Ailly, ninth duke of Chaulnes and of Picquigny, and marquis of Dangeau, died suddenly from heart failure at 11 o'clock Thursday night in his apartments in the Hotel Langham, in the Rue Boccador. The physicians summoned to attend the duke in his sudden seizure officially gave the cause of death as embolism of the heart.

The duke for years had suffered from a weak heart and for some time had been subject to fainting spells. Several times after his arrival here he consulted Dr. Henri Iscovesco in an effort to obtain relief from his ailment.

The duchess was holding the duke in her arms when he expired. She was overcome by grief and could not be persuaded by some of her American friends, who visited the apartment, to leave the bedside of her dead husband and kept vigil there throughout the night.

The duke and duchess, who was Miss Theodora Shonts, youngest daughter of Theodore P. Shonts of New York, were married in New York February 16 of this year. The wedding was a brilliant social function and the end of the brief honeymoon was sudden and tragic. Since the arrival of the couple here a month ago they had lived comparatively quietly at the Hotel Langham, taking an occasional automobile ride in the afternoon and in the evening dining with intimate friends or going to the theater.

FOUR MINERS DIE; 100 ESCAPE.

Explosion in Shaft at Ellsworth, Pa., Almost a Catastrophe.

Pittsburg, Pa. — Four men were killed, three seriously injured and 100 others had a narrow escape from death Thursday when an explosion occurred in mine No. 1 of the Ellsworth Collieries Company at Ellsworth, Pa., Washington county. The dead are foreigners. Their bodies were mangled and badly burned. It is supposed the accident resulted from an accumulation of gas in a new entry becoming ignited in some manner at present unknown.

Deputy Mine Inspector J. W. Loutthitt arrived at Ellsworth late Thursday afternoon, where he is making a complete investigation. Unusual presence of mind is said to be responsible for about 100 miners escaping from the mine. Although the concussion threw them to the ground, all retained their composure and after great difficulty reached the surface.

Crime of a Jealous Man.

Belvidere, Ill.—Maddened by the knowledge that another man was paying attention to his sweetheart, Mouris Bengston Thursday morning shot Miss Sigrid Appleholm, probably mortally wounding her. Rushing from the house into the highway, he then put a bullet through his heart.

Oldest Man in Canada Dies.

Winnipeg, Man.—John McNabb, the oldest man in Canada, died on the shore of Lake Manitoba. He was born in western Canada in 1800 and would have been 108 years old in August. He had been in the employ of the Hudson Bay company from boyhood.

EX-BRITISH PREMIER DEAD.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman Passes Away at London Home.

London.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, former British premier, died Wednesday at his official residence, 10 Downing street. The end was peaceful.

The death of Sir Henry after a lingering illness of more than two months did not come as a surprise. Although the doctors' bulletins had not declared his condition critical, that fact was perfectly understood and the public had been expecting the announcement of his death at any hour during the past fortnight.

Sir Henry Compbell-Bannerman was born September 7, 1836. He was the youngest son of the late Sir James Campbell of Stracathro, Forfarshire, some time lord provost of Glasgow. He assumed the additional name under the will of his maternal uncle, the late Henry Bannerman of Hunton Court, Kent, who bequeathed to him a large estate.

For nearly 40 years he sat for the same seat—the Stirling burghs—and his record of office goes back to 1871, when he was financial secretary to the war office, which post he held a second time from 1880 to 1882.

Sir Henry became premier in 1905, and the election of that year gave him the largest majority ever given a British premier.

During his term as premier, as, indeed, throughout his entire life, Sir Henry showed a dogged determination that won him many adherents and countless admirers.

MINNESOTA LAWYER SUSPENDED

Capt. Hart Disciplined for Criticising the Supreme Court.

St. Paul, Minn.—A special supreme court appointed by Gov. Johnson, consisting of five district judges of the state, Friday rendered a decision suspending Capt. Francis B. Hart, a Minneapolis attorney, from practicing as an attorney and counsellor-at-law in any of the courts of Minnesota for a period of six months. The charges against Hart, upon which petition for his disbarment was based, arose from his letters to Gov. Johnson and Chief Justice Start of the supreme court in December last, passing severe criticism upon the supreme body regarding three cases decided by that body in which he was counsel for the defeated parties.

Dynamite Shatters Town.

Eagle River, Wis.—Six hundred pounds of dynamite in a burning warehouse, 400 feet from the business section of this city, exploded Friday. Six business buildings were wrecked. Fronts of other buildings were blown in and all of the structures are partly demolished. No one was killed in the explosion. The damage is estimated at $15,000.

Congressman Meekison Gives Praise To Pe-ru-na For His Relief From Catarrh.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON COMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"I have used several bottles of Peruna and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

OTHER REMARKABLE CURES.

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galena, Stone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Peruna I am cured." Mr. C. N. Peterson, 132 South Main St., Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I cannot tell you how much good Peruna has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peruna. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peruna advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

Nothing Would Help Him—Mother Almost in Despair—Owes Quick Cure to Cuticura.

"Several months ago, my little boy began to break out with itching sores. I doctored him, but as soon as I got them healed up in one place they would break out in another. I was almost in despair. I could not get anything that would help him. Then I began to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and after using them three times, the sores commenced to heal. He is now well, and not a scar is left on his body. They have never returned nor left him with bad blood, as one would think. Cuticura Remedies are the best I have ever tried, and I shall highly recommend them to any one who is suffering likewise. Mrs. William Geeding, 102 Washington St., Attica, Ind., July 22, 1907."

A. C. RIPLEY THE MAN.

The following exerps concerning the candidacy of A. C. Ripley for Representative. We clip from the Garner Signal and has our endorsement:

A. C. Ripley possesses the qualities necessary to make an ideal legislator; and that he can accomplish more than any other candidate now seeking the office. His life has been a series of success, in various lines, with no failures. Born on a farm in the state of Ohio, at the age of fifteen he became a private in the war of the rebellion enlisting in the 189th Ohio Volnnteer Infantry, Company C and served until the close of the war.

At the age of nineteen by his own exertions and unaided he worked his way through college receiving the degree of "Bachelor of Philosophy."

At the age of twenty-one he was principal of a graded school in Ohio. Then followed several years of successful teaching during which time he completed the reading of law and was admitted to practice by the Supreme Court of Iowa and by the Federal Court. He served Hancock county faithfully as County Superintendent of Schools and conducted Teachers institutes several years in this and other counties of Iowa which many of the older teachers now married will remember.

For over thirty years his life as a lawyer and business man in Hancock county is an open book and is known to most of the voters of the county. His integrity is beyond suspicion. He has the courage of his convictions and the ability to go to the bottom of a question when under consideration.

A. C. Ripley has from his youth up been a doer of things, a leader of men, a constant worker and alert to his surroundings, in fact a success. If elected to the office of reprenentative he would take with him these necessary qualifications and his large experience would make him a man of power and influence. The voters of Hancock county now have the oppertunity to elect a man who has the ability to make a record and place the county in a position of power and honor among the citizens of the whole state.

At the German M. E. church last Sunday evening Rev Wes sel gave another one of his illustrated lectures. The lecture was given in English and the subject was the inhabitants of the Philippines. The pictures were very distinct. We also wish to mention the illustrated songs entitled "The Lost Chord" and "The Holy City" which were sung by Miss Esther Gruetzmacher and accompanied by her sister Miss Huld were surely appreciated by the large audience present. The size of the audiences the Reverand has been receiving at these lectures, certainly shows that they appreciate his instructive lectures and generally there is a large attendance.

That languid, lifeless feeling that comes with spring and early summer can be quick changed to a feeling of buoyance and energ by the judicious use of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The Restorative is a gunuine tonic to tired rundown nerves and but a few doses is needed to satify the user that Dr. Shoop's Restorative is actually reaching that tired spot. The indoor life of winter nearly alwas leads to sluggish bowels and to sluggish circulation in general. The customary lack of exercise and out door air ties up the liver, stagnates the kidneys and oftimes weaken the heart's action Use Dr. Shoop's restorative a few weeks and all will be changed. A few days test will tell you that you are using the remedy. You will easily and surely not the change from day to day. Sold by All Dealers.

IOWA STATE NEWS

Events of Recent Occurrence Throughout the Commonwealth.

FILES A SENSATIONAL SUIT.

City of Dubuque Demands Large Sum From Prominent Men.

Dubuque.—City Attorney Kintzinger has filed three suits naming the bondsmen of Arthur McArthur and ex-trustee P. J. Ryder and John Ellwanger of the Dubuque municipality, owners of the water works plant, as defendants, and claiming of them in total $50,000. This sum is alleged to be due the city for mismanagement on the part of the latter two, and from he bondsmen of McArthur for the embezzlement of thousands of dollars while serving as superintendent of the water works.

McArthur confessed his crime and now is doing time in Fort Madison prison.

The action of the city has created a sensation, and is the sequel of a long drawn out discussion of the liability of the parties mentioned. Ellwanger and Ryder resigned from the trusteeship under pressure. Their management all but wrecked the water plant.

The bondsmen named as defendants are Dubuque's most prominent citizens, Peter Kiene, F. W. Altman, W. F. Bonson and Robert Bonson.

The city is now contesting a suit brought by Martin Strall seeking recovery of $40,000 on coal account for the water works, which they had no knowledge had been contracted. The $50,000 is the amount alleged to have been lost through crookedness and mismanagement. The defendants named declare they will fight the case.

IOWA LOSES LAND FIGHT.

Federal Court Denies Claim to Valuable Ground.

Council Bluffs.—The claim of the state of Iowa that 1,000 acres of land along the west side of the Missouri river is within the jurisdiction of Iowa and therefore part of the domain of this state, was denied by Judge Smith McPherson in a decision rendered in the United States court in Council Bluffs.

The land in question was turned into Nebraska territory twenty years ago when the Missouri river suddenly changed its course and moved a slice of the Hawkeye state into Nebraska. At that time the estate of John A. Creighton, who died a year ago, secured possession of the land by squatters' rights and has paid the taxes on it ever ince. There has always been a small creek on the west side of the land and that stream, together with Cutoff lake, which was formed out of the old channel, surrounds the body of land, making it an island within the meaning of the Iowa law, passed four years ago.

That law made it possible for the state to sell islands for $1 an acre, and the men who secured its passage quickly paid the money into the Iowa treasury and secured title from the state. The decision of the federal court upholds the title of the Creighton heirs and declares the land does not compose an island.

The land is very valuable, some of it being worth $1,000 an acre.

MISSING MAN TURNS UP.

Comes Home After Five Years' Absence Sick with Smallpox.

Mount Pleasant.—The return of J. F. Moorehouse to his home near Swedesburg after an absence of over five years, has created a sensation in this county. In March, 1903, he mysteriously disappeared, after having accompanied a load of cattle to Chicago. All kinds of stories were afloat then that he had been robbed and murdered, and several months after it was thought his body had been found in the Chicago river.

Moorehouse came home about a week ago, but it was kept quiet, and no one knew anything about it until he became sick and a doctor was called and pronounced it smallpox. The house was immediately placed under quarantine. Now that he is located it is probable that he will be taken into custody by the sheriff or at least the house placed under guard, for the man was involved in serious financial troubles when he disappeared.

Some time after the man's disappearance it was found that he was financially involved, and that several suits were pending that he was not able to face. Stories were then circulated that he had run away from home to avoid paying his debts.

Moorehouse was formerly well respected in this community and had a good many acquaintances, but he had practically been forgotten by all but his immediate family.

BRING IN STRIKE BREAKERS.

Iowa Central at Marshalltown Imports Machinists.

Marshalltown.—Fifty strike breakers were unloaded from a special car and hurried to the Iowa Central shops to take the place of the machinists and helpers who dropped their tools several days ago on the final refusal of the company to continue the old scale of wages. The men came from Chicago over the Northwestern railroad and their coming is likely to extend the strike to the boilermakers, blacksmiths and car men, who are still at work.

In charge of F. L. Colwell of Minneapolis, head of the secret service department of the Minneapolis & St. Louis and Iowa Central, five men arrived from Minneapolis and went on duty patrolling the company's property. This incident alone lends color to the rumor that strike-breakers are to be sent down, for there has been in indication whatever that any attempt will be made to damage the company's property.

Marshalltown.—Through General Solicitor George W. Seevers of the Iowa Central and F. L. Colwell, the chief of detectives here guarding the Iowa Central's property, Sheriff C. S. Hutson was appealed to in an effort to have a dozen men deputized to guard the company's property.

The railroad officials asked that the five men Mr. Colwell has with him be made special deputy sheriffs, together with twelve others whom the sheriff might select. The sheriff refused the deputize the men from Minneapolis because they were nonresidents. He also denied the other request on the ground that present conditions did not warrant any such procedure. Sheriff Huston assured Mr. Seevers, however, that the company's property here would be protected at all hazards and that the least sign of any effort to do damage on the part of the strikers would be met with immediate resistance.

Leading strikers have declared to the sheriff, however, that no company property would be destroyed and no violence resorted to.

MURRAY HAS A BIG FIRE.

Loss About $5,000, Thought To Be Of Incediary Origin.

Murray.—Fire which is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed four buildings in the business section of the city. The damages amounted to more than $5,000.

The fire, which broke out in a millinery store, rapidly spread to the Murray hotel, which burned to the ground. Although the hotel was filled with guests all escaped without injuries. Two vacant two-story buildings in the same block were destroyed.

The fire broke out about midnight and raged for more than an hour before it was checked. It is thought that the fire was the act of an incendiary.

FORT DODGE WINS DEBATE.

Defeats Cedar Falls for Iowa High School Championship.

Iowa City.—The Fort Dodge High school won the Iowa debating championship, defeating Cedar Falls High school by a unanimous decision of the judges.

The debate was of a very high standard, with good argument on both sides and splendid presentation, though Fort Dodge excelled in both departments. The question was: "Resolved, That a Limited Disarmament of the Leading Powers Would Promote the Civilization of the World."

Fort Dodge was represented by Richard Mitchell Charles Meloy and Waldo Miner; Cedar Falls by Glenn Davis, Max Cunning and Carson Taylor.

Cashier Fights Indictment.

Davenport.—B. S. McCully, cashier of the Princeton, Ia., Savings bank which recently went into the hands of a receiver, will make a fight against the five indictments returned against him for making false entries in the bank's books. He pleaded not guilty and Dr. John Knox and C. W. Pinneo, prominent residents of Princeton, furnished his $2,000 bond.

Druggists Fined $300 Each.

Mason City.—Three druggists were fined $300 each for illegal selling of intoxicants. They were Theodore Bohn, George Tiss and G. W. Graag. Of the seven indicted by the grand jury G. H. Lambert is standing trial. The others have not decided what pleading to make.

BORAX IN THE DAIRY

A Matter of Profitable Interest to the Farmer and Dairyman

The problem of keeping sweet all the utensils used in connection with milk and cream selling, and butter making, has been a serious one with the farmer.

He has come to realize fully that the slightest taint or hint of staleness left in a can, tin or churn may ruin a whole output; that the taint which is left is in the form of bacteria which grow and multiply in milk or butter, producing disastrous results.

The farmer has learned that hot water won't rinse away the greasy residue in dairy utensils.

He has learned that soap leaves a residue of its own which is, if anything, worse than the milk or cream residue, and it is little wonder that that there has been a constant clamor for a dairy cleanser and sweetener that will meet modern requirements.

A few of the largest creamery establishments have called experts into consultation on this problem and have with this scientific aid hit upon a product of nature which exactly fills the bill—borax.

Scientists have long known borax as a cleanser, a sweetener and an antiseptic destroyer of bacteria and germ growths. Destroys all that is harmful and promotes and preserves freshness, sweetness and purity, relieving the dairyman and dairy housewife of drudgery and of needless work and worry.

Its cheapness and value should give it first place in the necessities of every dairy.

The cow's udder is kept in a clean, healthy and smooth condition by washing it with borax and water, a tablespoonful of borax to two quarts of water.

This prevents roughness and soreness or cracking teats, which make milking time a dread to the cow and a worry to the milker.

TO MOTHERS.—A dainty book in colors, called "Jingle Book," sent free to any Mother sending name and address of her baby, and tops from one pound carton of "20 Mule Team" Package Borax, with 4c in stamps.

How I Cured Sweeny and Fistula.

"I want to tell you how I saved one of our horses that had a fistula. We had the horse doctor out and he said it was so bad that he did not think he could cure it, and did not come again. Then we tried Sloan's Liniment and it cured it up nicely.

"One day last spring I was plowing for a neighbor who had a horse with sweeny, and I told him about Sloan's Liniment and he had me get a bottle for him, and it cured his horse all right, and he goes off now like a colt.

"We had a horse that had sweeny awfully bad and we thought it was never going to be any good, but we used Sloan's Liniment and it cured it up nicely. I told another neighbor about it and he said it was the best Liniment he ever used.

"We are using Sloan's Sure Colic Cure and we think it is all right."

Pants for the Orphans.

There is a praiseworthy custom in some families of sending all the "pants" that the boys have gone through, wholly or in part, to the asylum for orphans, and, as the orphans never mind a hole more or less, they are glad to get the garments. In one of these families a few days ago occurred a little incident bearing on this laudable custom. Fred was engaged in that extremely fascinating, but rather dangerous, sport of sliding down the banisters.

"What are you doing there, Fred?" asked mamma.

"Making pants for the poor little orphans," answered Fred.

Where He Drew the Line.

A famous English barrister was upon one occasion called upon to defend a cook tried for murder, being accused of having poisoned his master. The barrister, after a most able and brilliant defense of the culprit, secured an acquittal. The cook, anxious to show his gratitude, said: "Tell me, sir, whatever can I do for you to reward you?" The triumphant counsel answered: "My good man do anything you can, but for God's sake, don't ever cook for me."

Accounted For.

Naturally she turned to her husband for information.

"Why are so many of the police mentioned as plain-clothes men?" she asked.

"I suppose," he answered, "that they're like the rest of us. It takes all their pay to keep their wives from being plain-clothes women."—Philadelphia Ledger.

WOMEN'S KIDNEYS.

Are the Source of Most of Women's Sickness.

Mrs. Rebecca Mock, 1795 E. Rich Street, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I believe I would still be a victim of kidney troubles but for Doan's Kdiney Pills, for when I started using them I was in constant pain with my back, and no other remedy had been of any use. The kidney secretions were irregular, and I was nervous and lacked energy. But Doan's Kidney Pills gave me prompt relief and continued use cured me."

The Oldest Professions.

An old friend of the family had dropped in to see a young lawyer whose father was still paying his office rent.

"So you are now practising law," the old friend said, genially.

"No, sir," said the candid youth. "I appear to be, but I am really practising economy."—Youth's Companion.

Money to Burn.

The big touring car had just whizzed by with a roar like a gigantic rocket, and Pat and Mike turned to watch it disappear in a cloud of dust.

"Thim chug wagons must cost a hape av cash," said Mike. "The rich is fairly burnin' money."

"An', be the smell av it," sniffed Pat, "it must be that tainted money we do be hearin' so much about."

New Dinner Card Idea.

From Paris comes a decorated card-rack with a trail of artificial flowers that may be changed to suit the dinner colors and makes a pretty addition to the table. These racks are to hold a plain card upon which the guest's name is written and they may be used for a good many dinners, thus obviating the expense of the decorated dinner card every time one entertains.

Nothing to Get.

Gelett Burgess was talking at a theatrical supper in New York about the Lark, his delightful little paper that failed.

"Nearly all good papers fail," said he. "I have an aged friend who runs a splendid paper in a small western village. The last copy my friend sent me had this editorial paragraph marked in blue pencil:

"'Burglars entered our house last night. To the everlasting shame of the community, for whose welfare we have labored 38 years, be it said, they got nothing.'"

Brain and Nerves Restored by Grape-Nuts Food.

The number of persons whose ailments were such that no other food could be retained at all, is large and reports are on the increase.

"For 12 years I suffered from dyspepsia, finding no food that did not distress me," writes a Wis. lady. "I was reduced from 145 to 90 lbs., gradually growing weaker until I could leave my bed only a short while at a time, and became unable to speak aloud.

"Three years ago I was attracted by an article on Grape-Nuts and decided to try it.

"My stomach was so weak I could not take cream, but I used Grape-Nuts with milk and lime water. It helped me from the first, building up my system in a manner most astonishing to the friends who had thought my recovery impossible.

"Soon I was able to take Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, and lunch at night, with an egg and Grape-Nuts for dinner.

"I am now able to eat fruit, meat and nearly all vegetables for dinner, but fondly continue Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper.

"At the time of beginning Grape-Nuts I could scarcely speak a sentence without changing words around or 'talking crooked' in some way, but my brain and nerves have become so strengthened that I no longer have that trouble." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

This woman says that after months of suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her as well as ever.

Maude E. Forgie, of Leesburg, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from feminine ills so that I thought I could not live. I wrote you, and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and using the treatment you prescribed, I felt like a new woman. I am now strong, and well as ever, and thank you for the good you have done me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

DES MOINES LETTER

Items of Interest From Our Correspondent at the State Capital.

Nomination Papers Filed.

Des Moines.—The time for final nomination papers under the state primary law closed at midnight on the 3rd. Full congressional, electorial, state and legislative tickets will be on the primary ballots of at least the leading parties.

Twenty-nine state senators are to be elected this year. The republicans have candidates in every district and in many of them more than one. In nine of the districts—which are usually overwhelmigly republican—the democrats have not filed nominations.

Of the 108 legislative places the republicans filed nominations for all but those in six counties, while the democrats filed for all but seventeen counties.

The republicans filed a full electoral ticket, the democrats omitted but two districts, the prohibitionists but three, and the socialists only three districts.

The primary law provides that the party conventions following the primary of June 2, and which will be made up of delegates selected by county conventions, the delegates to which will be elected at the primary of June 2, shall nominate candidates to fill all vacancies.

But it is said that if voters write in the names of candidates on a primary ballot that is vacant the person so voted for will be the party nominee unless he refuses to act. In that case the vacancy would be filled by the appropriate county, district or state convention.

The republicans failed to nominate candidates for the house in Bremer, Chickasaw, Crawford, Johnson, Scott and Shelby counties.

The democrats did not nominate candidates for the house in Cass, Cedar, Clay, Dickinson, Emmet, Floyd, Kossuth, Linn, Mitchell, Monona, O'Brien, Osceola, Sioux, Van Buren Winnebago, Woodbury and Worth counties.

The republicans nominated candidates for the senate in each of the twenty-nine districts but the democrats present no candidates in the Adair-Madison, Calhoun-Webster, Cerro Gordo-Franklin-Hancock, Cherokee-Ida-Plymouth, Clay-Dickinson-Emmet-Kossuth-Palo Alto, Lyon-O'Brien-Osceola-Sioux, Mitchell-Worth-Winnebago and Woodbury districts.

Says the Clay is Good.

A story in a recent issue of The Register and Leader to the effect that valuable pottery clay is to be found in large quauities in the vicinity of Des Moines brought a pottery manufacturer of thirty years' experience from the Pacific coast to this city.

The western manufacturer made his appearance in the offices of the Commercial club. He asserted that he had recently disposed of his western interests and came to Des Moines when he learned of the opportunity for starting a pottery manufacturing plant in this locality. He had made an inspection of the clay and the samples of the finished pottery which had been made of the clay and baked in Ottumwa. He declared that the clay is of the best quality.

The western man, who gave his name confidentially to the secretary of the Commercial club, proposed that efforts be made to organize a company of $12,000 capital. He declared that he would invest one-third of this amount and asserted that on this capitalization a company could be started whch could have an output of $1,000,000 a year.

Two-Cent Fare a Success.

Railroads doing business in Iowa report that the effect of the 2-cent fare is to increase passenger receipts.

Five or six of the railroads have reported for the year 1907 and of these all but one report an increase in passenger earnings and a decrease in freight earnings. The Wabash alone did not show an increase in passenger receipts. The Rock Island showed an increase of 16 per cent, and the Illinois Central, the Great Western and others smaller increase.

The reports are for only half a year under the 2-cent fare, but are taken to indicate that the 2-cent fare actually increased the total receipts from passengers.

Cash in Treasurer's Office.

From the office of State Treasurer Morrow it is learned that the state has a cash balance of over a half million on hand and it is steadily increasing.

To Tax Railway Terminals.

Senator C. G. Saunders, of Council Bluffs, has announced that if he is re-elected to the state senate he will introduce and try to get passed a bill for a law to tax the terminals of railroad companies in Iowa.

This is done in Nebraska now. It doesn't reduce the tax of the railroads in the country, but it gives the cities in which the valuable terminals are located their fair share of taxes therefrom. Senator Saunders, however, would not distribute the assessment of the roads according to mileage as now, but would have the assessment distributed according to proportionate value in cities and country.

In Council Bluffs Senator Saunders said:

"Within the last few days a number of voters have inquired of me relative to my views upon the subject of terminal taxation. In view of the general interest in the matter I think it only fair that I should outline my position.

"The present system of distributing the value of the terminals along the entire line of railway has been satisfactory to counties having no large cities, and the sentiment in those counties has been such as to make it almost impossible to change the present system. A campaign of education on this subject is now being made, and I think that there is now a good opportunity to secure the enactment of a terminal tax law. If re-elected to the state senate I shall introduce such a measure and do all within my power to secure its passage."

6,000 Autos for Iowa.

Secretary W. C. Hayward on the 21st ran the total number of registered motor vehicles in Iowa up beyond the 6,000 mark and he says that fully twenty machines coming under that head are registered in the secretary of state's office every day of the week.

The records show that nearly every postoffice in the state is represented in the list of motor vehicle owners as they are recorded on the secretary of state's books. Many of the rural postoffices or farmers living along the rural routes are the possessors of machines. The style and manufacturer are recorded and the books show that the farmer in most instances has fully as fine an automobile, electric buggy or other modern vehicle as has his city neighbor.

Road to Fort Des Moines.

Des Moines.—Members of the new city council and the Polk county board of supervisors had a meeting with the Greater Des Moines committee at the Chamberlain hotel for the purpose of pushing the movement to secure a permanent macadam road from Des Moines to Fort Des Moines.

Thomas MacDonald, engineer of the Iowa state highway commission, made a few remarks in which he suggested that the road be built by the city and county in conjunction with the United States agricultural department.

Fly Paper Ruling Made.

The state pharmacy commission has issued an edict that poison fly paper, as well as all other kinds of poisons, must not be sold to or sold by any one save licensed druggists. The poison register must be signed for the purchase of this kind of poison as well as other kinds. The ruling is made for the purpose of preventing children getting hold of the ny paper, which in many instances is rank and deadly poison.

Pass Report Placed on File.

The report of the Burlington road for passes issued during the period ending December 30, 1907, has been filed with the state executive council. Among those included in the list are the attorneys for the road, located at Burlington, the attorneys of other roads, who are located in Des Moines, company surgeons, local attorneys, who have been issued "trip passes". About 200 have been given transportation.

Watching the Drug Stores.

Thea nti-saloon league is keeping an eagle eye on the drug stores of Des Moines. Reed Hurlbut, J. H. Loper and M. J. Olsen, it is claimed, have violated the order given some time ago restraining them from the illega sale of liquors and have been ordered to appear before Judge Brennan and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court.

HOW TO TEST LINSEED OIL.

There is nothing that will make paint go wrong on the house more quickly than poor oil. It is as bad in its way as adulterations in the white lead. Petroleum oil cheapeners may be detected by placing a drop of the oil on a black painted surface. If one sees the characteristic iridescence or play of colors which kerosene exhibits, it is evidence of adulteration. Corn and fish oil can be detected by the smell.

Adulteration in white lead can best be discovered by the use of a blowpipe, which National Lead Company will send with instructions free to anyone interested in paint. Address, National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Brights or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

HARD ON THE GOVERNOR

Judge Prouty's Observation on the Pass and Two Cent Fare.

Judge Prouty in his campaign for the governor relates that he rode on a train in Missouri last year, his fellow passengers being a millionaire and a poor man with a family. He traveled on a mileage book at two cents a mile and the millionaire on an annual pass, while the poor man was compelled to pay three cents a mile for himself, and the same for his wife, and half fare for his children. Judge Prouty continues:

"Again and again have the members of the Iowa state legislature sought to correct this injustice, but each time the measure has failed, but, thank God, under the leadership of Albert B. Cummins we have elected a legislature that has wiped it out. This evil was just as great twenty years ago as it was last year. There was just as much of a crying need for that law ten years ago as now. Why was it not enacted? The railroads had the power to prevent it and they did."

There was a two cent fare bill before the Iowa general assembly twenty years ago. The vote in the house was taken April 4, 1888. It was 66 ayes to 19 nays. One of the negative votes was cast by Albert B. Cummins and later on, in 1901, his delegates to the state convention traveled on passes while the poor man with a familly and no political pull paid three cents a mile. Now we have Judge Prouty's word for it that this evil of discrimination against the poor man was "just as great twenty years ago as it was last year," just as great on April 4, 1888, the year after the adoption of the anti-pass clause in the inter-state commerce law for which Senator Allison voted, just as great during the general assemblies in which the anti-pass bill of Senator John Hughes, Jr. died from lack of support from Gov. Cummins, as in 1907, or at the present time, when he is presented to us as the only and original champion of anti-pass and two cent fare legislation. This is hard on the governor, Will Judge Prouty, pure, sympathetic soul, abandon his candidate when he learns the record?

SENATOR ALLISON PAIRED

He Was for the Aldrich Bill and Senator Clay Opposed.

Because the name of Senator Allison did not appear among the list of those voting on the Aldrich currency bill the newspapers opposing him immediately raised the cry that he was either too ill or afraid to express his views. The falsity of these charges is best shown by the unimpeachable Congressional Record, which shows that Senator Allison was paired with Senator Clay, of Georgia, neither of them voting on the measure. It is a common practice for two senators with adverse views on a measure to be paired. This is done that they may be able to leave the chamber and devote their attention to other duties without changing the vote. Senator Allison was in favor of the bill, Senator Clay was not. When the vote was taken Senator Allison was in his committee room looking after some important legislation. Senator Clay, however, was in the senate chamber and on the roll call announced his pair with Senator Allison. One being in favor of and the other against the bill, and neither voting under the pair arrangement, their action did not interfere with the vote. As Senator Clay, in announcing his pair with Senator Allison, said he was against the bill but would not vote, it is plain that Senator Allison was substantially recorded as favoring the measure.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

Just think of all those miles of steel humming to the tune of whirling wheels, day and night!

Some size to a system like that—don't you think?

And it means a great deal to the welfare of your community—this railroad which carries you and your freight.

It's a bond of communication between you and your neighbors—between you and the market for your products.

It's an enterprise worthy of fostering—is it not?

Remember, too, that the country needs the railroads as an aid in development and in the transaction of business, and the railroads need you, the traveler and the shipper—it's a community interest proposition, you know.

SAVINGS

The self-denial that imposes systematic saving, even tho' the income be a small one, develops a strong. rugged character. The business man who willingly meets the opposing forces that stand in the way of his progress and overcomes them, developes a strong, robust personal character that does things. Such men are in demand. The man who maintains a savings account is not honored by men because he has developed a strong character by practice of that self-denial that made saving possible and successful. It is rare indeed to find such a character developed under conditions of prosperity that has been inherited or that the man himself has not created for himself. This Bank Wants to Help men who want to help themselves and stands ready at all times to give encouragement to such. Some of the candidates who do the most promising are not by any means the most promising.

Sir Frederick Bridge is going to Quebec, but he will scarcely fill the gap left by the bridge that went down.

Mrs. Eveline Wright Allen, a graduate of Leland Stanford university, has been appointed dean of women for that institution.

However, even $300,000 a year might not be despised by Prince Helie de Sagan, considering that he has not the price of a meal.

Minister named Fyshe jumped from an ocean liner and was drowned. And now there are more good fyshe in the sea than ever before.

Foreigners can never say we're impolite in one respect. When counts come fortune-hunting you never hear of American competition.

The Eaton county farmer who blew off his head because he couldn't quit drinking evidently didn't have much faith in the prohibition wave.

But sunspots are not always reliable prophets.

IOWA STATE NEWS

$27,000 IS MISSING.

The Sac County Treasurer Is Short in a Large Sum.

Sac City.—Though other explanations have been made so far for the discrepancy in the accounts of the county treasurer's office, there is no longer any question in the minds of the authorities that W. H. Pettis is short in his accounts in the sum of at least $27,000. He himself said that there must be a mistake—that the books were muddled, probably, but the facts disclose an entirely different condition than mere error.

On investigating, the supervisors found a persistent discrepancy between the tax lists and the cash books. There was further discrepancy between the cash book and many of the receipts issued to tax payers and held by them, and there is evidence that the treasurer had two sets of receipts, one to issue to the tax payer in the correct sum, the other issued in a smaller sum than that actually involved and kept for comparison with the cash books by the supervisors. The supervisors have discovered that $27,000 represents the total sum of the discrepancies between the taxes paid in and the taxes shown to have been paid by the cash books. This $27,000 has disappeared and for this sum the treasurer is being held.

It is practically settled that George A. Taylor, former county auditor, will be appointed this week by the supervisors to fill out the term of Mr. Pettis, who resigned when his shortage was discovered.

From the investigation made into the county treasurer's books it was discovered that the tax lists of 1904 show a shortage of $1,400, about $6,500 on the list of 1905, nearly $14,000 on the list of 1906, and over $5,000 on the list of 1907.

The county will not lose anything, for the bond of $75,000 is good. The bondsmen will not lose much, if any, for Mr. Pettis and his wife have made a trust deed to W. Jackson, in behalf of the bondsmen, of the following real estate:

A farm of 249 acres in section 5, Coon Valley township, valued at $16,200, subject to a $6,000 mortgage.

A farm of 120 acres in section 4, Coon Valley township, valued at $12,000, subject to a $4,000 mortgage.

WARRANTS OUT FOR WEAVER.

Officers Asked to Search for Prominent Iowa Falls Man.

Iowa Falls.—Every police officer in the west has been notified by notices sent out by Sheriff Thomas Walsh of this county offering a reward of $25 for Walter L. Weaver, formerly a young attorney of this city. Weaver left town on Feb. 24 and has not been seen since.

The notices sent out by the sheriff state that Weaver is wanted for uttering a forged instrument on two counts. The sheriff states he has two bench warrants for his arrest. Weaver is described as 34 years old, about 5 feet 9 inches tall, weight 130 to 140 pounds. He had dark brown hair which he wore rather long, mustache rather heavy, slightly curled at the tips, shaves smooth some times wore bow glasses, rimless right glass chippen on upper edge. The above reward is offered for Weaver's arrest and detention until Sheriff Walsh can arrive with the necessary papers. A reasonable expense will also be allowed.

It has been stated that two parties who knew Weaver here saw him in Council Bluffs within a few weeks. He has relatives in Omaha. Another report states that relatives recently received a letter from him, mailed on the Pacific coast.

The forgery with which young Weaver is accused was committed early in March and was an attempt to unload two sets of forged loan papers on V. A. Biggs of this city, the business being done by correspondence and through a bank at Parry, Iowa. The young man leaves wife here, where his parents also reside.

Liquor Men Get Replies.

Davenport.—Dr. August P. Richter, chairman of the Independent Citizens league of Iowa, and John Berwald, secretary, have received about a score of replies to the regular letter addressed by the league to all candidates for the legislature. Two or three, like General Weaver, answer the interrogatories with an unqualified "no," a few are noncommittal, while a majority of those answering assure the German-American society of their sympathy with the liberal programme.

COULDN'T STOP LOVER.

He Carries Off His Bride in Spite of Stern Father.

Nashua.—Only a week or so ago young Roy Fox of Riverton township was horsewhipped by Herman Swaine, the father of his sweetheart, because he dared ask for the girl in marriage; now he is enjoying his honeymoon in spite of paternal displeasure. Between these events lies an interesting little romance that has stirred the countryside deeply.

About ten days ago young Fox secured a license for his marriage to Miss Elizabeth Swaine, and on the day set for the wedding drve up to the Swaine home to claim his bride-elect. He knew the father's objections, but he boldly went out to the barn to see the parent and make known his intentions. The father flew into rage, and grabbing a buggy whip, proceeded to give the young man a good thrashing. Mr. Fox then climbed into his buggy and was again pounced upon by the irate Swain.

Fox then drove away from the place and went to Charles City to take out papers for the arrest of Swaine, but was persuaded to give this up. Returning home, a few days later he sent a letter by registered mail to Miss Lizzie Swaine, who received the letter in person, found that Mr. Fox had devised a plan whereby the marriage might take place without the infuriated father finding out what was doing until all had transpired.

According to the lover's plans, another man called at the home last week to take Miss Swaine for a drive, and after they had gone a certain distance the triumphant and ardent lover met them, and taking the bride into a rig of his own, hastened away and were quietly married, after which they returned to the home of his parents, and are now enjoying their honeymoon to the fullest extent.

GETS TWENTY YEARS.

William Smith Is Sentenced to Fort Madison.

Ottumwa.—William Smith, known as "Alabama," the colored man who was convicted of robbing Porter Brothers' cigar store at Albia, was sentenced to twenty years in the petitentiary at Fort Madison by Judge D. M. Anderson. "Alabama" declared that he was not guilty of the charge and that he was railroaded. Nevertheless the jury did not think so, and he was found guilty of the charge of breaking and entering, after the jury had been out twenty minutes.

EPSTEIN WINS WILL FIGHT.

Des Moines Man Gets Verdict in Burlington Case.

Burlington.—The will of Jacob Epstein will be broken and his son, Eugene of Des Moines, who contested the admission of the instrument to probate, was given a verdict by the jury. Their action means that Eugene Epstein is entitled to two-thirds of the estate of his father. He had been cut off without a dollar in the will submitted for probate, and he filed a contest, which has been stubbornly fought in the district court for the last none days.

Afton Child Torn by Hog.

Afton.—Because she climbed into a pen and attempted to steal a two-day-old pig, an old sow attacked Bessie Graham, tore the clothing entirely from her body and lacerated her face and entire body in a frightful manner. The frenzied animal was standing over the prostrate body tearing and rending it when the father, alarmed by the child's screams, reached the pen. He fought furiously to beat off the sow and rescued the child.

Creston Lad Is Horse Thief.

Creston.—Tempie Dill, a lad 12 years of age, is in custody here for the theft of a horse in broad daylight from the barn of A. L. Huntington. The horse and the boy were found at the farm of Harvey Culver, six miles south of this city. The boy, who is the son of a traveling man, admitted taking the animal, and also the theft of a bridle from a neighboring barn.

The society promises a tabulated summary of the replies later.

Weds Widow; Held for Perjury.

Fort Madison.—Peter Finnigan is under arrest here for bigamy. In January he married an aged widow here, but it developed recently that he had a wife and five children in St. Louis, Mo. He waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $800, in default of which he is in jail.

And Only Half Full.

FLEET AT MONTEREY BAY

CITIZENS BEGIN ENTERTAINING THE BLUEJACKETS.

Passage of United Atlantic and Pacific Fleets Through Golden Gate Will Be Stirring Spectacle.

Monterey, Cal.—The Atlantic fleet of battleships steamed in here Friday to give Monterey peninsula a place in the history of the American navy's record-breaking cruise around the world. The residents of Monterey and Pacific Grove and all the other settlements of the vicinity made the occasion of the arrival a holiday. They lined the water front when the fleet dropped anchor at six o'clock in the morning and lingered long to view the beautiful marine spectacle of the 16 ships drawn up in divisional formation.

A great variety of entertainments ashore, both for the men and the officers of the fleet, marked the first day of the battleships' stay and the visit of the squadrons promises to be a thoroughly enjoyable one.

New orders were issued covering the entry of the fleet through the Golden Gate into San Francisco bay on Wednesday, May 6. The revised plans provide for the most picturesque naval display in the history of the nation. It is now ordered that all of the vessels of the Pacific fleet shall join the Atlantic battleships outside the Golden Gate and steam with them through the harbor entrance to the anchorage in the bay where the review of the navy is to be held. Practically the entire fighting force of the navy, with the exception of a few newly-commissioned ships in the east and a few gunboats in Philippine waters, will be in the great column of white and buff vessels that thread their way between the headlands of the gateway—Point Bonita on the north and Point Lobos on the south.

Forty-six vessels will be in line and the long column will stretch as far out to sea as the eye can see. The variety of fighting craft will range from the massive 16,000-ton Connecticut down to the little destroyer Fox of only 154 tons.

FATAL POLITICAL FIGHT.

Mayor of Fort-de-France and Others Are Killed.

Fort-de-France, Island of Martinique.—A serious and fatal conflict broke out in this city Wednesday between hostile groups of politicians in connection with the present campaign for municipal elections. A band of men led by M. Labat, the vice-mayor of Fort-de-France, engaged in an armed conflict at the city hall with another band under the leadership of the mayor, M. Severe. The mayor was killed in the fighting. Several other men also lost their lives, and a number of persons were wounded.

KOREAN PLOT IS FOILED.

Bishop Harris Saved from Threatened Death at Frisco.

San Francisco.—Warned that a number of Koreans in San Francisco were preparing to assassinate Bishop Merriman Colbert Harris upon his arrival Wednesday morning on the Pacific mail steamship Korea from the Orient, Surveyor of the Port Woodward, accompanied by a number of other federal attaches and members of the local police force, met the steamer upon its appearance in port and, placing the divine upon the revenue cutter Golden Gate, caused his removal to Oakland.

Standard Oil Has Big Fire.

Cleveland, O.—In a spectacular fire Wednesday night, the candle and grease works of the Standard Oil company were destroyed. Officers of the company estimated the loss at $203,500. For a time all of the buildings surrounding the two plants were threatened.

ANXIETY FOR MR. CLEVELAND

Former President Said to Have Cancer of the Stomach.

New York.—Considerable anxiety was occasioned Friday by widely circulated rumors that the condition of ex-President Grover Cleveland, who has been ill for several weeks at a hotel in Lakewood, N. J., had assumed a grave phase and that slight hopes were entained of his recovery.

The Evening World gave prominence to reports current at the offices of the Equitable Life Assurance society, of which Mr. Cleveland is a voting trustee, that the former president's p sicians had diagnosed his illness as cancer of the stomach and had declared that there was no hope of their distinguished patient's recovery.

Positive denial of these statements were not obtainable. Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, who has attended Mr. Cleveland for years, said that his patient was "all right" and that all his reports from Lakewood were favorable. In answer to a question as to whether Mr. Cleveland was suffering from cancer of the stomach, Dr. Bryant said that as a physician he could not make public the diagnosis in the case of any of his patients. Any information on such a subject, were it to be given to the public, should come from the family, he said.

DARING EXPRESS ROBBERY.

Two Bandits Overpower Messenger and Get Four Bags of Money.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Two train robbers who evidently boarded the New York & St. Louis express on the Pan-Handle railroad at the Union station in this city when that train left at 10:0 Thursday night, overpowered the express messenger and got away with four bags of currency, containing an amount of money as yet unknown.

The robbery was committed near Walkers station, about 11 miles west of the city. The train was brought to a sudden halt by an emergency signal from the bell cord and when Conductor William Lafferty went forward to learn the trouble he found the express messenger, N. Roshen, bound and gagged and so frightened that he could not give any connected report of what had happened.

Risk Concern Is Attacked.

Detroit, Mich.—Attorney General Bird Friday filed in the Wayne circuit court a bill asking for a receiver for the American Health and Accident association of this city and for an annulment of its charter and an injunction to prevent the company from collecting more money. Judge Hosmer ordered the company to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed. President Eyre of the company says he knows nothing of the action begun by the attorney general and declares the company's affairs are in good condition.

Barnes, sheepishly muttering to ...mself, "Our first row," follows his ...ife into the shrubbery of the ver...dah, where they are quite apart.

"The lady who was substituted for ...e?" asks his bride haughtily.

"Sally Blackwood," answers Burton ...ddly.

"La Belle Blackwood! Good Heav...s! What brought her there?" sudden ...rs springing up in Enid's blue eyes.

"She said she came to Bocognano to ...ve my life from the vendetta. You ...member she had warned me before, ...e other evening in Nice."

"Yes, I remember," she sighs; then ...ds more brightly, "I remember also, ...at you told me."

She gazes at him anxiously, but ...nly for a moment—the awful lines ...bout her husband's face proclaiming ...is unremitting pursuit of her for ...hree merciless days and nights soft... ...ms Enid's tender heart. She slips one ...rounded arm about his neck and whis...pers: "I shall never question you ...about this. If you feel you can kiss ...me, Burton, kiss me!" and for this ...is a kiss whose longing ardor ...kes her blush.

"Ah, that was an honest husband's ...ss," she says rapturously, and for ...e speech receives another that ...kes her tremble with joy.

Running to Marina, she cries: "Fancy, it was that awful La Belle ...ackwood, who wanted to save Burt...'s life."

"I am very glad she didn't want to ...ve my husband's life," laughs Ma...na.

"The superb Madame Blackwood," ...ies Rodrigo Bonelli, who with ex...ted exclamations has with his broth... been examining Barnes' shots, "has ...ceived my great uncle's favor and is ...bout to become his spouse. Let no ...e mention her name lightly."

"The great bandit's bride!" half ...rieks Enid.

"The wife of the grand Antonio!" ...aculates Marina.

"Aye, and that is why we must soon ...ake our leave. To-morrow is their ...ptial day in Bocognano."

Then the ladies get to discussing ...is wondrous news, and Barnes, lead...ng Edwin aside, whispers: "We must ...get the girls out of here quick. If we ...vamoose now, probably the explosion ...of the tower and those bodies will be ...attributed to the riotous 'Luchese.'"

The American's tone is awed, he reflects that till this last dire episode of his life, no human being had ever fallen to his fatal pistol.

"By gum," remarks the detective, who is gaunt with much fasting, coming out of the house, "there was a fine supper for two setting there, with white flowers and champagne. I finished it all."

Marina's face flames. She knows for whom the nuptial dinner was designed, and as Edwin suggests leaving, cries: "Yes, quick, from this awful place!"

"You're quite right—now get away smart—they may think it was bloody Italians," observes Emory, and makes himself useful helping the ladies down to the sea, to which some steep steps on the further side of the cliff lead them.

From a little jetty Barnes hails a boat that is apparently in waiting from the fishing vessel. To the captain of the craft who is in the boat's stern, he cries: "The 'Lucchese' are making a row all along the coast. We must leave at once."

"Yes, the rocks that fell about us from the explosion told us that," answers the captain, anxious to leave this dangerous anchorage. But as the party board his boat, he mutters: "Count Cipriano and his nephew?"

"They are trying to protect their vines and crops from the 'Lucchese.' We are not to wait for them. You remember, the count said a lady would be on board. Your charter money."

"Oh, yes," cries the captain, pocketing some bills, as his men row them to the fishing vessel, where he orders his sails set.

From a Little Jetty, Barnes Hails a Boat.

Barnes tells the skipper to steer to Villefranche harbor. As he turns away Emory edges beside him and whispers: "This is the infernal felucca, in whose hold I banged about from St. Tropez."

The two Bellacoscia have assisted the ladies to the deck.

"Now, gentlemen," asks Barnes of the young bandits, "what can I do for you for bringing me my wife?"

"You can give us the pistols that make incredible shots," answers one of the young men.

"By them we will kill many gendarmes," whispers the other.

"Sorry for the gendarmes, but the pistols go," laughs Barnes, and passes his weapons to these nice young bandits, who, after kissing the ladies' hands, take their leave with many words of gratitude and thanks.

"I fear I'm leaving murder behind me," sighs the American.

"Yes, nothing will cure this country but half a dozen railroads," remarks the detective. "Then you're able to get about and handcuff a man."

The vessel is soon under way, leaving the Corsican coast. The ladies, worn out with fatigue, are asleep in the little cabin, where there is only room for two.

As their husbands seated on the deck are smoking languidly their cigars, Barnes whispers to Edwin: "I rather imagine this vendetta is settled for good. Marina is again beloved by the people of her commune, and you will be honored when you go back with her to visit her estates."

"And the Danellas?"

"Oh, I don't think there will be much said about them. The 'Lucchese' have been raising the devil in the last few days. Anyway, Cip had to be planted; he was the dangerous one; he was the money of the affair. You and I will be now able to walk down Piccadilly or Fifth avenue and not squint over our shoulders—and if our brides disappear we'll seek for them at Delmonico's or the Langham, and not at some Baxter street rendezvous of the Black Hand or some Whitechapel haunt of foreign stiletto gentlemen."

On the following noon the felucca is anchored at Villefranche. As the party disembark at the pretty landing stage, Maud, running down the path greets them with: "My, you are scarecrows!"

"Happy scarecrows!" cries Enid, as Barnes tenderly lifts her from the boat. Then they all go up to Lady Chartris' villa, followed by old Tomasso, contentedly smoking a pipe, and Emory in consultation with Barnes and Edwin as to silence in regard to the slain Danellas and bringing Graham and the Seagull back. In her parlor they are received with many sighs by Lady Chartris, who says mournfully: "I'm going back to London. Do you know that after that night you left, that wretched Cipriano has never visited me?"

To avoid discussing Danella, Enid and Marina run upstairs to get on civilized clothes, the former says.

"Oh, mama," cries Maud breaking into the room with the Nice morning paper in her hand, "that detective is eating up everything in the house, and old Tomasso is chuckling over this telegram from Corsica: 'Saliceti, the vendetta man, is defeated for the chamber of deputies'—and—here's bad news for you, Barnsey—La Belle Blackwood is being married this morning in Bocognano to the great bandit who kills so many, the one they call the Bellacoscia."

"Hush, my child," shudders her mother, "don't mention that horrible creature's name."

"Oh, I can speak of her now, mama, dear," remarks Maud, naively; "Blackey is now an honest wife."

"You bet Sally will make Bonelli a thoroughly honest wife," sneers Barnes in a whisper to Edwin. "No flirtations glances at other mountain cavaliers, or the dagger in the back for both, biff! I reckon that kiss I gave Sally the other night in Bocognano is Sally's last outside kiss for a deuced long t-t-time."

The careless words gurgle in his throat. Enid standing in the conservatory, dressed in some light white carriage costume, looking like a fairy bride, cries sweetly but possessively: "Burton, I'm going to take you with me into Nice, shopping!"

"Oh, good Lord, now I know I'm married," laughs Mr. Barnes.

"Gee, you'll never be married really till you give me that bridesmaid present!" pouts Maud savagely.

Exquisite blushes rise to Enid's face.

"Right you are, Maudie," cries Mr. Barnes excitedly. "We'll get you the finest kind of gift this very morning."

"Oh, it must be something very handsome," answers the bride enthusiastically. "We're going to be so happy."

Burton leads his wife to the victoria, puts her carefully in, seats himself beside her and says casually to Lady Chartris, who has come to the door with them: "By the bye, we shan't be back for a week."

"Oh, mercy, I—I have no baggage," falters Enid.

"Sent on ahead with Tompson."

"Where are you going to take me, dear?"

"To a nice little Swiss canton where there are plenty of mountains, but no bandits or vendettas. By the lord Harry, I'm tired of taking separate wedding tours," he adds savagely.

"Y-e-s, Burton." His beautiful wife snuggles a little closer to the ardent Barnes. Then she starts up with a little scream as an old slipper thrown by Maud nearly knocks off her hat, and Edwin and Marina from the window above are laughing and showering rice and flowers on her.

The sun is shining very brightly as Mr. and Mrs. Barnes of New York drive into Nice.

FINIS.

BEES MARK MAN'S COMING.

Wild Ones All Descended from Those Once Domesticated.

All the honey bees in this country having originally been imported from Europe or Aisa, there is no racial difference between the wild ones and the domesticated; those that live in trees are simply the descendants of those that from time to time have taken "French leave" from their owners' hives and reverted to a state of nature. The vast bulk of the wild bees are of the German or black race, while the standard domesticated bee is the Italian; but that, however, is only because the Germans were the first to be introduced here. Just when the Germans came is in doubt, but it was some time in the seventeenth century; certainly it was not until near the close of the eighteenth century that any bees were found west of the Mississippi. The Indians used to say they could mark the advance of bees in the woods. The Italian bees were first imported in 1860. Better tempered and more industrious than the Germans, they have become popular with apiraists; but as many still keep the German bee, and others have the hybrid formed by the crossing of the two races, while countless Italians now have taken to the woods, there to breed more hybrids, it is clear that there is no sure way of distinguishing between the wild bee and the domesticated.—Outing Magazine.

SOME ARE SO SENSITIVE.

The First Tall Man Couldn't See the Joke and Left.

A tall, thin man, dressed in a light gray suit, entered the hotel restaurant and took an unoccupied chair at a table near the door. He hardly had gotten seated comfortably before another man, even taller and thinner than the first one, entered and took a seat at the same table. And, to make the situation more remarkable, the taller man wore a gray suit of exactly the same shade and cut as the other.

The shorter man never raised his eyes from the bill of fare, and seemed quite oblivious of his companion's presence. The latter looked curiously at the first comer for a few moments, and then, with an apparent desire to be sociable, said:

"This must be the thin man's table."

The shorter man straightened up with a jerk, gave the very tall man a look of the greatest indignation, and exclaimed in a burst of anger:

"Well, you may have it."

With that he hastily rose and took a seat at the furtherst end of the room. The very tall man winked at the waiter, and the incident was closed.

Destroying Rats.

The following advice on conquering the rat pest is given in the New York Farmer: "By the persistent use of traps, occasional resort to poison and the exercise of forethought in the construction of farm buildings so as to minimize the opportunities for harborage, farmers and others may prevent the greater part of the loss and annoyance they now experience from rat depredations. The same statement applies in great measure to city and village conditions. Hence cooperation in the warfare on rats is particularly important and cannot be too strongly urged.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

Raised Up When Science Said There Was No Hope.

G. W. L. Nesbitt, Depot Street, Marion, Ky., writes: "I was a chronic invalid with kidney troubles, and often wished death might end my awful sufferings. The secretions were thick with sediment, my limbs swollen and my right side so nearly paralyzed I could not raise my hand above my head. The doctor held out no hope of my recovery, and I had given up, but at last started using Doan's Kidney Pills and made a rapid gain. After three months' use I was well and at work again."

Through Struggle to Repose.

Struggle and anguish have their place in every genuine life, but they are the stages through which it advances to a strength which is full of repose.—Mabie.

She Didn't Understand.

"Can you tell your present fiance's ring?" inquired the romantic girl as the door bell sounded.

"Why, certainly," answered her practical friend. "It's the newest of the lot."

Nothing Nicer for Dessert

than Coffee Jelly and so easy to make. Just get a 10c package of Plymouth Rock Coffee Jelly Compound, add a pint of boiling water, cool; then serve with sugar and cream. If your grocer does not sell it send his name and 10c to the Plymouth Rock Gelatine Co., Boston, Mass., and they will send you a package.

Reflected Sentiment.

"Whenever that man speaks, you know exactly what he thinks," remarked the admiring auditor.

"I shouldn't say that," answered the cautious person. "But you know exactly what he thinks his constituents want him to think."

Insect Chemists.

Failing to bite sugar from several lumps, some marked bees under observation of Gaston Bonnier, a French naturalist, flew away, returning in an hour or two with other workers, after first visiting a fountain. Settling on the sugar, they were seen to pump water from their crops, when they sucked up the syrup so formed.

Revenge's Furious Appetite.

He who, from a natural sweetness and facility of temper, should despise injuries received, would doubtless do a very great and a very laudable thing; but he who, provoked and nettled to the quick by an offense, should fortify himself with the arms of reason against the furious appetite of revenge, and, after a great conflict, master his own passion, would doubtless do a great deal more.—Montaigne.

Stupid Jeweler.

"Yes, George—that is, Mr. Fickel proposed last night," said the truthful Dora, "and we're engaged now; and I'm the first girl he ever loved, too."

"Indeed!" replied Miss Wise. "I don't notice your ring."

"Oh, he gave me one, but he had to take it back to get it fixed. The stupid jeweler made the inscription read, 'George to Genevieve,' instead of 'George to Dora.'—Philadelphia Press

FRIENDS HELP.

St. Paul Park Incident.

"After drinking coffee for breakfast I always felt languid and dull, having no ambition to get to my morning duties. Then in about an hour or so a weak, nervous derangement of the heart and stomach would come over me with such force I would frequently have to lie down.

"At other times I had severe headaches; stomach finally became affected and digestion so impaired that I had serious chronic dyspepsia and constipation. A lady, for many years State President of the W. C. T. U. told me she had been greatly benefited by quitting coffee and using Postum Food Coffee; she was troubled for years with asthma. She said it was no cross to quit coffee when she found she could have as delicious an article as Postum.

"Another lady who had been troubled with chronic dyspepsia for years found immediate relief on ceasing coffee and beginning Postum twice a day. She was wholly cured. Still another friend told me that Postum Food Coffee was a Godsend to her, her heart trouble having been relieved after leaving off coffee and taking on Postum.

"So many such cases came to my notice that I concluded coffee was the cause of my trouble and I quit and took up Postum. I am more than pleased to say that my days of trouble have disappeared. I am well and happy." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

When you think of indigestion think of Kodol for it is without doubt the only pveparation that completely digests all cases of food. And that is what you need when you have indigestion or stomach trouble—something that will act promptly but thoroughly, something that will get right at the trouble and do the very work itself for the stomach by digesting the food that you eat and that is Kodol. It is pleasant to take. It is sold at J L Harr & Co.

In our write-up of Wm. Yohn being a candidate for Supervisor we said that he has been a tax payer the past 8 years which should have beed 18 years. Wm. is not in the habit of dodging his taxes and has a credit of paying his taxes 18 years instead.

A great many people imagine that they have heart trouble when the fact is that the whole trouble lies in the stomach. The pains in the side around the region of the heart are not heart trouble. We suggest that you start with the stomach and when you feel a depression after eating or whenever food seems to nauseate take Kodol. It will not be long until all these heart hains will disappear. Take Kodol now until you know you are right again. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and will find the the truth of this statement verified after having used Kodol for a few weeks. It is sold at J L Harr & Co.

Tired nerves with that no ambition feeling that is commonly felt in spring or early summer can be easily and quickly alterated taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's restoratice. One will absolutely note a changed feeling within 48 hours after beginning to take the restorative. The bowls get sluggish in the winter time, the circulation often slows up, the kidnys are inactive and and even the heart in many cases grows decidedly weaker. Dr. Shoop's restorative is recognized everywhere as a genuine tonic to those vital organs. It builds up and strengthens the worn-out weakened nerves, it sharpens the failing appetite and aids digestion. It always quickly brings renewed strength, life, vigor and ambition. Try it and be convinced. Sold at All Dealers.

Last week Thursday evening shortly after 11 o'clock fire was discovered near the Mrs. Reichart house opposite the Rock Island depot which is occupied by Geo. Wessels and family. The ones who went to the rescue were J. Baumgartner, M. I. Parker, Thed Henschen and H. Mann. When we arrived the fire was discovered in a small building only about 10 feet from the house. By quick action the fire was soon extinguished, but had the fire not been discovered in less than 15 minutes time, the kitchen would have been ablaze. The cause of the fire was a brooder containing some 70 little chickens which were burned to a crisp. Mrs. Reichart and Mr. Wessels and family extend many thanks to the rescuing parties. Beware your incubators.

John Hammill of Britt, candidate for state senator from this district and Editor Simkins of the Britt news, were in Sheffield this forenoon interviewing the voters in behalf of the former gentleman. Mr. Hammill has the solid support of Hancock County in his candidacy and will without a doubt receive two thirds of the entire vote of Franklin. Cerro Gordo now has two candidates in the field for senator which practically makes the nomination of Mr. Hammill assured. He is an able man in every respect and is a firm believer in the Roosevelt policies. The Forty-third District will be well represented in the senate at the next General Assembly should it decide to elect John Hammill to be a member of that distinguished body.—Sheffield Press.

SCORES ARE BURNED

TEN BODIES ARE TAKEN FROM SMOLDERING RUINS.

INDIANA HOTEL IS BURNED

Several Victims in Frenzy Leap to Certain Death in the Street Below.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 4.—An unknown number of persons, estimated at from twenty to forty, lost their lives in a fire that destroyed the New Aveline hotel here yesterday.

The entire interior of the building is a smoldering heap of ruins, and how many are concealed by the debris can only be conjectured. The hotel register was consumed by the fire, and there are no accurate means of determining who is missing.

The known dead are:

R. S. Johnson, of Pana, Ill.;

M. Hirsch, of New York;

(There is also a M. Hirsch among those saved.)

J. B. Miller, of Sheboygan, Wis.;

J. E. Ellis, of Carson, Pierre, Scott & Co., Chicago;

W. A. Pitcher, of Fort Wayne, salesman for S. F. Boyser & Co., of Fort Wayne;

J. W. Deviney, salesman for Crawford & Lehman, of Philadelphia;

Three unidentified men;

One unidentified woman.

The known missing:

Frank Baxter, attorney, Auburn, Ind.

Companion of Frank Baxter of Auburn, Ind.;

E. B. Alty, of Wabash, Ind,;

Charles Benjamin, salesman for Detroit Neckwear company, Detroit, Mich.;

Mrs. Sarah Hathaway of Mishawaka, Ind.;

Unknown woman, companion of Mrs. Hathaway.

R. E. Trible, of Dalhart, Tex., a ranch owner;

Among the injured were:

F. C. O'Donnell, of Detroit, right arm broken in leaping.

James A. Foster, of Fort Wayne, burned about face and head; at St. Joseph's hospital;

George A. Sill, of Philadelphia, badly cut and burned about face and arms.

Agnes Nadeau, Margaret Mechan, Anna Block and Nathen Bell, all kitchen employes; burned and blistered, at hospital;

F. C. Phillips, of Calumet, Mich., face burned and head scorched;

John Long, bartender, arms broken.

Oscar Wassem, the wrestler of St. Louis and Burlington, who was reported among the dead earlier in the day, returned last night.

Complete destruction of the interior of the hotel makes the work of recovering the bodies a task of great difficulty. A confused heap of charred wood, bricks and twisted girders is piled up between the bare walls to the second story. Some of the bodies taken out are mangled and charred beyond recognition and the work of identification is in these cases a task almost baffling.

Infantry Company D and Battery B of the National Guard are on duty and aiding the fire and police forces to clear away the debris. The fire was discovered at 3:30 o'clock in the morning in the elevator shaft by Night Clerk Ralph Hipkins. He rushed to the upper floors, alarming the guests until the flames which had spread with appalling rapidity, drove him back. His efforts, however, saved many lives.

BATTLESHIPS IN COLLISION.

Big Illinois, in Gale, Crashes into the Alabama.

Monterey, Cal., May 4.—A northwest gale sweeping into the harbor gave the eight ships of the second division of the Atlantic fleet several hours of watchfulness and cut off all communication with the shore.

A serious accident was narrowly averted when the battleship Illinois, second in line from the Alabama, flagship of Rear Admiral Sperry, parted its anchor chain in the height of the gale and went drifting toward shore. The Illinois headed directly for the Alabama, and it looked for a time as though a collision was imminent. But heroic work by the helmsmen managed to steer the drifting ship away, and the only damage done was the tearing away of the port gangway of the Alabama. The Illinois drifted fully 800 yards before emergency anchors, sent spinning into the waters, finally held fast.

The wind continued yesterday and the Illinois made no attempt to regain its position in the four division column. A thousand liberty men were ashore, and the problem of finding a place for them to sleep severely taxed the available buildings in Monterey. The patrol officers on duty had to share the lot of the men and sleep on hard pine floors with only their cap and top coat on them.

JAP WARSHIP SUNK

TRAINING CRUISER SENT TO THE BOTTOM BY EXPLOSION.

MORE THAN 200 DROWNED

About 150 Members of the Crew and Cadets Are Rescued by Two Other War Vessels—Many Officers Perish.

Tokyo. — More than 200 men, including the captain and many other officers, perished early Thursday when the training cruiser Matsushima was sunk by the accidental explosion of a projectile. According to a report from Admiral Yoshimatsu, commanding the training squadron, the disaster occurred while the vessel was anchoring at Makang, in the Pescadores islands. About 150 of those aboard the Matsushima were rescued by the cruisers Hashidate and Itsukushima.

Cruiser Immediately Sinks.

The Matsushima immediately sank until only the bridge was visible. Efforts at rescue by boats from the cruisers Hashidate and Itsukushima continued for a long time, saving the lives of 141 men, including some officers. The majority of the officers were not saved, and at the time of the admiral's report the cadets numbered 58 out of a complement of 300. The sons of Baron Chinda, vice-minister of the foreign office, and of Prince Oyama, field marshal, are among the cadets who it was feared were lost, also Capts. Name, Yoshmori and Yashiro. The cause of the explosion was unknown.

Seek Facts Before Report.

Washington. — Baron Takahira, the Japanese ambassador, was just about to start for the state department Thursday when he was shown the dispatch from Tokyo telling of the loss of life by the explosion on the cruiser Matsushima. It was the first news the ambassador had received of the tragedy and he expressed deep regret over the occurrence. With their usual caution and conservatism the naval officials at Tokyo evidently are obtaining all the information possible before giving out any full report of the disaster. No report of the explosion reached the navy department during the morning from the American naval attache at Tokyo. Naval officers who at once looked up the record of the cruiser drew the conclusion that her loss was not a heavy one to the Japanese navy.

Vessel a Small One.

She was of less than 5,000 tons displacement and of a type which has not been followed since her construction. The peculiarity of the Matsushima was her armament, which consisted of one 12-inch gun mounted on her poop deck. In addition she carried 12 four-inch guns and a battery of smaller caliber and four above-water torpedo tubes. She was built in 1890, being designed and constructed at La Seyne, France. Her principal historic record consists of her part in the war between Japan and China, when she was the flagship of Admiral Ito in the battle of the Yalu river. She also participated in the battle of the Sea of Japan. Two sister ships were built, the Itsukushima in 1890 and the Hashidate in 1891. The cruiser had no armor. She is classed as a protected cruiser, having a protected deck of 1½ inches thick.

AID TORNADO SUFFERERS.

Work of Relief in Afflicted Southern States Is Organized.

New Orleans. — The work of relief for the tornado sufferers in Louisiana and Mississippi is now so thoroughly organized that it covers every part of the wide territory affected by the storm. At Hattiesburg, Miss., Thursday Red Cross officials took charge of the care of the 160 or more severely injured in Hattiesburg hospitals. It is planned to concentrate as many of the badly injured as possible at Hattiesburg in order to better care for them. Some of the injured will be cared for at Lumberton and other towns.

Low Fare Helps Railroads.

Des Moines, Ia. — With the two-cent fare law in operation for the greater part of the period, the eight representative railroads of Iowa show a net gain of $383,057 in passenger earnings for the year ending January 1, 1908. Notwithstanding a falling off $386,000 in the gross earnings for the same period, the conclusion is drawn that the reduction in price of mileage has benefited the railroads as well as the people.

Indian Chief Killed.

New Orleans. — Passengers arriving from Bluefields, Nicaragua, reported that the fighting between Mosquito Indians and Nicaraguans has ended with the killing of the Indian chief. The fighting began about two months ago, and a large number of persons were reported to have been killed.

HE PRODS CONGRESS

MUCH REMAINS TO BE DONE, SAYS EXECUTIVE'S MESSAGE.

AGAINST INJUNCTION'S ABUSE

Strengthen Anti-Trust Law, Urges Executive, and Avoid Plutocratic and Socialistic Pitfalls.

Washington, D. C,. April 28.—Conditions in both the senate and the house were such that the special message of the president, further outlining his views as to legislation, which was sent to congress yesterday, received but scant attention The message arrived late in the day and the house was so tied up under its new rules that it could not officially receive the message, while the senate was in the midst of the consideration of the naval appropriation bill under the ten minute rule when the document reached that body.

The president says the employers' liability law, recently passed, represents a real advance, but comes short of what ought to be done. He then calls attention to the necessity for a chid labor law, a law recompensing all employes who suffer injury while engaged in public service, and other legislation which he urged upon congress in his message of March 25, and he says there seem to be grounds for belief that the legislation will pass.

"There seems, however," says the president, "much doubt about two of themeasures I have recommended; the measure to do away with abuse of the power of injunction and the measure or group of measures to strengthen and render both more efficient and more wise the control by the national government over the great corporations doing an interstate business."

Concerning the injunction, he says "Those in whose judgment we have most right to trust are of the opinion that while much of the complaint against the use of the injunction is unwarranted, yet that it is unquestionably true that in a number of cases this power has been used to the grave injury of the rights of laboring men. I ask that it be limited in some such way as I have already pointed out in my previous messages, for the very reason that I do not wish to see an embittered effort made to destroy it. It is unwise stubbornly to refuse to provide against a repetition of the abuses which have caused the present unrest. In a democracy like ours it is idle to expect permanently to thwart the determination of the great body of our citizens.

Referring to the anti-trust law, the president says:

"The strengthening of the anti-trust law is demanded upon both moral and economic grounds. Our purpose in strengthening it is to secure more effective control by the national government over the business use of the vast masses of individual, and especially of corporate, wealth, which at the present time monopolize most of the interstate business of the country; and we believe the control can best be exercised by preventing the growth of abuses, rather than merely by trying to destroy them when they have already grown.

"Power should unquestionably be lodged somewhere in the executive branch of the government to permit combinations which will further the public interest; but it must always be remembered that, as regards the great and wealthy combinations through which most of the interstate business of today is done, the burden of proof should be on them, to show that they have a right to exist. No judicial tribunal has the knowledge or the experience to determine in the first place whether a given combination is advisable or necessary in the interest of the public. Somebody, whether a commission, or a bureau under the department of commerce and labor, should be given this power. My personal belief is that ultimately we shall have to adopt a national incorporation law, though I am well aware that this may be impossible at present.

"A strong effort has been made to have labor organizations completely exempted from any of the operations of this law, whether or not their acts are in restraint of trade. Such exception would in all probability make the bill unconstitutional and the legislature has no more right to pass a bill without regard to whether it is constitutional than the courts have lightly to declare unconstitutional a law which the legislature has solemnly enacted. The responsibility is as great on the one side as on the other and an abuse of power by the legislature in one direction is equally to be condemned with an abuse of power by the courts in the other direction. It is not possible wholly to except labor organizations from the workings of this law, and they who insist upon totally excepting them are merely providing that their status shall be kept wholly unchanged, and that they shall continue to be exposed to the action which they now dread.

30 BUSHELS OF OATS TO THE ACRE.

WHAT MR. KALTENBRUNNER HAS TO SAY ABOUT HIS GRAIN CROPS IN CENTRAL CANADA.

Writing from Regina, Saskatchewan, Central Canada, Mr. A. Kaltenbrunner writes:—

"Some years ago I took up a homestead for myself, and also one for my son. The half section which we own adjoins the Moose Jaw Creek; is a low, level and heavy land. We put in 70 acres of wheat in stubble which went 20 bushels to the acre, and 30 acres of summer fallow, which went 25 bushels to the acre. All the wheat we harvested this year is No. 1 Hard. That means the best wheat that can be raised on the earth. We did not sell any wheat yet, as we intend to keep one part for our own seed, and sell the other part to people who want first class seed, for there is no doubt if you sow good wheat you will harvest good wheat. We also threshed 9,000 bushels of first class oats out of 160 acres. 80 acres has been fall plowing, which yielded 90 bushels per acre, and 80 acres stubble, which went 30 bushels to the acre. These oats are the best kind that can be raised. We have shipped three carloads of them, and got 53 cents per bushel clear. All our grain was cut in the last week of the month of August before any frost could touch it.

"Notwithstanding the fact that we have had a late spring, and that the weather conditions this year were very adverse and unfavorable, we will make more money out of our crop this year than last.

"For myself I feel compelled to say that Western Canada crops cannot be checked, even by unusual conditions."

Information regarding free homestead lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta may be had on application to any Canadian Government Agent, whose advertisement appears elsewhere. He will give you information as to best route and what it will cost you to reach these lands for purposes of inspection.

15 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Burning, Painful Sores on Legs—Tortured Day and Night—Tried Many Remedies to No Avail —Cured by Cuticura.

"After an attack of rheumatism, running sores broke out on my husband's legs, from below the knees to the ankles. There are no words to tell all the discomforts and great suffering he had to endure night and day. He used every kind of remedy and three physicians treated him, one after the other, without any good results whatever. One day I ordered some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. He began to use them and in three weeks all the sores were died up. The burning fire stopped, and the pains became bearable. After three months he was quite well. I can prove this testimonial at any time. Mrs. V. V. Albert, Upper Frenchville, Me., July 21, 1907."

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the greatest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St. Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff it will do for other suffering women.

Items of Interest From Our Correspondent at the State Capital.

Limit Primary Expense.

Des Moines.—The state executive council has issued a card of instructions relative to the notice of the primary election which the primary law requires the auditors of the counties to give to the people.

It is understood that some of the auditors are planning on having a facsimile of each of the party ballots published as a notice, just as the sample ballot for the general election is published prior to the November date thereof.

The executive council does not require this as necessary. It will insist that the auditors that all that is necessary is for them to have published the lists of candidates in the order that they will appear on the official ballot at the primary.

If the former method is followed it will take four pages of a newspaper to print the facsimile of the ballots. If the latter scheme is followed it will take but one page of a newspaper or less.

There is probably nothing that will compel the auditors to follow the latter plan rather than the former, but it is thought that a letter from the executive council on the subject will be sufficient.

The interest of the state is embodied in the provision of the law that half of the expense for its administration is borne by the state treasury. The bills incurred by the counties will be forwarded to the council to be audited by that body. Undoubtedly it has the power to scale the bills down, but it is probable that this will not be necessary in any case. On the other hand it will be impossible for a large amount of extraordinary expenditures which are unnecessary to be contracted in order to sustain the objection raised to the primary election that it is excessive.

Liquor Interest Demands License.

The liquor interests of the state are demanding the repeal of the prohibitory and mulct law and the enactment of a high license law. They would accept township local option and high license. Their literature is being sent over the state and its effect is finding expression in newspapers assailing the mulct law.

The movement is in the hands of the Independent Citizens' league of Iowa with headquarters at Davenport. Dr. August P. Richter is the chairman and John Berwald is the secretary of the executive committee. This committee has sent out letters to every candidate for the legislature asking him questions as to his attitude on the repeal of the prohibitory and mulct law and on the enactment of a high license law, asking them if they will introduce and work for such a statute and declaring that a categorical answer is necessary.

Can Remove Names from Primary.

The decision of the attorney general has been made to the secretary of state that after a candidate's nomination has been filed, while the primary law will not permit the withdrawal of the petition, he can remove his name from off the primary ticket. The question arose over the request of two candiates to have their names taken off the primary ticket. The ruling permits such a procedure. Those withdrawing are W. A. Dowell of Cass county, candidate for representative on the republican ticket, and L. T. Richmond, candidate for the democratic nomination for senator in the Marion-Monroe district.

Must Pay in Advance.

Beginning with the May term of court it will be a strict case of pay in advance for your divorce decree. Judge Brennan laid down the rule and says it will be enforced. He hopes in this way to stop the practice of attorneys to secure a divorce for a client and then refuse to file the decree until the client pays for his services. In this way, decrees are sometimes not filed for months. In one or two instances, parties who thought they were divorced have married again only to find that the decree was never filed and they were bigamists.

State Portraits Unveiled.

The historical department of Iowa will add two valuable portraits of its collection on June 20, 1908, with appropriate unveiling ceremonies.

That of Fred Douglass will be presented by a representative assemblage of Iowa colored citizens, and that of Alexander Campbell by the Iowa Christian convention, then to be in session in Des Moines.

Corporations Out of Saloon Business

According to Attorney General H. W. Byers the business of buying and selling intoxicating liquors as a beverage in Iowa is unlawful. The attorney general rendered this decision in connection with another one that corporations had no right under the laws of this state to engage in the liquor traffic. It was in reply to the application of a Sioux City corporation to issue stock to members in a wholesale liquor business. The attorney made the decision to the executive council at a meeting held at the capitol.

The Co-operative company of Sioux City applied for authority to issue stock, this application being necessary under the Peterson act, which was enacted by the state legislature to prevent corporations from issuing stock. The attorney general cited the executive council to section 1607 of the Iowa code, which provides: "Any number of persons may become incorporated for the transaction of any lawful business."

He further cited section 2382, which makes it "unlawful for any person, except a permit holder, by himself clerk, servant, employe or agent to sell or keep for sale in this state alcohol, ale, wine, beer, spirituous, vinous and malt liquor".

Section 2447 is also quoted as follows: "So far as it relates to the mulct tax nothing shall be in any way construed to mean that the business of the sale of intoxicating liquors is any way legalized." When, however, certain conditioins are complied with no proceedings may be maintained against the person who has paid the mulct tax.

The Co-operative company of Sioux City, by its articles, is organized to buy, sell and deal in beer, wine and liquors.

General Byers holds:

"We have then a corporation organized for the sole and only purpose of buying, selling and dealing in intoxicating liquor and the questions involved in your executive council's inquiry are:

"1. Is the business of buying and selling intoxicating liquor in Iowa, by persons other than registered pharmacists, a lawful business.

"2. If lawful because of the so-called mulct statute, does that act, when considered with the general statute prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, authorize corporations to engage in that business?"

"I think not."

The attorney general summarizes as follows:

There is, in my opinion, nothing in this decision warranting the claim that the business of buying and selling intoxicating liquors as a beverage is a lawful business within the term unlawful as used in section 1607 of the code (quoted in the foregoing).

All that can be claimed for it is that sales made under certain restrictions and conditions are lawful to the extent that the person making them is exempt from the penalties of the general prohibitory statute, and that contracts made in good faith for the use of premises in which to operate a saloon under the mulct law may be enforced.

In any event it is clear that the legislature in the adoption of the mulct statute never intended that corporations should operate saloons or engage in the business of buying and selling intoxicating liquor under its provisions.

Railroads Carry More Passengers.

Eight of the fairly representative railroads of Iowa enjoyed a net gain of $383,057 in passenger earnings in Iowa in the year ending Jan. 1, 1908.

Half of the year included in these figures the railroads charged but 2 cents a mile and issued comparatively few passes.

For the same year the same eight railroads showed a falling off of gross earnings of about $386,000.

The conclusion has been reached by those who have examined the figures and have knowledge of the reduction of train service by the railroads that the 2-cent fare law has greatly benefited the railroads as well as the people.

In view of the lawsuits which were undertaken recently in federal court and which may be revived at any time with a view to having the 2-cent fare law set aside, the reports of the railroads are of extreme importance.

The report of the Minneapolis & St. Louis shows a loss in passenger earnings of $2:,000, but the Iowa Central shows an increase of $8,700. The Great Western shows an increase of $42,000. In the meantime the Iowa Central shows an actual increase in net earnings of $38,000, although the other two roads show a falling off.

BUYING PAINT BLINDLY.

Many people look upon paint buying as a lottery and so it is, the way they do it. It is not necessarily so, however. Pure White Lead and linseed oil are the essential elements of good paint. Adulterants in white lead can be easily found by the use of a blowpipe. Adulterations in linseed oil can be detected with a fair degree of certainty. See that these two elements are pure and properly put on and the paint will stay put.

National Lead Company, Woodbridge, Building, New York City, will send a blowpipe outfit and instructions for testing both white lead and linseed oil, on request.

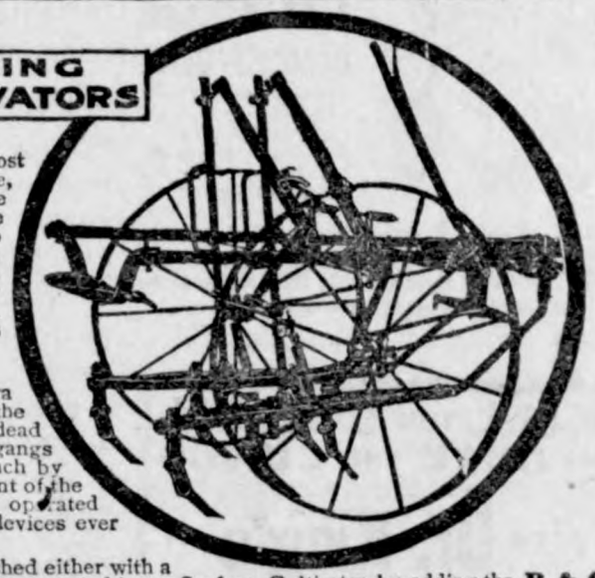
P&O RIDING CULTIVATORS



The Hammock Seat style is the most popular type of riding cultivator made, and the P & O Jewel Hammock has more excellent features than any other. The frame can be set in perfect balance to equalize the driver's weight. Axles are relieved of all twisting strain, as both sides of the frame are equally balanced by operating the lever. A feature appreciated by every farmer is on each of the rock arms, giving extra depth adjustment to that allowed by the cushion springs. In passing over dead furrows or ridges the depth of the gangs can be regulated to fractions of an inch by these levers, which are directly in front of the driver and can be instantaneously operated either way. This is one of the best devices ever put on a riding cultivator.

The Jewel Hammock can be furnished either with a Rigid or Pivot Tongue, and it may be converted into a Surface Cultivator by adding the P & O Jewel Surface Attachment, which can be put on without drilling holes.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

The last of a series of stereoptican lectures on missions will be given in Germantown Sunday evening and Klemme Monday evening. The subject will be "The Social Problem," illustrating the misery, want and sorrow existing in congested portions of our cities. A number of illustrated songs will be given in connection.

The League social at G. J. Schaper's last Friday evening was a pleasant affair. About 40 were present and all joined heartily in making it interesting and entertaining. The committe had a good program arranged beginning with neat invitations and ending with a good lunch. Mr. and Mrs. Schaper spared no trouble to make everything agreeable.

We have no desire to dabble with politics and yet it is of much importance to us all, that only good men be put up as candidates. In this connection we feel safe in recommending John Hammill of Britt as a candidate for the office of State Senator. EMPTY TREASURY SIGHTED

State Auditor Carroll Predicts This Condition if All Appropriations Are Expended.

B. F. Carroll, state auditor and candidate for governor, opening his campaign at Cambridge, predicted an empty state treasury if the appropriations authorized by the last general assembly are expended during the biennial period.

He gave figures showing the receipts and disbursements of the treasury since 1901, and said the disbursements for the last five years amounted to $17,830,784.63, with the receipts in the same period of $17,132,033.00, leaving a deficit of $816,632.30.

The speaker said the cash in the treasury was $35,599 on Feb. 1, against which there were outstanding warrants for $139,801, showing an overdraft of $104,202. The county treasurers are required to remit the state taxes to the state treasurer on April 15, and the state treasurer wrote to the county officers to sent in the taxes as soon as possible this year. The money came in early and prevented an empty treasury.

Mr. Carroll then referred to the appropriations of the last general assembly and said his estimates showed about $800,000 available for extraordinary appropriations. The general assembly, however, increased the regular appropriations and added extraordinary appropriations of $1,415,043, making $1,830,765 to be met by the $800,000 available.

"If my wishes about the governor's office were consulted I would make it more of a business office, with just enough functionary duties to give the position its proper standing and dignity," Mr. Carroll remarked in closing his address.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

SAVINGS

The self-denial that imposes systematic saving, even tho' the income be a small one, develops a strong, rugged character. The business man who willingly meets the opposing forces that stand in the way of his progress and overcomes them, developes a strong, robust personal character that does things. Such men are in demand. The man who maintains a savings account is not honored by men because he has developed a strong character by practice of that self denial that made saving possible and successful. It is rare indeed to find such a character developed under conditions of prosperity that has been inherited or that the man himself has not created for himself. This Bank Wants to Help men who want to help themselves and stands ready at all times to give encouragement to such. We Want the the Accounts of Such People, even if the account is small, for some day it will be bigger.

GUARANTEED BANK DEPOSITS.

A man who wants to be Governor of Iowa puts this plank in his platform. We believe in Guaranteed Bank Deposits, do not believe that either the Federal or State Government should guarantee deposits and make the strong, sound, conservative banks pay the losses of weak, unsound, speculative banks. We guarantee deposits in this bank by—

Stockholders Liabilities $25,000

Which means that we must lose $50,000 before you can lose a cent. We have been here among you for over fifteen years, often tried and never found wanting.

VICTIMS NOW TEN

ONE MORE BODY DUG UP IN MRS. GUINNESS' BARNYARD.

PROBABLY WAS A WOMAN

Witness Found Whose Story Tends to Prove Lamphere Knew of Crimes and Tried Blackmail.

Laporte, Ind.—One more body was added to the death roll of the Guinness farm Friday, the grewsome relics now numbering ten.

Coroner Mack at first announced that the grave opened in the morning contained one complete cadaver and portions of a second, but in the evening said that what he had at first believed to be additional thigh and arm bones are in reality pieces of the first set.

Developments of the Day.

Other important developments of the day included the following:

Peter Colson, a new witness in the case, told R. N. Smith, the prosecuting attorney, that Ray Lamphere had acknowledged attempts to blackmail Mrs. Guinness. This is considered as definitely establishing a motive for a disagreement between Lamphere and the woman which resulted later in the burning of the farmhouse.

Mrs. Leo Greening said that her son Emil, who formerly worked on the notorious farm, saw two strangers at the place the night that Jennie Olsen disappeared in November, 1906. Emil Greening is now in Oklahoma City, and the sheriff's office will try to communicate with him in the hope of establishing the fact that Mrs. Guinness had accomplices in the murders at her place.

Matt and Oscar Budsberg departed for Iola, Wis., in the afternoon, after making arrangements to have the body of their father, Ole Budsberg, shipped to that town as soon as Coroner Mack releases it for burial.

Fort Wayne Officials There.

Sheriff Griece, Chief of Police Angenberk and Dr. White, all of Fort Wayne, visited the Guinness farm in the afternoon and had a long conversation with Sheriff Smutzer of Laporte county. None of the three would reveal the object of their visit and all refused to discuss a report that they were searching for a missing resident of Fort Wayne.

The Pinkerton detectives who were brought here at the instigation of Sheriff Smutzer began their investigation.

Finding of One More Victim.

The resumption of excavation at the farm again drew an immense crowd of spectators. The rush of visitors has become so great that some of the local liverymen have established a regular 'bus line from the downtown district to the farm.

The premature announcement by Coroner Mack that two bodies had been discovered only served to increase the rush of curiosity-seekers. The scraps of humanity were found in the barnyard which had already given up nine cadavers. About four feet below the surface, the excavators encountered bits of bone and burlap and a few strokes more of the spades and hoes revealed the skull, a decomposed torso and leg and arm bones.

Less Skilfully Dismembered.

The body was by far the least preserved of any of the ten grewsome relics. In addition to the usual traces of lime, the evidences were that a less skilful hand had accomplished the dismemberment of this corpse. The legs had been, as usual, severed above the knee joint, but the bones were splintered and the shoulder blade shattered. The skull had been separated and was lying near the feet. It was thought that the body was that of a woman, as a pair of woman's oxford tie shoes and the metal frame of a woman's purse were found in the grave.

FOUR KILLED IN FLAMES

NEW YORK TENEMENT-HOUSE FIRE PROBABLY INCENDIARY.

Mother Trying to Reach Safety Drops Child and It Is Burned to Death —Twenty Injured.

New York.—Four persons were killed and 12 injured Thursday in a fire believed to have been of incendiary origin, which destroyed a five-story tenement house. The dead are: Eva Berg, 53 years old; Samuel Sach, ten years old; Hattie Koplemann, 2½ years old, and an unidentified man.

Policemen carried several children to the ground before the firemen arrived. Men, women and children were packed so closely on the narrow fire escapes that no one could get down. While persons in the building who had been unable to get out because all the windows leading to the fire escapes were crowded struggled for exit on one side, the firemen on extension ladders worked on the other. One by one the women and children were dragged from the overcrowded platforms and carried down the ladders to the street. More than a hundred persons were taken from the fire escapes in this way.

It was in attempting to reach the upper part of the house that little Hattie Koplemann lost her life. Her mother had a remarkably narrow escape from death. Mrs. Koplemann had gone out on a fire escape, intending to make her way to the roof, as the flames were sweeping around the lower part of the iron ladder. She had the child in her arms when she stepped on the platform. A misstep caused her to fall, and as she struck the side of the platform Hattie fell from her arms and rolled through the opening in the platform to the platform of the floor below, which was red hot. There the child was burned to death. Mrs. Koplemann rolled across the opening, but saved herself from falling through. Mrs. Eva Berg and the Sach boy were burned to death in their rooms.

BLOODY TRAGEDY IN OHIO.

Horseman Kills Two Persons, Wounds Woman and Commits Suicide.

Washington Court House, O. — Bert Devaney, aged 43, (white) a well-known horseman, Tuesday night shot and killed Lida Bird, aged 22, a colored girl, and shot her mother in the abdomen, inflicting a probably fatal wound. He then ran across the town to the barn of Silas Shackelford, where he took refuge. Shackelford went in after him and was shot and killed by Devaney. Later Devaney committed suicide. It is thought Devaney was insane.

Following the shooting of the two women, the authorities organized a posse and company M Fourth regiment, Ohio National Guard, was called, permission having been given by Gov. Harris. The officers surrounded the barn and threatened to burn it. Finally persons ventured up to the barn door and found Devaney had shot himself.

JEROME REFUSES JURY MINUTES.

New York Attorney Balks at Order to Turn Over Evidence.

New York. — District Attorney Jerome said Tuesday that he would go to jail rather than comply with an order received from Judge Rosalsky that certain grand jury minutes be filed with the clerk of the court of general sessions. Mr. Jerome made this statement at the hearing of charges against him before Commissioner Hand, who was appointed by Gov. Hughes to take evidence in the matter of the King committee's charges that the district attorney had failed to fulfill the duties of his office. The records which Judge Rosalsky ordered filed with the court of general sessions were those of the grand jury which investigated the affairs of the Metropolitan Street Railway system last November. The effect of filing these minutes with the clerk would have been to make them public.

Flood at East Alton.

East Alton, Ill.—Wood river broke through its banks, after rising four feet in four hours Wednesday afternoon, and half of East Alton is under water. The tracks of the Chicago & Alton, Big Four and the McKinley interurban line are overflowed, and traffic temporarily is suspended. Two big factories have been forced to shut down because of the high water, which covers an area five miles long and a mile wide. Many families were forced to vacate their homes.

Express Messenger Murdered.

Denver, Col.—Train robbers, who boarded Denver & Rio Grande train No. 4 at Castle Rock Thursday, murdered Express Messenger Charles H. Wright, aged 60, employed by the Globe Express company.

From the dead messenger the robbers took the keys to a small safe in the baggage car, which they opened and took the contents, in all worth less than $100.

METCALF REVIEWS FLEETS

ADMIRAL EVANS UNABLE TO PARTICIPATE IN CEREMONY.

Formally Relinquishes Command of Fighting Vessels and Departs for Washington.

San Francisco.—The combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets of battleships, armored cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers and auxiliaries, aggregating in weight of displacement the enormous total of more than 400,000 tons, were reviewed in picturesque San Francisco harbor Friday by Secretary of the Navy Metcalf.

The 44 vessels of the two fleets lay at anchor in four long columns and, proceeding from the Oakland shore, the secretary on board the little gunboat Yorktown—a reminder of the days when the navy was in its infancy—proceeded southward through the lines formed by the armored cruisers of the Pacific fleet, nearest the Oakland shore, and the second squadron of the Atlantic fleet, headed by the Minnesota. Turning back to the north at the end of these two lines, the Yorktown traversed the lane formed on the starboard by the battleships of the First Atlantic squadron and on the port by the little destroyers.

Rear Admiral Evans, who had hoped to end his active naval career by participating in the official ceremonies, was not permitted by his attending physician to go aboard the Connecticut. Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas was again the senior office. Admiral Evans formally relinquished command of the fleet Saturday and left for Washington.

The afternoon was marked by the presentation of silver services to the battleship Nebraska and the armored cruiser California, from the states after which the ships were named. Gov. Sheldon of Nebraska and Gov. Gillett of California personally made the presentation speeches.

At night in the St. Francis hotel the official dinner of welcome by the city of San Francisco was presided over by Mayor Edward R. Taylor. All the flag and commanding officers of the fleet were present. At a later hour and attended by all the higher officers and a host of the younger men, came the dance of the Friday Night club at the Fairmont hotel.

CHESTER PUPILS STRIKE.

Teachers Forced to Apologize for Riding on Street Cars.

Chester, Pa. — As a manifestation of the bitterness with which many people regard the Chester Traction company and the men who took the places of the motormen and conductors when they went on a strike several weeks ago, this city Friday witnessed a sympathetic strike of the pupils of the Morton avenue school because two teachers, Miss Anderson and Miss MacFarland, rode on the trolley cars manned by strike-breakers. When the pupils learned that the teachers had ridden on the cars they refused to attend the sessions.

As a climax to the incident mothers of the children went before the school board and demanded the removal of the teachers. The parents were promised that the teachers would make an apology to the children on Monday and also make a public apology through the columns of the local newspapers.

Harmon for Ohio Governor.

Columbus, O.—In a tumultuous convention characterized by the most intense factional feeling, the Democrats of Ohio Wednesday nominated Judson Harmon of Cincinnati, attorney general of the United States under President Cleveland, for governor and indorsed William Jennings Bryan, and instructed the delegates-at-large to the national convention to vote for him for president.

Bakersfield, Cal. — W. E. Loucke, his wife and their baby were instantly killed Thursday when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Southern Pacific train at Reedley. Loucke was a prominent business man of Selma.

PRINCE EULENBURG ARREST

Once a Confidential Friend of the Kaiser—His Ruin Predicted.

Berlin. — Prince Philip Zu Eulenburg was Friday placed under [illegible] arrest. The crown prosecutor took this step as a result of the testimony given by two men at the prince's bedside to the effect that Prince Zu Eulenburg had been guilty of wrongful actions with them years ago. Prince Zu Eulenburg was involved in the court scandal in Berlin that grew out of the charges brought by Maximilien Harden, editor of the Zukunft last summer. At the second Harden trial the court declared that all the charges made by Harden were absolutely without foundation. The prince was taken into custody at his castle at Liebenberg and brought in an ambulance automobile 40 miles to the charity hospital, where he will be detained pending a further investigation of a charge of perjury made against him. The prince's arrest is taken to mean the irretrievable ruin of this brilliant man who was at one time a confidential friend of the emperor.

OHIO TROOPS ORDERED OUT

Threats to Burn Two Towns in Tobacco District.

Columbus, O.—Threats to burn towns of Aberdeen and Higginsport emanating from unknown sources but resulting from the bitter warfare in the Burley tobacco district of Ohio and Kentucky, were largely responsible for an order issued by Gov. Harris Tuesday evening to Adjt. Gen. Critchfield to dispatch troops to the towns mentioned.

Troop B of Columbus left for the scene of threatened trouble Wednesday morning at five o'clock. Capt. W. W. Knauss had about 50 cavalrymen in his command. Companies of the First regiment at Cincinnati and Batavia are also said to be under waiting orders.

LEVEE BREAKS AT VINCENNES

Preparations Are Being Made for Serious Flood.

Vincennes, Ind.—Friday night at eight o'clock the Wabash river was 18.8 feet, the rise being at the rate of an inch an hour. The levee broke in two places, flooding thousands of acres and threatening the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern tracks three miles west. The second break in the levee occurred on the Indiana side, five miles south of here. Two mills closed and preparations are being made to fight the biggest flood in the history of this section.

GREAT FIRE IN ATLANTA.

Two Business Blocks Destroyed, the Loss Being $1,250,000.

Atlanta, Ga.—One million and a quarter dollars is the loss, conservatively estimated, of a fire which started at 3:30 o'clock Friday morning and swept two blocks of Atlanta business property.

By night the fire was under control with ruined buildings in the district bounded by Forsythe, Nelson, Madison and Hunter streets. Late in the day the police and fire departments dynamited what was left of the ragged walls.

Declares Thaw Is Insane.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. — Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the Matteawan state hospital, in his return Tuesday to the writ of habeas corpus obtained by counsel for Harry K. Thaw, denied the allegations in the petition of counsel that Thaw is now sane, and alleges on the contrary that Thaw is insane.. Dr. Baker has had Thaw under observation during his confinement in Matteawan following the trial for the slaying of Stanford White.

Arrested as Murderous Bandit.

Denver, Col.—"Red" (Roy) Hisle was arrested here Friday on the charge of murdering Charles Huntington Wright, the Globe express messenger who was shot and killed in the express car of a Denver & Rio Grande train. Hisle is 27 years of age.

REAT CHURCH CONFERENCE OPENED AT BALTIMORE

ALTIMORE.—The quadrennial session of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church—its supreme legislative judicial body—opened in this city 6, and will continue its work unsome time in the first week in . This church is the largest of Protestant denominations in this try, with a membership of 3,300,- of the laity, about 20,000 ministers 14,000 local preachers. To repre- this vast host about 850 delegates mbled in the general conference, of them laymen, there being in- ed in the latter class a score or "elect women," for since the year women may be sent as delegates he general conference.

he cosmopolitan aspects of this may be inferred from the fact there are 300,000 members in the Afro-American conferences in the h, besides missions in Africa on east and west coasts, and in desia, where Bishop J. C. Hartzell his colored associate, Bishop tt, have done remarkable work. re are missions also in China, ea, Japan, Burmah, the Philippine nds, India and many countries of th America, besides Methodist con- nces in Germany, Switzerland, y, Bulgaria, Sweden, Denmark, way, Finland and France. The man contingent alone aggregates ,000 members and 1,000 ministers, of the conferences being in this ntry and three in the Fatherland. will be seen, therefore, that this neral conference is a parti-colored, lti-lingual and cosmopolitan as- mblage, with manifold interests ich identify it with the civilization d religious life of many lands. out 300,000 of the entire member- p are in foreign missions.

Question of New Bishops.

The bishops who preside in turn er this body from day to day are the nter of constant interest. Their nks have been thinned by death dur- the quadrennium. Bishops Merrill, drews, Fowler, Fitzgerald, Joyce d McCabe having died. Of the whole mber the venerable Bishop Thomas wman, who has passed the age of , and Bishops Foss, Walden, Malla- u and Vincent are on the roll of nor as men retired from the activi- s of the episcopacy. The others on e active list, Bishops Warren, Good- ll, Cranston, Moore, Hamilton, Berry, elmeyer, McDowell, Bashford, Burt, lson and Neely, are in Baltimore to cupy the chair as presiding officer, by day, in the order indicated ove, which is the order of seniority election.

The missionary bishops differ from officers just enumerated in that eir episcopal jurisdiction is limited the specific fields for which they ere chosen—as for example, Bishops hoburn, Warne, Oldham and Robin- n, for India and Malaysia; Bishops artzell and Scott, for Africa, and shop M. C. Harris, for Japan and orea. The missionary bishops are t entitled to preside over the gen- al conference.

A question now being widely asked all parts of the church under con- deration is, who will be chosen for w bishops?

It is hardly to be questioned that least six new men must be added to e board of bishops in order to main- in its efficiency in the taxing work administration, at home and abroad. those on the active list, men in ll vigor, too, one is at the age of 77 arvelously preserved, and with few aces of age upon him; one is almost and two are 68. China is asking at two men be assigned for superin- ndence in that land—one bishop in ddition to Bishop Bashford, who has spent most of the quadrennium there; the Germans are concluding that their numbers and the interests they represent, in Germany and in this country, require them to have one of their own men—something they have never had yet—numbered among the bishops.

Several Who May Be Honored.

They have several men in mind as filling the bill—Prof. J. L. Nuelsen of the German Wallace college, Berea, O.; President Addicks of Central Wesleyan college, Warrenton, Mo.; President Havighorst, German college, Mt. Pleasant, Ia.; Rev. P. G. Yunker, director of the Martin institute, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, and Rev. Dr. A. J. Nast, editor of the Christliche Apologete, Cincinnati. It is understood that the German delegates will choose their standard bearer from this list, and that the man they select the general conference will be urged to elect.

It is just now likely that the eight new bishops, aside from the German list already noted, will be found in the following list of men who now appear to be, according to the sentiment of the church, taken far and wide, in the lead. We enumerate them alphabetically:

Rev. Dr. William F. Anderson, for the past four years corresponding secretary of the board of education, with headquarters in New York city, has become widely known in view of the ability he has shown as an administrator of the important educational interests which have been in his care. He is a west Virginian by birth, an alumnus of Ohio Wesleyan university and of Drew Theological seminary, 48 years old and a man of attractiveness in the pulpit and on the platform.

Dr. Bovart Favored.

Rev. Dr. Freeman D. Bovard of San Francisco, editor of the California Christian Advocate, and a recognized leader of the interests of Methodism on the Pacific coast, has been of such use in the rehabilitation of the city which he has served since its overthrow by earthquake and fire, that his name has been frequently mentioned as that of the man likely to be put forward as the representative of the men of the Rocky mountain region and beyond in connection with the episcopacy. He is a big-hearted man, a fine administrator.

Rev. Daniel Dorchester, D. D., pastor of Christ church, Pittsburg, will be put forward by western Pennsylvania as a fitting man for the suffrages of his brethren. He comes of stanch New England stock, is a fine scholar, has a dozen years of service in a university as professor of letters to his credit, and is known widely because of his breadth of vision and his largeness of manhood.

Rev. Dr. Edwin H. Hughes, president of DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., is counted on as in the race by virtue of three combining elements —he has an evangelical spirit in a marked degree, he has shown himself an administrator of skill in his present post and he represents the educational field and work, which need to be recognized in relation to the episcopal office. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university and of the School of Theology of Boston university, and has ably filled some large pastorates.

Rev. Dr. Henry C. Jennings, for 12 years one of the publishing agents of the Western Methodist Book concern, and in that field revealing the elements of a great administrator—intelligence, energy, prudence and enterprise—is considered to have more than a fighting chance for election.

Other Prominent Candidates.

A representative of the region beyond the Mississippi has recently been forging to the front, Rev. Dr. W. S. Lewis, president of Morningside college, Sioux City, Ia., whose successes in devoloping that institution in a few years into its present status and promise indicate him to be a man of singular resources.

Rev. Charles W. Smith, D. D., editor for many years of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate, is being talked of by hosts of friends in different parts of the church. His age is against him, but one of the remarkable things in the case is the remark, heard on many sides: "Dr. Smith would give in four or eight years of service the kind of work which we need in Methodism. He is a student of our economy, a master of our constitutional law, a man of steady judgment, a man to be absolutely trusted." It has been said recently again and again: "Even if Mr. Smith could give but a single quadrennium of service as bishop, it would be worth while to elect him."

Afro-American Element.

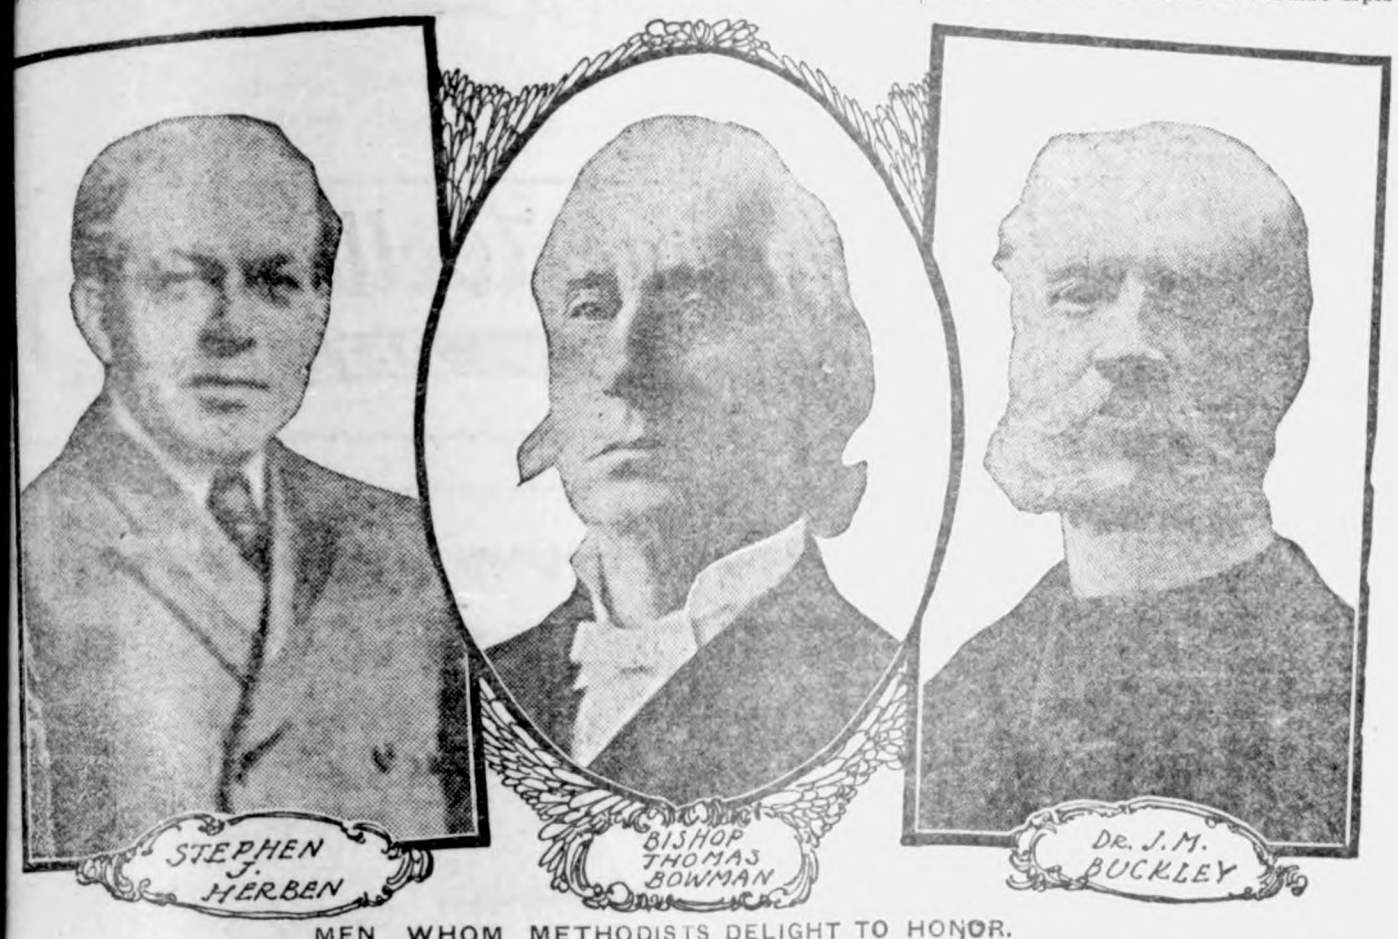
There is a movement now going on which in due time will solve many problems connected with the race—the project to unite organically all the Afro-American Methodist denominations, including the 300,000 colored people of the Methodist Episcopal church. This aggregation would be colossal in size and importance, made up as follows: African Methodist Episcopal, 850,000; African M. E. Zion, 580,000; Colored Methodist Episcopal (formerly of the M. E. church, South), 222,000; making a denomination of about 2,000,000 in membership, including, as do the figures above given, more than 20,000 ministers.

The denominational publishing interests will command attention, of course, in view of their magnitude and vitalizing relation to all other interests of the church. Messrs. Eaton and Mains, agents of the Methodist Book Concern in New York, with depositories in Boston, Pittsburg and Detroit; and Messrs. Jennings and Graham, agents of the Western Methodist Book Concern in Cincinnati, with branches in Chicago, Kansas City and San Francisco, have for two quadrenniums advanced the business under their care to a point never before attained. The total assets overrun $4,000,000; the sales of books and periodicals aggregate $2,000,000 a year; last year a dividend from the profits of the two establishments was made to the superannuated preachers of the denomination, their widows and orphans, amounting to $150,000.

For half a dozen years there have been several projects looking to the consolidation of the manufacturing plants of the two Book Concerns, and their unification under a single manager, with proper assistants.

Leaders in the Church.

Among the men who will be in the forefront by reason of recognized leadership are Rev. Dr. James N. Buckley, editor for 28 years of the Christian Advocate, New York, confessedly the master of the floor and of the questions that come before the body for discussion; Gov. Hanly of Indiana; Gov. Hoch of Kansas; Rev. Dr. Levi Gilbert, editor of the Western Christian Advocate, in Cincinnati; Dr. D. D. Thompson, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, in Chicago; Dr. Stephen J. Herben, editor of the Epworth Herald; Dr. Henry Wade Rogers, dean of the Law school of Yale university; Gov. Buchtel of Colorado; Hanford Crawford, one of the great merchants of the west; Robert T. Miller of Cincinnati, former president of the Inland Oil company, and scores of college presidents, business men, expert in financial and local church administration, and other clerical and lay leaders.



MEN WHOM METHODISTS DELIGHT TO HONOR.

WAYS OF SERVING THE OLIVE.

Endless Novelties and Clever Combinations Are Possible.

Olives may be a cultivated taste, but to the trained palate they offer endless novelties when used in clever combinations. The modern cook holds the olive in gentle regard, and with its aid prepares many a surprise to tempt palates that sigh for "something new."

Olive Sandwiches.—Tiny ovals of thin bread spread with butter, then with equal parts of grated celery and chopped walnut meats, put together in pairs, with a stoned olive pressed into the top, are popular at teas.

Russian sandwiches are made by chopping olives fine and just moistening them with mayonnaise. Cut thin slices of bread in narrow strips. Spread the olive upon half the pieces, spreading the others with caviar; press together in pairs.

Stuffed olives have the stones removed and replaced by any salpicon or forcemeat preferred. A variety is produced by stuffing them with some savory butter, such as lemon butter, rairgote butter, etc. They are separated from the stone spirally, as one peels an apple. The stone olive is then folded about the filling—which should be about the size of the stone —until it resumes its original shape.

CARE OF THE TRUNK.

Little Repairs That Will Keep It Always Looking Well.

A battered trunk on the outside is not an ornamental affair by any means and one never really cares what the exterior presents, providing the interior looks neat. Often the cloth or paper lining becomes old and the hinges break off, presenting a very untidy appearance. To make it look more presentable make new hinges with white tape, tacking the material in place with the smallest flat-headed tacks. Line throughout with white moire wall paper or a silver blue. The paper should be fastened on with wall paper paste and thoroughly dried before the contents are replaced. You will find that where the paper comes to the edge of the trunk trays and boxes it will be better protected along the edges if covered with passepartout to bind those parts. If the trunk has wooden pieces on the outside, clean with sandpaper and varnish. Often the metal portions can be cleaned with a cloth dipped in kerosene and rubbed into the pieces, afterward washed and polished with a chamois. Leather straps can be brightened with russet or black shoe polish.

Beefsteak and Onions.

Take a thick steak (a flank steak is best), chop thoroughly, dredge with flour, spread with butter, pepper and salt to taste, place in a dripping pan or roaster. Cover with water, cover closely and place in the oven for about an hour. Slice onions, and 24 minutes before meal time spread the onions over the steak and return to oven. If the flour with which the meat has been dredged does not make the gravy thick add a little browned flour mixed to smooth paste with water. Keep enough water around meat to have a nice gravy when done. Serve hot on a platter, either pouring gravy around steak or serve in a separate bowl.

For Worn Carpet.

When changing a Wilton, Brussels or tapestry carpet to other rooms one finds places which are cut in fitting or one wishes to join out. Make paste of flour and water and add some common glue, which should be dissolved thoroughly. Boil all together. Take a piece of burlap (the unfinished kind) and wet on one side with paste. Also wet the back of the carpet where you wish to rejoin. Put the side which is pasted next the canvas side of the carpet, lay over a board smoothly, draw the edges closely together, and hold them in place with a few tacks half driven in board.

Apple Butter Without Cider.

Take half a bushel of apple peel, and put on stove in granite kettle. At the same time put peelings on in another kettle and boil until soft. Strain juice into apple butter. Add water to apples and cook until well done. Run through a colander. Set back on stove and cook until it thickens. Remove and add 50 cents' worth of dark brown sugar while hot. Replace on stove again and let it cook slowly for one and a half hours, or until it is the required thickness, stirring it occasionally.

Frizzled Beef.

Slice off enough dried beef to make a half pint; put frying pan on stove with two tablespoons of butter; put in beef and fry brown or crispy; stir to prevent burning; put one and a half tablespoons of flour in, stir and let brown. Add one pint of sweet milk.

Finishing by Quick Dispatch.

A New York girl drank two quarts of varnish, which is quicker than going to a finishing school.—New York American.

This woman says that sick women should not fail to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she did.

Mrs. A. Gregory, of 2355 Lawrence St., Denver, Col., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was practically an invalid for six years, on account of female troubles. I underwent an operation by the doctor's advice, but in a few months I was worse than before. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to perfect health, such as I have not enjoyed in many years. Any woman suffering as I did with backache, bearing-down pains, and periodic pains, should not fail to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

TIGERS!

A DREAM WITH A REALITY.

Klemme Ought to Land the Base Ball Pennant for 1908

The old team formerly known as the Tigers is again recognized and Klemme can expect some of the fastest base ball playing ever witnessed during past decades.

The boys were all out the other evening and from the very start showed excellent form and if continued will without question develop one of the fastest teams in northwestern Iowa.

Klemme can boast of their past record as a base ball center and there is no reason under the sun why we cannot accomplish what has been done in earlier days.

Klemme held the record as the pennant winner for several years and the prospects for this year are brighter than ever and all that is necessary is the hearty co-operation of the fans and business men to again liven up our little city.

Many of the old players have again joined the team and are playing in form and this is plenty of assurance that fast work on the diamond can be expected.

The Manager is trying to schedule games with neighboring towns within a very short time as soon as the weather will permit and we desire that every man, woman and child will kindly give their presence at the first game and help to swell the receipts so the team can be in a position to get onto their feet in a financial way.

NO USE TO DIE.

I have found out that here is no use to die of lung trouble as long as you can get Dr. Kinkg's new discovery saps Mrs. J P White of Rushboro, Pa. I would not be alive today only for that wonderful medicine. It loosens up a cough quicker than anyhing else and cures lung disease even after the case is pronounced hopeless. This most reliable remedy for coughs and colds lagrippe, ashma, bronchits and hoarseness is sold under guarante at J L Harr & Co. drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial botle free.

LOOKS LIKE HAMMILL.

The Franklin county papers are pushing the candidacy of the Hancock County man for state senator. They are urging every voter in the county to line up for Hammill. Hammill has given them the pledge that he would only be a candidate for the one term, and with this Hancock County promising to help Franklin county out four years hence. This is what the primary law is doing. It's the biggest fraud on earth and is quite likely to rob Cerro Gordo county of the next senator. Hancock County papers are solid for Hammill and in Cerro Gordo county every thing is up in the air.—Mason City Republican.

GOOD FOR EVERYBODY.

Norman R. Coulter, a prominent architect in the Delbert Building San Francisco, says: I fully endorse all that has been said of Elecric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. When you think of indigesion think of Kodol for it is without doubt the only pveparaion that completely digests all cases of food. And that is what you need when you have indigesion or stomach trouble—something that will act promply but thoroughly, someting that will get right at the trouble and do the very work itself for the stomach by digesting the food that you eat and that is Kodol. It is pleasant to take. It is sold at J L Harr & Co.

Rev. Geo. A. Wessel, as you will notice by the program in another part of this paper, is slated to give the Decoration Day oration. The Reverand is a man who never disappoints his audience. Hear him euligise the dead best remembered patriots of this great and glorious common wealth on Memorial Day. You will go home a better man.

A great many people imagine that they have heart trouble when the fact is that the whole trouble lies in the stomach. The pains in the side around the region of the heart are not heart trouble. We suggest that you start with the stomach and when you feel a depression after eating or whenever food seems to nauseate take Kodol. It will not be long until all these heart hains will disappear. Take Kodol now until you know you are right again. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and will find the the truh of this staement verified after having used Kodol for a few weeks. It is sold at J L Harr & Co.

Piles are easily and quickly checked with Dr. Shoop's magic ointment. To prove it I will mail a small trial box as a convincing test. Simply address Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. I wonld not send it free unless I was certain shat Dr. Shoop's magic ointment would stand the test. Remember it is made expressly and alone for swollen, painful, bleeding or itching piles either external or interanl. Large jar 50c. Sold by All Dealdrs.

John Hammill of Britt, candidate for senator in the Franklin, Cerro Gordo, Hancock district, looks like a sure winner. He ought to get Hancock and Franklin county solid. Cerro Gordo now has two candidates and we suppose the Britt man will get a good bunch of votes in that county, too.—Chronicle, Hampton, Iowa.

Tired nerves with that no ambition feeling that is commonly felt in spring or early summer can be easily and quickly alterated taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's restoratice. One will absolutely note a changed feeling within 48 hours after beginning to take the restorative. The bowls get sluggish in the winter time, the circulation often slows up, the kidnys are inactive and and even the heart in many cases grows decidedly weaker. Dr. Shoop's restorative is recognized everywhere as a genuine tonic to those vital organs. It builds up and strengthens the worn-out weakened nerves, it sharpens the failing appetite and aids digestion, It always quickly brings renewed strength, life. vigor and ambition. Try it and be convinced. Sold at All Dealers.

Laundered shirts are unknown in China. This is strange when it is considered that nine out of every ten Chinamen who come to the United States go into the laundry business.

It is the opinion of most librarians that books should not be bound in either calfskin or Russia leather, as these are most liable to decay. On the other hand, morocco and pigskin are most durable. Good judges of these things object to the use of gas as it has a most deteriorating effect on the bindings. The electric light being preferable.

Persons who wear eye-glasses have noticed that they become dim when subjected to a sudden change of temperature—as, for instance, when the wearer goes from the cold outer air into a warm room. This may be prevented by rubbing the glasses with soapsuds every morning. They may be polished bright after the soapsuds are applied; but an invisible film is left on them that will prevent the deposit of moisture.

For three weeks after marriage a New York printer extolled his wife's mother as one of the best women that ever drew the breath of life. Then the old lady began to "show her hand", and her son-in-law reluctantly changed his opinion. What he thinks of her now may be inferred from a remark which he cautiously whispered in the ear of a friend: "I have but one thing to desire in regard to my mother-in-law—I sincerely wish that all of her children had been sons."

A negro in the process of turning white was recently seen on the streets of Keokuk, Iowa. Fifteen years ago he was perfectly black, but he is fast becoming a white man, so far as the color of the skin goes. Since he began to change his color, the transformation has been gradually going on, and his appearance now is more white than black. His cheeks, chin, ears, hands, and part of the neck are all white. The black skin peels off in scales, and in a few years he will, with the exception of his wool which possesses the African kinkiness, be all white.

The woman who has no children never knows the greater joy of devotion. Her sympathies, instead of extending themselves, will narrow more and more, and tend to concentrate themselves upon the merely pleasurable experiences and sensations which only lead souls about in their own labyrinthine domain. She may win personal distinction and high fame. She may surely deserve them, but she will be in danger of following the false way which begins and ends in self, says Julia Ward Howe in the May Delineator. If the fates deny her marriage, or leave it bare of offspring, let her win to her some motherless child, and study the lesson taught by the dear Christ when he placed a child before his disciples and bade them learn from him the great science of life.

Only a Summer Belle.

Mr. Nicefellow—"I am delighted to hear that your beautiful sister is back from the South. She is always such a belle at the summer resorts. I hope her flight southward every winter is not due to ill health."

Little Boy—"No, but in cold weather up here her nose gets red."

No News.

Mrs. Gabb—"Yes, my daughter appears to have married very happily. Her husband has not wealth, it must be admitted, but he has family."

Mrs. Gadd—"Yes, I heard he was a widower with six children."

The Count Genuine.

First Beauty (haughtily)—"Count Lobelia spent last evening with me. You have met him, I presume? He is much incensed at the gossips who are saying that he did not even came from Europe."

Second Beauty—"How silly that report is! Of course he came from Europe; his clothes smell of the steerage."

Business Is Business.

Gotham Girl—"The paper says a matrimonial exchange has been tried for the benefit of foreign noblemen and American heiresses."

Philadelphia Girl (who deals at Wanamaker's)—"Isn't that splendid? I hope they'll have a bargain counter."

IOWA STATE NEWS

Events of Recent Occurrence Throughout the Commonwealth.

MRS. DOLPH IS CONVICTED.

Girl Who Killed Husband is Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

Clinton.—The jury in the case of Irene Rolph, the 17-year-old girl accussed of the murder of her husband, returned a verdict of manslaughter. The jury was out seventeen hours, and the verdict is believed to have been a compromise between those who favored first degree and others who did not believe the young woman was entirely responsible for her acts.

Probably no murder case in the history of Clinton county has created such wide spread interest as has the Dolph case. The case has a number of peculiar circumstances that tend to make it the most remarkable murder case in the ken of the old residents of Clinton. In the first place, the first information of the murder brought to the Clinton police was brought by the defendant's attorney, after Mrs. Dolph had consulted him.

Another peculiar circumstance is the return of the accused woman to Clinton after having gone to her mother's home in Joliet.

Fred Dolph was found in his little cottage in North Clinton at East and Old Main streets by the police on Sunday morning, March 1, after they had been informed by Attorney Holleran that a dead man lay in the Dolph cottage.

Subsequent developments showed that Mr. and Mrs. Dolph had had a quarrel on the preceding Thursday night when a party was in progress at the Dolph home. Witnesses declared that Dolph had threatened to leave his wife and that Mrs Dolph had threatened to follow and kill him if he did. Circumstances indicated that the murder had been committed some time Friday night or early Saturday morning and testimony at the coroner's inquest developed the fact that Mrs. Dolph had made a hurried trip to her mother's home in Joliet, returning on Sunday morning and immediately engaging the services of Attorney Holleran.

BABY SHOOTS MOTHER.

Mason City Woman Fatally Wounded at Hands of Son.

Mason City.—The little 4-year-old son of Mrs. Charles Hall of Mason City accidentally shot and probably fatally wounded his mother on the 7th.

The accident happened while mother and child were lying on a bed romping together and laughing—each supremely happy in the presence of the other, and altogether unconscious of any impending tragedy. Then in its play the lad came upon a revolver hidden beneath a pillow. He had heard the injunction "Mustn't touch it!" many times, but now mother's back was turned for an instant, and he grasped the weapon. Somehow it was turned toward the unsuspecting mother; somehow the babe pulled the trigger. Following the explosion a bullet tore its way into the body of the mother, perforating the intestines, and now the surgeons believe that their efforts to save her will be in vain.

The mother suffered as much from the shock of the tragedy as from the wound she received at the hands of her beloved babe. She was taken to the hospital as soon as possible and operated upon, but her wound is very serious and she is hovering between life and death.

The babe doesn't understand altogether why his happy play with mother was interrupted so suddenly, nor why his cries for her cannot be answered. He is a bright pretty little fellow and the tragedy has saddened the whole city.

Hear Rates Cases in Ottumwa.

Ottumwa.—Commissioner Clark of the interstate commerce commission will come to Ottumwa on May 26 to hear three cases of alleged discrimination in freight rates against railroad companies. The cases were brought to the attention of the commission by the Ottumwa Commercial association. The cases are the Ottumwa Brick and Construction Company vs. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad Company and Ottumwa Boxcar Loader Company vs. the Milwaukee, and another one by the same company against the Rock Island.

Conner Makes Fort Dodge Happy.

Fort Dodge.—A communication from Congressman Conner of the tenth district assures Fort Dodge people that an apropriation of not less than $125,000 will be allowed by congress for a new postoffice. The need for more room and an adequate building here is pressing.

DISEASE IN DAIRY HERDS.

Webster City Herd Has 63 Per Cent Tubercular.

Webster City.—Dairy cattle, 68 per cent affected with tuberculosis! Milk, 10 cents per quart! This is the latest development in the pure milk crusade that has been brewing in Webster City for some time. O. S. Cleveland, who operates one of the largest dairies in the city, started the agitation some time ago. This week the thirty-four head of cattle in the Cleveland dairy were subjected to the tubercular test and twenty-three of them were condemned. They were takn in charge by United States inspectors and shipped to Des Moines. As a result milk from the Cleveland dairy is now 10 cents a quart.

Stanley Conklin, another leading dairyman, is advocating the establishment of a central sterilizing plant. The matter of the condemnation of nearly 68 per cent of the Cleveland dairy cattle has started a discussion as to what per cent of milk sold over the city is pure and free from tuberculosis. There are many who hold the percentage to be small, and on the other hand there are many who scout the correctness of a tuberculin test as showing with any degree of certainty the condition of an animal. Whether the test be good or bad, however, Webster City hopes to profit from the pure milk agitation, though 10 cents per quart is putting on metropolitan airs which are as yet unpopular here.

FATHER SHOT BY DAUGHTER

Winthrope Girl Protects Her Mother From Abuse.

Dubuque.—As the outgrowth of a family quarrel in which the father and mother in the Fleming household became involved, the husband, Mont Fleming, a farmer living two and one-half miles north of Winthrope, Buchanan county, is not expected to live. A bullet from a 22-caliber rifle in the hands of his 22-year-old daughter, Maude, entered his temple. At a late hour it had not been recovered. The girl was arrested, but later was released by the sheriff, presumably on her own recognizance.

The Fleming family, while highly respected in the neighborhood, had had considerable trouble within its own circle, but the difficulty has not been fully divulged. On the occasion in question the husband and wife engaged in an argument, which becoming heated, the father offered to inflict bodily injury on the wife when his daughter, who was present, grasped a rifle to protect the mother, and fired a shot at short range. Physicians say he has small chace for recovery. The injured man is about 50 yeahs of age and owns his farm. The family consists of father, mother, son and daughter. The affair has created a sensation over the county, second only to that produced by the murder of the Williams family by their father.

C. G. W. Must Pay Penalty.

Dubuque.—The case of the United States vs. the Chicago Great Western railway and tried in federal court was decided by the jury against the company. The defendant was charged with failure to provide cars with safety coupling appliances in accordance with the statute. A penalty of $090 was fixed.

The Illinois Central on a similar charge pleaded guilty several days ago. The case was of wide interest, representing a test on which future actions will be based.

Couldn't Stand Taunts.

Fort Dodge.—Because his schoolmates jeered at him on the play grounds at school for missing so many words in the spelling lesson, 12-year-old Walter Anderson ran away from school and rather than return departed from home. He slept all night in a box car in the Illinois Central yards and returned home the next afternoon seriously ill from exposure. The police and many neighbors of the Andersons had hunted for hours for the boy but had failed to find him.

Train Robbers Try a New Game.

Mason City.—Something new in train robberies was perpetrated near here on a Milwaukee passenger when E. C. Echenrole of Cleveland, O., was relieved of his money and other valuables. Just as the train was nearing Mason City three men got Echenrole, a traveling man, into one of the vestibules. There they beat him and made him give up everything he had. Then the robbers jumped from the train and disappeared.

COMPLAINTS ABOUT PAINT.

The time to complain about paint is before the painter applies it. The man who puts up the money should not shirk the responsibility of choosing the paint. True, the painter ought to know paint better than the banker, the professional man or the merchant. The trouble is, the house-owner too often deliberately bars the competent and honest painter from the job by accepting a bid which he ought to know would make an honest job impossible.

Secure your bids on the basis of National Lead Company's pure White Lead and pure Linseed Oil and see that you get these materials.

No one need be fooled by adulterated white lead. A blowpipe testing outfit will be mailed to anyone interested in paint.

Address, National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York City.

Force of Habit.

"Bet that lady has been to the millinery opening," whispered the big waiter in the white apron.

"What makes you think so?" asked the cashier.

"Why, I said: 'Madam, what kind of trimmings do you like with your steak?' and she says: 'Why, make it black lace and two bunches of red cherries with wire leaves.'"

You Would Not Accept Counterfeit Money, Why Accept Counterfeit Goods?

Good money is made by the Government in which you have implicit faith and confidence. Good goods are made by manufacturers who are willing to stake their reputations on the quality of the material offered to you through the medium of their advertisements in this paper. Counterfeit goods are not advertised. The reason for it is they will not bear the close scrutiny to which genuine advertised goods are subjected. Counterfeit money pays more profit to the counterfeiter. Counterfeit goods are offered to you for the same reason.

Insist on the Genuine—Reject the Counterfeit.

The New Baby.

A young woman of a religious turn of mind wished to announce to a friend the birth of her first-born child. She sent the following telegram: "Isaiah, 9-6," which, being interpreted, read, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given."

The friend, more literal and less familiar with the prophets, read the message, and said to her husband: "Margaret has a boy, but why on earth did she name him Isaiah? He must be a healthy chap, though, for he weighs nine pounds and six ounces."—Woman's Home Companion.

Senator Harte, who has introduced at Albany a bill against the sale and manufacture of cigarettes, has many original views. These he has the talent to express in terse and striking terms.

Discussing medicine, in which he places none too great faith, Senator Harte said neatly at a recent Albany banquet:

"Medicine is the art of amusing the patient while nature cures the disease."

Hanging Scaffolds.

With the modern skyscraping office building has come a new form of building scaffold. Instead of constructing the scaffold from below, which is impossible in the cases of buildings ranging from 10 to 50 stories high, platforms are suspended from the steel girders above. On these swinging platforms the bricklayers work and the scaffold is raised as the work progresses.—System.

CHANGE IN FOOD

Works Wonders in Health.

It is worth knowing that a change in food can cure dyspepsia. "I deem it my duty to let you know how Grape-Nuts food has cured me of indigestion.

"I had been troubled with it for years, until last year my doctor recommended Grape-Nuts food to be used every morning. I followed instructions and now I am entirely well.

"The whole family like Grape-Nuts, we use four packages a week. You are welcome to use this testimonial as you see fit."

The reason this lady was helped by the use of Grape-Nuts food, is that it is predigested by natural processes and therefore does not tax the stomach as the food she had been using; it also contains the elements required for building up the nervous system. If that part of the human body is in perfect working order, there can be no dyspepsia, for nervous energy represents the steam that drives the engine.

When the nervous system is run down, the machinery of the body works badly. Grape-Nuts food can be used by small children as well as adults. It is perfectly cooked and ready for instant use.

FAIRBANKS TALKS

VICE PRESIDENT NOT IN SYMPATHY WITH EXECUTIVE.

IS OPPOSED TO A BIG NAVY

Efficient Training of Young America Better than Military Display, Says Indianian.

Chicago, May 11.—Vice President Fairbanks was the principal speaker yesterday at the banquet following the dedication of St. Stanislaus parochial school. Mr. Fairbanks took exception to President Roosevelt's shipbuilding policy and other administration ideas. The vice president said:

"The event we have met to celebrate is evidence of the fact that while we are growing in wealth, in commercial and industrial power, we are not losing sight of these finer things which are the crowning glory of the highest and best civilization. In the final analysis, the measure of our progress in the scale of the world's estimation is not our banks, mercantile houses, manufactories, railroads and our steamships, but our great churches, colleges, schools, universities, hospitals and charities.

"We hear much of the need of a large navy and a large army. We all agree that we should provide adequately for the national defense. The money necessary to this end should be freely expended, but beyond our reasonable needs we should not go. Our national tranquility is not menaced from without nor is our domestic peace threatened from within. I would rather see the people spend their money in building up great schools, colleges and universities, churches and cathedrals than see them spend it in unduly expanding armies and navies.

"The armies of young men and young women who are trained in school, colleges and universites are the armies which shall dignify and glorify American achievement. We have frequently heard men undertake to justify an increase of the army on the ground that the organization of working men into large, compact bodies was a possible source of danger. There is, it seems to be, no possible justification for such a suggestion. It is an unwarranted impeachment of the patriotism of the great body of the American people. The workingmen of America are friends and not enemies of the government. The relation of labor and capital to each other is a matter of transcendant importance and it was never more important than now. How to divide fairly the fruit of their joint effort has always been a perplexing problem.

"Political laws do much to solve some of these problems, but they fall far short of a satisfactory, just and final solution. We must look chiefly to the churches and the school for help. There the maxims of fair dealing are inculcated.

"Teach the new generation the perilous effects of socialism. A propaganda is maintained to teach its so-called virtues. Socialisms levels down instead of leveling up. It is subversive of the whole purpose of republican government.

"It is destructive of the most powerful factor in our progress, and that is individual initative. A sort of procrustean principle of society and puts a handicap upon genius, ability and thrift. There has been transplanted to our soil an enemy to our institutions. It is a protest against republican government. Yes, it is a challenge to all government established by the virtue and patriotism of men. Anarchy is un-American and un-Christian.

"We have no hospitality for those who seek to raise the red flag above the cross and the banner of the republic."

EVANS' FLAG DOWN.

Popular Commander Relinquishes Command of Fleet.

San Francisco, Cal., May 10.—Unostentatiously and without unusual ceremony, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans yesterday relinquished command of the Atlantic fleet to Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas.

Worn with his exertion of last night, when he was wheeled in a chair to the banquet room at the St. Francis hotel and spoke for some minutes to the assembled guests amid scenes wild enthusiasm, Admiral Evans yesterday rested in his room at the hotel. His flag at the masthead of the Connecticut was hauled down at 10:30 yesterday with a salute of thirteen guns from the ship. At the same instant the red flag of Admiral Thomas, floating on the Minnesota, was hauled down with similar honors, and the admiral accompanied by his aides, Lieutenant Castleman and Lieutenant Berrien, entered his barge and was conveyed to the Connecticut.

MEAN TRICK OF THE PARROT.

And Just After Its Mistress Had Made Neat "Bluff."

Young Hankinson (making a call)—You have had that parrot a long time, Miss Laura.

Miss Laura—Yes, we have had him several years.

Young Hankinson—Quite intelligent, is he not?

Miss Laura—Very. Can imitate almost anything.

Young Hankinson—They have a remarkably clever parrot over at the Casterlins', Miss Laura. It can imitate the sound of a kiss to perfection. Is that among the accomplishments of our feathered friend here in the corner?

Miss Laura (indignantly)—No, sir. He does not attempt an imitation of a sound he is not accustomed to hear, Mr. Hankinson. Of that I can assure you.

The Parrot—Wait, George, dear, till I take this bird out of the room.—Tatler.

BOY KEPT SCRATCHING.

Eczema Lasted 7 Years—Face Was All Raw—Skin Specialists Failed, But Cuticura Effected Cure.

"When my little boy was six weeks old an eruption broke out on his face. I took him to a doctor, but his face kept on getting worse until it got so bad that no one could look at him. His whole face was one crust and must have been very painful. He scratched day and night until his face was raw. Then I took him to all the best specialists in skin diseases but they could not do much for him. The eczema got on his arms and legs and we could not get a night's sleep in months. I got a set of Cuticura Remedies and he felt relieved the first time I used them. I gave the Cuticura Remedies a good trial and gradually the eczema healed all up. He is now seven years old and I think the trouble will never return. Mrs. John G. Klumpp, 80 Niagara St., Newark, N. J., Oct. 17 and 22, 1907."

of the happy homes of to-day is a vast fund of information as to the best methods of promoting health and happiness and right living and knowledge of the world's best products.

Products of actual excellence and reasonable claims truthfully presented and which have attained to world-wide acceptance through the approval of the Well-Informed of the World; not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and obtaining the best the world affords.

One of the products of that class, of known component parts, an Ethical remedy, approved by physicians and commended by the Well-Informed of the World as a valuable and wholesome family laxative is the well-known Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

What is Pe-ru-na?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna, confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

Manufactured by Peruna Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with Amanda Arnold went to Mason City Tuesday morning.

Chas. Gruetzmacher was an over Sunday visitor in Klemme.

Victor ann Ella Schoenwetter now of Garner, visited in Germantown last Sunday.

E. H. Lenz had a suitable monument erected on his family lot in the Klemme cemetery.

F. C. Griewe and family attended church in Germantown last Sunday and spent the day with relatives.

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Koerner of Reinbeck, came up Tuesday to attend the funeral of their little grandson.

H. Griewe conducted the evening services in our Klemme church last Sunday in an interesting and instructive manner.

W. F. Lau and family came down from Miller Saturday night and are spending part of this week with their relatives.

Comilla Neef came home from college Tuesday evening and will stay with her grand mother whos health has not been the best of late.

On invitations sent out by Mrs. Wessel, the members of the Klemme League met at the parsonage last week Friday evening and spent an enjoyable evening.

John Gruetzmacher went to Mason City Tuesday morning to attend a postmaster's convention. From there he went to Charles City to hear Gov. Cummins speak Wednesdey.

All were glad to see Mrs. John Schwichtenberg and son Ernest in church again last Sunday. The latter is improving nicely and has regained his speech almost completely.

The little son Rufus William, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stille died on Monday, aged 5 months and 5 days. The child had been ailing most of its days, but as time went on the parents entertained hopes of its recovery. The funeral services were conducted at the house Tuesday afternoon and were largely attended. We can assure the bereft parents that they have the sincerest sympathy of the whole community. Especially so since the lost a sweet little girl only 20 months before.

The last, in a series of illustrated lectures on various mission works, was given to large and appreciative audiences in Germantown Sunday evening and Klemme Monday evening While we did not advertise these lectures much, they increased in popularity with each number. We received so many encouraging words concerning them that we feel well payed for the effort it cost to get them up. The illustrated songs were many of them, very impressive and we trust will bear good fruit. At least two young men told us, after hearing and seeing the songs "Where is my wandering boy tonight" and "Tell mother I'll be there" that they had decided to change their course. We contribute much of this success however to those who assisted us in singing these songs. The songs illustrated with this last number were; "Abide with me," "Jesus lover of my soul," "The newborn king," "Palms of victory," and a few given before.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

SAVINGS

The self-denial that imposes systematic saving, even tho' the income be a small one, develops a strong, rugged character. The business man who willingly meets the opposing forces that stand in the way of his progress and overcomes them, developes a strong, robust personal character that does things. Such men are in demand. The man who maintains a savings account is not honored by men because he has developed a strong character by practice of that self-denial that made saving possible and successful. It is rare indeed to find such a character developed under conditions of prosperity that has been inherited or that the man himself has not created for himself. This Bank Wants to Help men who want to help themselves and stands ready at all times to give encouragement to such. We Want the the Accounts of Such People, even if the account is small, for some day it will be bigger.

GUARANTEED BANK DEPOSITS.

A man who wants to be Governor of Iowa puts this plank in his platform. We believe in Guaranteed Bank Deposits, do not believe that either the Federal or State Government should guarantee deposits and make the strong, sound, conservative banks pay the losses of weak, unsound, speculative banks. We guarantee deposits in this bank by—

Stockholders Liabilities $25,000

Which means that we must lose $50,000 before you can lose a cent. We have been here among you for over fifteen years, often tried and never found wanting.

Detroit makes 6,000,000,000 pills a year, all guaranteed to cure. Why die?

The world is not near so old as some of the people who go growling and grumbling over it.

A New Jersey man, aged 81, had his wife, aged 65, arrested for spanking him. Another mollycoddle!

A California man fasted for 43 days and then ate clam broth. One might naturally think that he would have taken food.

A straw hat was seen on the streets of Philadelphia the other day. Is it possible that they think there that it is still last summer?

Two cats have been declared legally dead in Philadelphia. And yet the supply of gossip in that city is probably not appreciably diminished.

Though you may be surprised to hear it, nowhere has it been decreed by city, state or nation that our womenfolk must wear those big, impossible hats.

The latest definition of love is "protoplasmic hunger." After marriage it is supplanted by a craving for a more substantial diet than the protaplasmic bill of fare seems to offer.

That Scotchman who invented a gun that will shoot a projectile from London that will land in Paris may suddenly take it into his head to invent bagpipes that can be heard the same distance.

According to reports, President Eliot of Harvard wants to limit the college football teams to two games a season. If such ideas are carried out the cause of higher education will be at a discount.

The husky athlete who shows up at the dock with a crowd of admiring friends and a camera man will discover, on a little inquiry, that the small boy with the fish pole has beaten him into the water.

"Saloons have swing doors which yield to a very gentle push. Why not schoolhouses?" is the pertinent question asked by a correspondent of the New York Times. It ought to be as easy to get out of a schoolhouse as into a saloon.

A Clevelander has invented an airship which he says will stay up for months. We don't wish to be critical, but it does seem as if the most enthusiastic aeronaut would want to come down to earth at least once in two or three weeks.

A New York physician is said to have removed a human heart from the body and repaired an injury without any harm resulting to the patient. That's nothing—there are plenty of girls who can give their hearts to three or four men at one time.

The New York teachers who prefer to decline the offer of a free trip to Europe to study the school systems there, with salaries paid in full while they are away, because they are too high and mighty to travel second-class, should cheerfully be allowed to stay at home.

"After getting married and unmarried a few times some rich folks actually get tired of the sport," says the Washington Post. This may be so, but, remarks the Baltimore American, it is impossible to see that recent examples give any grounds for such a conclusion.

If the Chicago woman who drank to intoxication in order to give her husband an object lesson had first consulted some one with common sense, she would have learned without the humiliating experience that morality does not thrive on that kind of teaching, and perhaps have saved herself from a divorce scandal.

Penny-in-the-slot machines for selling gas are so popular in London that there is almost a famine in copper coins in that city. The British mint is coining four tons a day in an attempt to supply the demand. In 1907 1,336 tons of pennies were taken from the automatic gas meters. As the meters are opened only once in three months, it can be seen that the amount of coin taken out of circulation by them is considerable.

Automobiles have not driven all the horses to the bone-yard. There are nearly 20,000,000 horses in this country, and their estimated value is almost $2,000,000,000 In the decade during which the motor car has been developed the number of horses has increased by 4,000,000, and the average value of a horse has risen. The case is a little like the experience of traction development in large cities. When new tunnels and subways are opened the old lines seem to be just as much crowded as ever.

CONFERENCE ENDED

ITS RESULTS ARE AMPLE BUT NOT YET CLEARLY SEEN.

RECORD IS TO BE PRINTED

Declaration of Co-Operation Is Adopted and Permanent Organization Will Be Formed—Last Session Is Interesting.

Washington. — The first conference of the governors of the states of the American union ended Friday. Like many of the important events of history, time is needed to reveal the epoch which the president and the governors believe has been made.

The accomplishments of the conference, which had been in sesion at the White House for three days, cannot be set forth with mathematical precision. That its immediate results are more than ample is the expression of President Roosevelt, who brought it about, and of the governors who participated.

Startling Facts Compiled.

The printed record of the conference, which later will be available to every American home, will be a compilation of facts, startling in their meaning, convincing in their universal conclusion that the states must act, and that the states and the nation must cooperate to the end that to the whole people of the nation may accrue the lasting benefit of its natural resources.

Besides the compilation of facts by the experts and the freely expressed opinion of the governors, the conference leaves as its permanent record a thousand words of "declaration." Not a "declaration of independence" but a "declaration of co-operation."

Perhaps greater in importance than all else was the determination of the governors to perfect a permanent organization whereby a heretofore unknown intimacy may be developed among the executives of the 46 sovereign states, made strong by a common purpose, and made potent by pronouncements which may not lightly be disregarded.

Set Program Discarded.

Of the last day the story is one of many features. The set program was swept aside. The president presided throughout. He interjected remarks and speeches. He brought to the platform men who made plain the prevailing feeling, that thought and care must be exercised for the future. The prepared papers were not presented, but they will be printed in the permanent record. Their place was taken first by the "declaration," which was adopted after discussion. Then William J. Bryan was presented by the president. He touched the same chords which had produced the vibration of harmony and co-operation. A governors' discussion brought many state executives to the platform but the product was altogether that of harmony, and the sentiments expressed were applauded alike by all.

President Roosevelt himself, answering the one criticism—that of Gov. Folk of Missouri—to the declaration, aroused the conference to its warmest demonstration of approval. He swept aside the "academic question" of where the line of authority should be drawn between the states and the nation. He wanted action, and what he said received indorsement at each period.

Mrs. Roosevelt Entertains.

The desire of Mrs. Roosevelt to entertain the governors was not thwarted even by the rain which fell drearily throughout the day. A garden party had been planned by her to be held in the south grounds of the White House during the late afternoon. The garden party was brought inside the White House, and lost none of its zest by the transformation. More than 1,500 guests were present.

Afternoon and evening trains from Washington took many of the distinguished guests from the city, and the first conference of the nation on the conservation of its natural resources passed into history.

Two Killed in Collision.

Muskogee, Okla.—South-bound passenger train No. 5 on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, due to arrive in Muskogee at 11:20 Friday morning and running 50 minutes late, collided head-on three miles north of Muskogee at noon with a north-bound through freight. Two trainmen were killed and 15 passengers injured.

Socialists Nominate Debs.

Chicago. — Amid charges of gag rule and excitement verging upon the riotous, Eugene V. Debs once more was selected as the presidential nominee of the Socialist party at an early hour Friday morning.

Omaha Has $500,000 Fire.

Omaha, Neb.—The old plant of the Omaha Packing company in South Omaha was destroyed by fire Friday night, together with 3,000,000 pounds of meat, involving a loss estimated at $500,000.

GUNNESS VICTIM IS BURIED

HELGELEIN'S BODY INTERRED AFTER IDENTIFICATION.

Woman Herself Is Dead—Doubt Removed by Dentist's Examination of Jawbone Fragments.

Laporte, Ind.—The first of the Gunness victims to be interred with Christian rites was buried Friday night in Patton's cemetery, on the outskirts of Laporte. The corpse was that of Andrew K. Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., the last man to meet his death in the trap to which Mrs. Gunness lured her victims.

The body was released for burial after Coroner Mack had received the reports of the Bertillon experts who have examined it and compared their findings with figures taken from the records of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater.

"The identification of the piece of jawbone taken from the ruins of the Gunness farmhouse as a portion of Mrs. Gunness' skull, bears out most conclusively the contentions of the state regarding the identity of the bodies found in the cellar on April 28. It is the clinching bit of evidence which should set at rest the rumors that Mrs. Gunness had escaped."

This statement was made by Ralph N. Smith, prosecuting attorney, Friday night. It followed a report from Dr. C. P. Norton, a dentist, who found that the piece of charred bone presented characteristic conditions which he had observed while working on Mrs. Gunness' teeth.

David Havens, for whom both the defense and state were said to have been searching, was found Friday at Gallien, Mich. He was one of the men who helped disinter the bodies from the ruins of the farmhouse and his departure from this vicinity had given rise to comment. He explained, in his communication to the city authorities, that he had merely gone to Michigan in search of work.

Another missing man also turned up in Charles Edmonds, a former employe of Mrs. Gunness, who was supposed to have been one of her victims. He has been working at a farm only a few miles from the Gunness place.

BANDITS TAKE AWAY $35,000.

Rob New Mexico Station—Are Pursued by Bloodhounds.

El Paso, Tex.—Pursued by men and bloodhounds, three bandits with $35,000 of loot in their possession fled through the rugged mountain passes north of French, a little station 80 miles from East Las Vegas, N. M., on the Santa Fe railroad, in an effort to escape the clutches of the law.

At French Thursday afternoon they broke down the door of the depot, bound and gagged the station agent and special guard, blew open the safe, took the money and rode away, leaving their victims helpless.

Bishop of Cleveland Dead.

Canton, O.—Rt. Rev. Ignatius F. Hortsman, bishop of the Catholic diocese of Cleveland, was stricken with heart failure here Wednesday after having celebrated mass at St. John's church. He remained unconscious for some time but finally responded to stimulants. Later, however, he suffered another attack and died at 9:30 o'clock.

Church and School Burn.

Cleveland, O.—The church and school of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary were completely destroyed by fire Tuesday. Church and school occupied the same building. The fire occurred during the afternoon recess and very few children were in the building at the time. They escaped from the building easily.

SENATE PASSES ALDRICH BILL.

Substitutes It for Vreeland Measure Adopted by House.

Washington.—The Vreeland currency bill, which was passed by the house Thursday, was delivered to the senate Friday and at once sent to the committee on finance. Senator Aldrich promptly made a report from the committee substituting the Aldrich bill in an amended form for the house measure and in that form it was passed by the senate. This action threw the bill into conference, the house refusing to accept it.

The work of cleaning up legislation in the house preparatory to adjournment May 23, proceeded at a rapid pace. Both the military academy appropriation bill and the omnibus public building bill were passed, leaving of the supply bills only the general deficiency bill to be considered. In addition 825 private pension bills were put through.

A bitter and sensational attack on former Speaker Keifer of Ohio by his colleague, Gen. Sherwood, was a feature of the day's proceedings.

Washington.—The Vreeland currency bill, agreed upon by the Republican caucus, was put through the house Thursday under a special rule by a vote of 184 to 145. Fifteen so-called insurgents of the majority party voted with the Democrats, who went on record solidly against the measure.

The great sundry civil appropriation bill, carrying a total of about $120,000,000, was passed by the senate. This is the last of the large supply bills, and its passage places the senate squarely alongside the house in the consideration of the appropriation bills, and of the entire 14 leaves only the general deficiency and the military academy bills to be considered by either house.

JOHNSON IS NAMED.

Minnesota Democrats Stand by Their Favorite Son.

St. Paul, Minn.—The Democrats of Minnesota Thursday formally indorsed Gov. John A. Johnson as a presidential candidate and at the same time, by a vote of 772 to 166, refused to declare in favor of William Jennings Bryan as second choice.

The followers of Mr. Bryan did not carry out the threat which they had so often made during the last ten days—that they would bolt and hold a rump convention if their contests were defeated before the committee on credentials, or if they were not able to secure a partial indorsement of their leader. They made a sturdy fight for their man, and when they had been overwhelmingly defeated, remained quietly in their seats and made no motion to leave.

Illinois Sues for Fees.

Springfield, Ill.—Five suits in action of debt aggregating $1,750,000, and for damages of $150,000, were filed in the Sangamon county circuit court Friday by Attorney General William H. Stead and Gov. Charles S. Deneen against the sureties of former state treasurers and one former state auditor, for fees retained during their administrations for collecting interest on county, municipal and district bonds.

Temple for Springfield Masons.

Springfield, Ill.—With imposing ceremonies and with a parade of all the Masonic bodies in the city, the corner-stone of the new Masonic temple, to cost $100,000, was laid Thursday afternoon by the grand lodge of Illinois.

Three Bribe-Takers Fined.

Rockford, Ill.—Dr. E. C. Dunn, John Mash and C. H. Woolsey, ex-aldermen, who were indicted Wednesday for accepting bribes from the Central Heating and Power company, pleaded guilty and were fined $2,000 each.

SPERRY'S FLAG IS HOISTED

HE TAKES COMMAND OF THE ATLANTIC FLEET.

Rear Admiral Thomas Ends His Active Naval Career—Did Good Work on Cruise.

San Francisco. — Rear Admiral Charles Stillman Sperry, returned within six months from a mission of peace as one of the American delegates to the conference of the Hague, assumed command Friday of the strongest force of first-class fighting ships assembled in the history of the nation.

Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, who succeeded Rear Admiral Evans as commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, hauled down his flag at 10:40 a. m. from the truck of the Connecticut and ten minutes later Admiral Sperry was received on board the flagship with the salutes and other naval honors befitting his position.

Although he will not retire until October next, Admiral Thomas Friday ended his active naval career of nearly 47 years. He served as second in command to Admiral Evans during the recent trip of the Atlantic fleet, and by reason of the illness of the commander-in-chief had to assume all of the social and official duties incident to the call of the battleships at the various South American ports. To Admiral Thomas' loyalty to the commander-in-chief, to his tact, personality and graciousness of manner the officers of the fleet attribute much of the diplomatic success which attended the cruise upon the Atlantic to the Pacific. The calls made upon him were calculated to wear out a much younger man, but with tireless energy and at the expense of practically all personal rest and comfort, Admiral Thomas attended all the functions where his presence was required.

Under orders from Admiral Sperry the bronze battleship target practice trophy was transferred from the battleship Illinois of the Atlantic fleet to the armored cruiser Maryland of the Pacific fleet.

DECIDES FOR ROOSEVELT.

Court Declares President Had Right to Dismiss a Negro Soldier.

New York. — The right of President Roosevelt summarily to dismiss a negro soldier of the Twenty-fifth infantry for alleged participation in the riot at Brownsville, Tex., was sustained Friday by Judge Hough in the United States district court.

Oscar W. Reid, the soldier, sued the government to recover $122 as wages from the date of his dismissal to the expiration of his enlistment. District Attorney Stimson contended that the president had a right to dismiss the soldier. Judge Hough sustained this contention and directed a judgment in favor of the government.

Resist Freight Rate Increase.

Chicago. — Delegates from 50 commercial organizations, representing most of the trade interests of the east and middle west of this country, Friday in conference at the Congress hotel took decisive action to prevent the proposed increase in freight rates by the railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river. As a result of the day's work the leaders among the business men feel that the move of the railroads to saddle an additional $100,000,000 in freight charges on the shippers of the territory described has been checkmated.

Mrs. Metsker Is Acquitted.

Cassopolis, Mich.—The acquittal of Mrs. Christina Metsker of South Bend, Ind., of the charge of murdering Carleton Morgan of South Bend, at three o'clock on the morning of April 10 outside the home of Mrs. Mae Green in this city, was the occasion of an unprecedented demonstration in court late Friday. Deaf to warnings and threats of arrest, the crowd cheered and clapped hands and sang. Several hundred people escorted Mrs. Metsker to the depot.

The Haunted Stairway

By Temple Bailey

(Copyright.)

The stairway rose between walls of d masonry for 20 stories. It was er used. Indeed it might be ques- ed if the men and women who t up and down in the elevators w of any other mode of ascent or cent.

t was very still on the stairway and her dim and dark, and gradually acquired a bad name.

t last a murder was committed on tenth landing. The murderer was apprehended and this fact added the terrors of the stairway. Before month had passed it was called nted, and men whom no one would e counted superstitious moved ir offices to other buildings.

Finally the matter began to attract attention of the owners. Many of offices were empty and the rentals re falling off.

"It's got to stop," said Brixton & ixton; and they put in more electric hts and hired watchmen to patrol e stairway.

But, after a week's trial, the watch- n threw up his job. Three other tchmen came and went, and at last oran, the janitor, was detailed to ceed them. Moran's resignation me in the succinct statement: ixie for me."

Brixton, senior, struck his clenched nd impatiently on his desk.

"Such foolishness, Moran," he said.

"That may be, sor," Moran agreed; ut ye'll have to git another man."

Later Brixton, senior, sent for him d put him on the elevator service. was getting a little hard to keep vator boys, and Moran was trust- orthy, if he was superstitious.

Again a succession of watchmen me, and went.

Brixton & Brixton consulted a de- ctive agency. "It's ruining our busi ss," they said. "Find out who is aying us such a trick."

From the agency came men, two at time. It grew to be a most unpopu- r assignment.

"Good lord," said Giffens, who was duty the fifth week, "I keep seeing at poor fellow on the stairs with the n shining in on him. I wonder how e happened to be down so far; his fice was on the top floor."

They were on the fatal landing. A oad, deep window overlooked the her skyscrapers in the block and owed row after row of twinkling llow lights, and above them all, the oon, pale in contrast to the glitter d glow of the city night. Moran had ade his last trip for the night. The ree men stood looking out.

Suddenly a wailing cry to a mourn- l, lilting measure reached their ears

"Somebody's singin'," Giffens gasped.

The three Irishmen clung together- r. "It's Killarney."

"Who's singin' it?" Murphy's brava- o was gone.

"My God!" Moran said, "there was a ttle gurryl in Brown's office—Kate 'Neill—on the sixt' floor used to sing like that. I heard her one time—"

"Where's she now?" Giffens asked

"She wint away last spring," Moran ld.

Next day Moran found himself ir- esistibly drawn toward the haunted nding. It was the noon hour and iffens and Murphy had gone to lunch. oran didn't want any lunch. The ffair of the night before had upset im, and the plaintive tones of Kate 'Neill still rang in his heart.

Six steps down from the tenth floor nd around a curve was the landing, nd Moran, following the curve, topped short, staring.

With her back to him, a woman tood looking out of the window.

She turned at the sound of Moran's ootsteps.

"It's me," she said. "I've come ack."

"Kate O'Neill!" gasped Moran.

"Yes. I've been in the hospital. I've been sick."

Moran went up to her.

"Katie," he said, "was you here las' night?"

She looked at him, wide-eyed.

"No," she said, "I was in the hos- pital. I lef' there this mornin'."

"My God!" said Moran.

She shivered.

"What's the matter?" she asked sharply.

"We heard you singin'—me and two other men. You was singin' 'Kil- larney.'"

Her hand was over her heart, her eyes dark with horror.

"What am I going to do?" she cried, "what am I going to do? I dream that I come here, and go up and down, and up and down the stairway—and there is no rest."

She paused and went on, white- pped: "Maybe—it isn't a dream— maybe it's true—maybe—I do come— maybe I do—"

Her voice died away in a whisper. Moran stood spellbound.

"'Twas likely the wind," he said. Then, suspiciously: "Why did you come?"

Wearily she condemned herself. "You know—I killed him."

"You!" Moran reeled against the window and caught at the sill.

"I used to come here and sit," she went on, presently. "I came every day and ate my lunch, because it was quiet and no one ever came up the stair- way. But one day—he came—" She hesitated, "I was singin'—"

Moran bent forward, listening eagerly.

"He stooped and spoke, and he was nice and pleasant. And after that he used to come at noon, often, and I liked him, and he would bring things and we would eat lunch together—oysters and birds—I think he was rich. No one ever saw us, for no one ever comes up and down the stairway."

"I told him about my old granny, and how I had left her when I was a child, and how I had been alone in this country since my brother died, and that no home would ever be to me like the little house in the old country with the lake behind it and the low line of hills in front, and sometimes I would sing, and he would listen and plan to take me across the water some day. An' by that time I thought a lot of him, and I'd 'a' gone anywhere with him—" Her hands were clasped tensely, her little face was working with emotion.

"He used to bring me presents and put them behind that piece of broken tiling. He dug a hole with his knife in the plaster underneath, and I'd find things there. One day I found a maga- zine on the window-sill with a paper-knife across it to hold it down, and between the leaves were $100 in bills, and he was watching me around the curve, and when I opened the book and found the money he came out laughin', and said it was to get my new things with. 'We're goin' to sail next week,' he said, 'just you and me,' and he laughed some more.

"But I shook my head and told him that I couldn't take money from him until after we were married. 'After we are married,' I said, 'you can give me anything.' I thought he looked queer at that, and he was leaning over me very pale, and he said: 'Kate, little Kate O'Neill, I can't marry you.' And I said, 'Why not?' and he said: 'I've got a wife. But I'll do anything for you—I'll make you happy, but I can't marry you.'

"I had the paper-knife in my hand, and the next I knew he was lying there on the floor in the sunshine—"

In the shuddering silence Moran whispered: "My God!"

"I ran upstairs with the knife in my hand and the book and the $100. I don't see why somebody didn't find them. They're in my desk. I put them there and went on working, and when I got back to my boarding place that night I fainted, and they sent me to the hos- pital—and—and that's all—"

She sank down on a step and looked up at the tall young man silhouetted against the background of blazing sun- light.

"I don't know what to do," she said, with quivering lips.

Her blue eyes held in them the ap- peal of helpless womanhood, and of helpless Irish womanhood at that.

Moran could not stand it.

"Katie," he said, "you dreamed ut."

"Oh, no," she whispered.

"You did," Moran said; "you've been sick, and you've thought about it, and it's your delerryum that makes you think you did ut—"

"But I'm not delirious now—" she said.

"Well, you was," Moran insisted. Then he lied smoothly. "'Twas a man did ut. He was bandy-legged and cross-eyed and he had a grudge—"

Her startled eyes questioned him.

"But—" she began.

"He's confessed," Moran stated ob- stinately, "a week ago."

With her hands in his she was sob- bing: "It can't be true!"

"'Tis true."

"Oh, I don't know what to do—"

Moran held her hands tightly for a moment, looking down at her with a shadow in his eyes.

"You'd best go," Moran said, hoarse- ly. "Go up and take the elevator on the next floor."

When the two detectives reached the landing they found Moran leaning negligently against the window, look- ing out.

"Murphy thinks we ought to look up that O'Neill girl," Giffens said.

"Ah, gwan," Moran said, as he set his shoulders squarely. "Ye couldn't hunt a little gurryl wid eyes like blue lakes. Ye're two things before ye're hard-hearted instruments of the law—"

"An' what's that?" asked Giffens.

"Ye're men—"

"An'?"

"Ye're Oirish," finished Moran, suc- cinctly.

No Silver Dollar Since 1905.

A clerk at the Bingham House who has been blessed with a boy baby dur- ing the last year wanted, among other little gifts, to give his young hopeful a silver dollar marked "1907," which could be suspended about his neck on a string and used to help cut the little teeth which were beginning to show signs of appearing, says the Philadel- phia Record.

He inquired among all his friends for a "1907" silver dollar and it was not until he had been on a vain search for nearly a week that some one told him to call at the mint, and there he received official information that under advices from Washington they had not coined any silver dollars since 1905, and, therefore, there had never been nor would be any silver dollars for last year.

For Rifle Target Matches.

The navy department is making spe- cial efforts to improve small arms marksmanship in the navy. As an ef- fective way of doing this the depart- ment is stimulating interest in target practice at the Naval academy on the theory that if the midshipmen are in- duced to take a lively interest in small arms shooting the effect of that inter- est will be felt later throughout the service. For this reason the navy de- partment has announced this year the most extended schedule of rifle target matches that the midshipmen have yet had. Prizes will also be offered for winners in revolver matches to be held at the Naval academy.

PASSING OF THE SALOON

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

I have studied conditions in the south, where the saloon is being swept away by a cyclone of ballots. The explanation is easy.

1. It is the revolt of knowledge against ignorance. The evil effects of alcohol have been taught in home, school, Sunday school and church till the new gen- eration of voters are convinced that it ought to be banished from the earth. "It is the growth of manhood," said a leader in the movement.

2. It is the revolt of home love against the home destroyer. The southern people love their homes and they have determined that the de- stroyer shall be destroyed.

Liberty Against Slavery.

3. It is the revolt of liberty lovers against the slavery of their fellows. "A Liberty League" pleads for the per- petuity of the saloon, which makes more slaves than any other institution on earth. Drunkards are slaves of appetite, and 100,000 of them are killed every year by their cruel mas- ter. Liberty to fill coffers by selling what enslaves manhood and woman hood is as un-American as it is un- Christian, and the people are waking up to the fact.

Humanity Against Barbarity.

4. It is the revolt of humanity against barbarity. The saloon is the mother and fosterer of lunacy, idiocy, pauperism and crime. It is not humane but rather barbarous to legalize and protect the cause of these great evils. The highest civilization seeks to pre- vent, so that cure shall not be needed.

Church Lovers Against Church Haters.

5. It is the revolt of Bible and church lovers against Bible and church haters. The champion blasphemer of Chicago, who evidently hates the Bible and the church, is also the champion of the saloon. Though he asserts that he does not believe in the historic existence of Jesus, he draws his little argument from his turning water into wine and informs us that Jesus commanded his follow- ers to use intoxicating wine in the Lord's Supper. In this he shows his usual capacity for ignorance. He ought to know that the contents of the sacramental cup are nowhere called wine, but the "fruit of the vine," and alcohol is not a fruit of the vine, but the rotten fruit of a process of decom- position which takes place after the juice has been removed from the vine. He ought also to know that fermented wine was never used in the Passover feast, for every Jew was required to remove from his house all leaven in solids or liquids. He ought also to know that the unfermented juice of the grape was the beverage of kings as is seen by the fact that the butler pressed the grapes into Pharaoh's cup. (Gen. 40:11.)

Business Sagacity Against Illusion.

6. It is the revolt of business sa gacity against the illusion that the saloon helps business. Asheville, N. C., voted the saloon out last October, and the only business embarrassed, I am informed, is jailkeeping and chain- gang overseeing.

Patriotism Against Lawlessness.

7. It is the revolt of patriotism against lawlessness. The plea that "prohibition does not prohibit" is prov- ing a boomerang to the liquor traffic, for the people are beginning to see that it really means "we will not obey law." The ruler of this country does not live in the White House or a gov- ernor's mansion, or sit in a wig and gown on the judge's bench. The sov- ereign that rules president, governor, judge and mayor is LAW, and a con- spiracy against the enforcement of law is beginning to be seen in its true light as treason against the life of our American ruler. The state of Georgia, through its representatives in the leg- islature, drove the saloon out, and the city of Atlanta has not been dis- cussing whether it will obey the law of the state. Atlanta has had enough of secession, and her patriotic citi- zens believe in state sovereignty over the city.

But let us remember that the great mission of Christ and the church is to the individual, and we would lead drunkard, moderate drinker, liquor seller and liquor voter to the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." If all men would get right with God through Jesus Christ the great problems which perplex the pub- lic mind would soon be settled.

Montclair, N. J., has named one of its breathing spots Love park, but that doesn't make it different from any other park.

WENT HIM MANY BETTER.

Mr. Newrich's Visiting Card Left Friend in the Shade.

Mr. Newrich, the dust contractor, having made a fortune, part of which he had invested in house property in the east of London, wished to rise, like a Phoenix, from his ashes into some sort of society. His golden key, applied to the coffers of an impecuni- ous aristorcrat, opened the way.

His new friend, among other things, advised him that visiting cards were a necessity, and, as a guide to drawing one up ready for the printer, handed him one of his own, which read, "Har- old De Vere, Iona House, Portsmouth Square, W."

Two days later, as De Vere was sit- ting in his dressing room at breakfast, a servant brought in on a salver a vis- iting card bearing the following: "Ephraim Newrich, I Own 23 Houses, London, E."

SEVERE HEMORRHOIDS

Sores, and Itching Eczema—Doctor Thought an Operation Necessary —Cuticura's Efficacy Proven.

"I am now 80 years old, and three years ago I was taken with an at- tack of piles (hemorrhoids), bleeding and protruding. The doctor said the only help for me was to go to a hospital and be operated on. I tried several remedies for months but did not get much help. During this time sores appeared which changed to a terrible itching eczema. Then I began to use Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, injecting a quantity of Cuticura Ointment with a Cuticura Suppository Syringe. It took a month of this treatment to get me in a fairly healthy state and then I treated myself once a day for three months and, after that, once or twice a week. The treatments I tried took a lot of money, and it is fortunate that I used Cuticura. J. H. Henderson, Hopkinton, N. Y., Apr. 26, 1907."

In the Free Vaccination Ward.

A Lithuanian woman was getting her fifth baby vaccinated the other day.

"I am glad," said the young surgeon, "that you recognize the importance of vaccination."

"Oh, yes," she said, "I often won- der," she added pensively, "what it's done for, though. It's to show you're a free citizen, the same as naturaliza- tion papers, ain't it?"

Sheer white goods, in fact, any fine wash goods when new, owe much of their attractiveness to the way they are laundered, this being done in a manner to enhance their textile beau- ty. Home laundering would be equal- ly satisfactory if proper attention was given to starching, the first essential being good Starch, which has sufficient strength to stiffen, without thickening the goods. Try Defiance Starch and you will be pleasantly surprised at the improved appearance of your work.

Forgiveness.

"The state!" sneered the convict- ed anarchist. "What do I care for the state?"

"The state," replied the court, "is not inclined to repay your harshness in kind. It will care for you for a year."—Philadelphia Ledger.

To the voters of Hancock Co.—

I desire to call your attention to my candidacy for Representative. I make no special claim to the office and want to leave the matter to the good judgement of the voters of the county. Most of you know me, many quite intimately. If my record as a man and citizen has been such as to lead you to believe that I could serve your interests and be of benefit to you as a member of the next General Assembly, I would appreciate very much your support at the June Primary.

I do not care to be considered as a candidate representing any particular class, business, nationality or creed, but, rather as an American citizen, resolved to do the fair thing with all classes and interests so far as I am capable of doing.

Changes in laws should only be made when the welfare and business interests of the people can be thereby promoted, at all times, keeping the burden of taxation as light as practicable. Similar principles have always controlled my actions in my private affairs, and I believe that the affairs of the State should be managed on sound business principles.

I realize that I will not be able to meet every one before the Primary election, however much I may desire to do so, and take this means of calling my candidacy to the attention of such as I may not be able to meet personally, and hope they will not with hold their support on that account.

However much I desire the support, of all, I appreciate the present situation and to such as may find it necessary or desirable to support another candidate, they can rest assured that it will leave no spot with me.

I wish to urge every voter to attend the Primary and express his choice by his vote, not only for Representative but upon all offices to be filled.

Assuring all of my kind regards, I beg to remain.

Very truly yours,

A. C. RIPLEY.

Notice of Letting of Construction Work on Drains in Drainage District Number Nineteen (19).

Notice is hereby given that on the 10th day of June, A. D., 1908, at 2 o'clock P. M. in the office of the County Auditor of Hancock County at Garner, Iowa, will be let to the lowest responsible bidder; by sealed bids which will be received up to the hour of letting the contract, each of which bids must be accompanied by a certified check for ten per centum (10 per cent) of the amount of the bid: a contract for furnishing and laying the tile in Drainage District No. Nineteen (19) of Hancock County, Iowa, which work shall be commenced on or before July 1st, 1908 and completed on or before September 15, 1908 and shall be done in accordance with the report, map, plat, profile and field notes now on file in the Auditor's office and must be per rod of work bid on.

The work to be let is as follows:

Section No. 1 consists of 1200 lineal feet, more or less, of 10 inch tile to be laid at an average depth of 6 feet and 950 lineal feet, more or less, of 12 inch tile to be laid at an average depth of 4½ feet.

Approved bonds in an amount equal to twenty-five per centum (25 per cent) of the estimated cost of the work let will be required of each contractor, conditioned for the faithful performance of his contract and the right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Witness my hand this 11th day of May, A. D, 1908.

THOMAS DUFF,
County Auditor.

STOP AND THINK!

A tailor book suit will cost you from 3½ to 5 dollars more than a ready made suit, even tho' both suits are made from the same bolt of cloth

BE WISE. Buy one of our ready made suits—thus clad you need not be ashamed to go anywhere for and the "K. B." shoulder and perfect fitting front is something which most tailor book suits lack.

However, some men, owing to their odd shape MUST have their clothes tailor made. These men should be careful OF WHOM they order their clothes. Any one can take your measure accurately, but when it comes to "describing your odd shape" to the tailor this can only be done accurately by having you put on a ready made coat and describing to the tailor the difference between you and the model coat.

From this you will see that the only safe place to order tailor made clother is at a clothing store.

We can guarantee a perfect fit while with others it is guess work.

When you think of indigesion think of Kodol for it is wihout doubt the only pveparaion that completely digests all cases of food. And that is what you need when you have indigesion or stomach trouble—something that will act promply but thoroughly, someihing that will get right at the trouble and do the very work itself for the stomach by digesting the food that you eat and that is Kodol. It is pleasant to take. It is sold at J L Harr & Co.

Wm. Lau, candidate for Supervisor of this 3rd district, finished planting corn and is now getting his blacks in trim to make his tour of his candidacy of the primary election of June 2nd. He is centerly located and would make a good man for the office.

A great many people imagine that they have heart trouble when the fact is that the whole trouble lies in the stomach. The pains in the side around the region of the heart are not heart trouble. We suggest that you start with the stomach and when you feel a depression after eating or whenever food seems to nauseate take Kodol. It will not be long until all these heart hains will disappear. Take Kodol now until you know you are right again. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and will find the the truh of this staement verified after having used Kodol for a few weeks. And now comes the news from Mason City that the candidacy of John H. Stevens for State Senator is not meeting with hearty support from the rank and file of the republicans up there, and yesterday nomination papers were filed for Daniel D. Howe, a prominent citizen of the metropolis of Cerro Gordo and formerly treasurer of that Co. It is said that the candidacy of Mr. Howe will result in a big split in the vote for senator in Cerro Gordo. If this is so the chances look favorable for John Hammill of Hancock County, to "win in a walk" at the primary election.—Hampton Recorder.

WASTED $500,000.

Stock Gambling Operations of Crocker Discovered.

Chariton.—It has just been disclosed that in the two or three years preceding his suicide, the late Cashier F. R. Crocker, of the defunct First National bank, paid more than a half million dollars to one firm in his stock gambling operations. The greater part of this was during the last few days of his life, when he poured money into the rat hole of his speculations at the rate of $30,000 to $40,000 daily, in the hope of saving himself.

Crocker's speculations were through the firm of Chapman & Degalyer of Chicago and New York.

After Mr. Crocker's death, Receiver Bostwick immediately took steps to recover, all the money possible from the Degalyer firm, as under the law such money can be taken back, if the broker or his firm has assets sufficient to meet it. As soon as Degalyer found that he was liable for the return of the money, he sold his seat on the New York stock exchange, where he had a branch office. That was shortly after Mr. Crocker's death, and was the first warning that the controller and Receiver Bostwick had that Degalyer was trying to get away from them.

After the change in the receivership here, Judge Vincent of Chicago took charge of the prosecution of Degalyer, and got him in such close quarters that last Thursday Degalyer went into bankruptcy, which means that he will avoid the payment of the First National here, and the depositors will get nothing from him.

This takes away another hope of increasing the probable dividend from the bank, unless Degalyer's partner, Mr. Chapman, can be held for part of the amount.

Degalyer listed his assets at $300 and his liabilities at $500,000, but Chapman is said to be well off.

CYCLONE HITS IOWA.

Sweeps Through Fremont And Page Counties.

Clarinda.—A cyclone swept through the southeastern part of Fremont county and into the western part of Page county on the evening of the 12th, claiming one victim in death. Mrs. Will Finley, near Northboro, injuring several others, destroying many homes and farm buildings, and inflicting a heavy damage.

The cyclone's first damage was reported at the little town of Watson, Mo., near the Iowa line, comprising a few houses, which were practically wrecked. Five or six were injured here, but none seriously. Then it swept into Fremont county, striking Lone Willow schoolhouse and demolishing it and wrecking the Will Finley farm home, in which Mrs. Finley met her death from falling timbers. The storm then came into Page county, inflicting its first serious damage at the Henry Wieland home four miles west of Northboro, which was destroyed, with its farm buildings. It moved northeasterly for a distance of half a dozen miles, destroying the homes of Claus Myers, Tom Anderson, George Dalbey, and the country home of B. L. Benedict of Coin, several miles west of Coin. Practically every building in the path of the storm here, which was about forty rods wide, was destroyed and many cattle were killed. There was no loss of human life, nor any serious injuries.

The cyclone then seemed to rise, but dropped to the ground again in Nodaway township, about six miles west of Clarinda, where it destroyed the barns of Fred Herzberg and then lost itself.

In Nodaway township near Clarinda there was for a few minutes a terrific rain of boards, shingles and other debris from the cyclone clouds. The shingles were coated with ice when they fell. The trees in the path of the storm were stripped of their foliage and various remnants of homes deposited in their bare branches.

Children Burned; Die of Wounds.

Greene.—Charles and Merle Potter, aged 9 and 7, children of Walter Potter, living near Greene, died of burns sustained while starting a kitchen fire, with kerosene in the absence of their parents. The oil can exploded, igniting their clothing. The home was destroyed. Charles ran with his clothing aflame to the neighbors and fell exhausted in the yard with his clothing burned off. The little girl was rescued by neighbors, but died shortly afterward.

FIENDISH ASSAULT.

Awful Fate of Aged Woman in Hands of Negro

Des Moines.—Mrs. Mary Mann, a white mother, 53 years old, was beaten and assaulted and finally robbed by a negro at the end of the East Sixth street bridge at 11 o'clock p. m. Her arms were torn by the teeth of the black beast, her face was chewed and her body is a mass of bloody bruises from the vicious blows and the unnameable practices of the negro.

Mrs. Mann was crossing the bridge on the way to her home at 1515 Southeast Fourth street, when she was dragged into the bushes to the west of the south end of the bridge and there assaulted.

Alarmed by stealthy steps behind her, Mrs. Mann turned as she came to the middle of the bridge and saw a negro running toward her. She fled. But at the end of the bridge, directly under the arc light, the negro threw his arms about her and the fight began.

Resisting with all her senile strength, Mrs. Mann scratched and tore at her assailant's clothes. But he lifted her from her feet and crushed her in his arms, whispering:

"If you speak I'll kill you."

Seizing her by one arm, the negro dragged his victim along a tortuous path for 150 feet. The struggles of the woman broke branches and marked the ground so that Detective Jackson followed the trail to the scene of the final infamy.

Angered by her resistance, the negro bit her in the face. He choked her to quiet her screams, but the woman still fought. Struck blow after blow in the face and on the body, the weakening woman at last could only throw up her arms in defense to shield her face from the hideous kisses of the black man. Sinking his teeth in her white flesh the negro tore her arms and breast.

With all hope gone, the woman suddenly heard the crunching rumble of wheels on the bridge not far away. Renewing her screams she attracted the attention of Assistant City Physician Morse, who was returning to his home from a call.

As Dr. Morse jumped from his buggy and ran down the bank toward to woman the negro rose from the ground and ran west.

Dr. Morse found the beaten and bleeding woman lying on her back, where the negro left her. He lifted her in his arms and carried her to his buggy. He drove to the woman's home and cared for her there.

Frank Brown, a negro arrested by Marshal Hume and Detective Jackson at 710 South East Sixth street, was positively identified by Mrs. Mary Mann as the man who assaulted her.

$150,000 IN WHISKY BURNS.

Only Iowa Distillery Loses Its Entire Stock.

Oskaloosa.—Absolute mystery surrounds the cause of the fire which destroyed $150,000 worth of whisky in the bonded warehouse of the Hoover Distilling company of Oskaloosa. It is not believed that the fire could have started from the heating plant which is used to keep the warehouse at 90 degrees temperature, for this is located in a separate building. The possibility of spontaneous combustion is also denied. Incendiaries might have set fire to the structure, but the Hoovers scout this theory also.

More than 3,000 barrels of whisky were burned in the warehouse, representing three years' output of the Distilling company, which had been in operation only that length of time. As the barrels burst under the terrific heat their contents added to the intensity of the fire, which was the worst in the history of Oskaloosa. Because the warehouse was to tightly closed at every door and window the fireman had difficulty in getting in; when they did they found the interior like a furnace and the water was unavailing against it. To add to the futility of their fight the fire main of the water works plant burst under increased pressure and workmen had to dig down and put in a new section before direct pressure could be had. The fire, however, was confined to the warehouse, and the still itself and the cattle sheds near were saved.

The Hoover Distilling company lost $150,000 on the stored whisky and building on which there was insurance amounting to $85,000. The United States government lost $130,000 in unpaid revenues.

The Hoovers will probably continue their plant here as it is the only one in Iowa.

TORNADOES IN IOWA.

Tornadoes have been quite frequent this Spring in this State Lee, Muscatine, Dubuque, Jones, Lyon, Sioux, Plymouth, Pottawattamie, Humboldt, Wright, Page and Fremont counties have been visited by a more or less destructive tornado, destroying a large amount of property, in many cases the buildings being totally destroyed.

All can protect their lives by having a safe retreat in case of storm, but none can protect their property. The only safe way is to have insurance in some reliable Association.

The IOWA MUTUAL TORNADO INSURANCE ASSOCIATION of Des Moines, is the largest, cheapest and best association of its kind on earth. The business for last year was the largest of any year, but this year bids fair to be another record breaker. The first six months of this year, every month's business has been an increase over the business for the same month last year, and the association has at the present time over $125,000,000 in risks all in Iowa and $75,000 cash on hand, and has not made an assessment for over two years. The association paid over $2,500 in losses in Lyon and Sioux Counties in the storm of April 23rd and over $2,500 in the storm of May 12th in Page, Fremont, Jones, Dubuque and Louisa counties, besides many losses in other parts of the state. It is very sad for anyone to have their buildings destroyed without having any insurance. There is no need of this, now that we have such a grand Association that gives insurance at cost. The agent of every Farmer's Mutual or Town Dwelling Association can tell you all about it, or address the Secretary, J. B. Herriman, Des Moines, Iowa, for information and a good pocket map of Iowa.

NO OUTSIDE "GRUB" ALLOWED.

Rigid Rules Against Bringing Food Into Big Apartment Hotels.

If you live by the year in one of these fashionable apartment hotels that run a restaurant in connection with the rooms, you cannot take food into your quarters on peril of your life, says the New York Telegraph. There is a big uptown hotel, of the best class, whose leases provide that room leasers must eat in the restaurant. Many of them disregard this clause in their leases, and some of them openly took food into their apartments. This has been stopped by the manager, who has ordered that all baskets of provisions brought to the hostelry shall be turned back.

A lawyer told me that the hotel man was courting trouble—that a tenant in a hotel had a right to take anything in his room he pleased, so that he complied with the provision in his lease that he shall do no cooking in his apartment. Just the other day a man was caught bringing a bottle of milk into the front door and was requested to leave the place.

That reminds me of another uptown hotel which was filled with families and which had a rigid rule that no one should cook in an apartment. It became known, however, that the patrons of the place were cooking right along, and there was much sleuthing on the part of the management and employes to find out who the guilty ones were. The guiltiest man of the lot looked the most innocent, and in order to cover up his nefarious work he lodged a complaint with the manager, in vigorous language, that some one was cooking around the house, and that he was much disturbed by the smell of food. This was in the afternoon, and that very night there was an odor of cooking all through the fifth floor. The manager got a porter and clerk, and a pass key. They traced the odor right down to one door and softly unlocked it and rushed in. There stood the man who had complained with a long fork in his hand and a gloating look in his eyes as he watched four large pork sausages sizzle and fry in a pan over an oil-stove fire.

It is always the most promising young man that gets in debt.

Ignorance of the law is no excuse except to a lawyer.

Lovers of Rhine wine will be astounded to learn of a wine-dealer in Berlin who has just been convicted of having sold 33,000 gallons of fine Rhine wine which he had made artificially with the help of chemical substances, without using a single drop of real wine.

There are between 4,500 and 5,000 diamond-cutters in Antwerp, nearly one-half of whom have been thrown out of work because of the financial stringency in the United States.

A city ordinance in Dubuque, Iowa, requires that the interior of all saloons shall be unobstructed so that those inside shall be in full view at all times; but the law has been cleverly circumvented by the saloonkeepers. While complying with the terms of the law literally, the saloon-men have secured the desired privacy by making use of a couple of strong electric lights backed with reflectors so that any one attempting to peer into the place is blinded by the rays of the light.

VICTORY IS ASSURED

TAFT HAS ALMOST 700 VOTES IN THE CONVENTION.

IS SURE TO BE NOMINATED

Arthur I. Vorys Issues Statement Assuring Secretary's Nomination on the First Ballot.

Columbus, O., May 18.—Arthur I. Vorys, manager of the Taft campaign, in a signed statement issued last night, says:

"With the close of the campaign for delegates to the republican national convention, the nomination of Secretary Taft on the first ballot of the convention is a foregone conclusion. Of the 980 delegates who will sit in the convention, 653 have been chosen under positive instructions to vote for Ohio's candidate, or under resolutions of indorsement or preference that were the equivalent of instructions. Two hundred and twenty-five delegates have been instructed for other candidates; 192 delegates are uninstructed. Of these 192, more than 100 are known supporters of Secretary Taft. This assures Secretary Taft at this time of a total delegate-strength in the convention of only a few votes less than 700.

"The seats of 182 delegates are contested, but in only 126 of these contest are Taft delegates affected.

"During the past week 138 delegates to the Chicago convention were elected and of this number 134 were chosen under instructions for Secretary Taft. Eight states came into the Taft column by the adoption of strong Taft resolutions by their respective state conventions. These states were: California, Idaho, Michigan, Montana, North Dakota, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

"In all, thirty-six states, territories and insular possessions have instructed for Secretary Taft through their repective tate conventions, or adopted their strong resolutions of indorsement or preference."

SENATOR BURROWS NAMED.

Will Open Chicago Republican Convention.

Chicago, May 17.—United States Senator Julius Caesar Burrows of Michigan was selected last night by the subcommittee of the republican national committee to be temporary chairman of the national convention. Other officers follow:

General secretary, John R. Malloy, Columbus, O.; chief assistant secretary, Lafe B. Gleason, New York, N. Y.; assistant secretaries, Charles Brooks Smith, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Ernest Walker Smith, Hartford, Conn.; Phillip M. Heofele, St. Louis, Mo.; M. J. Tobin, Vinton, Ia.; Charles M. Harger, Abilene, Kas.; Allen Hollis, Concord, N. H.; reading clerks, Thomas W. Williamson, Edwardsville Ill.; George A. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; parliamentarian, Asher C. Hinds, Washington, D. C.; official reporter, M. W. Blumenberg, Washington, D. C.; messenger to chairman, E. Stone, Indianapolis, Ind.; messenger to the secretary, John H. Jackson, Cincinnati, O.; sergeant at arms, William F. Stone, Baltimore, Md.; first assistant sergeant at arms, Edward P. Thayer, Greenfield, Ind.; chief of door keepers, Stephen R. Mason, Baltimore, Md.

After making the appointments the committee adjourned. With the exception of Chairman New and Sergeant at Arms Stone, who will stay here until after the convention, the members left for their homes last night.

DENY PAPER TRUST EXISTS.

International Co. Makes Vigorous Statement.

Washington, D. C., May 18.—Denial has been made by the International Paper company and other manufacturers of paper of the charges made by the American Newspaper Publishers' association that an agreement exists between them either to raise the price of paper or to restrict the output. This evidence was given on Saturday before the special committee of the house of representatives that is investigating the wood pulp and print paper question.

The claim also was made that Canadian mills, which are selling paper at 65 cents a hundred pounds less than American mills, were doing so at a loss, and that if normal conditions resumed in England and Canada those prices would he raised. It also was a contention of the witnesses that the present price of paper is the lowest they can manufacture it for and live.

MAJ.-GEN. O. O. HOWARD.

URING the latter part of the war, in 1864, and until its close, in 1865, I was connected with the armies under Gen. Sherman, usually designated the Army of the Tenn, the Army of the Cumberland e Army of the Ohio, wrote Maj.-O. O. Howard. The campaigns exceedingly active. From Chatta to Atlanta Sherman's soldiers nder fire every day, except the just before crossing the Etowah, 3 days. In one at- I made at Pickett's Mill I lost illed and three times as many ed within the space of 15 min- At night I sat among the ed and realized something of rrors of war. It seems to me to- s I think of it like a terrible mare, but it was a more terrible , which I will not attempt to de-

They marched ually at 20 miles a day from gh to Richmond, and never ed weary at the close of any march—the camp fire was bright, ld songs were sung over and over and the comradeship knitted g the war would never cease—it t its best when the word "peace" all the air

now that we were proud when arched past the president of the ed States in our last great re- but, as I remember it, it was a l pride even then. A regiment one out 1,000 strong; it had been ited and re-recruited; it had been nforced and added to in other and now it was bringing home than 300 of all the men who had out from that section of the try from which it had come. The of going home for the 300 was but it was a tearful joy the instant one thought of the 800 or more who could not go home, who never did go home, who were buried somewhere in the broad land over which the 300 had marched, and too often with a headpiece marked "Unknown."

After the war I stood in the large cemetery near Murfreesboro, Tenn., with Gen. R. B. Hayes (afterward president) and Mrs. Hayes. I remember how Mrs. Hayes, who was an exceedingly handsome woman, looked up into the faces of the general and myself as her large, dark, speaking eyes were flooded with tears, when she said: "Just look there, that plot of ground is covered with headstones marked 'Unknown.' Unknown, unknown," she repeated, "and yet he gave his life that his country might live!"

It was a touching picture, but every time I think of it I say to myself: "Really, that 'unknown' soldier, apparently unknown, recorded unknown, was not really unknown. Somebody knew him. His comrades knew him. A mother, a sister, a wife and children, if he had them, knew him. There is a better record somewhere than that in the soldiers' cemetery." Our faith is so strong that we all believe in the resurrection and in the future life and have a great satisfaction in feeling that no sacrifices and particularly not that of life itself for duty, for what one sincerely believes to be duty, has ever been or ever will be made in vain.

The saddest pictures of all, to my mind, are those connected with a losing battle like that of Fredericksburg, and still more that of Chancellorsville. At Fredericksburg the army of Burnside went straight forward to its own destruction. The lines of Lee, half encircling Burnside's points of attack, were complete. It was like a trap into which an animal deliberately puts his feet. We sprang the trap, and it is a wonder that Lee had not dealt with Burnside's army as the sturdy Thomas dealt with Hood's at Nasville.

Gen. Couch was standing by my side in the steeple of a church, near the close of that battle, where we together were taking a fresh reconnoissance, when I noticed that his voice trembled as he spoke to me. He said: "Oh, Gen. Howard, look there! Look there! See the ground covered with the boys in blue, and all to no purpose."

After we had returned, all of us who could return, to the other shore of the Rappahannock, the depression of the soldiers was greater than at any other time during the war. We could hardly speak to each other. Now, after years, we can recognize the fact that our grief was balanced by the joy of the confederates over a great victory, and yet not a decisive one, gained by them.

At a moderate calculation there were sent into eternity more than a million of men, who left home in the prime of health and in strength; more than a million of souls by the terrible conflict. For one, I am glad, indeed, that there is an effort on foot to settle difficulties without bloodshed. Of course, the waste of human life is not all of it. There is in every war a waste of possession, a destruction of property and a degradation of character hard to avoid at the best. I know that there are some things worse than death. I know that the union of our states was worth all that it cost, and I know that, humanly speaking, it was necessary that we should be purged as by fire; but is it not wise now to do all that we can to hold up to the world the blessings of a great peace; even the peace that passeth understanding, which never must exclude any of the noblest qualities of a womanly woman or a manly man?

A soul full of memorial greetings to all our sorrowing comrades of the civil war.

Fabelous Fortunes from New York Real Estate.

Many of the wealthiest families in this country, the Astors, Goelets, Rhinelanders, and others, made their hundreds of millions of dollars in the tremendous appreciation of New York real estate. So fast is the value of New York property growing that from 1900 to 1905 the real estate valuation increased 73% or over 14% per year. Investments of this kind were not within the reach of the small investors until the New York Realty Owners Co., 489 Fifth Avenue, New York, was founded years ago to carry out a plan for combining small investments and acquiring property within the line of the city's growth. The management has had 20 years' experience and ample capital. The assets of this company are now over $2,500,000. They have paid out over $1,000,000 to investors in the past twelve years and during 1907 their surplus increased to $604,000. This Company offers an absolutely safe investment yielding a guaranteed income each year, secured five times over by New York real estate. Write to Room 500, 489 Fifth Avenue, for their Booklet. N.

Too Much of a "Drawing Card."

"Dear William," wrote the old man to the youth at college, "I'm shore glad to hear that you air sich a 'drawin' card' thar, but I knowed it long 'fore you tol' me. Howsomever, thar's drawin' an' drawin', but thar's one kind which I must draw the line on here an' now, an' that is the sort that draws on me fer $50 when I'm least expectin'. You put Greek an' Latin in yer letters, sometimes, fer good measure, I suppose, but I notice that when you draw on me it's allus in plain United States. I want you to go through all right, but I don't want you to bill me through. Gimme a livin' chance to rest up. I'm tired!"

A Word to the Wives

especially to those who have to economize, and yet like good things. For 10c buy from your grocer a package of Plymouth Rock Coffee Jelly Compound which makes a pint of Coffee Jelly. Served with sugar and cream it makes a delicious dessert. If your grocer does not sell it, send 10c to the Plymouth Rock Gelatine Co., Boston, Mass., and they will mail you a package.

If an Advertisement Convinces You, Stay Convinced

When you read in this newspaper the advertisement of a manufacturer who has paid for the space used to convince you that it is to your interest to buy his goods, and you go to a dealer where such articles are usually handled for sale, do not let the dealer or any one of his clerks sell you something else which he claims is "just as good." If an advertisement convinced you, it was because of the element of truth which it contained.

INSIST ON GETTING WHAT YOU ASK FOR.

Instrumental Music.

That a word may convey vastly different meanings when differently used is amusingly illustrated by a story from the Brooklyn Life.

"Have ye heard me daughter Mona sing lately?" asked Mr. Dugan.

"Both lately and early," said Mr. Hogan. "'Tis the fine insthrumental music she do make."

"Ye ignoramus! Sure, singing ain't insthrumental music!" indignantly replied Mr. Dugan.

"Keegan told me it was insthrumental in causing him to move two blocks away from yer house."—Youth's Companion.

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. A female weakness or displacement is often brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these faithful women that comes as a boon and a blessing, as it did to Mrs. F. Ellsworth, of Mayville, N. Y., and to Mrs. W. P. Boyd, of Beaver Falls, Pa., who say:

"I was not able to do my own work, owing to the female trouble from which I suffered. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully, and I am so well that I can do as big a day's work as I ever did. I wish every sick woman would try it.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

Aug. Wenz was a Germantown caller the first of the week.

Mrs. Geo. Ulrich is enjoying a visit from her mother and a brother both of Giard, Iowa.

F. C. Griewe is spending his leisure hours on his farm in German township repairing fences, buildings, etc.

The Klemme League will hold its annual election of officers Monday evening and every member is urged to be present.

John Gruetzmacher was confined to the house a few days last week with neuralgia. It seems his trip did not agree with his health.

W. F. Lau left Monday for his new field of labor. Since the Miller section was abandoned. The company has given him work at Wilmot, Minn. He will move his family up later.

The repeated rains of late have retarded farm work very much. Much of the low ground has become to wet to work, yet they have had much rain all around us, besides hail and storms.

The township Sunday school was well attended last Sunday and those who attended seemed well pleased and manifested a keen interest. The male quartett edded much to the program with their selections.

We sometimes wonder whether those Des Moines editors think that the people living in the country and smaller towns are a set of ignorants who believe all the trash they publish just before an election. Figuratively speaking, it would take an elephant's stomach to digest a part of their harangue of abuse heaped on some men and praise for others. Our people are too intelligent to be misled in this way. Let every one think for himself.

But evidently the pedestrianating part of the population there is not of the stuff out of which willing martyrs are made.

GAMBLED MILLIONS AWAY.

Crocker Dumped $1,162,000 of Funds Into Speculation.

Chariton.—Receiver Jamison of the defunct First National bank, has filed a claim against the F. R. Crocker estate, Guilford Crocker administrator, for $700,000 for money which Cashier Crocker appropriated from the bank's funds for his speculation with brokerage firms. Receipts have been found in the bank showing that Mr. Crocker had spent a total of $1,162,000 within the last three or four years with various brokerage firms. The larger sums were as follows:

Chapman, DeGolyer & Co.	$509,965.63
A. O. Slaughter & Co.....	16,000.00
Granger, Farwell & Co....	62,500.00
Counselman & Day	10,000.00
Shearson, Hammill & Co...	333,986.93
Chas. W. Gates & Co.....	10,025.00
Harriman & Co.	20,000.00
Wolf Bros. & Co.....	15,000.00
Russell, Brewster & Co....	20,000.00

The receipts for these amounts have been found and will be used as proof of the bank's claim for $700,000. As there is but little left of the Crocker estate above a homestead, the life insurance and other exempt property, there is no possible chance of a recovery of the full amount, or even a large portion of it. There are other claims, too, which will come in for their share, but it is hoped that the depositors will receive at least their share of the estate, even if it is a small amount.

Among the other claims filed is that of Thomas Brandon of Russell for $103,531.58, the full amount of the liabilities of the Russell bank, which Messrs Crocker and Brandon owned jointly, and the failure of which was caused, according to Mr. Brandon, by the failure of the First National bank of Chariton through Mr. Crocker's actions. The assets of the Russell bank are to be deducted from Mr. Brandon's big claim. Another claim of $5,000 for the G. J. Stewart note which Mr. Crocker left as a deposit with the Russell bank after it had been paid, has been filed by Mr. Brandon.

Iowa City Woman Recovers for Breach of Promise.

Iowa City.—Katie Donahue of this county was awarded a verdict of $2,000 on a promissory note and $19,000 for a breach of contract to marry, against John J. Kost, a prominent farmer. Kost wouldn't appear in court until contempt charges were brought.

Kost was formerly an attorney in this city, but several years ago returned to farming. He was intimately associated with Miss Donahue, who is the daughter of a wealthy citizen, and she claimed that under promise of marriage they had improper relations covering a considerable length of time, which was denied by Kost. A large number of letters from him to Miss Donahue were read in court. They were all couched in most endearing terms.

The amount of the verdict was a surprise and an effort will be made to have it set aside as excessive.

NO DRAINAGE OF SWAMPS

Des Moines County Lands Are Not to be Redeemeed.

Burlington.—There is to be no improvement of swamp lands in Des Moines county, at least for the present. Judge Withrow of the district court decided that he had no jurisdiction in the question between the board of supervisors and the land owners who wish the improvement made.

The board decided that in consequence of the great cost of the proposed improvement and in response to the protests of many parties, not to undertake the improvements. Those who wanted the drainage, appealed to the court. The court declined to interfere. Those who favored the drainage plan estimated that it would increase the value of the lands a million dollars.

County Clerk Found Guilty.

ASK BYERS TO ACT.

"Prohibs" Put Matter up to Attorney General.

Burlington.—The Civic Federation has virtually notified Attorney General Byers that he must get busy here in Burlington. President Patterson of the federation called him up over the long distance phone and asked him what he was going to do about the local situation. He informed him that no steps were being taken to carry out General Byers' order to put the local saloons under the mulct law. He also informed him that Madison avenue park was being run wide open in violation of the Sunday closing laws.

General Byers stated that his position in the matter in Burlington had not changed, and that if County Attorney Kuglemeier did not take steps to enforce the mulct law and the Sunday closing law, steps will be taken to remove him from office.

The civic federation later held a meeting in which it was decided to take steps to close up Madison avenue park, and to put County Attorney Kuglemeier out of office if he did not at once enforce the laws.

INDICT NEGRO RAPIST.

True Bill Returned Against Frank Brown.

Des Moines.—Frank Brown, the accused negro assailant of Mrs. Mary Mann, was indicted by the grand jury for attempted criminal assault. The indictment occasioned no surprise as the state claims to have strong evidence against the accused man. He has been positively identified by Mrs. Mann as her assailant.

Mrs. Mann was attacked and cruelly beaten by a colored man at the east approach of the East Sixth street bridge a little over a week ago. Her assailant dragged her some hundred yards from the highway but was frightened away before he could accomplish his purpose.

Just as Mrs. Mann staggered upon the road in her efforts to reach home she met Assistant City Physician Morse driving along in his buggy. He came to her aid immediately, drove her to her home and notified the police. Brown was arrested the next afternoon. He has maintained a sullen silence in the county jail.

BABY BURNS TO DEATH

Council Bluffs.—Frightfully burned by exploding gasoline, 2-year-old James Allen Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Burke, living six miles east of this city, died after twenty-four hours of most intense suffering. With other children of the family, the baby was playing in the kitchen, while the parents were out in the yard. Suddenly a teacupful of gasoline which had been left on the stove, exploded, the burning liquid forming a flaming puddle on the floor.

The other children, who were older, rushed out of the door, but the little fellow in trying to follow them, blundered into the very center of the blaze. His burns extended from the abdomen to the throat and over one arm and hand.

The father rushed to the assistance of the lad and smothered out the fire in an instant. Medical aid was secured and remedies were applied to relieve the sufferer. The burns covered too wide an area, however, and death resulted.

GOLD STRIKE IN WELL.

Rock Found at Burlington Assays $65.50 Pet Ton.

Burlington.—Men who were drilling an artesian well for the Burlington ice plant some weeks ago struck a ledge or rock four feet thick which yielded what appeared to be gold flakes. A sample of the rock was sent to the assay office at Denver, Colo., and a report was received from the assayer showing a yield of $65.50 per ton in gold from the rock.

It has not been decided what steps will be taken concerning the development of the find. Ordinary gold bearing quartz runs from $4 to $16 to the ton, and the yield of the artesian well rock is considered phenomenal and worth development.

Heart Balm Suit at Iowa City.

Iowa City.—The case of Katie Donohue of this city against J. J. Kost, a farmer residing a few miles from here, involving a $2,000 note and a claim of $20,000 for breach of promise was commenced in the district court. The defendant did not appear in court and had to be brought in by order of the court. Wade, Dutcher & Davis represent the plaintiff and ex-Judge O. A. Byington the defendant. The case promises to last several days.

SIXTY PERISH IN A WRECK

AWFUL RAILWAY COLLISION AT CONTICH, BELGIUM.

Express Train Crashes Into Local Full of Pilgrims—The Injured Number About 100.

Antwerp.—One of the worst railroad accidents in Europe in recent times occurred at Contich, a station six miles southeast of this city on the main line, at eight o'clock Thursday morning. The exact number of victims has not been determined, owing to the difficulty of removing the bodies from the debris, but the latest estimate places the number at 60 killed 100 wounded.

The catastrophe appears to have been due to a defective switch where the main line crosses a local line. At this point a train, carrying a large number of pilgrims on their way to a local shrine, was standing. Into this the Antwerp-Brussels express dashed at a speed of 50 miles an hour, literally leaping on top of it. The heavy coaches of the express crushed the lighter train into splinters. The sides of the express cars were torn from their fastenings, the floors practically collapsing, thus precipitating the passengers to the side of the track uninjured, whence they fled, frenzied, across the fields. But for this fact the death roll would be much greater. Few of the occupants of the local train escaped alive. Those that were not killed were badly injured, many of them mortally. The engineer and fireman of the express were both killed at their posts.

Prince Albert went to Contich in the evening and visited the injured, having cancelled an engagement to preside at a banquet at Antwerp.

With regard to the cause of the collision, a railroad official stated that the switches were being repaired and that a workman who had been placed at the temporary hand switch appeared to have made a mistake or else the switch failed to act.

UNIVERSITY OFFICIAL QUITS.

Secretary Wade of Michigan Resigns Because of Charges.

Ann Arbor.—James H. Wade, for 25 years secretary of the University of Michigan, submitted his resignation Friday to the board of regents and it was unanimously accepted. The resignation followed an investigation of the university finances, which Attorney General Byrd has been pursuing for several weeks. The investigation centered around the alleged improper use of university property, such as coal and painting and building materials and workmen's time, to an amount estimated at about $5,000. Prof. Martin L. D'Oage was appointed acting secretary to sign this year's diplomas.

Chicago Jeweler Slain.

Laporte, Ind.—B. Kvasnicka, owner of two Chicago jewelry stores, died Friday afternoon at his country home, one miles northeast of North Judson, a small town south of Laporte, as the result of being shot at 10:30 o'clock Thursday night by an unknown person.

Albert Roubik, who had been employed as a hired man by Kvasnicka, but was discharged Wednesday, has been arrested and charged with the murder, the allegation being based upon a deathbed statement made by Kvasnicka. Roubik declares he is innocent.

RAY LAMPHERE IS INDIC

True Bill Also Returned Again Gunness, Though Dead.

Laporte, Ind.—In returning true bills against Ray Lampher day afternoon, the Laporte grand jury also indicted Mrs. Gunness for the murder of Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D. A want was issued for Mrs. Gunn she was declared officially dead verdict of Coroner Mack, but i to vote a true bill against La as an accessory in the killing of lein, it was necessary to indi Gunness as the principal. La now stands charged with arso murders and being an accessory Helgelein murder.

Separate bills were voted Lamphere for the murder, in t degree, of Mrs. Belle Gunness three children, Philip Gunness, Sorenson and Lucy Sorenson.

here was complaint in the old 's voice, and they knew that he nt his own son Seffy. To add to r embarrassment, this same son now appearing over the Lustich —an opportune moment for a sing digression. For you must be early concerning Old Baumgart- s longing for certain lands, tene- ts and hereditaments—using his phrase—which were not his own, which adjoined his. It had passed a proverb of the vicinage; indeed, ugh the property in question be- ged to one Sarah Pressel, it was wn colloquially as "Baumgartner's rn."

nd the reason of it was this: Be- en his own farm and the public d (and the railroad station when came) lay the fairest meadow-land ner's eye had ever rested upon. am speaking again for the father Seffy and with his hyperbole.) e in one particular, it was like an my's beautiful territory lying be- en one's less beautiful own and the n sea—keeping one a poor inlander o is mad for the seas—whose crops st either pass across the land of his ersary and pay tithes to him, or by long distances around him at the t of greater tithes to the soulless ners of the turnpikes—who aggra- ingly fix a gate each way to make ir tithes more sure. So, I say, it s like having the territory of his emy lying between him and deep ter—save, as I have also said, in particular, to wit: that the owner he Sarah Pressel I have mentioned was not Old Baumgartner's enemy. n fact, they were tremendous ends. And it was by this friendship nd one other thing which I mean to ention later—that Old Baumgartner ed, before he died, to attain the sh of his life, and see, not only the sian pasture-field, but the whole the adjoining farm, with the line nces down, a part of his. The other ng I promised to mention as an aid this ambition—was Seffy. And, nce the said Sarah was of nearly the me age as Seffy, perhaps I need t explain further, except to say that e only obstruction the old man could e now to acquiring title by marriage s—Seffy himself. He was, and al- ys had been, afraid of girls—es- cially such aggressive, flirtatious, tty and tempestuous girls as this arah.

These things, however, were heredi- y with the girl. It was historical, in fact, that, during the life of Sarah's good-looking father, so importunate had been Old Baumgartner for the purchase of at least the meadow—he could not have ventured at that time—and so obstinate had been the father of the present owner—(he had red hair precisely as his daughter had)—that they had come to blows about it to the discomfiture of Old Baumgartner; and, afterward, they did not speak. Yet, when the loafers at the store laughed, Baumgartner swore that he would, nevertheless, have that pasture before he died.

But, then, as if fate, too, were against him, the railroad was built, and its station was placed so that the Pressel farm lay directly between it and him, and of course the "life" went more and more in the direction of the station—left him more and more "out of it"—and made him poorer and poorer, and Pressel richer and richer. And, when the store laughed at that, Baumgartner swore that he would possess half of the farm before he died; and as Pressel and his wife died, and Seffy grew up, and as he noticed the fondness of the little red-headed girl for his little tow-headed boy, he added to his adjuration that he would be harrowing that whole farm before he died—without paying a cent for it!

"WHAT'S BID? GOING— GOING—ALL DONE—GOING—"

But both Seffy and Sally had grown to a marriageable age without anything happening. Seffy had become inordinately shy, while the coquettish Sally had accepted the attentions of Sam Pritz, the clerk at the store, as an antagonist more worthy of her, and in a fashion which sometimes made the father of Seffy swear and lose his temper—with Seffy. Though, of course, in the final disposition of the matter, he was sure that no girl so nice as Sally would marry such a person as Sam Pritz, with no extremely visible means of support—a salary of $4 a week, and an odious reputation for liquor. And it was for these things, all of which were known (for Baumgartner had not a single secret) that the company at the store detected the personal equation in Old Baumgartner's communications.

Seffy had almost arrived by this time, and Sally was in the store! With Sam! The situation was highly dramatic. But the old man consummately ignored this complication and directed attention to his son. For him, the molasses-tapper did not exist. The fact is he was overjoyed. Seffy, for once in his life, would be on time! He would do the rest.

"Now, boys, chust look at 'em! Dogged if they ain't bose like one an- 'her! How's the proferb? Birds of a feather flock wiss one another? I dunno. Anyhow, Sef flocks wiss Betz constant. And they understand one another good. Trotting like a sidewise dog of a hot summer's day!" And he showed the company, up and down the store porch just how a sidewise dog would be likely to trot on a hot summer day—and then laughed joyously.

If there had been an artist eye to see they would have been well worth its while—Seffy and the mare so affectionately disparaged. And, after all, I am not sure that the speaker himself had not an artist's eye. For a spring pasture, or a fallow upland, or a drove of goodly cows deep in his clover, I know he had. (Perhaps you, too, have?) And this was his best mare and his only son.

The big bay, clad in broad-banded harness, soft with oil and glittering with brasses, was shambling indolently down the hill, resisting her own momentum by the diagonal motion the old man had likened to a dog's sidewise trot. The looped trace-chains were jingling a merry dithyramb, her head was nodding, her tail swaying, and Seffy, propped by his elbow on her broad back, one leg swung between the hames, the other keeping time on her ribs, was singing:

"I want to be an angel
And with the angels stand,
A crown upon my forehead
A harp within my hand—"

His adoring father chuckled. "I wonder what for kind of anchel he'd make, anyhow? And Betz—they'll have to go together. Say, I wonder if it is horse-anchels?"

No one knew; no one offered a suggestion.

"Well, it ought to be. Say—he ken perform circus wiss ol' Betz!"

They expressed their polite surprise at this for perhaps the hundredth time.

"Yas—they have a kind of circusring in the barnyard. He stands on one foot then on another, and on his hands wiss his feet kicking, and then he says words—like hokey-pokey—and Betz she kicks up behind and throws him off in the dung and we all laugh—happy efer after—Betz most of all!"

After the applause he said:

"I guess I'd better wake 'em up! What you sink?"

They one and all thought he had. They knew he would do it, no matter what they thought. His method, as usual, was his own. He stepped to the adjoining field, and, selecting a clod with the steely polish of the plowshare upon it, threw it at the mare. It struck her on the flank. She gathered her feet under her in sudden alarm, then slowly relaxed, looked slyly for the old man, found him, and understanding, suddenly wheeled and ambled off home, leaving Seffy prone on the ground as her part of the joke.

The old man brought Seffy in triumph to the store-porch.

"Chust stopped you afore you got to be a anchel!" he was saying. "We couldn't bear to sink about you being a anchel—an' wiss the anchels stand --a harp upon your forehead, a crown within your hand, I expect—when it's corn-planting time."

Seffy grinned cheerfully, brushed off the dust and contemplated his father's watch—held accusingly against him. Old Baumgartner went on gaily.

"About an inch and a half apast ten! Seffy, I'm glad you ain't breaking your reputation for being fastnachich. Chust about a quarter of an inch too late for the prize wiss flour on its hair and arms and its frock pinned up to show its new petticoat! Uhu! If I had such a nice petticoat—" he imitated the lady in question, to the tremendous delight of the gentle loafers.

Seffy stared a little and rubbed some dust out of his eyes. He was pleasant but dull.

"Yassir, Sef, if you'd a-got yere at a inch and a quarter apast! Now Sam's got her. Down in the cellar a-licking molasses together! Doggone if Sam don't git eferysing—except his due bills. He don't want to be no anchel tell he dies. He's got fun enough yere —but Seffy—you're like the flow of molasses in January—at courting."

This oblique suasion made no impression on Seffy. It is doubtful if he understood it at all. The loafers began to smile. One laughed. The old man checked him with a threat of personal harm.

"Hold on there, Jefferson Dafis Busby," he chid. "I don't allow no one to laugh at my Seffy—except chust me —account I'm his daddy. It's a fightword the next time you do it."

Mr. Busby straightened his countenance.

"He don't seem to notice—nor keer —'bout gals—do he?"

No one spoke.

"No, durn him, he ain't no good. Say—what'll you give for him, hah? Yere he goes to the highest bidder—for richer, for poorer, for better, for worser, up and down, in and out, swing your partners—what's bid? He ken plow as crooked as a mule's hind leg, sleep hard as a 'possum in wintertime, eat like a snake, git left efery time—but he ken ketch fish. They wait on him. What's bid?"

No one would hazard a bid.

"Yit a minute," shouted the old fellow, pulling out his bull's-eye watch again, "what's bid? Going—going—all done—going—"

"A dollar!"

The bid came from behind him, and the voice was beautiful to hear. A gleam came into the old man's eyes as he heard it. He deliberately put the watch back in its pocket, put on his spectacles, and turned, as if she were a stranger.

"Gone!" he announced then. "Who's the purchaser? Come forwards and take away you' property. What's the name, please?" Then he pretended to recognize her. "Oach! Sally! Well, that's lucky! He goes in good hands. He's sound and kind, but needs the whip." He held out his hand for the dollar.

It was the girl of whom he had spoken accurately as a prize. Her sleeves were turned up as far as they would go, revealing some soft lace-trimmed whiteness, and there was flour on her arms. Some patches of it on her face gave a petal-like effect to her otherwise aggressive color. The pretty dress was pinned far enough back to reveal the prettier petticoat—plus a pair of trimly-clad ankles.

Perhaps these were neither the garments nor the airs in which every farmer-maiden did her baking. But then, Sally was no ordinary farmer-maiden. She was all this, it is true, but she was, besides, grace and color and charm itself. And if she chose to bake in such attire—or, even, if she chose to pretend to do so, where was the churl to say her nay, even though the flour was part of a deliberate "make-up?" Certainly he was not at the store that summer morning.

And Seffy was there. Her hair escaped redness by only a little. But that little was just the difference between ugliness and beauty. For, whether Sally were beautiful or not—about which we might contend a bit—her hair was, and perhaps that is the reason why it was nearly always uncovered—or, possibly, again, because it was so much uncovered was the reason it was beautiful. It seemed to catch some of the glory of the sun. Her face had a few freckles and her mouth was a trifle too large. But, in it were splendid teeth.

Fat Men and Jobs.

Employment agents say it's about as hard to get work for a fat man as for a gray-haired one. According to their statements, employers of labor hold that a fat man is indolent. They assert that the hustler, the fast, nervous, energetic worker, is sinewy rather than fat, and does 30 per cent. more work than the soft, fat fellow. "It is not uncommon for us to advise fat applicants to diet," said an employment agent, "and reduce their weight before beginning to canvass for a job." So far as recorded, Dr. Osler has expressed no opinion on the expediency of chloroforming men who are running to adipose tissue.

WALK 2450 MILES

BIGGEST WEST TO EAST WALK EVER ACCOMPLISHED.

Win Fifteen Hundred Dollars.

Over mountains and through snow, through wet, slush and mud, freezing at times, and oppressed by heat at others, William Jackson and R. T. Hay, two sturdy Scotchmen, walked every mile of the way from Seattle to Chicago, just arriving within a few hours of the time limit, thereby winning a purse of Fifteen Hundred Dollars given by the Seattle Athletic Club, for accomplishing this feat within the prescribed time.

Jackson and Hay left Seattle with but Five Dollars in money, were obliged to earn their way as they went and leave no unpaid bills, and complete the journey in ninety days.

An interesting incident in connection with the walk, was that each of the contestants wore a pair of the well-known Mayer shoes, that neither ripped nor lost a stitch during the entire trip of 2450 miles—the hardest test any shoes could be put to—speaking volumes for the extraordinary wearing qualities of the shoes manufactured by the F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co., Milwaukee.

Catarrh Twenty-five Years— Had a Bad Cough.

Miss Sophia Kittlesen, Evanston, Illinois, U. S. A., writes:

"I have been troubled with catarrh for nearly twenty-five years and have tried many cures for it, but obtained very little help.

"Then my brother advised me to try Peruna, and I did.

"My health was very poor at the time I began taking Peruna. My throat was very sore and I had a bad cough.

"Peruna has cured me. The chronic catarrh is gone and my health is very much improved.

"I recommend Peruna to all my friends who are troubled as I was."

"Kohn Bros." clothing leads all others in snap, style and quality.

and the "K. B." shoulder and perfect fitting front is something which most tailor book suits lack.

However, some men, owing to their odd shape MUST have their clothes tailor made. These men should be careful OF WHOM they order their clothes. Any one can take your measure accurately, but when it comes to "describing your odd shape" to the tailor this can only be done accurately by having you put on a ready made coat and describing to the taitor the difference between you and the model coat.

From this you will see that the only safe place to order tailor made clother is at a clothing store.

A great many people imagine that they have heart trouble when the fact is that the whole trouble lies in the stomach. The pains in the side around the region of the heart are not heart trouble. We suggest that you start with the stomach and when you feel a depression after eating or whenever food seems to nauseate take Kodol. It will not be long until all these heart hains will disappear. Take Kodol now until you know you are right again. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and will find the the truh of this staement verified after having used Kodol for a few weeks. It is sold at J L Harr & Co.

In this edition in anther column will be found a statement of the State Savings Bank—scrutinize it closely as it is a hummer and shows what a real live bank can do. They have resources of over $140,000.00 with a combine capital of $22,500.00 ample cash on ha id and increasing deposits these various items surely are putting the State Savings in the front rank of the banks of our County and this together with the personnel makes the State Savings one of the strongest banks of the County and as impregnable as the rock of Gibralter.

Two Cent Fare Operation.

Des Moines.—An increase of $363,522 in passenger earnings and an increase of $1,167,366 in gross earnings has been reported to the executive council by the ten railroad companies who own 9,372 of the 9,824 miles of road in Iowa, comparing the receipts of 1907 with those of 1906.

The report for 1907 takes in six months during which the 2-cent fare law was in operation. More than 31 per cent of the increase in gross earnings was due to the passenger departments of the ten companies.

The net earnings of the companies, however, decreased $3,256,237 in 1097 as compared with 1906. The only way in which the 2-cent fare law can be held responsible for this decrease is in charging against it the increase in operating expenses.

The Burlington railroad company was the last of the trunk lines to turn in the report. The companies which have yet to report are short and their totals will not materially swell the figures here given for the ten roads included in this summary.

The following tables show the gross earnings, the net earnings and the passenger earnings in 1907 and 1906 of the ten railroad systems representing 95 per cent of the total mileage in the state:

During an electric storm the 146 foot steeple on the Catholic church at Elkader was struck and the wood work ignited. The first was put out before doing serious damage.

George C. Brown, a young farmer living near Nevada, met with a violent death while working around a corn sheller. He was near the sheller when in some manner he came in contact with the large belt. He was thrown several feet into the air and fell, striking his head on a small stone on the ground just at the base of the brain.

Full Vote in the Register.

It is the intention of Secretary of State Hayward to include the vote of the parties of the state on their candidates for United States senator in the next Official Register, by precincts, and he is sending out the following letter to the county auditors, in pursuance of that plan:

"The primary election for the nomination of partisan candidates for state, district county and township officers will be held on Tuesday, June 2, 1908. This is the first time in the history of the state that such an election has been held and the precinct returns of the vote cast for the head of the different tickets will be of great importance to the voters of the state. It is my desire to collect such precinct returns for publication in the next issue of the Official Register and for that purpose I ask you to enter on this blank the vote for the candidates for United States senator in each precinct in your county as shown by the official canvass by your board of supervisors and mail it to me immediately after the canvass is completed. This return to be of benefit to the voters of the state should be accurate and I would especially ask that after making it up that you compare the entries and the totals with the official returns.".

Code Supplements to Junk Pile.

Twelve tons of worthless copies of the first supplement to the code have been sold for old paper, by the executive council under an act of the Thirtieth general assembly.

There were 3,443 copies in the allotment to the junk pile and the state still has 1,500 copies on hand, but they, also, are worthless except for files, the second supplement to the code, which embodies all that is in the first supplement, having been issuel several months ago.

The first supplement was authorized by the code revision law of 1897, James H. Trewin being at the head of it. The supplement was published under authority of an act of the Twenty-ninth general assembly drawn by Mr. Trewin and passed on his recommendation and was compiled by a commission of which he was chairman and of which Senator W. P. Whipple of Benton county, Claude R. Porter of Centerville, and others were members. The act provided for the printing of 15,000 copies. Bernard Murphy printed them and Howard Tedford bound them. It is from this 15,000 copies that the 3,443 were sent to the junk pile and the 1,500 copies were preserved.

This disposition of the supplement was recommended by Curator Small of the law library, Curator Harlan of the historical department and State Librarian Brigham, under the law of the Thirtieth general assembly.

The last legislature cut down the number of copies of the supplement to be published from 15,000 to 12,000 the 3,000 reduction being about the number of the first supplement which have become utterly worthless and sent to the junk pile.

The sheep bindings from the covers of the books were stripped off and turned over to the board of control for use at the bindery which the state operates at the reformatory at Anamosa.

The Trewin code supplements made up about one-half of the old documents which have been relegated to the junk pile by the authorities recently. They all brought from 37 to 40 cents per 100 pounds.

Carries Drug Case Up.

The state anti-saloon league through its attorney, M. S. Odie, has taken the Loper drug store case up to the supreme court. The league alleges that the judge made a wrong ruling when the twenty-seven requests which did not state for what purpose liquor was used was not granted as evidence. The league claims that it would never have gained any of the cases in the state if this was not granted as evidence and alleges that the requests are seldom printed with the determining clause in them, but are written in as a dodge to the mulct law.

The league has gone in for a state war. As a result permanent injunctions have been granted against the Duncombe hotel and eight druggists at Fort Dodge for illegal sales of liquor, one saloon enjoined at Beacon. Five contempt cases will come up at Ottumwa May 25, and the Grundy county mulct petition of consent was taken up to the supreme cour May 8.

Referendum Vote on Tax Remission.

The referendum feature of the Des Moines plan law will receive its first trial at the next general election in November.

The question to be submitted is whether the city shall continue the policy of remitting taxes of manufacturing concerns in order to induce them to locate in Des Moines. It will also be left to the voters to say whether the city hall carry out existing contracts relieving certain companies from taxation for a certain period of years.

The new council has been wrestling with these two questions ever since it assumed office. Corporation Counsel Baily advised the members that there is great doubt as to the legality of certain contracts for remitting taxes. At a conference following a council meeting it was definitely decided to leave the matter to a referendum vote.

Insulting Post Card Dear.

John Benz of Dexter will pay nearly $40 for the fun of writing a postal card to Mabel Vogel taunting her with the fact that she had been jilted by his brother. The message was written without regard to the postal regulation and Benz was arrested. Judge McPherson fined him $20 and costs when he pleaded guilty. The costs will amount to nearly as much as the fine.

SOUTHERN FLOODS

SEVEN KNOWN DEAD AT FORT WORTH, TEXAS.

OKLAHOMA IS UNDER WATER

Twenty Inches of Rainfall—Canadian River Rises Ten Feet in Twelve Hours.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 25.—Seven people are known to be dead, 500 more homeless and a dozen more are reported to have been killed in Fort Worth and North Fort Worth as a result of the greatest rise in the history of the Trinity river.

The river went three inches above the record breaking flood of 1889.

Stock valued at many thousands of dollars, including 2,500 sheep penned up in the stock yards in North Fort Worth, was washed down stream and destroyed. The property loss cannot be estimated as yet.

A body of a dead woman floated past the Fourth street bridges yesterday and created a panic among the negro refugees. A negro baby was washed from its mother's arms in the Rock Island yards and has not been seen since. An unknown white man was drowned one mile from the long bridge; his coat containing a note of farewell, was found lodged in a tree top. A negro attempted to pilot two men in a buggy through deep water opposite the city park gate and was thrown from his horse and as yet, his body has not been recovered. Many persons are missing.

Muskogee, Okla., May 25.—Not a railroad in Oklahoma is in operation as a result of the heavy rains and cloudbursts that have occurred in various parts of the state during the last three days. The last road to suspend operations was the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, which was forced to quit at noon yeterday when the bridge on the main line at Eufaula went down.

To add to the disaster, the main supplying natural gas to the Indian Territory part of the state was carried away with the Clarksville bridge late yesterday and the supply of gas for Muskogee and several other cities in the southeast part of the state has been entirely cut off. Officials of the gas company say it will be a week before repairs can be made so that the gas supply can again be carried. As natural gas is used for light and heat, business will be suspended in a measure. Elevators have been forced to stop running, and hotels and restaurants have practically been put out of business.

During the past ten hours there has been a rainfall of twenty inches in this section of the state. The previous fall during the last three days of more than ten inches contributed to the damaging flood.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific suspended operations Saturday when a mile of its track in the Seminole country was washed away. The St. Louis & San Francisco did likewise early yesterday and soon after the Midland Valley and the Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf suspended train business. The last train over the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road was No. 4, northbound, which crossed the Canadian river at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Two hours later the bridge went out. The Flyer on the same road is safe, but No. 6, northbound, is in a washout south of Eufaula. Dozens of bridges on these roads went out yesterday.

The Canadian river rose ten feet during the past twelve hours, and the Arkansas eight feet. The entire country is under water.

Late yesterday afternoon a message was received at the Midland Valley railroad offices here from Jenks, Okla., say that the town was under water and that help was needed. The railroad is powerless to send aid, as much track and a bridge went out early. Jenks is fifty-three miles north of Muskogee and is located in extremely low country. It is feared that a number of persons have perished.

TORNADO IN TEXAS.

Austin, Tex., May 25.—A terrific wind and rain storm that at times developed into a tornado swept Texas from the "Panhandle" to the gulf early yesterday. The destruction to crops and vegetation, trees and shrubbery was the greatest reported in years. In numerous places houses were unroofed and small villages and hamlets in many instances were inundated by the terrific rainfall which in the space of four hours reached seven inches in many sections.

Austin was in the path of the worst of the storm, and for hours the streets were impassable for either man or beast. Electric light and telephone connections were disabled beyond immediate repair and many houses were unroofed. The agricultural sections of central and southern Texas have been immeasurably damaged.

LANDLORD KNEW HIS CAPACITY.

Would Need to Lay in Supplies for Student Guest.

"Lawyer Hummel entertained us with his brilliant conversation on the Lusitania," said a tourist.

"Hummel had one night in the smoking room an argument with a terribly scarred German about education.

"'There's nothing like our German students. You can't get away from that,' the German boasted, and his face, all slashed from corps duels, beamed with pride.

"'No, you're right,' said Hummel. 'I once visited a German student in Heidelberg. As we conversed on dueling in the students' sitting room a waiter knocked, entered and said politely:

"'"The landlord of the Keg presents his compliments and wishes to know if you are thinking of stepping across this evening, sir?"

"'"What does he want to know that for?" the student inquired.

"'"Because, sir, if you don't," said the waiter, "it will scarcely be worth while to tap a fresh barrel to-day."'"

Saved From Being a Cripple for Life.

"Almost six or seven weeks ago I became paralyzed all at once with rheumatism," writes Mrs. Louis McKey, 913 Seventh street, Oakland, Cal. "It struck me in the back and extended from the hip of my right leg down to my foot. The attack was so severe that I could not move in bed and was afraid that I should be a cripple for life.

"About 12 years ago I received a sample bottle of your Liniment but never had occasion to use it, as I have always been well, but something told me that Sloan's Liniment would help me, so I tried it. After the second application I could get up out of bed, and in three days could walk, and now feel well and entirely free from pain.

"My friends were very much surprised at my rapid recovery and I was only too glad to tell them that Sloan's Liniment was the only medicine I used."

Feeding the Stock.

The victim of the following story, told in Mrs. Henry W. Cole's "A Lady's Tour Around Monte Rosa," was possessed of a keen sense of humor. Otherwise his dignity might have been ruffled by the unconscious revelation which came to his ears.

"In the course of Mrs. Cole's travels she met Rev. Robert Montgomery, the poet, who told her an incident of his early career in the pulpit. When he was first admitted to holy orders he was appointed curate in a rural Scotch district, and lodged in the house of a small tenant farmer.

"Notwithstanding his office of clergyman, the family did not appear to held their boarder in high veneration, for one day he heard the woman servant call out to her mistress:

"'Missis, shall I feed the pigs first, or gie the mon his dinner?'"—Youth's Companion.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

URDERER OF SIX?

WAGIAC (MICH.) MAN ACCUSED OF KILLING HALF DOZEN.

ORY OF WIFE BETRAYS

e Declares He Sought Her Life—Police Assert Prisoner Has Confessed to Slaying Two Men.

South Bend, Ind.—James Brimmingll, aged 40, is under arrest at wagiac, Mich., 27 miles from South nd, charged with six murders. The lice say he has already confessed two, and Prosecutor Bresnahan is nfident the prisoner will admit the er crimes. His arrest followed an eged attempt to make his wife his venth victim. She escaped and apaled to the police. It is probable t Brimmingstall will be subjected further "sweat-box" examinations, d that he will be held on a charge murdering David Huff here last June. The police say he confessed to killg a man in Kansas, who he had a udge against, and was sentenced to n years in the penitentiary. After s release he killed a companion and ceived a sentence of three years. He ve no names.

List of Alleged Victims.

The list of Brimmingstall's victims, cording to the officers, is:

Man in Kansas (name not given), lled by Brimmingstall when 16 years d.

Railroad man in Missouri, name unnown, killed seven years ago.

Two men sleeping in a tent in Missouri, names unknown to officers.

David Huff, Dowagiac, June, 1907.

Smith Hortium, Dowagiac, February, 908.

Mrs. Brimmingstall, apparently disacted, appealed to Prosecuting Atorney T. J. Bresnahan for protection. he said that "Jim" was going to kill er; she could not go to sleep for fear e would break into the house and urder her. She gave hints that led o the discovery that her husband has criminal record.

Deeded Property; Supposed Slain.

David Huff, an aged citizen of Dowagiac, went to the Brimmingstall ome to live a year and a half ago. He deeded them his property on their roposition to support him for the emainder of his life. One night last une a scuffle was heard in an upper oom of the house. Huff was found ead in bed with the bed clothing very nuch disturbed. Brimmingstall said hat Huff had some sort of violent illess—colic or something like it, and ccidentally choked himself to death ith the bed clothing. The body of Huff was buried next day and the pparent haste occasioned some comment.

In February of this year Smith Hortium disappeared. There are several circumstances tending to connect Brimmingstall with the disappearance of Hortium. Hortium's body was found frozen in the ice of a near-by stream. His money had disappeared.

STRIKE MAY BE ENDED SOON.

Good Progress Toward Peace in the Cleveland Trouble.

Cleveland, O. — Greater progress in settling the street railway strike peacefully and by arbitration was made Wednesday than any day since the strike began. Both sides made material concessions.

President Du Pont of the Municipal Traction company stated that he would take back the old employes as new men. He insisted upon giving the present men at work the preference. This was objectionable to the union. In a later conference with the union the members of the state board of arbitration obtained a slight concession from the strikers. They agreed to have the men go back as new men as a temporary expedient. Coupled with this, however, was the further agreement to allow the future status of the strikers to be arbitrated.

Later it was stated that the company and the strikers had agreed and that the formalities of preparing the arbitration bill would proceed. Meantime, it was further stated, there would be an armistice and the strikers would be advised to return to work at once.

Violence ceased to be a prominent factor in the strike during the day and evening. Mayor Johnson issued a proclamation offering rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons placing explosives on the tracks.

WRITER OF REAL TALENT.

Evidently the Bushby Clarion Had a Genius on Its Staff.

The editor of the Bushby Clarion leaned back in his chair and surveyed his visitor with a solemn and unwinking gaze. "You want to know if there's any good reporter in this town?" he said, impressively. "Well, there is. There's Gid Hobart."

"What sort of work can he do?" asked the visitor.

"His capabilities haven't had their full chance yet," said the editor, slowly, 'but he's getting on, and I'm afraid we shall lose him before long. Why, last week that fellow wrote a two column account of a fire that was thrilling, I tell you!"

"Farmhouse, old mother, grandfather born there, and so forth, I suppose?" said the visitor.

"No, sir!" said the editor. "It was a deserted hen-house, that's what it was. I can tell you, that takes talent! We can't expect to keep Gid with us always."—Youth's Companion.

NO SKIN LEFT ON BODY.

For Six Months Baby Was Expected to Die with Eczema—Now Well —Doctor Said to Use Cuticura.

"Six months after birth my little girl broke out with eczema and I had two doctors in attendance. There was not a particle of skin left on her body, the blood oozed out just anywhere, and we had to wrap her in silk and carry her on a pillow for ten weeks. She was the most terrible sight I ever saw, and for six months I looked for her to die. I used every known remedy to alleviate her suffering, for it was terrible to witness. Dr. C—— gave her up. Dr. B—— recommended the Cuticura Remedies. She will soon be three years old and has never had a sign of the dread trouble since. We used about eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment. James J. Smith, Durmid, Va., Oct. 14 and 22, 1906."

WAIT TILL HE SEES THE BILL.

"My husband has promised to allow me to choose what I want for my birthday."

"Oh, then there'll be no surprise this year."

"Won't there! I'll bet you there is, only he'll get it instead of me."

He Was Practical.

"Young man, you write a good deal of poetry to my daughter."

"Yes, sir."

"It takes a practical man to support a wife."

"Well, it's this way. I have to write her an occasional letter, and I'm so busy at the office that I just copy the poetry to fill in."

The explanation was satisfactory.—Exchange.

DR. TALKS OF FOOD

Pres. of Board of Health.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food, known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.

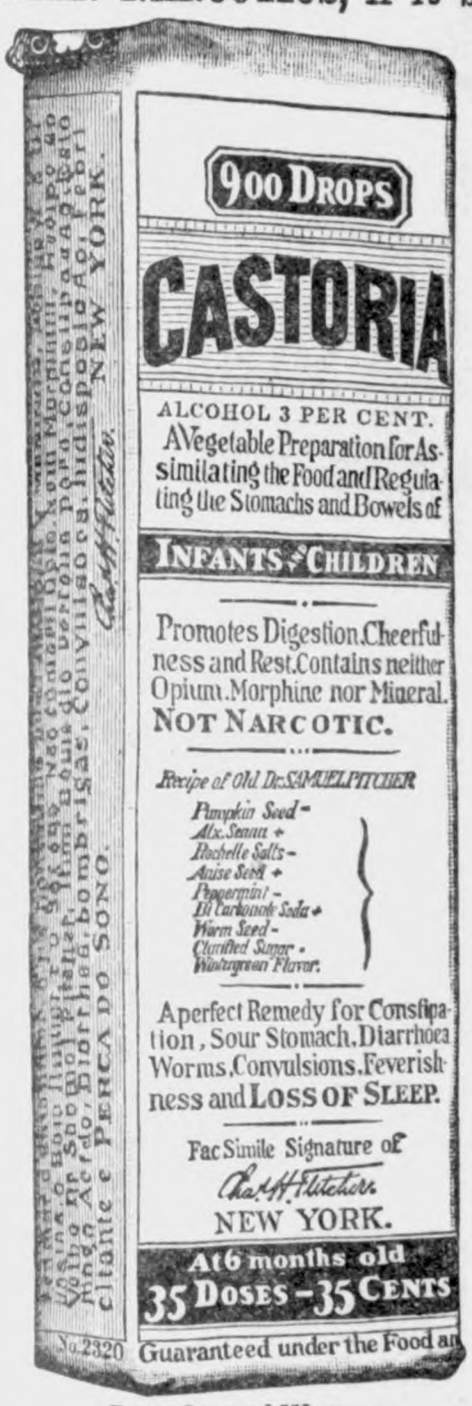
"From overwork, I suffered several years with malnutrition, palpitation of the heart and loss of sleep. Last summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short time after I commenced its use, the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, my heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth.

"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can gainsay but that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Any one who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured and may thereby know the facts as to its true worth." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. J. W. Dinsdale, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children."

Dr. Alexander E. Mintie, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria and have found it a reliable and pleasant remedy for children."

Dr. J. S. Alexander, of Omaha, Neb., says: "A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is, deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."

Dr. J. A. McClellan, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria for children and always got good results. In fact I use Castoria for my own children."

Dr. J. W. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I heartily endorse your Castoria. I have frequently prescribed it in my medical practice, and have always found it to do all that is claimed for it."

Dr. C. H. Glidden, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "My experience as a practitioner with your Castoria has been highly satisfactory, and I consider it an excellent remedy for the young."

Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Dr. J. J. Mackey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I consider your Castoria an excellent preparation for children, being composed of reliable medicines and pleasant to the taste. A good remedy for all disturbances of the digestive organs."

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

GEORGE P. HARDWICK

of Britt, Iowa, Republican Candidate for State Representative.

Citizens of Hancock County:—

Asking your consideration of my candidacy for the office of representative; think I am not unknown to you—30 years as a working taxpayer among you ought to be a fair introduction.

Have had fair success in the varied business enterprises undertaken. Had much to do with early drainage work in this county for which my reading of law aided, that my record of the seventh drainage district was on appeal to the supreme court approved. Have been associated in newspaaer and literary work on merchandile trade and while I am willingly classed as a farmer, yet possibly have had a more varied and larger experience in business than the ordinary citizen to which is referred only for information, Have not been a perpetual candidate seeking various offices or from more than our political party, nor siding with any party faction, but attending strictly to business, hope to merit your good will and votes at the approaching primary election.

While I would like to meet and talk with you, this is a busy time for all industrial people so the newspaper and mails are used instead. Respectfully yours, Geo. P. Hardwick.

To the voters of Supervisor District No. 3.

I would liketo call your attention that I will not have the time to call on all of you personally before June 2nd on account of rain and bad roads, but hope that you all have seen my announcement for Supervisor in the different papers and I would appreciate your support. I am a born Iowan and have lived in Hancock Co. for 26 years and have paid taxes in this district for 23 years. This is my first time that I have applied for a county office. I was raised on the farm and farming is my occupation. My motto has always been: "Honest, fair and square dealing" and I intend to have it so in the future. I am a democrat politically and live on the northwest quarter of Sec. 6 in Avery township which is centerly located in this district. Should I receive the nomination and be elected I intend to go into this as an honest man and protect the voters interest as my own to the best of my knowledge and ability, so that when the time comes for me to step out of office that I can step out as an honest man and receive credit from the public. Now dear voters, if you believe that I deserve this office or be entitled to the same, all you haveto do is to support me and tell your neighbors and friends to do the same and I will thank you very much for doing so. Polls will be open from 1 p m. to 8 p. m. June 2, 1908.

Very truly yours,
WILLIAM LAU.

Notice is hereby given that the sealed proposals for the construction of cement side walks and steps for Klemme school house in the town of Klemme, in the county of Hancock, state of Iowa, will be received by the undersigned at his office in Klemme until 8 o'clock p. m. COMMENCEMENT.

For the first time in years the Klemme High school gave a very interest and elaborate program in behalf of the graduates of 1908, at the German M. E. church, last Friday evening.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and the class colors (blue and white) were profusely scattered around the speaker's stand, and decorated the walls of the church. The class emblems were very neatly and conspicuously placed in the rear of the speaker's stand.

At promptly 8 o'clock the graduates, in response to a march, played by Miss Esther Lenz, filed into the church and took their places on the speaking stand preparatory to the program in hand.

The program was interspersed with music and songs, in addition to the addresses of Misses Helen Bloom, Ella Griewe, Lurena Wessels and Amy Elder, and was very elaborate and interesting in every detail.

The graduates delivered their addresses in an excellent manner and gave very good example of the thorough training received at the hands of the Klemme High school faculty.

Prof. Washburn is certainly to be congratulated upon such excellent students, and their work is an excellent recommend for the Klemme High school.

After the conclusion of the program Prof. Washburn presented the diplomas in a very neat and masterly address, after which followed many complimentary congratulations and best wishes.

ASYLUM FOR THAW

RELEASE ON HABEAS CORPUS WRIT IS DENIED.

DECLARED STILL INSANE

Justice Morschauser Says No Injustice Has Been Done White's Slayer—No Appeal Is Expected.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. — Harry K. Thaw has accepted, apparently with resignation, the decree of Supreme Justice Morschauser that he is still insane and that the interests of the public will be best served by denying him his liberty. Pending the signing of the papers of re-commitment, which probably will not be done before a week from next Saturday, Thaw will occupy Sheriff Chanler's suite in the county building here. In the meantime an effort will be made by Thaw's attorneys to induce District Attorney Jerome to consent to the commitment of the prisoner to one of the state hospitals other than Matteawan. It is said that in the event of Mr. Jerome giving his consent to such a change no appeal will be taken from Justice Morschauser's decision. Even if an appeal were taken, it would not be argued before fall.

attorneys are decided against him. The justice declares that the prisoner is insane and should not be allowed at large, and that the commitment to the asylum by Justice Dowling after the second trial of the murder case was legal.

Decision of the Justice.

Following is the decision: "Upon application duly made a writ of habeas corpus was allowed by which Harry K. Thaw was directed to be produced in court. In the petition it is alleged that Thaw is illegally imprisoned and restrained of his liberty by Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of Matteawan state hospital, a state institution for the insane.

"Thaw's detention is attacked upon the grounds:

"First. That he is now sane.

"Second. That the act under the provisions of which he was committed and detained is unconstitutional and the court was without jurisdiction to issue the order of commitment, and such order was null and void.

"The return to the writ alleges that said Thaw is now insane and that the statute providing for the confinement of said Thaw is constitutional and valid, and that the court had jurisdiction to make the order of commitment.

"The proof and evidence on the part of the respective parties have been ably presented and the matter has been submitted.

"Thaw, at the time of his trial for homicide, as a defense, pleaded insanity and presented proof to show his insanity at the time of the killing of White, and, by the proof offered on his behalf, the jury was convinced that he was insane and acquitted him upon that ground. I am satisfied from the evidence adduced before me that the mental condition of Harry K. Thaw has not changed, and I find that he is now insane and that it is so manifest as to make it unsafe for him to be at large.

No Injustice to Thaw.

"I believe no injustice has been done to Thaw or will be done to him by depriving him of his liberty until such time as he can be discharged by the method prescribed by law. Bearing in mind that the usual punishment for the act which led up to the detention of said Thaw is death, or a long term of imprisonment, and that said Thaw escaped the consequences of such act solely by reason of his existing mental condition, I do not deem it proper to allow Thaw his freedom, suffering as he is from some form of inanity with the possible recurrence of an attack similar to that which the jury believed he was suffering from when he killed Stanford White. In view of the existing mental condition of said Thaw, the safety of the public is better insured by his remaining in custody and under observation until he has recovered or until such time as it shall be reasonably certain that there is no danger of a recurring attack of the delusion or whatever it may be. The writ is dismissed. The order remanding the said Harry K. Thaw can be settled on notice pursuant to stipulation."

Evelyn Withdraws Suit.

New York.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, through her counsel, Tuesday withdrew the suit she instituted some time ago for the annulment of her marriage to Harry K. Thaw.

Immediately following the dismissal of the action Daniel O'Reilly, personal attorney for Mrs. Thaw, issued a statement in which he declared that Mrs. Thaw had been an unwilling party to the proceedings from the first. It was only because of pressure on the part of her husband's relatives that she had any part in such a proceeding, said Mr. O'Reilly, and that she withdrew the action because she believes her husband's present position demands her loyalty.

CONSPIRACY CHARGES LIFTED BY CHICAGO JURY.

Former Chief of Police Collins and Frank D. Comerford Are Acquitted After Long Trial.

Chicago. — Former Chief of Police John M. Collins and Frank D. Comerford, police attorney under the Dunne administration, were found not guilty by a jury in Judge Chetlain's court Wednesday of conspiracy to defraud the city of Chicago by diverting the services of the police to political work. The verdict was received with enthusiastic clapping of hands, and the former chief at once became the center of a storm of congratulations. The verdict ended one chapter of the prosecutions growing out of the last city campaign.

Two indictments still pending against Collins, one charging the collection of campaign funds from the police and the other the mutilation of public records, it was announced, might be brought to trial in their regular order so far as the plans of the state's attorney have been formed. But State's Attorney Healy was not at all positive about this. The first-named indictment is also pending against William L. O'Connell, former commissioner of public works, and E. H. Roche, former city purchasing agent.

When the spectators in the court room were quieted Attorney Nathaniel Sears arose and thanked the jurors.

"I want to thank the jurors and the court for the absolute fairness with which this case was tried."

Comerford also expressed his thanks.

"I also want to thank the court and individual jurors for the expression of justice."

The former chief of police individually thanked the jurors and then hurried into the judge's chambers and notified his family of his acquittal. Former Mayor Dunne was also notified of the verdict.

TWO DROWNED; FIVE SAVED.

Disaster Overtakes Launch Off Santa Catalina Island.

Avalon, Island of Santa Catalina, Cal.—Capt. A. Crist of the launch Zeus of Avalon, and C. E. Hooline, ordinary seaman on the United States converted cruiser Buffalo, were drowned, and E. E. Easton, wife, two small children and colored nurse were rescued by the Buffalo on the high seas Tuesday night, after drifting helplessly for two days in a small launch.

Capt. Crist was lost from the launch Sunday night several miles off Avalon in a mysterious manner. Seaman Hooline was lost overboard from the Buffalo in effecting the rescue of Mr. Easton and his party.

Admiral Crowninshield Dead.

Washington.—Funeral services over the body of Rear Admiral A. S. Crowninshield, retired, of the navy, who died in Philadelphia Wednesday will be held here Friday and interment will be at the National cemetery at Arlington. Full military honors will be accorded the dead officer. Admiral Crowninshield served with distinction during the Spanish-American war when he was in charge of the bureau of navigation.

Pastor Saves Son, But Drowns.

Jacksonville, Ill.—Rev. S. H. Glasgow, for many years pastor of the Woodson (Ill.) Presbyterian church, was drowned Tuesday afternoon at the village, after rescuing his little son, who had been overcome by cramps while bathing.

CURRENCY LAW IS ASSURED.

House Passes Compromise Bill and Senate Will Do Same.

Washington.—An emergency currency is assured. The currency question held its place Wednesday, as practically the only subject of consideration at both ends of the capitol, and when both houses adjourned the compromise bill which was drafted by the Republican conferees had received the sanction of the house and had been presented to the senate, where it was announced it would be taken up for consideration Thursday, and where it will also be passed when the vote is reached.

The day began with a continuation of Tuesday's conference between the Republican representatives of the two houses. This resulted in a complete agreement which, being later presented as a matter of form to the Democratic conferees, was shortly after two p. m. presented to the house. There it was taken up at three o'clock, discussed for one hour and passed by a vote of 166 to 140.

The house had no sooner recorded its verdict in favor of the bill than it was hurried over to the senate, shortly before five o'clock, with the announcement of the approval of the house.

The conference report was read and after the reading had been concluded Mr. Aldrich announced that Thursday, after routine business, he would move to take up the report and continue its consideration until it was disposed of.

Senator La Follette refused to outline his probable course further than to say that he would vote against the new bill. He was in consultation with Democratic leaders at different times during the day, and his bearing was such as to lead to the conclusion that if the Democrats would agree to fight the measure he would assist them.

REPORTS ON PAPER TRUST.

Majority Urges No Action Until Matter Is Probed Further.

Washington.—The special committee of six members of the house appointed upon the complaint of the American Newspaper Publishers' association to investigate the wood pulp and print paper situation in relation to the tariff and with regard to an alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade, Thursday submitted a majority and a minority report.

The majority report, signed by Representative Mann of Illinois, Miller of Kansas, Stafford of Wisconsin and Bannon of Ohio, recommends that legislation be not enacted before the committee has investigated further. The minority report, signed by Representatives Sims of Tennessee and Ryan of New York, recommended the passage of the Stevens bill to place wood pulp and print paper on the free list.

Sacrifice to Medical Science.

New York.—In the hope of discovering a preventative and cure for tuberculosis, Frank Merritt, who about two weeks ago volunteered to surrender his body in the interest of humanity and medical science, has permitted a physician to innoculate his system with the germs of the dread disease. An examination showed that already the disease has made considerable progress since the innoculation a week ago.

The old man came nd brought them together again. ach! go 'long and make lofe some I like to see it. Now this was immensely stimulating to the bashful Seffy.

"I like you," he said—"ever since we was babies."

"Sef—I don't believe you. Or you wouldn't waste your time so—about Sam Pritz!"

"Er—Sally—where you going to-night?" Seffy meant to prove himself.

And Sally answered, with a little fright at the sudden aggressiveness she had procured.

"Nowheres that I know of."

"Well—may I set up with you?"

The pea-green sunbonnet could not conceal the amazement and then the radiance which shot into Sally's face.

"Set—up—with—me!"

"Yes!" said Seffy, almost savagely. "That's what I said."

"Oh, I—I guess so! Yes! of course!" she answered variously, and rushed off home.

"You know I own you," she laughed back, as if she had not been sufficiently explicit. "I paid for you! Your pappy's got the money! I'll expect my property to-night."

"Yas!" shouted the happy old man, "and begoshens! it's a reg'ler bargain! Ain't it, Seffy? You her property—real estate, hereditaments and tenements." And even Seffy was drawn into the joyous laughing conceit of it! Had he not just done the bravest thing of his small life?

"Yes!" he cried after the fascinating Sally. "For sure and certain, to-night."

"It's a bargain!" she cried.

"For better or worser, richer or poorer, up an' down, in an' out, chassez right and left! Aha-ha-ha! Aha-ha-ha! But, Seffy,"—and the happy father turned to the happy son and hugged him, "don't you efer forgit that she's a feather-head and got a bright red temper like her daddy! And they both work mighty bad together sometimes. When you get her at the right place onct—well, nail her down—hand and feet—so's she can't git away. When she gits mad her little brain evaporates, and if she had a knife she'd go round stabbing her best friends—that's the only sing that safes her—yas, and us!—no knife. If she had a knife it would be funerals following her all the time."

II.

What Have Feelings Got to Do With Cow-Pasture?

They advanced together now, Seffy's father whistling some tune that was never heard before on earth, and, with his arm in that of his son, they watched Sally bounding away. Once more, as she leaped a fence, she looked laughingly back. The old man whistled wildly out of tune. Seffy waved a hand.

"Now you shouting, Seffy! Shout ag'in!"

"I didn't say a word!"

"Well—it ain't too late! Go on!"

Now Seffy understood and laughed with his father.

"Nice gal, Sef—Seffy!"

"Yes!" admitted Seffy with reserve. "Healthy."

Seffy agreed to this, also.

"No doctor bills!" his father amplified.

Seffy said nothing

"Entire orphen."

"She's got a granny!"

"Yas," chuckled the old man at the way his son was drifting into the situation—thinking about granny!—"but Sally owns the farm!"

"Uhu!" said Seffy, whatever that might mean.

"And Sally's the boss!"

Silence.

"And granny won't object to any one Sally marries, anyhow—she dassent! She'd git licked!"

"Who said anything about marrying?"

Seffy was speciously savage now—as any successful wooer might be.

"Nobody but me, sank you!" said the old man with equally specious meekness. "Look how she ken jump a six-rail fence. Like a three-year filly! She's a nice gal, Seffy—and the farms j'ine together—her pasture-field and our corn-field. And she's kissing her hand backwards! At me or you, Seffy?"

Seffy said he didn't know. And he did not return the kiss—though he yearned to.

"Well, I bet a dollar that the first initial of his last name is Sephanijah P. Baumgarten, Junior."

"Well!" said Seffy with a great flourish, "I'm going to set up with her to-night."

"Oach—git out, Sef!"—though he knew it.

"You'll see."

"No, I won't," said his father. "I wouldn't be so durn mean. Nossir!"

Seffy grinned at this subtle foolery, and his courage continued to grow.

"I'm going to wear my high hat!" he announced.

"No, Sef!" said the old man with a wonderful inflection, facing him about that he might look into his determined face. For it must be explained that the stovepipe hat, in that day and that country, was dedicated only to the most momentous social occasions and that, consequently, gentlemen wore it to go courting.

"Yes!" declared Seffy again.

"Bring forth stovepipe.

The stovepipe, the stovepipe—" chanted Seffy's frivolous father in the way of the Anvil Chorus.

"And my butterfly necktie with—"

"Wiss the di'mond on?" whispered his father.

They laughed in confidence of their secret. Seffy, the successful wooer, was thawing out again. The diamond was not a diamond at all—the Hebrew who sold it to Seffy had confessed as much. But he also swore that if it were kept in perfect polish no one but a diamond merchant could tell the difference. Therefore, there being no diamond merchant anywhere near, and the jewel being always immaculate, Seffy presented it as a diamond and had risen perceptibly in the opinion of the vicinage.

"And—and—and—Sef—Seffy, what you goin' to do?"

"Do?"

Seffy had been absorbed in what he was going to wear.

"Yas—yas—that's the most important." He encircled Seffy's waist and gently squeezed it. "Oh, of course! Hah? But what yit?"

I regret to say that Seffy did not understand.

"Seffy," he said impressively, "you haf' tol' me what you goin' to wear. It ain't much. The weather's yit pooty col' nights. But I ken stand it if you ken—God knows about Sally! Now, what you goin' to do—that's the conuntrum I ast you!"

Still it was not clear to Seffy.

"Why—what I'm a-going to do, hah? Why—whatever occurs."

"Gosh-a'mighty! And nefer say a word or do a sing to help the occurrences along? Goshens! What a setting-up! Why—say—Seffy, what you set up for?"

Seffy did not exactly know. He had never hoped to practise the thing—in that sublimely militant phase.

"What do you think?"

"Well, Sef—plow straight to her heart. I wisht I had your chance. I'd show you a other-guess kind a setting-up—yassir! Make your mouth warter and your head swim, begoshens! Why, that Sally's just like a young stubble-field; goth to be worked constant, and plowed deep, and manured heafy, and mebby drained wiss blind ditches, and crops changed constant, and kep' a-going thataway — constant — constant—so's the weeds can't git in her. Then you ken put her in wheat after a while and git your money back."

This drastic metaphor had its effect. Seffy began to understand. He said so.

"Now look here, Seffy," his father went on more softly, "when you git to this—and this—and this,"—he went through his pantomime again, and it included a progressive caressing to the kissing point—"well, chust when you bose comfortable—hah?—mebby on one cheer, what I know—it's so long sence I done it myself—when you bose comfortable, ast her—chust ast her—aham!—what she'll take for the pasture-field! She owns you bose and she can't use bose you and the pasture. A bird in the hand is worth seferal in another feller's—not so?"

But Seffy only stopped and stared at his father. This, again, he did not understand.

"You know well enough I got no money to buy no pasture-field," said he.

"Gosh-a'mighty!" said the old man joyfully, making as if he would strike Seffy with his huge fist—a thing he often did. "And ain't got nossing to trade?"

"Nothing except the mare!" said the boy.

"Say—ain't you got no feelings, you idjiot?"

"Oh——" said Seffy. And then: "But what's feelings got to do with cow-pasture?"

"Oach! No wonder he wants to be an anchel, and wiss the anchels stand—holding sings in his hands and on his head! He's too good for this wile world. He'd linger shifering on the brink and fear to launch away all his durn life—if some one didn't push him in. So here goes!"

This was spoken to the skies, apparently, but now he turned to his son again.

"Look a-yere, you young dummerux, feelings is the same to gals like Sally, as money is to you and me. You ken buy potatoes wiss 'em. Do you understand?"

Seffy said that he did, now.

"Well, then, I'fe tried to buy that pasture-field a sousand times——"

Seffy started.

"Yes, that's a little bit a lie—mebby a dozen times. And at last Sally's daddy said he'd lick me if I efer said pasture-field ag'in, and I said it ag'in and he licked me! He was a big man—and red-headed yit, like Sally. Now, look a-yere—you ken git that pasture-field wissout money and wissout price except you' dam' feelings which ain't no other use. Sally won't lick you—if she is bigger—don't be a-skeered. You got tons of feelin's you ain't got no other use for—don't waste 'em—they're good green money, and we'll git efen wiss Sally's daddy for licking me yit—and somesing on the side! Huh?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Simple Enough.

"Why does the farm boy beat the city boy so often?"

"That's easy."

"Let's have the answer."

The average weight of ivory obtained from an elephant is about 50 pounds.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness — you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of to conquer all female diseases.

Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

BASE BALL.

It seemed that Decoration day was kind of a Jona day all around. Klemme's team not having had the practice they ought on account of the constant rainy seasen could not show up in as good form as they ought, but nevertheless gave the Belmond Champions a stubborn game up to the eighth inning, when a few errors caused the home team to give them the contest.

Belmond's players, at least their battery, have been in form ever since the first of the year, and for our boys, without any preparation, to go up against a team of this kind and make the showing they did is very excellent indeed.

We believe that we have the timber for as good a base ball team as there is in northern Iowa, and with but a little preparation our boys can again get back in form and play as of former years. The contest was a stubborn one throughout, and it was everybody's game up to the eighth inning, and a nicer exhibition of ball was never witnessed upon any diamond.

We are pleased that our boys, with the limited amount of practice have been able to show such excellent form and our base ball club, togerher with the band and other things, ought to give us a real live town this summer.

A statement of the condition of the First National Bank as made to the comptroller of the currency appears in this issue, the confidence of the people is reflected in the statement of this old established bank. Among its officers and directors are men who have a life time of experience in financial affairs, men whose ability and success is unquestioned and whose aim is the conduct of this business in such manner that the interests of depositors are conserved. Every accommodation consistent with good business management is enjoyed by its customers.

Nature has provided the stomach with certain natural fluids known as the digestive juices, and it is through these juices that the food we eat is acted upon in such a way as to produce the rich, red blood that flows through the veins of our body and thereby makes us strong, healthy and robust, and it is the weakening of these digestive juices that destroys health. It is our fault if we destroy our own health, and yet it is so easy for any one to put the stomach out of order. When you need to take something take it promptly, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take, it is reliable and is guaranteed to give relief. It is sold by J. L. Harr & Co., Klemme.

Saturday afternoon May 30, this year, memorial day was celebrated with adequate exercises. Band music, marching, speaking and singing. At 3:30 the ball boys went out to the ball ground. The Belmond boys were on the diamond steaming up when our home boys arrived on the scene. The home team steamed up a few minutes, the umpire took his place and finally announced "play ball" and the game was on in all its flury. Man after man went down at the bat until the fourth inning when there was a score made by the visiting team and Pendimorium broke loose and while the home team secured 1 run Belmond squeezed out 8 and our boys woke up just in time to realize that they had received a NO. 1. trouncing. But you just wait till the next game, there will be another story to tell.

Announcement.

Miss Bertha G. Schaub of Charles City, has made arrangements to give a course of instruction on piano or organ in Klemme during the summer. She has leased two rooms over the State Savings Bank which she will arrange into a music studio. Miss Schaub is a sister of Edw. L. Schaub, long and favorably known in this community. We are informed that she has much natural ability in music and did very creditable work in her course at Charles City College. She will begin instruction here on June 15th.

DECORATION DAY.

The day began with a drizzly rain and it seemed for a while as though the entire program would have to be postponed; however, in a short time the clouds began to break and the committee thought that at about 10:30 o'clock they could go ahead with the program, but it seemed that just at about this time another shower set in and the program was again postponed until one o'clock.

The Klemme band seemed to be the only participants upon the program that did not fear the rain, and gave several difficult selections in the morning upon the streets, and this to some extent reassured the crowd to stay for the afternoon, when the program would be carried out in its entirety at the German M. E. church.

At one o'clock the speakers promptly took their places in the foremost seats. The program began with an invocation by Rev. Lilly, followed by a few recitations from the school children. P. M. Griesmer then gave the introductory address, followed by Rev. Wessel as speaker of the day. The reverend's address was very appealing and instructive, and we believe touched the hearts of many of those present.

The Klemme male quartetette, as well as the ladies quartette, gave several pleasing seleceions, which added to the interest of the program.

After the conclusion of the program the Klemme band formed in marching order and escorted all those desiring to visit the cemetery, and after reaching there gave a few selections which were very grand indeed. We feel proud of our Klemme band and are in hopes that the boys will continue their practice and give us a real live town.

DEATH WAS ON HIS HEELS.

Jesse P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared consumption had me, and death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at J. L. Harr & Co's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

DESTINED TO DIE BY BULLET.

Mother's Belief in Boy's Fate Seemed Justified by Events.

"People may jeer at fatalism and poke fun at all ideas which are embodied in predestination," said Senator Culberson of Texas at a small gathering of friends the other day in Washington, "but sometimes a man rubs elbows with events which make him less skeptical about such things. A fine young boy near Dallas was shot while out hunting, and the bullet lodged so near his heart that there was not one chance in a thousand that he could survive an operation. But he did survive, and the operation was one of the things of which the surgeons in the local hospital were very proud. But the boy's recovery was tedious and as soon as the fever left him he was allowed to see his friends and to play cards and generally to amuse himself. The bullet had been given to the boy and occupied a conspicuous place on the table. Every caller saw and handled the bullet and talked over his almost miraculous escape from death. One day the boy's mother was with him and several relatives when a boy who had formerly gone to school with the patient paid him a visit and of course he wanted to hear all about the operation and to see the bullet. The boy told it all with great vim and then, taking up the bullet, he said: 'Here's the bullet that caused all the trouble, and now I shall bite it to pieces to pay it back,' and he laughingly put it in his mouth. Just then he was seized with a coughing fit, the bullet slipped down his throat, lodged in his windpipe, and in a few minutes he had strangled to death. The poor mother was nearly crazed with grief, but she afterward told the pastor of her church that she felt her son was destined to die of that bullet and that she had little confidence of his recovery, even when the operation was pronounced successful. She had dabbled somewhat in the occult sciences and she declared that the boy had been predestined from all time to die from that particular bullet and that nothing could save him from that fate."

RESCUES GIRL BY COURAGE.

Waverly Man Saves Her from Burning to Death.

Waterloo.—W. H. Hattendorf of Waverly, by his coolness and courage, saved Vera Brewer, aged 14, from death by burning. While at home alone heating her irons over a gasoline stove set low on the floor, while ironing, Miss Brower had the misfortune to ignite her skirt as she switched it over the blaze unthinkingly. As soon as she discovered the blaze she ran to the front door to wrap rugs that were on the porch about her, but found the door locked. Then she rushed out the back door and into the open air. Mr. Hattendorf, who was going home to supper, saw the girl running towards him with the fleetness of a deer, a mass of smoke and flames trailing behind. The young man quickened his pace, taking off his coat as he ran, and when he met the girl, wrapped the garment about her, smothering the flames with the coat and beating the blaze with his bare hands Miss Brewer was terribly burned from her knees to her body, and may not recover, though she is doing as well as could be expected.

The manner in which Miss Brewer stood the painful ordeal is said by Mr. Hattendorf to have been truly remarkable. She stood stock still while he put out the flames and uttered no sound despite her suffering.

When the flames had been smothered, the girl turned grateful eyes upon her rescuer and said, "Thank you," as calmly as though he had stooped to pick up her fallen glove.

Hattendorf was painfully burned about one hand, the other being protected by the coat sleeve.

GOLD STRIKE IN WELL.

Rock Found at Burlington Assays $65.50 Pet Ton.

Burlington.—Men who were drilling an artesian well for the Burlington ice plant some weeks ago struck a ledge or rock four feet thick which yielded what appeared to be gold flakes. A sample of the rock was sent to the assay office at Denver, Colo., and a report was received from the assayer showing a yield of $65.50 per ton in gold from the rock.

It has not been decided what steps will be taken concerning the development of the find. Ordinary gold bearing quartz runs from $4 to $16 to the ton, and the yield of the artesian well rock is considered phenomenal and worth development.

SHORT LINE GRADE DONE.

Extension to Mason City is Ready For The Steel.

Mason City.—Grading on the Short Line has been finished near this city, including the big cut which has kept that part of the road delayed for several months, near Shtffield. The road is now complete into this city save the track, which is now being laid as rapidly as possible, the forty cars recently received being enough, it is said, to complete the track laying. The gang of graders and twenty five teams transferred their camp to the Milwaukee road west of the city, where spurs are to be graded to the Farmers' Co-operative Brick & Tile company's plant.

Boy Drowns While Wading.

Ottumwa.—The police have been at work dragging the river near the Market street bridge searching for the body of George Eiler, aged 8 years, who is supposed to have drowned. The lad, who is a son of Henry Eiler, was wading in the river with some playmates. His companions left him about 6 o'clock, and that is the last that has been seen of him. When he did not return home during the night a search was instituted.

No Race Suicide There.

Fort Dodge.—The assessors' books for 1907, which have just been completed, show no race suicide in Webster county during the past year. There were 536 births and 130 deaths. Deer Creek township heads the list with twenty-eight births and no deaths. Outside of Fort Dodge the town of Badger leads with twenty-five births and four deaths. Fort Dodge shows 195 births and fifty deaths.

Man Murdered at Ute.

Marshalltown.—A man named Murphy of Fort Dodge, thought to be an umbrella mender, has been found murdered at Ute, Monona county. The coroner declared it a case of murder and had two tramps arrested. They were later released for lack of evidence.

FIVE DIE AT ROCKWWELL CITY.

Epidemic Following Church Banquet Claims Victims.

Rockwell City.—Memorial day, 1908, and was the saddest one Rockwell has seen in many a year, for aside from the recollections of the past that the day ordinarily recalls, the city is in mourning for the many recent deaths from the terrible typhoid fever epidemic, and is watching with breathless suspense, the outcome of several critical cases resulting from the disease.

The epidemic of typhoid, as will be recalled, was due to a banquet served by the men of the Methodist church on the evening of April 14. Sixty-three people sat down to that ill fated meal, and of the total number fifty-seven were stricken with typhoid fever. Five deaths have already occurred, and there are now four or five others who are lying at death's door.

The cases that are the most severe are those of Beaumont Stonebreaker, county auditor, and a man prominent in republican politics of Calhoun county; F. P. Huff, cashier of the Citizens bank; Joseph Barber and Frank Delano. Mr. Delano is a well to do farmer, living two miles east of town.

ALMOST KILLS WIFE.

Escapes From Hospital and Commits Awful Crime.

Mount Pleasant.—Prompted by his insane belief that if he could but kill his wife he could get his release from the hospital for the insane in which he was a prisoner, J. D. Trowbridge, a Mount Pleasant man, made his escape from the institution, went to his home and there beat her almost to death. He was recaptured soon afterward, but on the way back to the hospital in a wagon he fell over dead.

Mrs. Trowbridge's condition is very serious and her recovery considered doubtful. Her husband struck her many times over the head with a heavy club, cutting a dozen gashes, and injuring the skull.

Trowbridge had been an inmate of the hospital for some time. He was considered dangerous and was guarded but he eluded the keepers and got away from the grounds before his absence was discovered. A search was instituted at once and when the man was found his bloody work was done. The man's death as due to a hemorrhage of the brain.

Disagree in "Sponge Case".

Davenport.—For over twenty-six hours the jury that tried Davenport's celebrated "sponge case" for a second time wrangled over its verdict, and then reported a disagreement. Chas. Cruys, the one obdurate juryman, split the jury on the question whether Mrs. Arp was entitled to damages, and the jury never got to the question of the amount at all. Mrs. Arp sued Dr. A. Hageboeck, Davenport's wealthiest surgeon, for $50,000 for causing her husband's death by leaving a sponge in his body after performing an operation.

Cyclone Hits McCausland.

Clinton.—Another of the cyclones which have been weekly occurrences in this section this spring, passed over Clinton traveling so high in the air that no damage was done in this city. The town of McCausland in Scott county was hit by a twister, however, and barns, sheds and windmills on the Alfred Lowry farm, and on neighboring tracts of land, were razed to the ground by the fury of the storm. The Lowry farm is owned by Charles Howe of DeWitt.

Iowa Woman Kills Herself.

Glenwood.—Mrs. John Allbee, aged 34 years, killed herself with a shotgun. Mrs. Allbee was the wife of a farmer living a few miles north of here. She arose from bed before other members of the household were astir and without saying a word to anyone picked up the shotgun and, pointing the weapon at her head, pulled the trigger. Death was instantaneous. Her friends are unable to assign a reason for the tragedy.

Men Killed by Lightning.

New Hampton.—During a severe electrical storm here, Pat Brannon, residing a few miles west of town, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Brannon was driving along a fence when something broke on his harness. In getting out to fix it, he touched the fence, receiving the shock from the wires. He is survived by his wife and six brothers, but he had no children.

DEFEAT FILIBUSTER

LA FOLLETTE EFFORT BEATEN BY A TRICK.

CURRENCY BILL BECOMES LAW

Session of Congress Ends with Sensational Filibuster against the Bill.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Just ten minutes, officially, before the hands of the big round clock in the chambers of the two houses of congress pointed to the hour of midnight, the first session of the Sixtieth congress came to a close. In the house the closing hours were characterized by singing of songs by republicans in honor of Cannon and by democrats in the interest of William J. Bryan. The excitement was great at times, but finally subdued and the session closed with good-fellowship among the members.

The last days of the senate will be memorable on account of the filibuster of Messrs. La Follette, Stone and Gore against the emergency currency bill, by the remarkable interpretations of the rules which go far to establish a cloture in a body noteworthy for the freedom of debate and by the final passage of the currency bill. President Roosevelt and several of his cabinet remained at the capitol during the evening.

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday the senate adopted the report of the conferees of the two houses of congress on the Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency bill by the decisive vote of 43 to 22, and thus was taken the last congressional step necessary toward the enactment of emergency currency legislation, the legislation toward which congress has directed its principal effort since it convened last December. The result came unexpectedly soon, but not until the senate had been well worn out by a filibuster which while not largely supported, made up in intensity what it lacked in numbers. The obstructive tactics were begun by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, when the report was taken up by the senate on Friday and being prosecuted by him all that night, was continued yesterday by Senator Stone, democrat, of Missouri and Senator Gore, democrat of Oklahoma. Mr. La Follette broke the record as a long distance speaker; Mr. Stone held the floor for six hours and a half almost without interruption, and Mr. Gore spoke for something more than two hours.

The end of the filibuster came with a suddenness that was almost startling. When Senator Gore concluded, after having spoken for two hours it was the opinion among those who were not in the confidence of the leaders that the end of the fight was still a long way off, and even the leaders were not certain that it was not. It was generally understood that Senator Stone would attempt to resume his speech and that Senator La Follette also would make a determined fight to regain the floor.

As Senator Gore resumed his seat, Vice President Fairbanks promptly stated that the question was the adoption of the conference report and that under the orders of the senate, previously adopted, a yea and nay vote would be taken. This announcement was made by the vice president in a matter-of-fact way, but it meant the final touch to the most important legislation of the session. While the vice president was still speaking, Senator Heyburn of Idaho was on his feet demanding recognition, but the clerk had commenced the roll call before the vice president recognized him and the point of order was made by Senator Gallinger that the call could not be interrupted. This nettled the Idaho senator, who demanded that he be given a hearing.

Despite the protests of Heyburn, LaFollett and others the vice president sustained the point of order that the roll call, having begun, could not be interrupted, and the battle of the filibusters was lost. The conference report was adopted.

BURKETT ON FILIBUSTER.

Interpretation of Rules Causes Much Wonderment.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—To those who gave close attention to the progress of events in the senate during the filibuster which marked the closing days of the recent session, the change in the interpretations of the senate rules was considered of far greater import than the filibuster itself.

"First—The vice president announced that it was within the province of the chair to count a quorum and that he would order a roll call if a quorum was actually present.

"Second—The senate, by vote upon a point of order submitted to it by the vice president, determined that the question of no quorum could not be raised until after intervening business if the previous roll call had disclosed a quorum present.

BAD ITCHING HUMOR.

Limbs Below the Knees Were Raw—Feet Swollen—Sleep Broken—Cured in 2 Days by Cuticura.

"Some two months ago I had a humor break out on my limbs below my knees. They came to look like raw beefsteak, all red, and no one knows how they itched and burned. They were so swollen that I could not get my shoes on for a week or more. I used five or six different remedies and got no help, only when applying them the burning was worse and the itching less. For two or three weeks the suffering was intense and during that time I did not sleep an hour at a time. Then one morning I tried a bit of Cuticura. From the moment it touched me the itching was gone and I have not felt a bit of it since. The swelling went down and in two days I had my shoes on and was about as usual. George B. Farley, 50 South State St., Concord, N. H., May 14, 1907."

Doubting It.

"Sir," said the imperial ruler of all the Russias, "do you realize what a gulf of inequality yawns between ordinary humanity and an autocrat?"

"Dear me!" answered the doumalte in mild surprise. "Is this gulf proposition a czarchasm?"

THE FIRST TASTE

arned to Drink Coffee When a Baby.

If parents realized the fact that cof- e contains a drug—caffeine—which especially harmful to children, they uld doubtless hesitate before giv- g the babies coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's ms and first began to nibble things the table, mother used to give me s of coffee. As my parents used ffee exclusively at meals I never w there was anything to drink but ffee and water.

"And so I contracted the coffee habit rly. I remember when quite young, e continual use of coffee so affected parents that they tried roasting eat and barley, then ground it in the ffee-mill, as a substitute for coffee.

"But it did not taste right and they nt back to coffee again. That was g before Postum was ever heard of. ontinued to use coffee until I was 27, d when I got into office work, I be- n to have nervous spells. Especially er breakfast I was so nervous I uld scarcely attend to my corre- ondence.

"At night, after having coffee for pper, I could hardly sleep, and on ing in the morning would feel weak d nervous.

"A friend persuaded me to try Post- . My wife and I did not like it first, but later when boiled good d strong it was fine. Now we uld not give up Postum for the st coffee we ever tasted.

"I can now get good sleep, am free m nervousness and headaches. I ommend Postum to all coffee drink- s.

CUSHIONS FOR PINS

HANDY ARTICLES IN USE SOME TIME AGO.

Then the Necessity for Economy Made Them of Value, To-day the Saving of Time Is More to Be Considered.

Many a middle aged woman remembers the handy pin cushion that hung by the window in her grandmother's kitchen and another that stood on the sitting-room table all bristling with steel heads and eyes. The first cushion was likely to be heart shaped and covered with red flannel, and the other made over a glass pedestal or a brick. The brick pin cushion, which betrayed its foundation only in its shape, was very useful for holding the end of a long seam such as were then sewed by hand, and along its sides were rows of blunts and sharps and favorite darning needles, for in those days, before one could buy needles and pins for a penny a paper on bargain days, a needle was used a long time before accident happened to it.

Once in a year or two the brick was uncovered and the stuffed top taken apart carefully to recover the various valuable needles that had slipped out of sight. I thought of all this when my friend showed me what she called "a Mary Wilkins cushion," because, as she said, all the old ladies that she remembered in her old New England home used to keep one like it standing in a corner of the window sill. These cushions were either round like an apple or pointed like a strawberry or a pineapple, and each was made over what was once the base or stem of a glass goblet. The covering was generally a piece from somebody's dress, and had a story of its own, while round the base was a quilting of silk snipped in points along the edge or else it was a scrap of narrow fringe so much used in those days for dress trimming. The housewife bore the breakage of a glass with greater fortitude when she thought of the possibilities of the wreckage for pin cushion material; the lower part of a broken glass was often a welcome gift from friend to friend. Even now it is probable that there are stored on upper shelves in some old houses such fragments that were intended by thrifty matrons for making the cushions which had the homely beauty that belongs to things which are frankly useful. Modern pin trays and much bedecked creations that are kept up stairs on dressing tables, but which you must not stick a pin into, will never supplant them in convenience.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Washing Embroidered Linens.

Embroidered linens should never be put in with the regular wash, and should never be entrusted to a laundress. They should be washed in a china or earthen bowl to avoid the possibility of any rust. They should be washed in warm water and the soiled portions rubbed with pure white soap, then rubbed between the hands a little, as heavy rubbing ruffs up the silk. Rinse in clean water and dry by putting in a Turkish towel and wringing and twisting until the moisture is almost all absorbed. Now lay the piece face down on a clean linen cloth, over a thick pad, spread a thin white cloth over the embroidered article and iron quickly and lightly with a fairly hot iron. Be careful not to press too heavily on the embroidered portion, as this is apt to make steam form and will take the life and luster from the silk.

Keep Vegetables Green.

Not every one knows that all vegetables grown under the ground—potatoes, turnips, carrots and onions—should be put to cook in cold water, while those grown on top of the ground should have boiling water poured over them, especially green things such as peas, beans, spinach and corn. If left uncovered they retain their fresh, green look.

An Easy Strawberry Ice.

Add a pound of granulated sugar and the juice of two lemons to a quart of ripe berries; mash and set aside an hour; strain through a fruit sieve, add a quart of cold water and freeze. For a variety use the beaten whites of two eggs, lightly beaten, into the mixture just before freezing. The essential difference between this ice and frozen strawberries lies in not straining; prepare exactly the same and freeze wthout passing through a sieve.

Reassured.

European Father (consolingly to his daughter Ernestine)—Do not weep, me child. You will not have to marry the dissolute count. Save your tears for the poor American heiress who gets him.

Dessert for Two.

Peel, core, and slice thin one large, sweet apple. Peel carefully and slice one seedless orange. Put all in deep dish with one-half cup sugar and place in ice box. Should be prepared one hour before serving.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

Rev. J. F. Hartke, Presiding Elder of the South Dakota district, will conduct our third quarterly meeting Saturday and Sunday. The preparatory service will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. followed by the quarterly conference. Sunday there will be three services.

Since the writer and his family have all arrangements made to go on a trip through Europe, they have been showered with invitations for "dinners" and "suppers." This week they are the subject of "surprises" and "farewells." On Monday evening the choir gave ye scribe a "surprise" at the home of John Gruetzmacher and a surprise it was from start to finish. The guests, the arrangements, the procedure, all were a conundrum to us. The supper which consisted of a two course, the toasts, the male puartetts, lady quartett solo, and instrumental pieces heightened it to an elaborate affair. Our vocabulary is too limited to express our greatfulness in words for all the good-will work and expense those went to who got it up. In behalf of the members of the choir, E. H. Bettin presented us with a fine watch fob. We regret very much that we did not learn till late that it was a "surprise" on us, but instead had been laboring under the impression that it all was for the other fellow. On Wednesday evening the "Standard Bearers" gave us a "Farewell" at the home of Henry Griewe. Besides every member being present, a few others had been invited. No definite program was carried out but it was one of those uncon strained, social, home like gatherings, which make one feel we are all akin. Ice-cream and cake were served, after which F. C. Griewe, in a few well chosen words, related the object of the evening. His words convinced us that we have more friends than we ever had dared to hope. On Friday afternoon the ladies of the missionary society got the best of Mrs. Wessel. While she was in the country they took possession of the house and as she stept in the house she was greeted by a score of smiling faces. It is neeless to say that they had a good time. We shall bear these kind treatments and greatful words words with us over the briny deep and and trust we may return in safety to show our appreciation more fully in the future.

SHOWING THE WEDDING GIFTS.

Charming Exhibitions Made at French Bridals.

In Paris most charming conceits are devised to enhance the effect of an exhibition of wedding gifts in the bride's home. Sometimes the furniture is removed from one or two rooms to give space to show cases, where is made a tasteful array of the most delicate parts of the trousseau, and numberless bivelots. The heavier articles are suspended from screens or round the walls from hanging ribbons, pictures, or even dados of crinkled papier velours in some subdued shade. One of the most telling arrangements is dispersal against the walls of small tables covered with mignonette-green silk, and on which are artistically displayed the bridal treasures, to each of which is attached with a pink ribbon the card of the giver. The contents of every table are partly veiled by vaporous tulle held up to the wall by some bracket lamp, high statuette, and draped at the sides with large choux in pink satin. The coloring depends evidently on the prevailing tones of the house decoration. Such a treatment is light, tasteful and not too expensive. A scheme which involves larger reception rooms and a greater ontlay of time and money consists of a triumphal arch in bamboo at the entrance to every door, often covered with climbers, whilst through the whole suite of rooms are distributed in profusion palm trees, jardinieres, tall vases and corbeilles full of flowers, giving the impression of a bower of flowers and foilage, in which are nestled the marvels of the bride's outfit and of her friends' generosity and taste.

EARLY RISERS
The famous little pills.

New Decorative Idea.

The hostes who wishes something different is asked to try using striped and fancy grasses, rushes and little wild foliage plants that grow in damp places and along streams. A table can be made very pretty with these, using no flowers. Try it.

WENDEL-TANNER.

MARRIED.—Wednesday afternoon June 10th, 1908 occurred the marriage of Miss Gertrude B. Wendel to Mr. Frank W. Tanner at the bride's home southwest of Klemme. Rev. Parks of Belmond officiating. Both parties are well and favorably known in this vicinity. The wedding was largely attended. The happy couple left the same evening for their wedding tour for St. Louis, Mo. where they will visitamong relatives. Miss Wendel was one of Hancock counties school marms and was well liked by her pupils. Mr. Tanner is an industrious young man and has of late been employed on L. W. Wendel's farm. When they return they will make their home on the old homestead. Their many friends and especially the Klemme Times wishes them much joy and happiness in their married life.

DEATH WAS ON HIS HEELS.

Jesse P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared consumption had me, and death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at J. L. Harr & Co's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

HE GOT WHAT HE NEEDED.

"Nine years ago it looked as if my time had come," says Mr. C. Farthing, of Mill Creek, Ind. Territory. "I was so run down that life hung on a very slender thread. It was then my druggist recommended Electric Bitters. I bought a bottle and I got what I needed—strength. I had one foot in the grave, but Electric Bitters put it back on the turf again, and I've been well ever since." Sold under guarantee at J. L. Harr & Co's drug store. 50c.

Klemme, Iowa, May 26, 1908.

Notice is hereby given that the sealed proposals for the construction of cement side walks and steps for Klemme school house in the town of Klemme, in the county of Hancock, state of Iowa, will be received by the undersigned at his office in Klemme until 8 o'clock p. m. June 26th, 1908, at which time contract will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

GUARANTEED BANK DEPOSITS.

A man who wants to be Governor of Iowa puts this plank in his platform. We believe in Guaranteed Bank Deposits. do not believe that either the Federal or State Government should guarantee deposits and make the strong, sound, conservative banks pay the losses of weak, unsound, speculative banks. We guarantee deposits in this bank by—

Stockholders Liabilities $25,000

Which means that we must lose $50,000 before you can lose a cent. We have been here among you for over fifteen years, often tried and never found wanting.

IOWA STATE NEWS

Events of Recent Occurrence Throughout the Commonwealth.

TORNADO WRECKS 200 HOMES.

Five Are Dead and Many Injured at Charles City.

Charles City.—A tornado struck Charles City at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, killed one man and four children, injured scores, wrecked 200 dwelling and barns, demolished a bridge across the river, and left a path of desolation. It is impossible to tell how many may be dead in the ruins. Search is made very difficult.

The path of the storm was about ten rods wide and ten miles long. The tornado started three miles southeast of the town, tearing down farm houses and barns and killing many head of stock. It struck the southwest part of Charles City, plowing a path through to the northeast side and spent itself a few miles from town.

Many had warnings of the approaching tornado and about 3,000 persons sought safety in cyclone cellars. No business buildings were destroyed, though the tornado just missed the buildings of the Charles City college.

The storm did much damage to crops. At the present time it is imposible to estimate the loss on city homes, but it is thought it will easily reach $100,000.

On the outskirts of the city a number of farmhouses were wrecked and the water lifted from the Cedar river was precipitated upon the fields, in some cases completely washing away the newly planted corn.

Storm Hits Mount Vernon.

Mt. Vernon.—A tornado passed about a mile south of Mount Vernon at 2:30 o'clock Sunday. The electric light and power house and city pumping station were completely demolished. A number of barns were destroyed and several houses partially wrecked. The storm passed on to the northeast. So far as has been learned no persons were injured.

JURY SAYS GUILTY.

Brutal Negro Assailant of Woman to be Punished.

Des Moines.—It took the jury in criminal court but one ballot to convict Frank Brown of attempted criminal assault upon Mrs. Mary Mann. The jury retired at 5:15 o'clock, and at 5:21 o'clock the foreman handed the verdict of guilty to the judge.

The crime of which Brown has been convicted is punishable by sentence of twenty years in the penitentiary, and it is practically certain that Judge McHenry will give him the limit.

Justice was dealt out swiftly and surely in the case of Frank Brown. One day and a half sufficed for the introduction of the testimony, the arguments of the counsel were brief, occupying but two hours and a half, and then the jury made a record and convicted the defendant in the short space of seven minutes, taking but one ballot.

The verdict of guilty was not at all surprising to those who have followed the course of the trial closely. Guilt was fastened upon Brown's shoulders by the state with a complete string of circumstance and the positive identification of Mrs. Mann. The state's witnesses showed beyond dispute the every movement of Brown from 10 o'clock until his arrest.

The efforts of the defense to prove an alibi failed completely.

Villisca Man Killed by Cars.

Creston.—William Dunn of Villisca met death early Sunday mornng at that place under the wheels of fast freight No. 1 as he was returning to his home after spending Memorial day here. In alighting he fell beneath the trucks in such a manner that one leg was severed from his body at the hip and he sustained other serious injuries.

Tama Jim's Daughter Sings.

Paris.—Flora Wilson, daughter of James Wilson, United States secretary of agriculture, a pupil of Jean de Reszke, had a successful debut at a concert in the Gaveau hall on the 5th. The secretary of the legation and other prominent members of the American colony were present. Miss Wilson possesses a voice of pleasing quality, and she was repeatedly encored.

Killed in Mine.

Dubuque.—John Kerwin, aged 50, is dead and J. J. Smith cannot recover as the result of an accident in the Avenue Top mine shaft. Both men were astride a big ore bucket waiting to be lowered, when the brake gave way, precipitating them 185 feet to the bottom of the shaft.

WOODMEN BANKER SUES.

Notable Fight for Chariton Bank Funds is Opened.

Chariton.—Head Banker C. H. McNider of Mason City of the Modern Woodmen of America, has filed a claim of $350,000 against the F. R. Crocker estate, Guilford Crocker, administer, on the ground of the alleged deposit that the Woodmen head banker had in the defunct First National bank here. The notice states that the head banker designated the First National bank of Chariton as one of the depositories for the Woodmen funds, and his action was approved by the board of directors of the Woodmen. At different dates, after August 1, 1905, he deposited four sums in the bank, amounting to $400,000. In September, 1906, $50,000 was transferred to the National bank of Mason City, leaving $35,000 in the bank here. The interest was kept paid on this to the first of October, 1907, when the bank failed.

A copy of the famous Woodmen bond, which it is almost certain was a forgery, is attached to the claim. This bond is the security Head Banker McNider had against loss of money in the bank and is for $400,000. The names of the following persons are signed to the instrument: F. R. Crocker, A. L. Mallory, J. M. Thayer, G. J. Stewart, E S. Baker, G. W. Larimer, John V. Bonnett, L. Rex Bonnett, George Bonnett, J. S. Miller.

This bond was sent by Mr. Crocker on July 25, 1905, and it is now practically proved that all the names on it except Mr. Crocker's were forged by him. All the men whose names appear as signatures state positively that they never signed such a bond. However, some of them did sign a smaller one, but were afterward released from it, and their names were erased by Crocker in their presence. This smaller bond, with the names erased, was left by Mr. Crocker, together with other proof that the $400,000 bond was forged, and one of the men whose name appeared on the bond now has it in his possession.

DR. FELLOWS DIES.

Well Known Pioneer Educator and Preacher Expires.

Iowa City.—Rev. Dr. S. N. Fellows probably the best known Methodist minister in the state of Iowa, and a man almost equally well known as an educator and scholar, died at his home in Iowa City on the 3rd, after a very brief illness. He was 78 years of age.

The Rev. Mr. Fellows has served the people of the state of Iowa for many years. He was a member of the instructional staff of the University of Iowa for twenty years, and during that time was one of the most noted educators of the state. He has spent many years of his life as a minister of the gospel in the Methodist church, and has been a member of every kind of conference of the Methodist church. He was president of the Anti-Saloon League of Iowa at one time and was one of the most influential men in the securing of the Indian school at Toledo, Iowa. He has also been president of the state teachers' association, besides filling many other places of honor.

In the spring of 1856 Rev. and Mrs. Fellows were married at Mount Vernon, Iowa, at Cornell college. Shortly afterwards Dr. Fellows entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church, his first mission being at Marshalltown, Iowa, over which he presided until called to the chair of pedagogy of the State University of Iowa.

Rev. and Mrs. Fellows celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in March, 1906, and at that time fitting congratulations were showered upon the couple.

For the past few months the Rev. Mr. Fellows has not been well, but until recently has preached and officiated at funerals and only last week performed a wedding ceremony. He was about his home until Saturday, when he was taken ill and confined. The Rev. Mr. Fellows had just celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday.

New Hampton Woman Is Hurt.

Waterloo.—Miss Mary Norton of New Hampton sustained injuries which rendered her unconscious for several hours. While driving near her home the horse took fright and in strking a stone the buggy was overturned, throwing Miss Norton out. Her head struck on the edge of a gas pipe and caused the injury.

ALLISON IS VICTOR

HAS A MAJORITY OF OVER TEN THOUSAND.

CARROLL HAS BIG MAJORITY

Hull and Prouty Ran So Close that a Contest Is Now Assured.

Dubuque.—The latest returns at Allison headquarters indicate the senator's majority to be 12,100. It is claimed that the reports of a 10,000 majority sent out from Des Moines are not correct.

Des Moines.—According to semi-official returns gathered by The Register and Leader from county auditors of the state, Senator Allison's majority over Cummins is 10,628. This is somewhat at variance with the estimates made previously, but only slightly so. Although The Register and Leader figures keep the majority between 10,000 and 11,000, Allison managers at Dubuque claim more than 12,000.

The Carroll majority is still increasing and practically complete figures give it as 23,680.

Curious things are disclosed by an examination of the returns of the primary election.

For instance, it is apparent that the Tenth and Eleventh districts were a tremendous disappointment to the Cummins faction. The Tenth gave less than 4,500 majority, and the Eleventh less than 3,000. They had been counted at about 10,000 and 6,000 respectively.

The Second district surprised the Cummins people. It gave nearly 3,500 against the governor. Only about 1,000 of this was furnished by the county of Scott.

That the Third would go nearly 3,700 against the governor was not anticipated.

The Sixth district furnished the only real comfort for the progressive faction. It went by less than 2,800 against Cummins. It had been claimed by radical standpatters to be ready to give Allison 5,000 majority, and some of them thought it might give 6,000.

The figures on the contest for the gubernatorial nomination give Garst 58,187, Carroll 81,867 and Hamilton

12,029, indicating a plurality of 23,680 for Carroll.

For lieutenant governor Clarke has 59,983 as against 33,835 for Murphy and a much smaller vote for Wilson.

For railroad commissioner Ketchum leads with 32,579 votes, while Cockfield has 28,403 and Keys 27,542.

For auditor Bleakley has a good majority over Hopkins, and John F. Riggs is nominated for state superintendent.

In the congressional contest, results were as follows:

First—C. C. Kennedy, R.; George S. Tracy, D.

Second—A. F. Dawson, R.; Mark Walsh, D.

Third—Charles E. Pickett, R.; Charles Elliott, D.

Fourth—G. N. Haugen, R.; M. E. Geiser, D.

Fifth—James W. Good, R.; S. K. Tracy, D.

Sixth—N. E. Kendall. R.; D. W. Hamilton, D.

Seventh—Republican in doubt; C. O. Holly, D.

Eighth—W. P. Hepburn, R.; W. D. Jamieson, D.

Ninth—W. I. Smith, R.; R. C. Spencer, D.

Tenth—Frank P. Woods, R.; Democrat in doubt.

Eleventh—E. H. Hubbard, R.

Woods' majority over Conner in the Tenth is about 1,000; Good's majority over Trewin in the Fifth over two thousand; Kendall's majority over Rominger in the Sixth, about 2,000; Hepburn's majority over Smith in the Eighth, about 4,000; and Hubbard's majority over Boies in the Eleventh about 2,000.

Among the democrats interested in Walsh's victory over Dalzell in the Second and Jamieson's demand in the Second and Jamieson's victory over McGinnis in the Eighth.

In the Seventh district there is going to be a contest. The returns from county auditors indicate that Hull has carried the district by 200 votes, but the Prouty managers claim that errors which have been discovered give their candidate the nomination by 27 votes.

Complete returns show that Martin Geiser of New Hampton won the democratic nomination for congress in the Fourth district by a majority of 108 over A. J. Andres of Oelwein.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Some Interesting Results of the Primary.

Des Moines.—Some extremely interesting results in the primary with respect to the nomination of republican candidates for the legislature were noted when the returns on legislature came in.

For instance, John J. Jackson of Woodbury county was defeated for renomination for senator by Ross Hunter. Mr. Hunter became a candidate when Mr. Jackson announced that he would not abide by the result of the primary election unless it conformed to the result in his own county. Mr. Hunter announced himself a candidate on the platform of abiding by the state primary. He defeated Senator Jackson, who had asked for a second term, by a vote of 2,684 to 1,768, although Senator Allison carried the county by about 900 majority.

At the same time G. E. Ward defeated W. W. McElrath, on the same issue, by a vote of 2,599 to 1,425.

W. L. Harding was re-elected, having no opposition, and will be the standpat candidate for speaker.

In Montgomery county Charles DeWitt was nominated for the house over J. E. Taylor. Senator Jackson carried the county by 121 majority but Mr. DeWitt, who was the progressive candidate, won by 24.

In Taylor county M. L. Burt defeated W. D. Blackmore for representative by a majority of 11, although Senator Allison carried the county by about 500.

Two sons of Gov. William Larrabee will sit in the Thirty-third general assembly.

Frederick Larrabee of Fort Dodge was nominated by the republicans for senator by a large majority. He had 1,158 majority in Wester county although Governor Cummins carried it by only 200.

William Larrabee, Jr., was nominated for representative by the republicans in Fayette county.

George W. Tilton defeated A. L. Raney for the house in Iowa county. It was a three-sided fight. Raney got 345 votes, Robert Shendenhelm received 271 and Tilton had 377. The 248 is 35 per cent of the total vote. Tilton is nominated.

The closest shave that any of the candidates had with respect to the 35 per cent clause was in Hancock county, where A. C. Ripley was nominated for the house with 559 votes in a total of 510. Thirty-five per cent of the total vote 510 was 528.

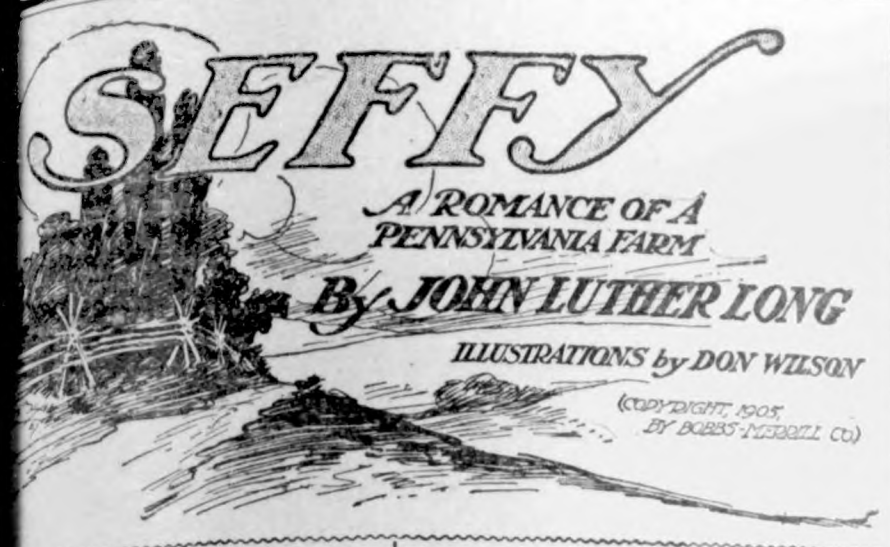
Dave Brant was nominated by the republicans in the Iowa-Johnson district for the senate. J. A. Wilson was nominated by the democrats to run against him. Brant lives in Johnson county and White in Iowa county.

J. U. Sammis was nominated for senator in the Cherokee-Ida-Plymouth district by a narrow margin, having but sixty-four majority in a vote of 4,000. His nomination has been conceded. G. F. Coburn was the standpat candidate.

FLEET IS DESTROYED.

Forty Vessels and 250 Lives Lost in Typhoon.

Victoria, B. C., June 5.—The Canadian-Australian liner Manuka has arrived here bringing news of the destruction of the pearling fleet in a typhoon off West Australia, involving the loss of forty luggers and 250 lives, twenty being whites. The disaster to the fleet of pearling luggers occurred near Thursday island, a typhoon striking the fleet just as it was starting for the pearling grounds, scattering the vessels, completely wrecking some and driving others ashore. About twenty Australian pearlers were lost. Others were Malayans, Japanese and Kanakas. Survivors reported harrowing experiences, some being picked up in the last stages of exhaustion after having cut away their masts and clinging to the hulks while sharks followed, waiting for the exhausted men to drop from the wreckage. Many were rescued by the steamer Paramatta sent from Broome as a relief steamer. The bodies of some of the victims were eaten by sharks and the beach near Broome presented a terrible sight, covered with wreckage and bodies.



SYNOPSIS.

A crowning desire in the life of old Baumgartner, a Pennsylvania German, is to obtain possession of the beautiful farm which lies just between Baumgartner's property and the railroad station. The property in question was in charge of Sarah Pressel, very pretty and athletic young girl, and belonged to her. But old Baumgartner had set for it so many years and endeavored to purchase it from Sarah's father so many times that the property became known as "Baumgartner's farm." At the vicinage gatherings on the porch of the store old Baumgartner had often declared that the property would some day be his. At length Baumgartner began to realize that his only hope of getting the property would be through the marriage of his son Sephenijah to Sarah Pressel. In a mock auction "Seffy," Sephenijah P. Baumgartner, Jr., is sold, nearly known, is raffled off by his father to Sarah for $1. "Seffy" is a meek, mild-mannered youth, who is never first in anything nor for anything. He is fair haired, and is always led by his father. Of a somewhat angelic disposition is he—a gentle and kind youth who seems not to understand anything about strife and competition. Thus he appears utterly incapacitated to win in any contest of love or war. Sarah Pressel is quite the opposite of Seffy. Her hair is nearly red. She is full of life and animation and can jump and run like a wild colt and she is grace personified itself. Her one fault is a very violent temper. Baumgartner gives Seffy many lessons in courtship.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

At last it was evident that Seffy had understood, and his father broke off with that discordant whistle once in vogue

"Any gal that ken jump a six-rail fence—and wissout no running start—kin have and let her git apast you!"

"Well, I'm going to set up with her to-night," said Seffy again, with a huge effort. And the tune his father whistled as he opened the door for him sounded something like "I want to be an angel."

"Don't not to buy no pasture-land!" cautioned Seffy.

"Ach, no, of course not!" agreed the crafty old father. "That's chust one of my durn jokes. But I expect I'll have the fence down to-morrow! Say, you chust marry the gal. I'll take down the fence!"

III.

But Sally Was the Angel.

It took Seffy a long time to array himself as he had threatened. And when it was all done you wouldn't have known him—you wouldn't have wanted to know him. For his fine yellow hair was changed to an ugly brown by the patent hair-oil with which he had dressed it—and you would not have liked its fragrance, I think. Bergamot, I think it was. His young throat was garroted within a starched standing collar, his feet were pinched in creaking boots, his hands close-gauntleted in buckskin gloves, and he altogether incomparably uncomfortable, and triumphant. His father dropped his watch and picked it up.

Seffy stood at gaze for a moment.

"By thunder, Sef! You as beautiful as the sun, moon and stars—and as handy as seferal apothecary shops. Here, take the watch and git along—I'll see you haf some time wiss you—now git along! You late a'ready. Goshens! I was behind time when you was born! Yas, your mammy wass disappointed in you right at first. You wass hours late! But now you reformed I t'ink God! I always knowed it wass going to be for it, but I didn't know it wass going as nice as Sally."

Seffy issued forth to his first conquest—lighted as far as the front gate by the fat lamp held in his father's hand.

"Sef—Sef—Seffy, shall I set up for you—to tell you git home?" he called into the dark.

"No!" shouted Seffy.

"Aha—aha—aha! That sounds well! Don't you forgit when you bose feel—comfortable—aha—ha-ha! Cheer by on one cheer aha—ha-ha. And when I bose take the fence down to-morrow. Mebby all three!"

IV.

Suppose She Had Greased Her Hair?

Seffy sauntered confidently up The Street of Delight upon which Sally's home stood. When within sight of it he polished his hat on his sleeve, set his butterfly necktie straight, felt that the apochryphal diamond was safe, and marched up to the house—only to arrive a little later than a buggy from which Sam Pritz, he was certain, had alighted Sally. If it had not been for the thought of his father, which opportunely came, Seffy would have gone straight home—so did his heart fail him.

And then instantly there was another and better reason for staying. Sally had seen him. As he wavered—which she seemed to know—she came hurrying down upon him. It was too late then, even if he had had the courage to retreat from such dear danger. She put her arm within his, and, leaning bewitchingly upon it, led him into the house, chattering fervidly—the most willing of captives to the most beguiling of captors. For Sally had put on all her witcheries for this night of nights.

Once within she added the charm of the accomplished amateur hostess—doing fascinating things which needed no doing—hovering about Seffy like the very spirit of a home—so that he had the intoxicating sense of difficulty in keeping from being entangled in her fluttering arms and garments. For his feet, unused to Elysium, would catch themselves in her whirling skirts—as if they knew better than he their ultimate destiny. All this was a splendid revelation to Seffy.

So, when Sally finally took the tall hat and went to deposit it in the dark parlor, Seffy followed her, for no better reason than the things in the basin have for following the magnet. And, understanding this, Sally looked over her shoulder at him. And then, snuffing her conquest at a distance, she laughed and mercifully stopped for him to catch up, that she might presently surrender. She got his hand—to lead him. Only that!

"You care a lot for—your hat, don't you, Sef—Seffy? And you want to—to—see"—he couldn't see a thing—"that I—that I—put it at a safe—place?"

Still by the hand further into the darkness!

And Seffy honestly tried to prevaricate for her a "Yes." But he wasn't thinking of the treasured hat at all, only the hand—that it was deliciously warm and soft and electrical. Suddenly she stopped very close to him. Only he was so dull! He did not know! Heavens! when a girl waits for a youth to come close to her in the dark—what else can she mean? But Seffy actually did not know.

"Sam's over there! I—I—wish—he—wasn't!"

To whisper it she had to put one hand on his shoulder. How else could she whisper it? And she laughed a low bubbling laugh—half-confession—half-defiance—all invitation!

Seffy stooped to whisper back to her. Sally waited.

"I know!"

Only that!—Sally was disappointed. For it was the custom in that day and vicinage and in such circumstances to kiss a girl without fail. And could a girl do more than this by way of invitation? You must have perceived that Sally was learned in these matters. And you may be sure she did not forget Seffy's bashfulness and his inexperience. But surely any one would understand that much—in the dark! It argues heavily for the depth of Sally's affection for Seffy that she kept her temper, for the losing of which she was almost as famous as her father had been for losing his, and only sighed desperately. Any other girl would have left hope—and Seffy—behind. At that moment, happily, Sam was heard to move. She put her hand on Seffy's mouth as if some danger were there. And Seffy, by a sort of instinct, it must have been, kissed it!

"Oh!——"

Both of Sally's hands went up in real surprise—and Seffy caught and kissed them both!

"Oh!—oh!—oh!"

She had to stuff her gay little handkerchief into her mouth to keep the joy within. After all, could this Seffy be playing 'possum? Was he deep? I don't know, any more than Sally, how it all happened—except that perhaps Seffy discovered himself suddenly brave in the darkness, and Sally quite defenseless—but presently her head was on his shoulder, and his arm was around her, in quite the way his father had suggested and Sally had expected. And neither of them thought of him or a word he had said—concerning lands, tenements and hereditaments. Sally's hand crept up insidiously about Seffy's neck. But then it was fearfully withdrawn.

"Please don't grease your hair hereafter," said Sally. But she kissed it!

"Hereafter! Hereafter!" Seffy's heart pounded.

"Suppose I'd grease my hair!" said Sally speciously.

The horror conjured up was factitious. Remember where her head was resting. But an alien element was now raised between them. Seffy moved away. Maids should not cavil even at oiled hair—so early in their courtship! More fascination was needed—perhaps only a soft cooing word.

"You—you wouldn't like that—would you?"—still meekly.

"No!" Seffy answered, puzzled. "My Sunday coat would git greased!"

"My sleeve did!"

She inspected a soiled sleeve—in the ray from the hall—which had no spot on it!

"I don't care for the sleeve. It'll wash out. But Sam—he sees every——"

She laughed and was about to plunge recklessly back into his arms. But her hair was beautiful! And she had made it more so for him. He must see it! She plunged further into the ray from the hall lamp instead and flung it forward about her face. It clung and clustered there like an aureole. Seffy, in his brief life, he thought, had seen nothing more divine. She looked saucily up at him out of the tops of her eyes. His adoration made her very happy.

"There! ain't that nicer than yourn?" She buried her fingers in the splendid mass, and pushed it into further disorder until it lay close—shining about her face.

"Oh, Sally," said Seffy, approaching her as if she were some goddess, "wear it that way always!"

The alien thing was gone! They were in rapport once more!

"They'd have me in an asylum in no time. But——"

Somehow, Seffy's arms opened to invite her back and she came with a low reckless laugh. The wild sheaf of her hair lodged again close under his chin. He recklessly thrust his face into it. Its perfume in his nostrils and its movement against his skin were ineffable. He kissed it. Again it was the strange fashion of the cavalier—in those kisses! Where did he learn it?

"Sally—Sally, you are an angel!" said Seffy.

And this one little word which came to dull Seffy so happily out of his favorite song made the coquette very serious.

"Not an angel, Seffy, Sef—Seffy," she said with her head a little down. "I don't think you would like me to be such. I'm not! Angels never laugh, you know—nor love. And I want to do a lot of both. But—but—Seffy, I'd like to be something very nice—to you. What is the nicest thing a girl can be to you?"

"A sister!" ventured Seffy, who had never had one.

Sally shivered, then laughed. But she took herself away from Seffy.

The Pressel temper flamed a moment, and certain words began to form in her mind like "Fool!" and "Go!" and "Damn!" For, I think I haven't told you that Sally sometimes swore—in extreme circumstances. Her father had done so.

She spoke with that trifle of hard brutality which came out now and then.

"You know what they say at the store—that I flirt and am not nice in other ways, and they're right. But I do want to be nice to you, though not a sister—quite. Ugh! And, you know, one thing they say is true—my temper. Look out for that! You must always take time to forgive me and let me ask to be forgiven."

Now, I beg to ask you whether an amende was ever more delicious—considering that much of what she said to and for Seffy was meant to and for herself alone? Indeed, before she got through with it, it had affected her quite as if Seffy had pleaded it, and her voice sank to its pretty mezzo, then quivered a bit, and she understood that was answering herself:

"Seffy, I am awfully sorry!"

"For what, Sally?" asked Seffy.

Seffy, dull Seffy, really did not know for what. But there is something which God gives the dull, as well as the sprightly witted, that outleaps words to comfort sorrow. And this Seffy had abundantly. It first expressed itself in the strong young arms which again closed in utter silence upon the sorrowing one.

Presently (perhaps you have not forgotten how it is?) in the same silence, Seffy's lips found hers—not as the victor pounces upon the spoil of his conquest—but slowly, uncertainly, unconfidently—as if the lips were a saint's relics; and Sally waited, not as she had waited before, but in the knowledge that her hour had come, and that this kiss—the first this youth had given to woman since his mother's died in his infancy—must not be received as others had been, but as sacredly as it came; and when it finally fell the lips of the coquette quivered as they received it, and then suddenly sobbed, and did not know why—

Do you?

CALF ENTERED AN OBJECTION.

Why One Milking Machine Was Never Put on the Market.

Inventive genius seldom achieves success at the first attempt. A half-grown boy in Pennsylvania, who had devoted his leisure hours for many months to the making of a milking machine of his own devising, at last completed it to his satisfaction and resolved to make a trial of it. Without saying a word to anyone he carried his machine down from the attic, where he had wrought patiently day after day to bring it to perfection, and took it out to the barnyard, where old Cherry, the family cow, stood placidly chewing her cud with her big, lusty calf playing round her. A few minutes later his mother saw him trying to re-enter the house unseen. He was covered with dirt from head to foot and in a state of demoralization generally. In his hand he was carrying something that looked like the wreck of a toy battleship. "For mercy's sake, Jud," she exclaimed, "what have you been doing?" "I've been trying my milking machine on the cow," he said. "Your milking machine! Good land! Did the cow do all that to you?" "No," answered Jud. "Old Cherry would have stood for it all right. It was the calf that—er—kind o' seemed to object to the machine."—Youth's Companion.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The life of a woman can be divided into three epochs: in the first she dreams of love, in the second she experiences it, in the third she regrets it.—Saint-Prosper.

This woman says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life. Read her letter.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words. For years I suffered with the worst forms of female complaints, continually doctoring and spending lots of money for medicine without help. I wrote you for advice, followed it as directed, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored me to perfect health. Had it not been for you I should have been in my grave to-day. I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The Belmond ball team went to Klemme last Saturday for the initial game of the season. We did not attend but judging from the score 8 to 1 and the reports we have received they made monkeys of the Klemme lads.—Iowa Valley Press.

The above we clip from the Iowa Valley Press which states that the Belmond team had a walk-away and made monkeys out of our nine. The pencil pusher of this paper happened to be an eye witness and dare say that it was no ones game up to the last of the 7th inning, score being 2 to 1 in favor of Belmond. Considering the bad weather our team did not receive the practice that they should of had. Our boys put up a very good game considering, it being their first game of the season. Our twirler did exceptionally good work, better than was expected. In speaking of Belmond's team, they should have put up a better game as their battery were hired players being Sweeley and Johnson who are generally there with the goods. We don't see where Belmond has anything to crow about.

Stomach troubles are very common in the summer time, and you should not only be very careful about what you eat just now, but more than this, you should be careful not to allow your stomach to become disordered, and when the stomach goes wrong take Kodol. Mr. Harr will soon move to Nora Springs where he recently purchased a drug store. We wish him success, altho' we regret to see him leave us. The old firm wishes to express thanks for past patronage while the new firm solicits a share of your patronage.

Nature has provided the stomach with certain natural fluids known as the digestive juices, and it is through these juices that the food we eat is acted upon in such a way as to produce the rich, red blood that flows through the veins of our body and thereby makes us strong, healthy and robust, and it is the weakening of these digestive juices that destroys health. It is our fault if we destroy our own health, and yet it is so easy for any one to put the stomach out of order. When you need to take something take it promptly, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take, it is reliable and is guaranteed to give relief. It is sold by J. L. Harr & Co., Klemme.

CLAIMS VICTIMS

SIX ARE DEAD AND FOUR FATALLY HURT IN NEBRASKA.

TWO STORNS IN SUCCESSION

The Storms Were a Climax to Numerous Small Storms in the State.

Geneva, Neb., June 8.—At least six dead, four fatally hurt and several others more or less seriously injured is the result of Friday's tornado which swept across Fillmore county and destroyed everything in its path.

The tornadoes, two in number, were apparently the climax of a series of smaller storms which have passed over western and southwestern Nebraska and were the most destructive of any that visited this part of the state. Starting in the southwestern part of the county, the tornado clouds became larger as they moved northeast, destroying everything in their path.

Apparently separating, the two tornadoes in Fillmore county swept separate paths across the county, leveling farm houses, killing stock and destroying crops. They fell separately, the first destruction occurring two miles east of Shickley, where John Argenbricht was killed in his home and John Merriman fatally injured. Moving toward Geneva, the velocity of the clouds increased, until they struck the ground half a mile west of here, entirely destroying the home of John Shively. The family did not have time even to save themseleves in cellars. The house was quickly wrecked, as were the barn and other farm buildings. Their 4-year-old daughter was instantly killed by a flying timber and an older son, Ross Shively, received injuries from which he will probably die. Mrs. Shively also was dangerously injured and her husband badly hurt. Lulu Smith, the domestic, was in an upper room and her body was found several hundred feet from the ruins.

From the Shively home the tornado swept to the northeast, destroying crops and killing live stock and spent its fury a few miles north of Geneva.

The rain that followed has swollen all streams, and near Janson, a little girl was drowned while her father, Joseph Flaming, was trying to save his family from a threatened flood.

ALLIES DENY BOLT.

Declare Publication Was Entirely Too Premature.

Chicago, June 8.—Representatives of the "allies" recalled their statement that they will bolt the republican national committee so far as the presentation of evidence to support the claims of anti-Taft delegations from southern states is concerned.

There is evidence that the announcement made upon the authority of Representative James Francis Burke, manager for Senator Knox after he had been in conference with Senator Hemenway and J. B. Kealing of Indiana and others identified with with the campaign being made by the allies, has created dissension. Some of the other spokesmen for the allies declared the announcement to be ill advised and they busied themselves to counteract its effect. After numerous conferences the following which was headed "statement from the allies" was issued:

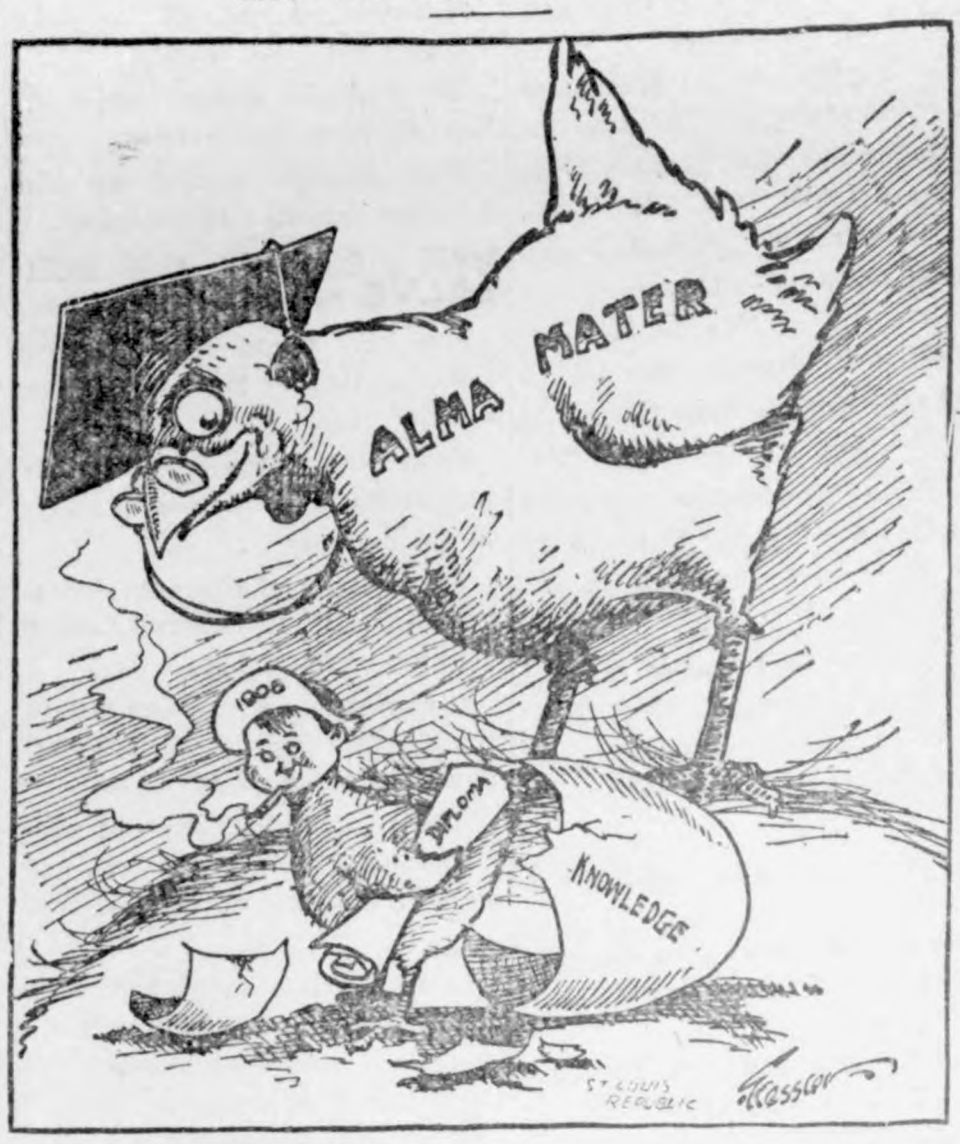
"Upon the authority of the representatives of all of the presidential candidates other than Secretary of War Taft, it was announced that they would continue their side of the contested delegates to the national convention. The decision of the national convention will not be taken as final by the candidates kown as the allies, but an appeal will be taken in cases where it is believed injustice has been done, first to the committee on credentials, and later to the convention itself.

"The determination of the representatives of the allies to continue the presentation of their side of the contests to the national committee, is not to be taken as an indication that they approved of the manner in which these contests have been decided. But in order to be in the position to present all of the cases in proper form to the committee on credentials laid down by the national committee.

"It is the firm determination of the representatives of the 'allies' to first give the national committee an opportunity to consider all the contests on their merits."

It is generally believed that the announcement made was designed to test public sentiment, and to influence the Taft forces to a compromise proposition submitted to the committee yesterday just prior to the adjournment. That the effect was not what the allies expected was admitted by a number of men who had knowledg of the entire proceeding.

INTO THE COLD, COLD WORLD!



GOING TO HUNT IN AFRICA

PRESIDENT WILL LEAVE WHEN HE GOES OUT OF OFFICE.

Statement from White House Puts Quietus on Third Term Talk—Kermit to Accompany Father.

Washington. — Important significance in connection with President Roosevelt's determination against a third term is contained in the admission made Friday for the first time, that the president is making definite plans to leave the United States in April next year for Africa, where he will pass a year hunting big game. Rumors that Mr. Roosevelt was to leave the country at the conclusion of his term of office have been printed heretofore, but when confirmation was sought at the White House the answer has been that no definite conclusion had been reached as to the president's plans.

But Friday it was stated positively that Mr. Roosevelt, with his son Kermit, would sail from New York, for Cairo in April, 1909—just as soon as the necessary arrangements for the departure could be made after March 4. It is the desire of the president to bring back at the end of the year from the wilds of Africa specimens of every species of big game to be had on the dark continent. He will visit no other country, it is stated.

The outfit for the expedition will be obtained on reaching Africa, but an active correspondence in this connection already is under way. The exact size of the hunting party—number of guides and retainers, animals, etc.—has not been determined on. The president, however, will take with him an assortment of arms which he will require in the variety of hunting contemplated. This outfit will include, of course, guns of the highest power. During the absence of Mr. Roosevelt in Africa Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of the family will remain at the family home at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay.

MRS. W. B. LEEDS LOSES.

Must Pay 60 Per Cent. Duty on $340,000 Pearl Necklace.

New York.—Customs duties of 60 per cent. must be paid on the $340,000 pearl necklace imported from France by Mrs. William B. Leeds, under a decision rendered by Judge Lacombe in the the United States court Tuesday.

After the necklace was purchased in Paris the pearls were separated and brought to this country as individual gems in the belief that they would be admitted upon the payment of ten per cent. duty, which the law provides for individual pearls. The collector of the port ruled, however, that as the pearls had been used as a necklace, and were intended to be used in that form again, the full duty of 60 per cent. should be levied.

EIGHT KILLED; MANY HURT.

Terrible Collision on Electric Railway Near Annapolis, Md.

Annapolis, Md. — In a head-on collision between two special cars on the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis electric railroad shortly before eight o'clock Friday night, eight persons were killed outright and a score of others were seriously injured, some of them perhaps fatally. The collision was due to confusion of orders, as the line has been running several extra cars each way in connection with the commencement festivities at the Naval academy.

The disaster occurred just beyond Camp Parole, which is the first station after leaving this city. Both the wrecked cars were specials, one of them bound from Baltimore for Annapolis, the other running from here for Washington. The latter carried few passengers, while the other was well filled. The impact was terrific and both cars were wrecked, that bound for this city being thrown from the rails. As quickly as possible aid was sent from here and the dead and injured were brought to this city. Of the injured, General Traffic Manager William E. Slaughter of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis was in the worst condition.

NEGROES KILL A SHERIFF.

Oklahoma City Official Slain in Trying to Make Arrest.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Sheriff George W. Garrison of Oklahoma City was shot and killed, an unknown deputy wounded and a negro was shot in a battle which took place three miles east of Hitchcock at seven o'clock Friday evening.

According to reports received by the local police department, seven negroes were in a party that opened fire on the sheriff when he attempted to arrest Alf Hunter, alias James Kingsbury, who killed Susie Pride in Oklahoma City on the evening of May 19.

BURLINGTON ROAD FINED.

Convicted of Violating Regarding Live Stock in Transit.

Springfield, Ill.—The federal government won a notable victory in the United States district court Wednesday when the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company was found guilty on two charges of violating the 28-hour law which provides that live stock shall not be confined in cars over 28 hours without being taken out for a period of five consecutive hours for the purpose of giving them rest and feed and water. The company was fined $100 and costs on each of three counts.

Edward Goes to Visit Czar.

London.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria started for Reval, Russia, Friday night for a visit to the emperor of Russia. A large suite accompanied the royal party. The party reached Port Victoria at 11 o'clock and boarded the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which sailed at four o'clock Saturday morning.

Gorgas Heads the Physicians.

Chicago. — Col. William Crawford Gorgas, A. B., M. D., Sc. D., member of the isthmian canal commission and chief sanitary officer of the canal zone, was elected president of the American Medical association Thursday at the final meeting of the house of delegates of that organization.

MAJOR DREYFUS IS SHOT

MILITARY WRITER WOUNDS THE NOTED FRENCH OFFICER.

Louis Gregori Says He Fired Bullet as Protest Against the Glorification of Emile Zola.

Paris.—Just at the close of the ceremonies attending the interment of Emile Zola in the Pantheon Thursday, when the president of France, the premier and a host of ministers of state were taking their departure, Louis Anthehne Gregori, a military writer of note, drew a revolver and fired two shots point-blank at Maj. Alfred Dreyfus, for whose liberty Zola fought and won.

Men distinguished in all walks of life filled the Pantheon and when the shots rang out there was intense excitement in fear that the president had been assassinated, but even the attempt on the life of Maj. Dreyfus created a profound impression. Soldiers speedily surrounded Gregori and he was taken to jail, bruised and bleeding, with his clothes almost torn from his back.

The affair has created a tremendous sensation in Paris and the motive of the would-be assassin is the cause of much mystification; for Gregori, instead of being an ordinary fanatic, such as is carried away by the political passions of the moment, is a man of mature age, having been born in 1844, and was highly esteemed in the circles where he was known.

Some do not hesitate to express the opinion that he may have been the tool of a little clan of Royalists, who, under the name of l'Action Francaise, have never ceased to insist that the court of cassation illegally prevented an appeal of the Dreyfus case, nor abandoned hope of seeing a revision favorable to the contentions of the Nationalists.

Maj. Dreyfus was not seriously injured. A bullet entered his forearm, but did not injure the bone. At a late hour the official statement was made that his condition was very favorable and that no complications were feared.

Gregori made a statement to the police directly after his arrest and during a second interrogation Thursday night he said: "I did not wish to kill Dreyfus. It is true I aimed at him, but I only wanted to graze him. My object was to protest against the participation of the army in the glorification of Zola and the rehabilitation of Dreyfus. My blow was aimed less at Dreyfus than at Dreyfusism."

A curious feature of the ceremonies in the Pantheon was the absence of many of the foreign ambassadors. It is understood that the Turkish ambassador was the prime mover in the plan to induce the members of the diplomatic corps to abstain from going to the Pantheon.

ACCOUNTS SHORT; KILLS SELF.

New York Bank Teller Commits Suicide After Writing Confession.

New York.—On being questioned by the bank's officers Wednesday about an apparent discrepancy in his accounts, Charles T. Muir, paying teller of the Forty-second street branch of the Corn Exchange bank, asked to be excused until he could obtain a deposit ticket to explain the matter, went to the basement and, after writing a brief confession that his accounts were short, shot himself in the head. He died within an hour at the hospital. Vice-President Frew of the Corn Exchange bank said that Muir's shortage was $9,068.

VICTORY FOR TAFT FORCES.

Alabama and Arkansas Contests Decided in Their Favor.

Chicago.—Without roll calls the Republican national committee Friday decided the contests from Alabama and Arkansas, involving 24 seats in the Republican national convention, in favor of the delegates instructed for Secretary Taft.

The victory for the Taft forces was sweeping, not even a division being required to determine the will of the committee.

School Pupils Starving.

New York.—Emergency measures for the relief of hundreds of pupils in East side schools who have been found to be suffering from lack of food have been adopted by the committee of East side school board members, organized as a result of the serious conditions which the reports of school principals in the section revealed.

At a conference late Wednesday the committee decided to arrange for the speedy opening of two kitchens on the lower East side at which the hungry children may be fed.

Two Die in Auto Crash.

Brunswick, Germany. — A fatal automobile accident took place near here Friday. Lieutenant Commander Assmann and First Lieutenant Johannes Fritzsche were killed and First Lieutenant Elmanhorst and the chauffeur, a man named Eicke, were severely injured.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-

MISS JULIA MARLOWE.

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe

Any remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves.

The nerve centers require nutrition. If the digestion is impaired, the nerve centers become anemic, and nervous debility is the result.

Peruna is not a nervine nor a stimulant. It benefits the nerves by benefiting digestion.

Peruna frees the stomach of catarrhal congestions and normal digestion is the result.

In other words, Peruna goes to the bottom of the whole difficulty, when the disagreeable symptoms disappear.

Mrs. J. C. Jamison, Wallace, Ca. writes:

"I was troubled with my stomach for six years. Was treated by three doctors. They said that I had nervous dyspepsia. I was put on a liquid diet for three months.

"I improved under the treatment but as soon as I stopped taking the medicine, I got bad again.

"I saw a testimonial of a man whose case was similar to mine being cured by Peruna, so I thought I would give it a trial.

"I procured a bottle at once and commenced taking it. I have taken several bottles and am entirely cured."

Useless Society.

Mrs. Jones often declared that she enjoyed a little chat with their fish dealer because he was a man of such original ideas, but one day, says London Opinion, she returned from market somewhat puzzled by his remarks.

"I said to him, just in the way of conversation," declared Mrs. Jones, "that I had heard that a man becomes like that with which he most associates.

"'That's ridiculous, Mrs. Jones!' he answered. 'I've been a fishmonger all my life and can't swim a yard.'"

FOUR TARS KILLED

BOILER TUBE ON THE CRUISER TENNESSEE BURSTS.

TEN OF THE CREW INJURED

Rear Admiral Sebree and Other Officers Have Narrow Escapes—Vessel Was on Speed Trial Near San Pedro.

San Pedro, Cal. — A terrible accident occurred on board the United States armored cruiser Tennessee at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning while the ship was steaming at 19 knots on a speed trial off Point Ruenene, Cal., a steam pipe in the starboard engine room bursting under 235 pounds' pressure, killing four men and injuring ten others—all of the men in the compartment at the time. The explosion, the cause of which is unknown, occurred only a few minutes after Admiral Uriel Sebree, Capt. F. B. Howard and Chief Engineer Robertson had left the engine room on a tour of inspection.

Names of the Victims.

The dead: George Wood, water tender, Scranton, Pa.; E. C. Boggs, second-class fireman, Woodlawn, Ala.; A. Reinhold, machinist's mate, second class, Germany; George W. Meek, first-class fireman, Skidmore, Kan.

Fatally injured: S. Stematis, first-class fireman, Norfolk, Va.; F. S. Maxfield, second-class fireman, Toughkenamon, Pa.

Men Scalded with Steam.

The tube, which is four inches in diameter and inclosed with water inside the boiler, blew out, driving a torrent of scalding steam, coal dust, cinders and hot ashes through the ash pit and showered the half-naked men. A blast of white steam from the ventilators told those on deck of the accident, and Lieut. Commander S. S. Robinson, the navigator, instantly sounded a general alarm and dropped 20 lines of hose ready for instant use in case of fire.

Within the doomed fire room, amidship on the starboard side, the surviving seamen were fighting for life. Reinhold and Meek were stricken dead at their posts. Boggs and Wood crawled or were dragged into the adjoining fire room, and died almost immediately. The other seamen, all of whom received some injuries, acted with the greatest heroism in aiding their unfortunate mates.

Close Call for Sebree.

Rear Admiral Sebree himself escaped death or serious injury in the fated fire pit by a mere moment's time. He had left the room where the explosion occurred not 50 seconds before the fatal blast. The admiral stood in the engine room adjoining the fire room with Chief Engineer Robertson and Capt. Howard. His first intimation of the tragedy was as he mounted the ladder and a half-naked fireman leaped past him suffering from severe scalds.

When the smoke came from the fire room, the fire call was sounded and all the crew went to their stations in perfect order and in a few seconds 15 to 20 lines of hose were ready to turn on the fire. Several of the crew behaved with heroism and will be reported to the department later.

The ship was undergoing inspection by the commander of the second division and had been under way for over two hours, the engines, boilers and all machinery working perfectly.

Was on a Speed Trial.

The Tennessee, flagship of the second division of the Pacific cruiser fleet, left Santa Barbara at ten o'clock Friday morning with the cruisers Pennsylvania, Washington, Colorado and West Virginia in her wake, on the semi-annual official speed trial provided for by naval regulations. Admiral Sebree had ordered the cruisers to full speed, and the Tennessee had just concluded a series of evolutions and started straightaway a speed of between 18 and 19 knots. The admiral in the engine room had just taken note that the dial recorded a steam pressure of 235 pounds when the explosion occurred. Less than 15 minutes earlier the tubes had endured a pressure of 265 pounds.

Big Steamer's First Trip.

Detroit, Mich.—Amid a tremendous din of whistles and saluting cannon, the new 444-foot Detroit & Cleveland line steamer City of Cleveland, the largest passenger craft on fresh water, left her dock Thursday afternoon on her first trip, carrying 500 members of the Detroit board of commerce on a four days' excursion to Sault Ste. Marie.

Black Hawk Veteran Dead.

Creston, Ia.—Daniel Ritchey, aged 90 years, is dead at Corning. He was a veteran of the Black Hawk war. He kept a hotel in Adams county in 1855, and when John Brown and Jim Lane were running slaves north into Canada, his hostelry was a rendezvous for them. He was also a Mason, and perhaps the oldest one in the state at the time of his death.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

TORTURED SIX MONTHS

By Terrible Itching Eczema—Baby's Suffering Was Terrible—Soon Entirely Cured by Cuticura.

"Eczema appeared on my son's face. We went to a doctor who treated him for three months. Then he was so bad that his face and head were nothing but one sore and his ears looked as if they were going to fall off, so we tried another doctor for four months, the baby never getting any better. His hand and legs had big sores on them and the poor little fellow suffered so terribly that he could not sleep. After he had suffered six months we tried a set of the Cuticura Remedies and the first treatment let him sleep and rest well; in one week the sores were gone and in two months he had a clear face. Now he is two years and has never had eczema again. Mrs. Louis Leck, R. F. D. 3, San Antonio, Tex., Apr. 15, 1907."

Curious Indian Custom.

The following curious custom is recorded by J. Owen Dorsey in his monograph on the sociology of the Omaha Indians:

"In the spring when the grass comes up there is a council or tribal assembly held to which a feast is given by the head of the Hanga geno. After they decide that planting time has come and at command of the Hanga man a crier is sent through the villages. He wears a robe with hair outside and cries as he goes. 'They do, indeed, say that you will dig the ground! Hallo!' He carries sacred corn, which has been shelled and to each household he gives two or three grains, which are mixed with the seed corn of the household."

After this it is lawful for the people to dig up the soil and plant their crops.

The Villain's Escape.

In an amateur play a fugitive from justice was supposed to have escaped from his pursuers by concealing himself under the table. The table was small and the terrified fugitive somewhat lengthy.

The commander of the pursuing party rushed on the stage and fell over the legs of the man he was searching for.

Picking himself up and ludicrously rubbing his shins, he convulsed his audience by exclaiming in true dramatic style:

"Ha! ha! The dastardly villain has eluded us again."

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

A DEAD MAN'S JOKE

PERHAPS HE ENJOYED IT IN THE SPIRIT LAND.

Anyway, It Worked Very Successfully on Friend Who Hitherto Had Sincerely Mourned His Loss.

Thornley was a lovable chap, but an inveterate practical joker. When he decided to accept the offer of the South American syndicate and go to Venezuela his friends, who had suffered much from his pranks, wondered what he would do to the gentle subjects of Cipriano Castro. There were a dozen or more of them at the pier to see him off. Among them was Rolber. Between Thornley and Rolber there was a tie stronger than ordinary friendship. They had been boys together. They had been schoolmates. They married about the same time and were neighbors for many years.

"Gus, old man," said Thornley, as they were saying good-by for the last time, "I wish I had something to give you to remember me by, but I've been so busy lately preparing for this trip that I haven't had time to think of anything. Don't forget to write, will you?"

They shook hands again and then Thornley, reaching in his pocket, drew out three cigars.

"Smoke those, old man, and when you're smoking them remember me," he said.

Rolber took the cigars. The steamer sailed away and a few weeks later a letter from Thornley told of his safe arrival. Everything was strange, he said, but he hoped he would like the country.

Letters came at intervals and then came the news of Thornley's death. He had caught a fever and died suddenly.

The news was a great shock to Rolber. It was as if he had lost a brother.

Of the three cigars Thornley had given to him that day when he sailed away two had been smoked. Rolber preferred a pipe to a cigar, and after he heard of Thornley's death he had no desire to smoke the third. He put the cigar on his mantelpiece at home under a glass case, and every time he looked at it his thoughts turned to his dead friend.

Two years passed and still the cigar remained in its old place. Then, one night, Rolber discovered that all his smoking tobacco was gone. He searched high and low, but could not discover anything to smoke. He went at last to the mantelpiece and looked at Thornley's cigar. No, he would not think of smoking that. It would be a sacrilege. He turned away and took up a book. But there was no pleasure in reading. He was nervous and he needed a smoke. He searched again for some tobacco, although he knew there was none. Again he turned to read, but the craving of the steady smoker was too strong. He went and looked at the cigar. It had dried out, but still was in good condition. Sentiment and appetite struggled for a minute or two and sentiment won.

Rolber walked away and tried to satisfy his craving by putting his empty pipe in his mouth and drawing on it as if it were filled. That did not do. He simply had to smoke, and at last he turned back to the mantelpiece, lifted the glass case and took out Thornley's cigar. Just a moment he wavered. Then he struck a match, held the flame close to the cigar and with a sigh of satisfaction he drew in a lung full of smoke. It seemed to him that he never before had enjoyed a smoke so much. Three, four, five times he puffed contentment into his physical self and then—

There was a sudden burst of fire and sparks, a sharp report, the cigar was a wreck and Rolber was as nervous as a kitten.

"Well, I'll be switched," said Rolber, when he had recovered his wits. "Who would have thought that a man dead two years would play a joke on a fellow with a loaded cigar?"

The Colonel's Leg in History.

Col. Blank, who later called himself general, received, in a little skirmish of the Civil war, a slight scratch on the leg. In the days afterward he nursed his glorious wound with loving care and grew lamer year by year that the memory of his bravery might be ever fresh.

When grown old, as he sat one day caring for his leg and musing on the glorious past, a young man, a stranger visiting the family for a few days, approached him and inquired, sympathetically:

"Lame, general?"

"Yes, young man, I am lame."

"Been riding, sir?"

"No, sir," sternly and rebukingly, "I have not been riding."

"Ah, slipped on the ice, general?"

"No, sir!" with actual ferocity.

"Then, perhaps, sir, you have sprained your ankle?"

The old man slowly and carefully lifted his pet leg in both hands and tenderly set his foot upon the floor. Then he slowly rose from his seat and stood looking down with scornful pity at the unlucky youth. At last, in the sublimity of rage, he burst out:

"Go and read the history of your country, you puppy!"

RACE BILLS ARE LAW

PASSED BY NEW YORK SENATE AND SIGNED BY GOVERNOR.

NOT ONE VOTE TO SPARE

Senator Foelker, Near Collapse from Illness, and Senator Wallace Decide Issue of Remarkable Struggle.

Albany, N. Y.—After a struggle, the like of which no man in or about the legislature has ever seen, or expects to see again, the famous Agnew-Hart anti-racktrack gambling bills are now laws of the state of New York.

Gov. Hughes, by his signature affixed to each of the bills at 4:35 p. m., Thursday crowned a legislative victory, the brilliancy of which, equaled only by its unexpectedness, is conceded even by those who fought him in the matter to the last ditch.

A few minutes before two p. m. the truly extraordinary session of the legislature of 1908 adjourned without day.

The decisive votes, which passed the bills, were cast by Senator Otto G. Foelker of the Fourth senate district of Brooklyn, who crawled from a sick bed and made a 60-mile railroad journey to do it, so weak and distressed in mind and body that he seemed on the verge of utter collapse, and by a new Governor Hughes.

senator, William C. Wallace of Niagra Falls.

Gov. Hughes late in the afternoon recorded his appreciation of Senator Foelker's action in the following letter:

"My Dear Senator—I desire to express my appreciation of your heroic action in coming to the senate this morning. Your courageous performance of duty at so grave a risk deserves the highest praise and will long be pointed to as a fine illustration of fidelity and patriotic devotion to the interests of the state. I trust that you will not suffer any ill effects and that you will soon be restored to your full health and vigor. With assurance of my high esteem and best wishes, I am,

"Faithfully yours,
"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

There was no surprise in the vote of Senater Wallace, who from the outset had been definitely pledged to the support of the governor's recummendation in this matter. Every other senator, including Foelker, voted as he did, pro or contra, when the bills were before the regular session in April, and they passed by the precise constitutional majority of 26 to 25—not one vote too many or too few.

HENRY CLAY WARD IS SANE.

Michigan Millionaire Found Competent to Manage His Affairs.

Pontiac, Mich.—After being out 28 hours, a jury in the circuit court Thursday night brought in a verdict that Henry Clay Ward of this city, a millionaire whose eccentric actions led to his family's applying to have a guardian appointed for him, was competent to manage his own affairs.

The case was brought in the circuit court by Mr. Ward on an appeal from the probate court, where he was found incompetent by the judge and a temporary guardian appointed for him. Mr. Ward is a son of David Ward, one of the pioneer millionaire lumbermen of Michigan. He is well known in southern California, where he has spent much time.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OPEN

Temporary Organization Perfected in Republican Gathering at Chicago--Senator Burrows Sounds Party Keynote.

Chicago.—With every state and territorial delegation in its appointed place, with enthusiasm at white heat, with big brass bands stationed at either end of the Coliseum, with the great building a mass of flags and banners, the Republican national convention was called to order by Chairman New on Tuesday morning.

Rev. William O. Waters of Chicago made the opening prayer, as follows:

O, Lord, our heavenly Father, the high and mighty ruler of the universe, who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers upon earth, most heartily we beseech thee with thy favor to behold and bless thy servant, the president of the United States, and all others in authority; and so replenish them with the grace of thy Holy Spirit that they may always incline to thy will and walk in thy way. Endue them plenteously with heavenly gifts; grant them in health and prosperity long to live, and finally after this lite to obtain everlasting joy and felicity. And, O, most gracious God, we humbly beseech thee, as for the people of these United States in general, so especially for this national Republican convention here assembled, that thou wouldst be pleased to direct and prosper all their consultatiens to the advancement of thy glory, the safety, honor and welfare of thy people. Take always all hatred and prejudice and whatsoever else may hinder them from perfect union and concord, that all things may be so ordered and settled by their endeavors upon the best and surest foundations, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety, may, be established among us for all generations. These and all other necessaries for the members of this convention and for the nation at large we humbly beg in the name and mediation of Jesus Christ, our most blessed Lord and Saviour, who has taught us when we pray to say:

"Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation. But deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever and ever. Amen."

The temporary officers of the convention were announced as follows, all of which, with the exception of Senator Burrows, were made permanent:

Temporary Chairman—Senator J. C. Burrows, Michigan.

General Secretary—John R. Malloy, Columbus, O.

Chief Assistant Secretary—Lafayette B. Glenson, New York.

Sergeant-at-Arms—William F. Stone, Baltimore.

Messenger to the Chairman—Empsirdell Stone, Indianapolis.

Messenger to the Secretary—John H. Jackson, Cincinnati.

Senator Burrows introduced as temporary chairman was met by wild applause. The delivery of his prepared speech occupied nearly one hour. He said in part:

He reviewed the history of the party and the country, showing the wonderful progress and development during the Republican administration of public affairs.

The work of the nine executive departments, the pension bureau and the army was touched upon in turn and the successful and efficient management pointed out.

On the subject of tariff revision, Senator Burrows said: "The Republican party stands for a revision and readjustment of our customs laws as changed industrial conditions at h and abroad may have made a sary, keeping steadily in view cardinal principles of protection American industries and Amer labor. As evidence of its good in this regard, the national hou representatives, clothed under the stitution with exclusive jurisdicti originate all bills for raising reve on the 20th of April just pas formal resolution, authorized an rected its committee on ways means, the organ of the house h jurisdiction of the question, to during the recess of congress a gather such information, through ernmental agents and otherwise, may see fit, looking toward the aration of a bill for the revisio the tariff.'

"Supplementing this action on part of the house of representa and co-operating with it, the se in the exercise of its constitut prerogative to 'propose or concur amendments as on other bills,' o 16th of May passed the following lution:

"'Resolved, that the committe finance are authorized, in conne with investigations heretofore or by the senate, with the view promptly securing the inform necessary for an intelligent revisi the customs laws of the United S to call to their assistance exper the executive departments of the ernment and to employ such othe sistants as they shall require; they are especially directed to r what further legislation is nece to secure equitable treatment fo agricultural and other products o United States in foreign countries they shall also, in the consider of changes of rates, secure proo the relative cost of production in and in principal competing fo countries of the various articles ed by the tariff upon which chang rates of duty are desirable.'

"These public declarations by gress, upon the eve of the ele give the most solemn assurance sible that the work will be spe undertaken and pressed to an consummation.

"In this connection it can be promised that whatever revisio readjustment takes place under control of the Republican party, give just and adequate protecti American industries and Amer labor and defend the American m against the unjust and unequal a sions from whatever quarter they come."

Speaking of the late financial Chairman Burrows said: "The r panic called the attention of con to the necessity of further legisl and a measure has been passed viding for an emergency currenc $500,000,000 to be issued under ce conditions and limitations, an thorization, it is believed, will prevent the recurrence of any disaster as befell the country las The secretary of the treasury h ready taken the necessary step give effect to the legislation, banking associations are al forming to avail themselves of benefits of this act. SYNOPSIS.

crowning desire in the life of old gartner, a Pennsylvania German, is obtain possession of the beautiful ow which lies just between Baumer's property and the railroad sta- The property in question was in- ed by Sarah Pressel, very pretty athletic young girl, and belonged to her. But old Baumgartner had d for it so many years and en- ored to purchase it from Sarah's r so many times that the property me known as "Baumgartner's n." At the vicinage gatherings on porch of the store old Baumgartner ys declared that the property would day be his. At length Baumgartner to realize that his only hope of ning the property would be through marriage of his son Sephenijah to h Pressel. In a mock auction "Seffy," Sephenijah P. Baumgartner, Jr., is larly known, is raffled off by his r to Sarah for $1. "Seffy" is a meek, -going youth, who is never first in race for anything. He is fair haired, e, always led by his father. Of a er angelic disposition is he—a gentle kind youth who seems not to under- d anything about strife and compe- n. Thus he appears utterly incapaci- d to win in any contest of love or Sarah Pressel is quite the opposite Seffy. Her hair is nearly red. She is life and animation and can jump s like a wild colt and she is grace color itself. Her one fault is a very temper. Baumgartner gives Seffy e lessons in courtship. Seffy dons his e pipe hat and prepares to go sit up Sarah. Baumgartner has caused self to be appointed guardian of Seffy shows his first spark of ani- ion. He is unable to resist the fas- ting witcheries of Sally and he kisses It was the first kiss he had ever wn. But Seffy was not the first man now the pleasures of kissing Sally.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

I have never kissed no one but ther," said Seffy, who felt heinous, don't know how! I don't know what de me do it—I couldn't help it. It n't happen again——"

Whereat Sally laughed and clung ut Seffy's delighted neck and cried his puzzled heart:

"Yes, it will!"

And kissed him back!

"Sally," said Seffy with solemnity, o you mean it? You not mad?"

"Seffy," said Sally, "I am not worth I have been kissed by everybody o wanted to kiss me—and I have sed everybody I wanted to kiss!"

"I am sorry for you, Sally," said ffy, not meaning at all what she ought he meant—nor anything quite ar to himself, except that she had cklessly squandered something pre- ous.

"I am, too, now."

And then—

"I shall never kiss no one but you, more."

"Nor I anybody but you, Seffy."

And, strange as it may seem, in at moment, Seffy was the greater, aver and stronger, and Sally but the aiting, willing woman—as she ought have been. Indeed, Seffy was urageous enough to have put that estion which might, perhaps, trans- ute the pasture-field into one of those at lie within the borders of Elysium. But Sam moved—with decision. hey flew apart. Though he did not once enter it was too late—the pport was broken. Nevertheless, ch things can be mended, if there is me. It is quite certain that if they uld have continued a little longer that dark parlor, with only the mall ray of the lamp from the hall lighten it, everything the sleepless d man at home so ardently wished ight have been accomplished and ey might have taken down that ne-fence the next day and then have ved happy ever after—quite in the ay of the old-fashioned story-books. or Seffy was still brave to audacity, nd Sally was yet at his mercy—and appy to be so.

And here, if we were not arrived at climax, I would venture to halt this istory for a moment that we might iscuss a bit those trifles in life which he ancients called Fate; and for hich, or the lack of which, life often oes awry!

But while Seffy's courage grew gain, and Sally's hope, the door on he other side of the room opened and he odious Sam came through.

V.

Seffy's Sitting-Up—and Down Again.

However, there was another door— nd Sam arrived only to hear it close pon Seffy, whom Sally had just ushed through it.

"Seffy?" asked Sam casually.

"Yes!" answered Sally, quite unable o keep the joy out of her voice, "he's just come, and gone out to the spring —for a—drink!" prevaricated Sally.

"He'll drink something."

By which Sam meant some kind of an animal, with his water.

"Nothing but water!" said Sally meaningly. Sam perceived instantly "how the land lay," and made his cunning plans. Sam was not dull. He returned to the sitting room with Sally—where Seffy presently followed, I am sorry to say, like a conquering hero—at which Sam gloated.

Unfortunately for Seffy, rural etiquette, as everybody knows, gave Sam precedence. "First come—last go," is the illogical rule. But you are to be informed that the late comer is at liberty to "outsit" his rival, if he can—or to dislodge him, if he can—by strategy. But every rustic lover attempts this at the greatest of risks. To fail is equivalent to losing caste—not only with the lady in question, but also with the fickle world. For no girl of any spirit would look upon a swain who had ignominiously failed at such a crisis, unless he should rehabilitate himself—which means to accomplish the almost impossible.

Sam took all this into consideration as he watched Seffy—reclining in the easy chair which Sally had injudiciously and invidiously placed for him him—grow drowsy.

"Sally," said Sam at the right moment, "play something."

"I don't care to!" protested Sally. But then she turned prettily to Seffy.

"Shall I, Seffy?"

"Yes," smiled Seffy, from his Elysium, secure and confident. "I don't care!"

"GENTLEMEN, GOOD NIGHT!"

"And," said Sam insidiously, "we'll all sing. You air, me tenor, Seffy bass."

"I can't sing no bass!" said Seffy easily, "and Sam knows it. He can't make no fool off of me. Go on, I'll set here and—and—enjoy myself."

This was the direct rustic challenge, with aplomb! Sam might choose his weapons! It made no odds! And Sally had to take it up for Seffy. This she loyally did.

Unfortunately, when Sally went to the organ Seffy was at her back and in the shadow—the lamp had to be moved—and in that sleepy-hollow chair. But she had all possible confidence in him—and, alas! he had in himself. For a while he feasted his eyes upon the exquisite back she had turned to him—and then, with a thrill of possession, inventoried the hair he had kissed—a little disordered—the lips—the waist he had embraced—how glorious that was! It seemed almost impossible now that he had done it. And the hands—what? He was lost for a moment. Then he was plowing opposite his father. The voice which had so sweetly—what was it exactly it had said—what?—he was nearing the line stake—still plowing—he could hear the voice quite distinctly—many of them—a choir—"I want to be an angel." Sally seemed mistily there—but he was still plowing—now he stopped—more and more mist—Seffy slept.

Sam stopped his tenor that Sally might hear him sleep.

"He said he couldn't sing bass!" grinned Sam.

Sally's hand flew to her heart. She had been trilling, if not with the art, yet with the feeling, of a lark. It was simply the joy with which Seffy had filled her—only joy, vast and free. The red flamed in her cheeks at what she saw. I shall not describe it. No lover was ever more abject—no lady was ever more furious! We see the comedy of it only. We would not have been hurt, eh? But we did not live then or there nor under Sally's curious small conditions—nor with Sally's temper. Curiously enough, this Scripture came to Sally's mind:

"Could ye not watch with me one hour?"

You know what strange and inopportune things come into the distressed, unguarded mind.

Sally rose with a dignity which even Sam had not suspected, and said:

"Gentlemen, good night."

VI.

The Clothes-Pin Cure.

The old man had plowed six times around the six-acre field the next morning, singing and whistling his unearthly tune as he went, when Seffy unlimbered at the bars and started the big bay around in the opposite direction. The first time they passed his father only winked mysteriously and continued to whistle. The next time he stopped.

"We won't go home tell morning, hah, Sef? I usen't to myself. Say—looks like somesing occurred after all, hah? No one don't stay tell morning unless——"

Seffy was silent.

"That's right. Kiss but nefer tell. For telling breaks the spell. If you've had one and want another—kiss but shut your head up. Say—you don't want to be no anchel now, I expect, hah? Mebby you own one?"

But Seffy and the mare had disappointingly passed on.

"Well! Gee—wo—way—gee! Git along!" And he also made another furrow—in a less happy temper.

When they met again:

"Whoa!" roared the old man, and the mare stopped—trembling in her tracks. He laughed. Betz still responded if Seffy did not.

"Sef—Seffy, did anysing occur?"

Seffy faltered guiltily a moment.

"Yes," he said, then briefly, "something always occurs."

"Sef—Seffy, but about the pasture——"

Seffy started the mare.

"Whoa!" roared the old man again, with the same result. But he did not laugh this time. He sat on the handles of his plow and regarded his son. He was vaguely disturbing.

"Say—" he began ominously, "you didn't git sot out?"

"Uhu," answered Seffy.

"What! Why, you durn——"

But then he laughed.

"Shiny hat no good?"

Seffy said no.

"Nor the diamond, nor the hair-grease, nor nossing? Oh—gosh-a'-mighty! Gee—wo—way!"

But before they met again, his gaiety had given way to an immense disappointment. The tragedy of the situation had prevailed with him, too. Seffy sullenly kicked a clod to pieces. His father looked off toward the coveted pasture and sighed. It was a superb piece of land. And it had never looked fairer. The sun was on its velvet green—the sun of the morning. A few thick-girthed, wholesome oak trees punctuated it. A stream laughed through it. Goodly cows stood chewing in the water and swishing amiably at the flies. The fences were intact. It would have been a delight to the eyes of any farmer on earth. The old man sat on the handles of his plow until it all got in his head once more.

"It's a nice field, Sef—Seffy," he sighed. "I nefer seen no such clofer. And she's a nice gal. I nefer seen no such gal, bose nice. Oach! they belong together. Well, gee—wo—way! They belong to us!"

They always stopped for a word when they met. The next time the old man said, quite caressingly:

"Come yere, Sef!"

He patted one plow-handle, which Seffy took, while he took the other. He thoughtfully pulled the boy's shirt into place.

"Sef," he said, "tell me about it. I'm sorry I laughed! But I lofe that pasture and you lofe Sally. Let's not be fools, but git 'em. I expect you feel a little bad. But mebby you'll feel better if you talk about it. That is the way wiss me, I know; when anysing occurs I like to gabble about it—and go and do it again—better." He let his hand rest kindly on Seffy's shoulder. To this his son responded.

"I fell asleep," said Seffy, sniffling ominously.

"Of course," said his father, with a comforting movement of his hand. "That's right."

Seffy was amazed—and comforted.

"I expect I snored——"

"Er—yas—you do snore, Sef. Eferybody does. It's the Lord's fault, I expect."

"In a nice cheer——"

"Yas—you oughtn't 'a' set in no nice cheer, Sef; somesing uneasy is better."

"Didn't wake up till daylight."

"Where was you then, Sef?"

"In the cheer—Sal—Sally's cheer."

The words stuck pitifully in his throat.

"Yas—" said the old man, looking away, "I don't blame you, Sef."

"It was a pasteboard thing—like a tombstone—pinned on my bosom——"

"Vat!" cried his father—the "w" would become "v" in cases of sudden emotion.

"Pasteboard—tombstone!" Seffy's head dropped in shame. "With things printed on it—'Sephenijah P. Baumgartner, Junior, Went to His Rest, June 10th, 1871, in the 20th year of his age. Gone Not, But Forgot—Read Backwards.'"

His father stifled a laugh. It was an old trick to him.

"What—what did you do then?" he asked in as matter-of-fact a voice as he could command.

"Sneaked home. It was daylight!"

"Gone not, but forgot—read backwards, hah?"

He couldn't quite make it out That was new. Seffy helped him.

"Forgot, but not gone."

WHAT SHE WOULD HAVE SAID.

Lucky for Poet That American Woman Was Not His Spouse.

A witty and popular American lady was recently dining with a literary coterie in London, when some one started a conversation about the methods of working adopted by authors. Among the many instances given was that of a well-known poet, who, it was said, was in the habit of writing at night and in the early morning, and who was wont to rouse his wife and exclaim about four o'clock: "Maria, get up; I have thought of a good word!" Immediately on receiving this signal, the poet's obedient helpmate would arise and make a proper note of the thought-of word. About an hour after a new inspiration would seize upon the bard, and he would then call out: "Maria, get up, get up! I've thought of a better word!" The company generally listened to the story with admiration, but the bright-eyed American remarked: "Well, if he'd been my husband, I should have replied: 'Alpheus, get up; I've thought of a bad word!'"—London Tit-Bits.

An Exception.

"Children," observed the teacher, "you must not use the expression, 'Up against it.' It is slang." "Well," said a bright lad, "I saw an automobile go into a wall full tilt yesterday." "Yes, but we're talking about something else now." "But I was goin' to say," continued the lad, "if the machine wasn't up against it I'd like to know what."

Not a Reformer.

"I should think you could easily show the errors of your political opponents." "Perhaps," answered Senator Sorghum, "but if I should convince them they would simply adopt my suggestions without giving me any credit for them. The opposition's mistakes are a part of my capital."

A man's brain attains its maximum weight at the age of twenty years; that of a woman at seventeen years.

China has the lowest tax-rate. A house worth two thousand dollars rarely bears a tax over five dollars a year.

All pistols sold in Texas have to pay a tax of fifty per cent. It is therefore not strange that nearly all of the pistols disposed of in that State for the past ten months are leased for fifty years, not sold. The leasing rate is about equal to the selling-price.

Sagging at Shoulders.

Are you letting yourself sag a bit at the shoulders? Don't if you want to keep either young or well. There is nothing so fatally easy as to grow round-shouldered. Keep a sharp watch on yourself to prevent it.

Each morning stand up against the jamb of a door and see if you have begun to sag. Also walk around your room each day with a piece of broomstick or short umbrella under each arm and brought across the back. This keeps the chest up and head well poised.

Deep breathing exercises, whenever you think of them, will help ward off those round shoulders, also making a practice to wall with the chest up. This last is the simplest of all preventives, for if it is always practised the rest will follow.

Useful Remodeling Suggestions.

Have you a last year's white linen suit which requires only a few new little touches to make it suitable for this summer? If so, follow one of the latest ideas from Paris, and introduce a bit of color by using colored cretonne for the trimming. Just a touch of it will be sufficient. Perhaps you will need to make only a new set of cuffs, and possibly an adjustable shawl collar, which may be worn or removed at your pleasure.

Then, again, you could introduce a renovating touch in your linen skirt and coat suit merely by changing the buttons. If your suit happened to have large pearl buttons last season rip them off, buy some molds and cover them with cretonne.

Whose Fault?

We talk so much, and we think so much more, of the trouble we have with others, that we more than half persuade ourselves that if everybody else were just right, we could get on easily in life, but the fact is that more than half of all our troubles, even of our troubles with others, grow out of our own faults and our own failures and not the faults and failures of other people. Until we get rid of ourselves, or until we are lifted above all selfish thought of ourselves, there is continual trouble for us, however other people bear themselves.—Home Chat.

Wild Cattle in the Berlin Zoo.

The collection of wild cattle in the Berlin zoological garden is probably the finest in Europe; in it 15 forms are represented by about 40 examples. These include American and European bison, yak, the Lake Chad buffalo, the Egyptian buffalo, arni, anoa, gayal, gaur, zebu, steppe cattle from Ascania Nova, Spanish fighting bulls, Damara cattle from German Southwest Africa and humped cattle from North Africa.

BALL GAME.

BELMOND vs. KLEMME.

Score 1 to 0 in Favor of Belmond. Time of Game Played: 55 Minutes.

Last week Friday, June 12th was witnessed one of the fastest games of ball which was played on the Belmond diamond between Belmond and Klemme. It was a nine inning game, Belmond making their score in the last half of the 8th inning Every one who attended said that they got theis moneys worth.

HE GOT WHAT HE NEEDED.

"Nine years ago it looked as if my time had come," says Mr. C. Farthing, of Mill Creek, Ind. Territory. "I was so run down that life hung on a very slender thread. It was then my druggist recommended Electric Bitters. I bought a bottle and I got what I needed—strength. I had one foot in the grave, but Electric Bitters put it back on the turf again, and I've been well ever since." Sold under guarantee at J. L. Harr & Co's drug store. 50c.

German M. E. Church Items

Henry, Sarah and Mary Ludeke were Germantown visitors last Sunday.

Anna Griewe and Emilie Lenz are in Britt this week attending the Teachers Institute.

Alma Bettin came from Charles City last Saturday and will spend her vacation on the farm.

A number of young people gave Lurena Wessel a "Farewell" party last Friday evening at the home of Mother Schwicht enberg.

Mrs. Edw. Irmscher and daughter and Grace Holscher made a short visit at the homes of Carl and Arthur Wellemeyer last week.

The children's day programs, tho' nothing elaborate, were interesting and instructive. Neither Sunday school made much of an effort as there was so much of interest besides and seemingly all were busy.

John Schwichtenberg and his mother left for Clayton county Monday evening to attend the funeral of Edw. Hilgendorf a cousin to the former. This is the third death in this family during the past six months, all three died of consumption.

Last Saturday the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lemke was baptised and named Wayne Ruben. On Sunday the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stille was christened Ethel Fern Luella and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schaefer was named Mable Lillian Fern.

Bertha Schaub of Charles City, arrived last Friday and has rooms over the State Bank where she is ready to give lessons in music. She comes well recommended as a teacher, especially as a favorite with the little folks. Her sister Florence came with her to help her get started besides visiting her many friends.

DEATH WAS ON HIS HEELS.

Jesse P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared consumption had me, and death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at J. L. Harr & Co's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

The Lake Mills ball team and Belmond ball team played a game at Belmond Tuesday of this week. It was one of the best games that we have seen this season, every man played his part to perfection. The game was the victory for Belmond, 1 to 0 in their favor. The score was made in the last half of the 10th inning. Frank Kluckhohn assisted the Belmond team and played the position of short-stop. He was in the best of form and played a good game with Belmonder's.

Nature has provided the stomach with certain natural fluids known as the digestive juices, and it is through these juices that the food we eat is acted upon in such a way as to produce the rich, red blood that flows through the veins of our body and thereby makes us strong, healthy and robust, and it is the weakening of these digestive juices that destroys health. It is our fault if we destroy our own health, and yet it is so easy for any one to put the stomach out of order. When you need to take something take it promptly, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take. it is reliable and is guaranteed to give relief. It is sold by J. L. Harr & Co., Klemme.

LAUNCH GOES OVER DAM.

Boat Containing Pleasure Party Is Hurled into Swirling Waters.

Des Moines.—Before the eyes of a half hundred horror stricken people who were powerless to render assistance a launch containing Earl and William Jennings and Edwin and William Ebersole, all prominent young men, were swept over the Des Moines river dam at Center street Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock.

Edwin Ebersole and William Jennings were drowned and their bodies have not been recovered. Earl Jennings was carried into the eddy at the foot of the Edison Light Company's substation and swam to the shore. Almost exhausted, he was lifted from the water by bystanders. Wilim Ebersole was carried down the river to a point about twenty-five yards below the dam and several yards from the shore. He struggled gamely in the foaming waters for several minutes and had all but given up. With a burst of heroism that made the spectators gasp, and without removing any of his clothing, Grand Ferguson, a big negro, dived from the abutment of the sewer which empties into the river at that place and made for the drowning man. After a heroic struggle Ferguson succeeded in getting the almost unconscious Ebersole to the shore.

A failure of the gasoline engine to respond to the manipulations of one of the party was directly responsible for the accident. At the start the launch engine worked perfectly. The boat puffed its way to the middle of the stream, and had just been started north, when of a sudden the engine stopped. The party was then within a few rods of the dam. Earl Jennings took an oar from the bottom of the boat and paddled furiously. But instead of paddling up stream he was assisting the current in sweeping the craft into the wild swirl of waters below. Just before the boat reached the brink of the dam all four men arose to their feet and with arms waving wildly disappeared.

An unfortunate phase of the accident is the fact that within a day or two the life line which the city council recently authorized to be placed across the river at the dam, was to have been placed in position. Only Saturday the workmen were engaged in digging holes on each side of the river for posts from which the line was to be strung. Had this line been in place at the time of the accident it is likely that none of the four men would have been drowned.

WORKMEN ELECT OFFICERS.

Iowa Again Honored—Degree of Honor Adjourns.

Des Moines.—The supreme lodge Ancient Order United Workmen, at Saturday's session elected officers for the next two years. W. M. Narvis of Muscatine was re-elected supreme master workman of the organization this making his third consecutive term as head of the workmen.

The other officers elected are:

Supreme master foreman—J. A. Eckstein of New Ulm, Minn.

Supreme overseer—J. C. Gallagher of New Haven, Conn.

Supreme recorder—M. W. Sackett of Kansas.

Supreme receiver—H. B. Dickinson of New York.

Supreme guide—W. R. Welch of Guthrie, Okla.

Supreme watchman—Rev. D. B. Phelan of Pittsfield, Me.

Supreme medical examiner—G. A. Eschman of Wheeling, W. Va.

After installing the new officers who were elected Friday, the superior lodge, Degree of Honor, adjourned Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Frances Buell Olson of St. Paul was installed as the new head of the organization. The Workmen will continue their business sessions for several days, probably taking up the entire week.

DUNKERS CHOOSE NAME.

Des Moines.—Church of the Brethren is the new name adopted for their religious organization by the "Dunkers" at the business session of the annual conference at the fair grounds. After heated discussions for and against a change in nomenclature which lasted for three nours, the name was adopted by a vote of the majority of the delegates. Christion Brethren and Dunker Brethren were the other names brought before the convention in the report of the committee. The old "official" name has been German Baptist Brethren.

FIGHT OVER LODGE FUNDS.

Debate on the Guaranty Fund Disposition Brings Out Opposition.

Des Moines.—Brotherly love and affection is still a part of the emoluments of the supreme grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen despite the noise of harrangue which came from behind the closed doors of that body Thursday morning. The first real good floor debate of the session was on and after a whole day of talk it was announced that nothing had been accomplished.

The question before the supreme lodge is the disposition of the guaranty benefit fund which is one of the chief funds of the order. This fund, it was proposed, should be used to aid the state grand lodges which are weak because of the small membership. It was over this point that the question hung and was at issue. Good feeling prevailed, yet sedate judges of district courts, state officials and prominent jurists stood up in debate and scholarly laid down the basis principles which they used to sustain their various contentions.

Degree of Honor.

The Degree of Honor superior lodge is awaiting the action of the parent lodge on the question of relation between the two orders before they proceed further in the work of the conventon. The delegates have a new constitution which is to be adopted at this time, but the recommendation that the supreme lodge of A. O. U. W have no authority over the other body save in its insurance features may in substance change the lodge statutes.

A spirited race is on in the Degree of Honor for superior lady of honor. Frances M. Olson of Minnesota and Mrs. Kaskey of Montana are the candidates, and good natured rivalry is now in evidence.

MILLIMAN IS COMMANDER.

Iowa G. A. R. Elects a Former Lieutenant Governor.

Cedar Rapids.—J. C. Milliman of Logan, former lieutenant governor of Iowa, was elected department commander by the Grand Army of the Republic and Fort Dodge was chosen as the place of holding the next encampment.

The feature of the session was the big parade, over a thousand veterans being in the line of march. The registration list shows 1,500 veterans present. There was a big campfire at the city Auditorium, addressed by National Commander in Chief C. G. Burton of Kansas City, Congressmen Hepburn and several other veterans.

There has been much discussion of the McCumber pension law, which provides that veterans 62 years of age shall be pensioned at $12 per month, to be raise dto $15 at 65 and $20 at 75. Resolutions asking congress to make the maximum applicable at 65 instead of 75 will undoubtedly be adopted.

Mrs. Lena Ring of Marion was elected president of the Women's Relief Corps.

SAVED LIFE AT RISK OF OWN.

Throws Himself Against Fly Wheel Belt to Save Companion.

Independence.—While at work in the Independence tile Factory, Fred McGowan saved a young man named Coons from certain death in the "mixer." Coons became horribly entangled in the machinery of the mixer while at work near it and the cogs were fastening themselves into his arms and side and drawing him ever nearer. His shrieks startled the men near, and they were all transfixed with horror save McGowan. He saw the need of immediate action, and tried to thrust the belt from the great pulley; he failed again and again. Then in desperation he seized the belt with his hands and pulled at it, all the time being drawn to the enormous pulley where he might be crushed to death. But he hung on, even when he was going up over the wheel. Though his body was being awfully twisted and his bones threatened to snap, he stil clung to the belt and just as he came to the floor, he gave a last tug and succeeded in getting the belt loose. Coons was immediately taken from the cogs. His arm was broken in three places and big holes were literally punched into his sides. McGowan was bruised and sore, but otherwise he is unhurt.

Miss Anna Murphy, stenographer in the office of McHenry & Jones, of Des Moines, bought the Goldstone hotel from W. B. Porter, the former proprietor. The hotel will be conducted as in the past with the new owner's father . Mr. John Murphy and her brother in active charge.

HER DESTINATION IN DOUBT.

Little Girl's Remark Not Complimentary to Grandma.

Ethel is of the mature age of five. Recently her grandmother concluded that it devolved on her to instruct the child in religious matters.

"You must be a good girl, Ethel," she said. "Then you will go to heaven when you die."

Ethel seemed scarcely pleased with this reward for exceptional conduct.

"Don't you want to go to heaven?" asked grandma, with a look of reproach.

"Oh, I don't know," temporized Ethel. "I guess not."

"Why not?" demanded grandma, severely.

"Because maybe I couldn't get out," answered Ethel.

"You wouldn't want to get out," replied grandma.

"Oh, yes, I should," returned Ethel, with conviction.

"No," argued grandma, "you would not. Why should you want to get out of heaven?"

"Why," answered Ethel, "I guess I'd want to go and see you once in a while, wouldn't I?"—Woman's Home Companion.

INVALID'S SAD PLIGHT.

After Inflammatory Rheumatism, Hair Came Out, Skin Peeled, and Bed Sores Developed—Only Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About four years ago I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. My skin peeled, and the high fever played havoc with my hair, which came out in bunches. I also had three large bed sores on my back. I did not gain very rapidly, and my appetite was very poor. I tried many 'sure cures' but they were of little help, and until I tried Cuticura Resolvent I had had no real relief. Then my complexion cleared and soon I felt better. The bed sores went very soon after a few applications of Cuticura Ointment, and when I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my hair it began to regain its former glossy appearance. Mrs. Lavina J. WOMAN'S BACKACHE

The back is the mainspring of woman's organism. It quickly calls attention to trouble by aching. It tells, with other symptoms, such as nervousness, headache, pains in the loins, weight in the lower part of the body, that a woman's feminine organism needs immediate attention.

In such cases the one sure remedy which speedily removes the cause, and restores the feminine organism to a healthy, normal condition is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Will Young, of 6 Columbia Ave., Rockland, Me., says:

"I was troubled for a long time with dreadful backaches and a pain in my side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to try it; after taking three bottles I can truly say that I never felt so well in my life."

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had very severe backaches, and pressing-down pains. I could not sleep, and had no appetite. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me feel like a new woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

HOT ONIONS FOR PNEUMONIA.

Dread Disease Robbed of Its Terrors by Simple Remedy.

Owing to the prevalence of pneumonia and the great mortality which attends its ravages during the winter and spring, several boards of health in northern New Jersey have been taking measures to protect the citizens of their towns from the disease. The health board of Washington, N. J., has published a remedy which is said to be a sure cure for pneumonia, and other health boards are looking into the matter with a view of having the same thing published for the good of the general public. This is the publication as it has appeared in the papers of Washington:

"Take six or ten onions, according to size, and chop fine, put in a large kettle over a hot fire, then add the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to form a thick paste. In the meanwhile stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer five or ten minutes. Then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs and apply to chest as hot as patient can bear. In about 20 minutes apply another, and thus continue by reheating the poultices, and in a few hours the patient will be out of danger. This simple remedy has never failed to cure this too-often fatal malady. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient, but continue always until the perspiration starts freely from the chest. This remedy was formulated many years ago by one of the best physicians New England has ever known, who never lost a patient by the disease, and won his renown by simple remedies."

An All-Round Book.

The book agent had spent a discouraging morning, and when he had an opportunity to scan the face of Eli Hobbs at close range, he felt that there was small chance of making a sale. However, he had more than one method of suggestion.

"Sitting out here on the piazza afternoons with your wife, this would be a very book to read aloud," he said, ingratiatingly, to Mr. Hobbs, taking the other rocking chair and opening the large red-covered volume.

"I don't read and I haven't any wife," replied Mr. Hobbs, dryly.

"Dear me!" said the book agent. "Well, if your wife is dead, perhaps there are children. Now, children find this book—"

"There are no children," interrupted Mr. Hobbs. "There's nobody but myself and my cat."

"Well," said the book agent, "don't you ever want a good heavy book to throw at her, just to ease your feelings?"—Youth's Companion.

Water, Water, Everywhere.

During the flood of 1903 an old darky living in the East bottoms awoke one morning to find his premises four feet under water. Later he was found by a party of rescuers walking about the yard prodding into the ground with a fishing pole. He was asked his purpose. "Good gracious, men," said he, "what do you think Ah am a-doin'? Ah am tryin' to find mah dog-goned well so Ah can git mahself a pail of watah."

Wrong Selections.

"Why doesn't that man get on in politics? He seems capable and industrious."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "he is all that. But he showed bad judgment in selecting his opinions."

"TWO TOPERS."

A Teacher's Experience.

"My friends call me 'The Postum Preacher,'" writes a Minn. school teacher, "because I preach the gospel of Postum everywhere I go, and have been the means of liberating many 'coffee-pot slaves.'

"I don't care what they call me so long as I can help others to see what they lose by sticking to coffee, and can show them the way to steady nerves, clear brain and general good health by using Postum.

"While a school girl I drank coffee and had fits of trembling and went through a siege of nervous prostration, which took me three years to rally from.

"Mother coaxed me to use Postum, but I thought coffee would give me strength. So things went, and when I married I found my husband and I were both coffee topers, and I can sympathize with a drunkard who tries to leave off his cups.

"At last in sheer desperation I bought a package of Postum, followed directions about boiling it, served it with good cream, and asked my husband how he liked the coffee.

"We each drank three cups apiece, and what a satisfied feeling it left. Our conversion has lasted several years and will continue as long as we live, for it has made us new—nerves are steady, appetites good, sleep sound and refreshing."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

SEAT CONTESTS ALL OVER

TAFT WINS 216 OF THEM AND SENATOR FORAKER THREE.

Former's Total Now 603—"Allies" Declare They Have Not Given Up.

Chicago.—Late Friday afternoon the Republican national committee completed the hearings of all contests submitted, and turned its attention to other matters. It had been in session for seven days of actual work, and had decided contests involving 219 seats on the temporary roll call. These contests have been decided as follows:

FOR TAFT.

Alabama	22
Arkansas	2
Florida	8
Georgia	16
Kentucky	8
Louisiana	18
Mississippi	16
Missouri	6
North Carolina	18
Ohio	7
Oklahoma	10
Pennsylvania	1
South Carolina	8
Tennessee	18
Texas	36
Virginia	18
Alaska	3
Arizona	2
Total	216

FOR FORAKER.

Virginia	2

As Taft had 387 instructed delegates before the national committee began the hearing of contests, he will now have a total of 603 delegates on the temporary roll call without taking into consideration any that have either indorsed him or declared for him in any other manner.

The only complete defeat sustained by the Taft delegates in the contests was in the Fifth Virginia district where a Foraker delegation was seated because a man was allowed to act as secretary of the district convention who had issued a call for a convention in his own county "For white men only."

Outside of the conclusion of the contests before the national committee the most important development of the day was the issuance by the "allies" of a statement in which they declared their intention of "sticking to the finish" and in which they asserted that it was certain that "there will be no nomination on the first ballot."

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK FREED

New York Jury Finds the Actor Not Guilty.

New York. — The jury in the case of Raymond Hitchcock, accused of mistreating young girls, returned a verdict of not guilty at 2:50 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mrs. Hitchcock was in court when the verdict was returned and, bursting into tears, embraced her husband, who was also congratulated by many friends who had waited in the courtroom for the verdict.

There being four other indictments against Hitchcock, he was remanded to the Tombs prison by Justice Goff. He will be admitted to bail.

JUDGE LANDIS SAVES BILLIK.

Grants Appeal as Preparations for Hanging Are Being Made.

Chicago.—Herman Billik escaped death on the gallows Friday by United States Judge Landis granting an appeal to the supreme court of the United States just as preparations were being made to take his life on the scaffold.

Billik was told the glad news by Jailer William T. Davies in the death chamber, where he was awaiting death with his neck bare of apparel in readiness for the noose. The prisoner thanked God and then collapsed into a chair.

ROBBED OF HIS YOUNG WIFE.

South Carolina Man Relates Strange Experience in Mountains.

Spartanburg, S. C.—W. F. Burns of Jackson county, S. C., while on a bridal trip across Panther mountain, in Greenville county, says he was robbed of his pretty young wife by a gang of six men, after he had been bound, beaten and robbed. He and his wife stopped at a cottage in the mountains and during the night the men entered the room of the couple, attacked Burns and took his wife down the mountain. He says he has not seen her since. The authorities are investigating his story.

Doings of Iowa Bankers.

Sioux City, Ia. — The refusal to go on record as favoring the enactment of a state law guaranteeing bank deposits, the passage of a resolution in favor of placing bank examiners on a salary, the election of officers and the selection of Waterloo as the next meeting place, were the principal features of the concluding session of the Iowa Bankers' association Friday. The new officers are: L. T. Brooks, Hedrick, president; J. H. Ingwerson, Clinton, vice-president; J. M. Dinwiddie, Cedar Rapids, secretary; D. L. Heinsheimer, Glenwood, treasurer.

ONE WOMAN'S ENDURANCE.

Southern Woman Suffers Torture Without Complaint.

Racked and torn with terrific pains, nightly annoyed by kidney irregularities, Mrs. A. S. Payne, of 801 Third ave, So., Columbus, Miss., suffered for years. She says: "The pains in my back, sides and loins were so terrible that I often smothered a scream. Every move meant agony. My rest was broken by a troublesome weakness and the secretions seemed to burn like acid. I was in an awful condition and doctors did not seem to help me. Doan's Kidney Pills benefitted me from the first and soon made me a strong and healthy woman."

The Missing Link.

What was said to be the "missing link between man and ape" was found by Dr. Dubois in 1895 on the banks of the Bengawan river, in central Java. These fossil remains consisted of a skull, a thigh bone and two molar teeth, from which the scientists "constructed" an animal, not human, yet nearer to man than the ape. The "link" was named "Pithecanthropus Erectus."—New York American.

WISE CHE-ILD.

"That horse must love his work, uncle."

"Why so, Egbert?"

"He's so attached to the wagon."

Milder Definition.

At Emersn's dinner table one day there was mention of a woman well known as a lion hunter; and, in speaking of her, Mrs. Emerson used the word "snob." Mr. Emerson objected, the word was too harsh; he didn't like that ugly class of words beginning with "sn." His wife inquired how he would characterize the lady. "I should say"—very slowly—"she is a person having great sympathy with success."

So Lifelike.

"Grey, the art critic came along just as I was looking at your new painting."

"You mean my 'At Work in the Fields.' And what did Grey think of it?"

"Commended its realism highly. Said even to look at it made him tired."

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pain in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you Remove the cause.

ADVICE BY EXPERT.

EASY MEANS OF ATTAINING A GRACEFUL FIGURE.

Simple Exercise Recommended by a Famous Physical Culturist—Mistakes of Beginners.

An English physical culturist has invented some exercises which he calls the empire exercises. He took them to Paris, but he found that the women there did not need them. And now he has sent them to this country.

These exercises, gathered together briefly, are these: They are called the empire exercises, and they are for the reduction of the belt line. Only this, and nothing more, unless one is full in the throat, when there are exercises for making the throat smaller.

Most people practicing the empire exercises will tighten up the belt. But this is not the way. The belt should be very loose to give the waist muscles full play. The corset should be taken off while one is exercising.

The empire exercises are simple enough. Put on something loose and do this: Step forward and sink upon knee. Regain your position and step forward with the other foot and sink upon the other knee. One foot goes forward and the other knee bends. That is the way to do it. The rule is to keep on until you are pretty well tired out.

The English instructor advises moderation. He says amateurs do too much in the beginning, and the result is a serious relapse. They get so tired that they take to the couch, and then there is no more exercise for weeks and months. Maybe the disgusted beginner gives it up forever.

The next of the empire exercises consists in bending from side to side. This is hard enough, and most likely a strain upon the muscles. But the enthusiast can take hold of a chair by way of assistance, and not bend too far either way. The idea is to bend the body until it feels supple. The more one bends in moderation the better.

The neck must be small if one is going to get the empire figure, and next winter one must have this figure, even though one does not plan to wear an empire gown. All dresses are to be a little shorter in the waist line, and not a word is heard about the straight front.

Took the Wrong House.

On one of the Southern railroads there is a station building that is commonly known by travelers as the smallest railroad station in America.

It is of this station that the story is told that an old farmer was expecting a chicken house to arrive there, and he sent one of his hands, a newcomer, to fetch it.

Arriving there the man saw the house, loaded it on his wagon and started for home.

On the way he met a man in uniform with the words "Station Agent" on his cap.

"Say, hold on. What have you got on that wagon," he asked.

"My chicken house, of course," was the reply.

"Chicken house be jiggered," exploded the official. "That's the station."

LUKE E. WRIGHT IS NAMED

TENNESSEEAN SELECTED TO SUCCEED SECRETARY TAFT.

White House Statement Praises His Work as Governor of Philippines and Ambassador to Japan.

Washington.—Secretary Taft Friday presented to the president his resignation to take effect June 30, and it was announced at the White House that Luke E. Wright of Tennessee will be appointed secretary of war to succeed Mr. Taft. In making this appointment the president was influenced somewhat by the desire to recognize in an emphatic way that there is no longer any dividing line between the north and the south, and that all good Americans are in thought and deed one, and still more by the fact that Gov. Wright's personal attributes and experience pre-eminently fit him for this particular position.

The statement given out at the White House concerning Mr. Wright's appointment says in part:

"As Philippine commissioner, and later as vice-governor and governor, he won the affection and regard of the army to a high degree and many of the most distinguished of the men who served in the army at the time he was in the Philippines have urged his appointment because they felt in a peculiar way that he was their champion, and in a peculiar way understood them and their needs.

"As a young man he was a captain in the confederate army. He is one of the leading lawyers, not only of his state, but of the entire south. He has also been foremost in advocating and insisting upon fair treatment for the colored people.

"He was appointed by President McKinley as one of the Philippine commission, and enjoyed President McKinley's heartiest confidence, being selected as one of the southerners who were in sympathy with his administration. By President Roosevelt he was promoted first to be vice-governor and then governor of the Philippines, and was afterward made first ambassador to Japan. In all positions he served with signal fidelity and has been in hearty and outspoken agreement with the administration in all its main policies."

MANY VESSELS IN DANGER.

Projectiles from New York Forts Fall Near Steamers.

New York.—Target practice of the big 12-inch guns was continued Thursday by Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth at the Narrows. There were a large number of vessels in the lower bay when firing started, and projectiles weighing more than half a ton fell near outgoing and incoming steamers. Forty rounds in all were fired.

The first shell from one of the big rifles struck between the trans-Atlantic liners Cedric and Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, throwing up a great volume of water. One projectile fell some distance ahead of the Deutschland and not far from several schooners that were beating out to sea. Each projectile weighed from 1,060 to 1,090 pounds.

KILLED KIDNAPPING CHILD.

Denver Man Shot on Farm near Kellogg.

Newton.—While trying to kidnap his little 5-year-old girl from his wife, from whom he was separated, Frank Parker of Denver, Colo., but formerly of Grinnell, was shot and killed near Kellogg, by George Young, a former business partner and the man who came between Parker and his wife. Parker's wounds were not immediately fatal, but he died several hours after the shooting. Young was arrested at the scene of the crime and brought to Newton, where he is now lodged in jail.

The shooting occurred at the Arthur Robinson farm, six miles southeast of Kellogg. On leaving her husband some weeks ago in Denver, Mrs. Parker and her three children came to stay at the home of her sister, Mrs. Robinson. Young appeared there soon afterward, presumably to be near Mrs. Parker, to whom he had become attentive during a year's association with Parker in the billiard hall business in Denver; he asked for employment on the Robinson farm as a hired hand and Robinson, who knew of no intimacy of any kind between his sister-in-law and Young, gave him work. Recently Parker learned that his wife had come to the Robinson's and a few days ago arrived in Kellogg, intent upon effecting a reconciliation. He called up the Robinson home by telephone, talked briefly with his wife, but was told that she would not see him. In spite of this the husband hired a livery rig and drove out to the Robinson farm, arriving there about 10 o'clock.

True to her word, Mrs. Parker refused to see her husband and he was denied admission to the house for a talk with her. He returned to go and as he did, his little 5-year-old girl came running out to greet him and kiss him. On the impulse of the moment the father picked up his little girl, told her he was going to take her with him and put her in the buggy. Climbing in himself, he started to drive off amid the frantic cries of the mother, who had watched the whole affair.

At this juncture Young came to the scene. He sprang to the heads of the horses, calling to Parker to stop and threatening him. The sight of Young angered Parker and he drew a gun. But the horses ran into a gatepost and in handling the reins Parker lost his weapon. Immediately thereafter, Young shot twice, the first shot taking effect in the back of Parker's neck and the second striking him in the left side of the face. Parker fell from the buggy mortally wounded and later was carried into the house.

Newton.—George Young was held criminally responsible for the shooting of Frank Parker near Kellogg. The coroner's jury returned a verdict declaring that Parker came to his death from gun-shot wounds inflicted by Young and that Young was not justified in shooting his victim.

FATHER SHOOTS SON.

Shell Rock Farm is Scene of Awful Tragedy.

Shell Rock.—After getting drunk with him and then quarreling violently, Hans Buelkas, a farmer living near here, shot and perhaps fatally wounded his 21-year-old son, Antone Buelkas, with a shot gun. At a range of less than thirty feet, the full charge of shot entered the boy's groin and legs, and it is doubtful if he can survive. The father is under arrest and was bound over to the grand jury at the preliminary hearing.

KING GIVES UP JOB.

Veteran Head of Cornell College Resigns Place.

Mount Vernon.—William F. King, the beloved president of Cornell college and the dean of all American college presidents, has finally prevailed upon the board of trustees to accept his resignation, and, with the closing school year, his labors as the chief executive of the institution end. His connection with the institution to which he has devoted a half century of his life, forty-three years as president, will not entirely cease, for he retains the rank of president emeritus.

Vice President James Harlan was unanimously chosen to succeed Dr. King.

The board of trustees of Cornell college in accepting at last the resignation of the beloved president of the college, which has previously on more than one occasion been offered to the board, and upon its earnest solicitation withdrawn, places upon record its sincere regret that the time has come when after forty-five years of continuous service at the head of this institution it seems right and reasonable that he should be relieved.

CYCLONE IN SIOUX CITY.

One of the Injured Victims May Die of Wounds.

Sioux City.—Two houses were demolished and a half dozen barns destroyed in a cyclone which visited the eastern outskirts of Sioux City on the morning of the 18th. Several person were injured, one perhaps fatally.

The residence of Mrs. Mattie B. Howe on the east limits of Greenville was picked up by the wind and tossed down a nearby ravine. The three persons in the house, Mrs. Howe, Charles Eakman, her nephew, and Charles Youhill, were badly injured and narrowly escaped death. The building was dashed to kindling wood.

The home of Fred De Maranville at Morningside was blown 50 feet.

Three bridges were blown from their holdings. Growing crops in the path of the cyclone were completely destroyed.

CRIME IN SIOUX CITY.

Murder, Suicide and Accident All in One Day.

Sioux City.—The wave of crime and casualty certainly struck Sioux City on the 15th. Early in the morning the body of Fred Geinke, a veteran cobbler, was found suspended by a rope in his shoe shop; Mrs. L. S. Critchell, a prominent society woman, was burned at 11:30 o'clock A. M. and died at 5:30 in the afternoon; Selma Arnold, a negress who had been shot by mistake by Paul Ross, a negro, died at the Samaritan hospital; because she would not marry him, Orville Whitford shot at Ethel Mathews and then killed himself.

354 GRADUATES AT IOWA.

Largest Class in History of The State University.

Iowa City.—Commencement at the state university was in number of degrees the largest in the university's history.

Four hundred and sixteen degrees and certificates were awarded. There were thirty candidates for advanced degrees, 296 candidates for first degrees and ninety candidates for certificates. As a number of persons received both degrees and certificates there are some duplicates in the figures, and the total number of persons who were candidates was 354 against about 313 last year.

Strikebreakers Routed.

Marshalltown.—For the first time in several weeks strikers and strike breakers clashed in the Iowa Central strike district. A party of strike breakers left the shops to go to a nearby saloon, and were there met by a party of strikers. A fight ensued and a strike breaker named Murphy was pretty roughly handled, it is said. The strike breakers were routed and driven back on company property. No arrests were made.

Dies of Tornado Fright.

Marble Rock.—Miss Edith Mass residing near Marble Rock, died on the 18th, the result of brain congestion caused by fright from the recent tornado which passed in the neighborhood a few days previous. She was badly frightened and was taken ill immediately. Her home was badly damaged by the storm. She was born in Minnesota and was 25 years of age.

"THE MAN BEHIND THE GUN."

BLACK HAND MEN ARE SHOT

THREE KILLED, ONE WOUNDED IN NEW ORLEANS.

Wealthy Italian Merchant and His Son Dine the Blackmailers and Then Open Fire on Them.

New Orleans.—A "Black Hand" tragedy with the unusual sequel that all the blackmailers, numbering four, were killed or wounded, while their victims escaped without a scratch, was enacted here Wednesday in the historic former home of Gen. Beauregard in the French quarter, and now the residence of Pietro Giacona, a wine merchant, reputed to be one of the wealthiest Italians in the south.

Giacona is 61 years old and how he and his son, Carrada, managed to kill three armed and desperate men is not yet clear to the police. It is certain that the Giaconas invited the blackmailers into their house and wined and dined them for several hours before the shooting. The Giaconas claim that the unusual feast was practically forced on them and that they did not shoot until after one of their guests had opened fire. The dead are Giovanni Barreca, Ciro Cusimano and one unidentified Italian.

The wounded man is Francisco Vattali of St. Louis. Vattali claims to have been shot while passing Giacona's house, leaving the possibility that the fourth guest may have escaped, despite his wounds.

MRS. FARMER CONVICTED.

Murderer of Mrs. Brennan Sentenced to Be Electrocuted.

Watertown, N. Y.—Guilty of murder in the first degree was the verdict of the jury Friday in the case of Mrs. Mary Farmer, charged with the killing of Mrs. Sarah Brennan. Justice Rogers sentenced Mrs. Farmer to be electrocuted at Auburn prison during the week beginning August 2.

The crime for which Mrs. Farmer, who is 29 years old, was convicted was most fiendish. Her victim, who was 55 years old, was her neighbor and intimate friend, and the motive was to gain possession of the Brennan home, deeds of which Mrs. Farmer had forged.

CONGRESSMAN WILEY DIES.

Representative from Alabama Who Saw Service in Cuba.

Hot Springs, Va.—Representative A. A. Wiley of Alabama, who served in Cuba as Gen. Lawton's chief of staff and as civil governor of the eastern province, and a member of the last four congresses, died at a hotel here Wednesday. He was about 50 years old. He suffered for weeks with inflammatory rheumatism and general physical breakdown and during the last of his illness became irrational through the protracted strain on his system.

Fashionable Gamblers Caught.

New York.—Three thousand persons gathered along West Twenty-third street near Broadway Tuesday night and watched the police make a spectacular raid on a gambling house said to be patronized by guests of several of the up-town hotels. Patrons of the place, all in evening clothes, endeavored to get away by the fire escapes, but were confronted by detectives, who had been placed at every possible exit. The managers of the place and the patrons were taken to the police station in patrol wagons.

RETIRES AS PARTY CHIEF.

John Sharp Williams Resigns Minority Leadership in House.

Eufaula, Ala.—Congressman John Sharp Williams of Mississippi has resigned the minority leadership of the house of representatives, to take effect December 1 next. This announcement is made by Congressman H. D. Clayton, chairman of the Democratic caucus.

In a letter to Mr. Clayton, under Washington date of June 13, Mr. W

John Sharp Williams.

liams, without previous intimation of his intentions to retire, writes in taking this step he does he is actuated solely by the idea that it is best for the Democratic party. In resigning thus early, he is moved, he says, by a desire to give the minority ample time to consider whom they want to succeed him, and also for the reason that if the next house is Democratic the new speaker, whoever he may be, ought to have the experience which the position of floor leader would give him during the short session next winter.

PATIENT SHOOTS DOCTOR.

Milwaukee Physician Dangerously Wounded for Failure to Cure.

Milwaukee.—Dr. Frank Stirn of Cudahy, a suburb of Milwaukee, was shot and probably mortally wounded by a man named Antony Kriz Thursday. Kriz was arrested. Three shots are supposed to have been fired while the doctor was sitting in his office. It is said that Kriz was a patient of Dr. Stirn and that he fired the shots because the physician had failed to cure him of an ailment with which he suffered.

Three Dead in Mimic War.

New York.—Two more deaths in the Post hospital at Fort Wadsworth Friday brought the casualties of the mimic war to three. The dead are John Welsh, aged 25; George Harvey, aged 22, and James McDowell, aged 21, all members of the Ninth regiment New York National Guard.

Harvard Square Bookseller Dies.

Boston.—Benjamin H. Richardson, known to Harvard graduates as the bookseller of Harvard Square, and the landlord of President Roosevelt during his entire college course, died Friday, aged 76 years.

But you got , Seffy, ol' boy—and Sally, too, be- hens! Shall we get at the fence ay?" Seffy did not respond. And father knew better than most of where suggestion should stop.

All right. We bose busy to-day. bby we better let it be tell to-mor- ."

f course Old Baumgartner was well are that his logic would not bear least scrutiny. And he regarded y anxiously as he raced through But dull happy Seffy saw no flaws it. He agreed with his father that had out-sat Sam. And, if it had not n too plainly accidental, he would e adopted the fancy that he had a heroic purpose in it—so con- cing was his father's logic to his le mind.

The old man rattled on. Seffy must t think much.

"And snoring! Hah! Nossing— ssing at all! I could gife you les- ns in snoring. And you' mammy to say that she liked it. It wasn't lonely and she knowed I was on k and alife. Snoring! Aha—ha-ha! hat's that—if you are sure of the t!"

Seffy ahemmed several times and looked less like a condemned malefactor—though still far from suborned.

"That dam' molasses-tapper—he's got to be licked—and if I got to do it myself—though I ain't much of a licker. The whole county'll know about that—to—to—" he turned away to smile—"tombstone. I bet he's got it hanging up in the store now! We got to let 'em know that you set him out, Sef! Yas—stayed tell daylight! Woke up and stayed! Sleeping was chust to ketch him! You was awake all the time! Lie a little, hah?"

His father was proud of this last. As they drew apart he called back:

"If she don't like snoring, Sef, wear a clothes-pin when you set up wiss her—one of them wiss a spring—not? Aha—ha-ha!" And then: "You all right, Sef—yassir! you all right—you the conquering hero comes! Go right back—mebby to-night—you entitled to do it."

"Begoshens, I will!" said Seffy in his father's own slogan.

Seffy would have pressed his suit even without this, I think—because of those moments in the dark parlor. One does not soon forget that sort of thing.

"Now," advised his father, "you know well enough what kind of a temper goes wiss her hair—I use to haf hair enough onct—and it was red! All right when it's on your side. But hell when it's ag'in you. Them red-heads always regrets—I do and she does! Say—Sef—Seffy, don't you let her regret in vain—ketch her while she's at it."

So, Seffy went up the hill again—not that night—which was a mistake—he could not quite bring himself to that—but the next. And he had washed the grease out of his hair and left the hat at home as well as the butterfly tie and the boots and, if I do say it, he was a very handsome fellow, worth at least a dozen of his rival.

But Sally, watching for this very thing, saw him coming and hardened her heart, as Pharaoh did in the face of proffered felicity, and, by a good deal of forcible instruction, she succeeded in getting the little maid to say that she was not at home. The maid's untutored face showed Seffy that she was not telling the truth, however, and she was not sorry for it. She would never have treated Seffy so!

Seffy shifted his hat from one hand to the other and then said:

"Tell her—tell her—when she comes home—that I'm sorry—" He did not exactly know what he was sorry for, and so said good night and went.

"He knowed you was at home!" reproached the little maid. "He was sorry for you."

"What did he say?" demanded Sally savagely.

"To tell you that he was sorry—when you got home."

"When I got home? Then I better stay away, I expect. That's what he meant, did he? Well, I'll show him!" But the maid understood Seffy's rustic chivalry and she did not laugh with her mistress.

Yet, Sally went back to her window and again watched, hoping Seffy would look back. She was not quite sure what she would do. Perhaps she would get angry—perhaps—But if he would only look! He did not, and Sally understood that he had accepted his conge as she had given it. And quite as the old man had said, she did regret, now, and she had regretted that other night. But there was more penance than he had said or thought. Yet—there was the Pressel temper! And it did not await the subsidence of the sorrow, but rose at once. What business had he tamely to accept the situation?

I am satisfied that there is some connection between red hair and temper. And I am, further, satisfied that there is even more between the associated ideas of red hair, temper and regret. But my difficulty is to determine just where each stands. Logically, the regret ought to come last. But, to Sally, and in this case, it came in the middle. For, she began and she ended without it, but she distinctly remembered having had it. Therefore, it must have been in the middle.

And Sam administered Seffy's coup de grace! Perhaps it was accidental. But I think it must have been nothing less than spying and then devilish invention—it was so entirely apropos.

As Seffy descended the Hill of Delight on which Sally's pretty little house stood, Sam ascended it, singing, as he passed Seffy:

"Napoleon, with a thousand men, Marched up the hill and down again."

From his own darkness, Seffy saw a golden shaft of light burst from the door at the top of the Hill of Delight, and, in it, he saw Sam mount to where was his heart's desire.

VII.

The Poison-Spring in the Cotton Woods.

They met on the damp country road one evening—Sally and the old man—two weeks later. She was walking with drooping head, and, when she suddenly raised it, as he ahemmed, he was quite sure that she had been crying.

"I don't know what's the matter wiss him!" said Seffy's father, as if they had been discussing Seffy.

"Who?" asked the girl tremulously—though she knew—"he ain't sick?"

"Sef—Seffy—my Seffy. No—not exactly—not to say sick. I like him so—he's all I got—and it's somesing wrong wiss him. He can't live long this way. Efery night he's down by the Poison spring—wiss the witches—often all night. He's there now. I chust kem away—trying to cheer him up a little. Well, so good night."

He passed on, for he was a merciful old man, and Sally hurried away to the Poison spring. And Old Baumgartner laughed through his gnarled hands behind the cover of the next turn in the road, though even to him laughter was no more gay, as of yore.

Seffy was there, on his back, with his hands under his head, staring up at the moon. He looked pitifully around. A great lump surged in Sally's throat, and if she had obeyed only her heart she would have flung her arms around him. But another of those qualities which go with red hair, pride, prevented this. She coughed a little and Seffy flew around.

"I—was just taking a walk," she said.

"Yes," said Seffy humbly.

"The Poison spring is—on my property——"

"I'll go away!" said Seffy, rising. He looked gaunt as he stood on his feet in the moonlight.

"Seffy—I didn't mean—" began the really unhappy girl, her head quite giving way to her heart now.

"I got nowheres else to go now," excused Seffy. "I can't go to the store—Sam's got the tombstone there—or anywhere where there's people—account everybody knows. Sam's got a notice of it hung up in the store. It's all they talk about. He got it printed in the paper, too! I'd go away, out west, but pappy don't want me to go. I come here, account no one else ever comes—it's unhealthy. I didn't know that you owned——" He was shambling off. The last words came from a distance. "Good night."

He did not know that Sally was following him. When she spoke it was close behind him. He veered so suddenly as to catch the pain in her face. But he was dull, Seffy.

"Seffy," she said, close upon him, "Seffy, I was at home."

Seffy said nothing.

"Seffy—I am unhappy—and a fool!"

Still Seffy did not move nor speak.

"Don't you care that I am unhappy?"

Still silence.

"And don't you never forgive no one?"

At the end was a sob.

Ah! Seffy could not harbor ill against a dog that had bit him. And Sally sobbed. The hands he had kissed before, he kissed again—in that fashion, you will remember, which must have survived from some cavalier ancestor.

FIFTY RUPEES EASILY MADE.

Tricky Indian Merchant Feared Inquisitive Stranger.

An Indian merchant wished to dispose of an old elephant and took it to a fair. As soon as he had arrived he noticed a man who, without saying a word, began to walk round the animal, examining it attentively on all sides. The merchant became very anxious, for he feared the man had found out that his elephant was not worth much. He took him aside and whispered in his ear: "I see a customer coming. Do not say a word until I have sold the beast and I will give you 50 rupees." The man looked at the merchant and wonderingly complied with his request. It happened that the customer had more money than sense, so that he was easily taken in. When the bargain was completed and the elephant led away by its new owner, the merchant handed the 50 rupees to the silent man, saying: "Now, I want you to tell me how you discovered the defect in his left leg. I thought I had concealed it so skilfully." "I have discovered nothing," replied the stranger. "It is the first elephant I have ever seen, and I wanted to know which was the head and which was the tail."—Exchange.

But Seeing Is Believing.

Three business men of Chicago, one of whom is said to be rather "close" in financial matters, were on their way to luncheon one day, when they were stopped by several sisters of charity, soliciting alms. Each one of the three men contributed something; but when one of the sisters inadvertently solicited from the "close" man a second time, he protested politely that he had already done his part. As the three continued on their way, one whispered in the ear of the other, "I believe him, but I did not see it." "I saw him do it," whispered back the second man, "but I don't believe it."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Why She Asked.

"Have you ever kissed a girl before?" she asked.

"Why do you put that question to me?" he replied.

"I only wished to know whether it was lack of experience or natural awkwardness that made you go about it in such a ridiculous way."

ECZEMA ALL OVER HIM.

No Night's Rest for a Year and Limit of His Endurance Seemed Near —Owes Recovery to Cuticura.

"My son Clyde was almost completely covered with eczema. Physicians treated him for nearly a year without helping him any. His head, face, and neck were covered with large scabs which he would rub until they fell off. Then blood and matter would run out and that would be worse. Friends coming to see him said that if he got well he would be disfigured for life. When it seemed as if he could possibly stand it no longer, I used some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. That was the first night for nearly a year that he slept. In the morning there was a great change for the better. In about six weeks he was perfectly well. Our leading physician recommends Cuticura for eczema. YOU'RE TOO THIN.

Even Slight Catarrhal Derangements of the Stomach Produce Acid Fermentation of the Food.

It's Stomach Catarrh

Some people are thin and always remain thin, from temperamental reasons. Probably in such cases nothing can be done to change this personal peculiarity.

But there are a large number of people who get thin, or remain thin, who naturally would be plump and fleshy but for some digestive derangement.

Thin people lack in adipose tissue.

Adipose tissue is chiefly composed of fat.

Fat is derived from the oily constituents of food.

The fat-making foods are called by the physiologist, hydrocarbons. This class of foods are not digested in the stomach at all. They are digested in the duodenum, the division of the alimentary canal just below the stomach.

The digestion of fat is mainly, if not wholly, the work of the pancreatic juice. This juice is of alkaline reaction, and is rendered inert by the addition of acid. A hyperacidity of the digestive fluids of the stomach passing down into the duodenum, destroys the pancreatic fluid for digestive purposes. Therefore, the fats are not digested or emulsified, and the system is deprived of its due proportion of oily constituents. Hence, the patient grows thin.

The beginning of the trouble is a catarrhal condition of the stomach which causes hyperacidity of the gastric juices. This hyperacidity is caused by fermentation of food in the stomach. When the food is taken into the stomach, if the process of digestion does not begin immediately, acid fermentation will take place. This creates a hyperacidity of the stomach juices which in their turn prevent the pancreatic digestion of the oils, and the emaciation results.

A dose of Peruna before each meal hastens the stomach digestion. By hurrying digestion, Peruna prevents fermentation of the contents of the stomach, and the pancreatic juices thus preserved in its normal state. It then only remains for the patient to eat a sufficient amount of fat-forming foods, and the thinness disappears and plumpness takes its place.

Dr. Geo. Zinn left last week Thursday for Covington, Ind. to settle the estate of his deceased brother. The Dr. expects to spend the summer in the east During his absence his practice will be in charge of Dr. W. F. Missman who will be in close communication with Dr. Zinn.

Stomach troubles are very common in the summer time, and you should not only be very careful about what you eat just now, but more than this, you should be careful not to allow your stomach to become disordered, and when the stomach goes wrong take Kodol. This is the best known preparatior that is offered to the people today for dyspepsia or indigestion or any stomach trouble. Kodol digests all foods. It is pleasant to take. It is sold at Klemme by J. L. Harr & Co.

Fred Haupt, wife and daughter returned Monday from their visit at Milwaukee, Wis, Chicago Ill. and Michigan City, Ind. Fred says that the small grain is looking better in this vicinity than anywhere he had been in his travels.

Nature has provided the stomach with certain natural fluids known as the digestive juices, and it is through these juices that the food we eat is acted upon in such a way as to produce the rich, red blood that flows through the veins of our body and thereby makes us strong, healthy and robust, and it is the weakening of these digestive juices that destroys health. It is our fault if we destroy our own health, and yet it is so easy for any one to put the stomach out of order. When you need to take something take it promptly, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take. it is reliable and is guaranteed to give relief. It is sold by J. L. Harr & Co., Klemme.

People Talk About Good Things.

Twelve years ago few people knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Feet. To-day after the genuine merits of Allen's Foot-Ease have been told year after year by grateful persons, it is indispensable to millions. It is cleanly, wholesome, healing and antiseptic and gives rest and comfort to tired aching feet.

It cures while you walk. Over 30,000 testimonials. Imitations pay the dealer a larger profit otherwise you would never be offered a substitute for Allen's Foot-Ease, the original foot powder. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, and see that you get it.

The Perennial.

According to the Atlanta Constitution, a Georgia farmer posted this sign on his front gate:

"Candidates will pass on. No time to talk to 'em."

One morning his little boy shouted from the garden walk:

"There's one o' them canderdates here, an' he says he'll come in anyhow!"

The old man looked toward the gate and said:

"Let him in. There's no harm in him. I know him. He's been runnin' ever sence the war—jest to be a-runnin'. It runs in his blood an' he can't help it!"

One of Bill Nye's.

Referring to a real estate transaction made by one Peter Minuit, way back in the year 1628, Bill Nye, in his history of the United States, declared:

"New York was afterwards sold for $24; the whole island. When I think of this I go into my family gallery, which I also use as a swear room, and tell those ancestors what I think of them. Where were they when New York sold for $24?"

The humor of this strikes deeply when one stops to consider what has been the outcome of this original investment. Peter Minuit, with trinkets and a few bottles of rum, so delighted the native indians that they gladly turned over to him the whole of Manhattan island, now the heart of Greater New York.—"New York, the Giant City," National Magazine.

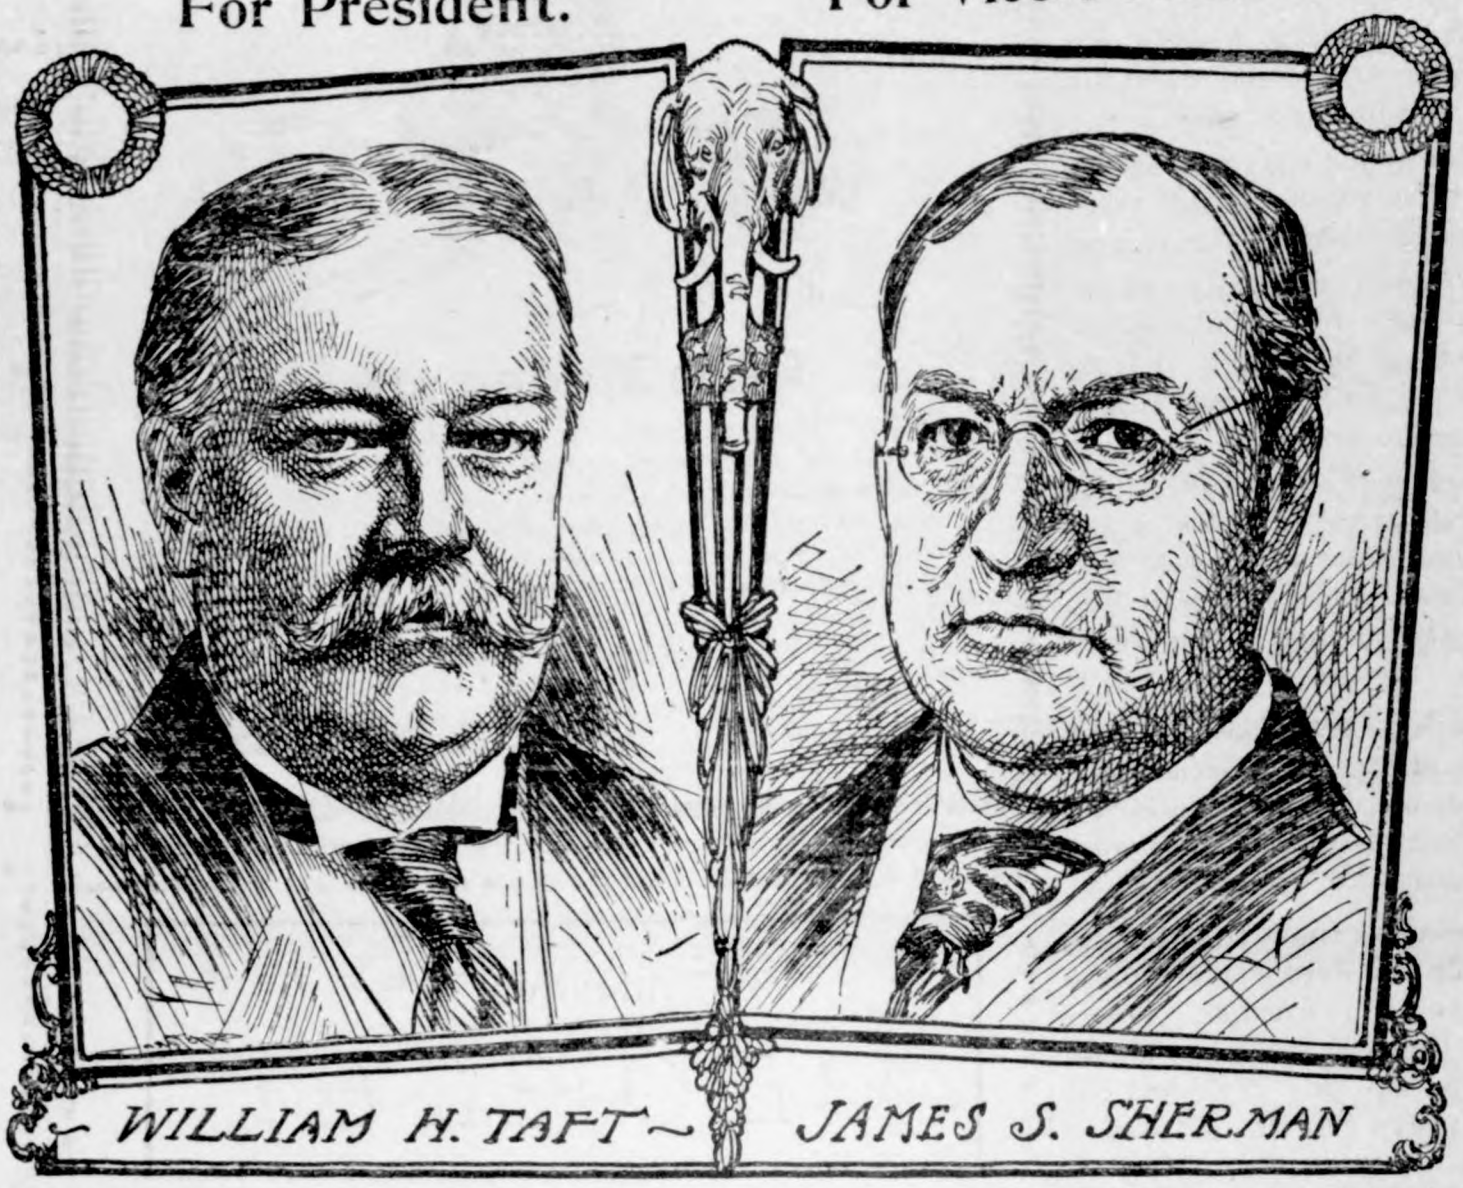
REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET



TAFT AS PRESIDENT; SHERMAN FOR MATE, IS REPUBLICAN SLATE

Convention at Chicago Selects National Ticket and Adjourns==Wild Enthusiasm on Nomination of Ohioan==Demonstration for Theodore Roosevelt

Chicago. — Taft and Sherman. This is the ticket of the Republican party flung to the breeze Friday as the Republican national convention concluded with the nomination of James S. Sherman of New York for vice-president amid a final roar of tumultuous demonstration.

Scene of Wild Enthusiasm.

The picture within the walls of the vast amphitheater as the presidential candidate was named Thursday was one truly gradiose in its magnitude. In front, to the right and left, below and above, the billowing sea of humanity, restless after hours of waiting and stirred from one emotion to another, was in a fever of expectancy for the culminating vote. The favorite sons of other states had been named, save Knox and La Follette, and now on the roll call came Ohio.

As the Buckeye state was reached, the tall, gaunt form of Theodore E. Burton, with student-like face and severe black clerical garb, advanced to the platform to nominate Ohio's candidate. He spoke fervently, with the singing voice of an evangelist, which went ringing through the great building. The close of his speech of nomination was the signal for loosing the long pent-up feeling of the Taft legions. Instantly the Ohio delegates were on their feet, other Taft states following, while the convention hosts, in gallery and on floor, broke into mad demonstration. For 10, 15, 20 minutes, this uproar continued. At last the tired voices died down to a hoarse shout, and subsided.

Seconded by Knight.

This lull now gave the opportunity for the speech seconding Taft's nomination, by George H. Knight of California, his big, round face beaming forth on the sympathetic multitude, and his splendid baritone voice welling forth like the tones of a great church organ. California's tribute to Taft was brief and fervid. Now there was another lull in the Taft movement, while the remaining candidates were placed in nomination.

It was late in the afternoon before the convention, now literally sweltering with the intense heat and weary after nearly seven hours of continuous session, reached the end of the flood of eloquence and the decks were at last cleared for the culminating act.

A hush of expectancy hung over the assembly as the call proceeded. Hasty summaries showed that Taft was far in advance. When New York was reached the Taft column totaled 427. Ohio carried the Taft total to 511, or 20 more than enough to nominate. Still the call went on until the final result was announced by Chairman Lodge:

"For Theodore Roosevelt, 3 votes; for Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio 16 votes; for Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, 40 votes; for Joseph Cannon of Illinois, 61 votes; for Robert La Follette of Wisconsin, 25 votes; for Charles E. Hughes of New York, 63 votes; for Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, 68 votes, and William H. Taft of Ohio, 702 votes.

A great shout went up as Lodge concluded his announcement, and with one accord the cohorts of Cannon and Knox and Hughes and the other heroes, joined in a common tribute for the candiate of the party.

Sherman for Second Place.

The nomination for the vice-presidency was not made until Friday. When the convention adjourned for the day Thursday the situation regarding second place on the ticket was decidedly unsettled, but before the delegates met Friday an arrangement had been perfected for the Taft delegates to support Representative James S. Sherman of New York as the running mate of the secretary of war.

Three names were placed in nomination when the chairman announced that nominations were in order. Sherman was named as New York's choice by Tim Woodruff, former lieutenant governor of the state; Gov. Curtis Guild of Massachusetts was placed in nomination by Senator Lodge, and Ex-Gov. Franklin Murphy of New Jersey was named by Thomas N. McCarter. Several brief seconding speeches were made for each candidate.

When the roll call was begun it was soon seen that Sherman was the popular choice of the delegates. When enough votes had been cast to insure his nomination Senator Crane of Massachusetts moved that it be made unanimous and it was carried with a shout of approval.

The usual motions of acknowledgment to the officers of the convention and to the city in which it was held were then passed.

Judson W. Lyon of Georgia was recognized to make the motion to adjourn without day. It was put into effect at 11:47 a. m. The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," the delegates rapidly left the hall and the convention of 1908 had made its way into history.

The second day of the Republican national convention brought the long-expected Roosevelt yell, a whirlwind of enthusiasm which raged within the vast amphitheater of the Coliseum for full 45 minutes Wednesday, and for a time presented to the timid the specter of a Roosevelt stampede.

This demonstration was decidedly the feature of a day otherwise notable for a stirring speech from the permanent chairman of the convention, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachuetts.

Mr. Lodge early in his address launched his sentence which electrified the assemblage into its first real demonstration of wild enthusiasm.

"The president," exclaimed Mr. Lodge, "is the best abused and most popular man in the United States today."

This was the long awaited signal. Instantly a shout broke from the galleries and was echoed back from the floor, at first only a tempest of detached yells, and cat-calls, and shouts of "Teddy," but gradually gathering force and volume until it swelled to a whirlwind of sound and motion, as delegates and spectators rose en masse, mounting chairs, waving banners, hats, handkerchiefs, flags, newspapers, anything which could be seized upon to add turbulence to the scene

PLATFORM AT A GLANCE.

Roosevelt—

The abuse of wealth, the tyranny of power, and the evils of privilege and favoritism have been put to scorn by him. We pledge a continuance of the Roosevelt policies.

Anti-Injunction—

The Republican party will uphold the authority of the courts, but believes the rules of procedure in federal courts with respect to injunctions should be more accurately defined by statute, and that no injunction should be issued without notice.

Labor—

The same wise policy will be pursued to lighten the burdens of all who toil.

Tariff—

The Republican party declares for a revision of tariff by a special session of congress. We favor the establishment of maximum and minimum rates.

Money—

An expanding commerce . . . and increasing crop movements disclose the need of a more elastic and adaptable system.

Trusts—

The government should have greater supervision over corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

Inland Waterways—

We call for a large and comprehensive plan to improve the waterways, harbors, and great lakes.

Army and Navy—

While the American people do not desire and will not provoke a war with any other country, we nevertheless declare our devotion to a policy which will keep this republic ready at all times to defend her traditional doctrines.

Good Roads—

We approve the efforts of the agricultural department in good road construction.

Negroes—

We condemn all devices for the disfranchisement of the negro.

Republican Policy—

The difference between Democracy and Republicanism is that one stands for vacillation and timidity in government, the other for strength and purpose. Democracy would have the nation own the people, while Republicanism would have the people own the nation.

HITCHCOCK REFUSES THE CHAIRMANSHIP

DECLINES HONOR OF HEADING THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

SAYS HIS HEALTH WILL NOT PERMIT

Committee Adjourns Without Taking Any Action—Will Meet in Washington July 1—Official Statement Issued.

Cincinnati, June 22.—No choice was made for the management of the Republican presidential campaign at the conference in this city Saturday between the candidates and the subcommittees from the national committee, and an adjourned meeting will be held in Washington on July 1, to consider the matter further. The meeting lasted for more than an hour and the discussion was very full, many different men being discussed in connection with the national chairmanship. For Frank H. Hitchcock, whose name had been very generally mentioned in connection with the position, it was announced that on account of his health he wished to be left out of consideration. Availability of others was considered, but adjournment was taken without anything definite having been agreed upon.

Official Statement Issued.

The following official statement was issued immediately after the conference:

"Yesterday the national committee in session at Chicago, delegated to a sub-committee, consisting of eight members, the power to act in the matter of the selection of a chairman and treasurer of the national committee, and directed its sub-committee to confer with the nominees for president and vice-president before action. All the members of the sub-committee were present at the conference Saturday with the nominees except Mr. W. L. Ward of New York, who was represented by Mr. Hart of Iowa. The conference of the committee showed harmonious views as to the qualifications necessary for a chairman but disclosed an indisposition on the part of several, who were suggested as available, to accept the place, including Mr. Hitchcock, who declined to be considered on account of his health. After full conference the committee decided that the matter was of such importance and required such consultation with various persons, suggested as available for the place, that an adjournment was taken until July 1, when the committee will reconvene in Washington. The committee delegated the Hon. Myron T. Herrick to make public this statement. The proceedings of the conference with this exception were executive."

Hitchcick's Friends Insistent.

Chicago, June 22.—When the dispatch from Cincinnati was shown to Frank H. Hitchcock Saturday afternoon he said that it is true that he had asked Mr. Taft not to consider him in the light of a candidate, and that as a matter of fact he is physically exhausted as the result of his work here. Friends of Mr. Hitchcock here continue to press him for the appointment regardless of his declination, and they expect to induce him yet to take the place.

Tawney May Succeed Sherman.

Washington, June 22.—The nomination of Representative James S. Sherman as vice-presidential candidate by the Republican national convention leaves vacant the chairmanship of the Republican congressional committee, and out of the speculation as to who would be his successor in this position grew the belief Friday night that Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota would be selected to take up the work. Mr. Tawney at present is vice-chairman of the committee.

Others who were mentioned Friday night as possible candidates for the chairmanship were Representative Loudenslager of New Jersey, now secretary of the committee, and Representative William B. McKinley of Illinois, its treasurer.

SIX DEAD IN MINE.

Explosion of Gas at Monongahela Caused by Careless Miner.

Monongahela, Pa., June 22.—One American and three foreigners are dead and one American and five foreigners are injured as the result of an explosion late Friday at the Ellsworth coal mine No. 1, near here. The accident, it is said, was caused by a foreigner entering the mine with a lighted torch. Just as this man reached a party of nine companions a pocket of gas was encountered. Immediately a terrific explosion followed. Had the accident occurred a short time earlier the entire day force of 500 miners would have been caught and probably another horrible mine disaster recorded.

W. H. TAFT AT HOME

THOUSANDS GREET HIM ON HIS ARRIVAL IN CINCINNATI

TAFT MEETS RUNNING MATE

Taft's Brother, Charles, Puts His Arm around Secretary and Embraces Him.

Cincinnati, O., June 21.—Secretary Taft had a joyous home coming yesterday. Arriving in his native city at 8:10 o'clock yesterday morning he was greeted at the Central station by thousands of his long time friends and neighbors. The station was crowded with admirers of the republican standard bearer, who gave him an enthusiastic welcome.

The first to grasp the big war secretary's hand as he stepped from the Baltimore & Southwestern train was his brother, Charles P. Taft, who had arrived a few minutes before from Chicago. The greeting of the brothers, who are devoted to each other, was affectionately cordial. As they clasped right hands Charles threw his left arm over the secretary's shoulder and gave him a loving embrace. Both were laughing as heartily as though they were boys again.

An instant later the beaming face of James S. Sherman of New York, the nominee for vice president, appeared in the throng.

"Hello, Sherman!" shouted Secretary Taft, extending his hand cordially to his running mate. "I'm mighty glad to see you. You don't look as though you had passed through the siege of a nominating convention."

"I never felt better," responded Mr. Sherman. "We had a great convention and I take this opportunity to say to you that the result, so far as you are concerned, was equally great. I want personally to join with the country in renewing my congratulations."

Together, behind a throng of citizens, members of the Blaine and Stamina Republican clubs, each carrying a blue pennant bearing a handsome likeness of the war secretary, the two candidates, arm in arm, walked to the entrance of the station where they were received by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by Capt. Thomas P. Egan, president of the chamber. Mr. J. G. Schmidlapp, a member of the committee, had joined the secretary on his train about ten miles from the city. The general committee of welcome on behalf of the citizens of Cincinnati was headed by Colonel Leopold Markbreit, mayor of the city.

An informal parade was formed on Central avenue and, led by a band, proceeded up the avenue to Fourth street, and thence directly to the residence of Charles P. Taft on Pike street.

In an interview before the conference Secretary Taft said:

"This home-coming is one of the sweetest incidents in my life. It was wholly unexpected. I had thought I would slip into the city without notice, but here, with comparatively a moment's notice, I find scores of my friends present to greet me. So cordial has been this greeting that it makes a fellow's heart jump into his mouth. I am always glad to return to Cincinnati, but at no time have I been more happly to return to the old town than this morning. My object in coming at this time is to meet a sub-committee of the national committee, and after the business is completed I will leave for the east, having an engagement in New Haven next week.

"I telgraphed Mr. Sherman to come on and he will attend all sessions of the committee."

The following official statement was issued immediately after the conference:

"Yesterday the national committee, in session in Chicago, delegated to a sub-committee consisting of eight members, the power to act in the matter of the selection of the appointment of a chairman and secretary of the national committee and directed the subcommittee to confer with the nominees for president and vice president before action. All the members of the subcommittee were present at the conference with the nominees except Mr. W. L. Ward of New York, who was represented by Mr. Hart of Iowa."

The conference showed harmonious views as to the qualifications necessary for a chairman, but disclosed an indispoition on the part of several who were suggested as available to accept the place, including Mr. Hitchcock, who declined to be considered on account of his health.

LODGE MAY GET THE PLACE.

He and Senator Long of Kansas Mentioned.

Cincinnati, O., June 21.—The report was current here late last night that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, the chairman of the national convention, and senator Chester I. Long of Kansas, one of the members of the committee on resolutions, were two new names that were given prominence at today's conference of the subcommittee of the republican national committee with Secretary Taft, concerning the selection of a chairman for the committee.

"Mrs. Pinkham, of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., together with her son, Arthur W. Pinkham, and the younger members of her family, sailed for Naples on May 20th for a three months' tour throughout Europe and a much needed vacation."

Jersey Legislation.

"That was a disgusting slap the governor took at our bills," said the New Jersey legislator.

"Seemed to irritate him as much as mosquito bills," admitted the disgruntled colleague.

COMMERCIAL COURSES
at DRAKE UNIVERSITY

The Book-keeping Course embraces a thorough drill in Book-keeping, Business and Office Practice, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Commercial Forms and Correspondence. It can be completed in from six to nine months (depending on ability and preparation of the student) and furnishes a good foundation for actual work in the business world.

The Shorthand Course includes instruction in Shorthand and Typewriting, Penmanship, Business Law, Forms and Correspondence, Manifolding, Tabulating, the use of the Phonograph (which is coming into quite general use for business correspondence dictation), etc., so that the student completing the course is able to fully discharge the duties devolving upon the office stenographer. Expenses are reasonable—not high as in many business schools. Send for announcement. Address DRAKE UNIVERSITY, Des Moines, Iowa.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

GIVE ME A CALL

New York, June 29, 1908

EDITOR TIMES, Klemme, Iowa.

Dear Sir:—

For more than ten years it was our ambition to make a trip to Europe, but there were always many hinderances in the way. Somehow the way seemed to open up this year and at last our long desired journey is begun. After several days of almost constant bidding "Goodbye" to friends and relatives we started from McGregor Thursday afternoon June 25th reaching Chicago the same evening. The next morning we boarded one of the fastest trains of the world over the L. S. and M. S. road which frequently made 60 miles an hour. This was a very pleasant trip as the weather was fine and the railway equipment the best that human engenuity can build thus far. For the first time in our life we saw an engine take water while running at full speed. At certain places there are long trenches between the rails and these trenches are full of water. As train speeds along a sort of scoop is let down and the speed scsops the water into the tender. In the afternoon we stopped off at Toledo, O. several hours and saw the principal parts of that beautiful city of 190,000 inhabitants. Toward evening we reached Oberlin and found Mr. and Mrs. Stork and Meta at the depot to meet us and we soon found ourselves in their home. Here we spent two most delightful days. Oberlin is a noted college town and had just closed its 75th anniversary celebration the evening before we arrived. We were taken through the observatory of music, Warner Hall and the newly erected Finney Chapel costing $130,000 and the Carnegie library costing $150,000 and other buildings. Storks are well pleased with the town and school as well they may be from what we learned. After another 14 hours ride we reached New York City and are now within sight of the great Atlantic on whose bosom we shall trust our life for a few days with the dawning of another day. We are kindly impressed with the courteous treatment extended to us from all sides. In fact there are many things different in the east. We miss the large farms east of Chicago which we are used to in Iowa. While we did see a few small pieces of good corn much of it is only a few inches above the ground. Through Indiana and Ohio the ground looked very dry. We were astonished with the small fields, old buildings and rail fences, like eastern Iowa had 40 years ago. Then we noted a diversity of crops. In some sections we saw acres upon acres planted to cabbage. On other places we saw for miles nothing but vineyards. Agai the east has the factories to make all kinds of machinery but west uses them. We were also impressed with the fact that in the west nearly every train is crowded with travelers while in the east oft times there will be only 4 to 6 passengers in a coach Hard as it was to bid our many friends "farewell" we are anxious to profit by this trip and sincerely trust providence will guard over us and return us in safety. We shall write as often as possible. With best regards to all.

GEO. H. WESSEL.

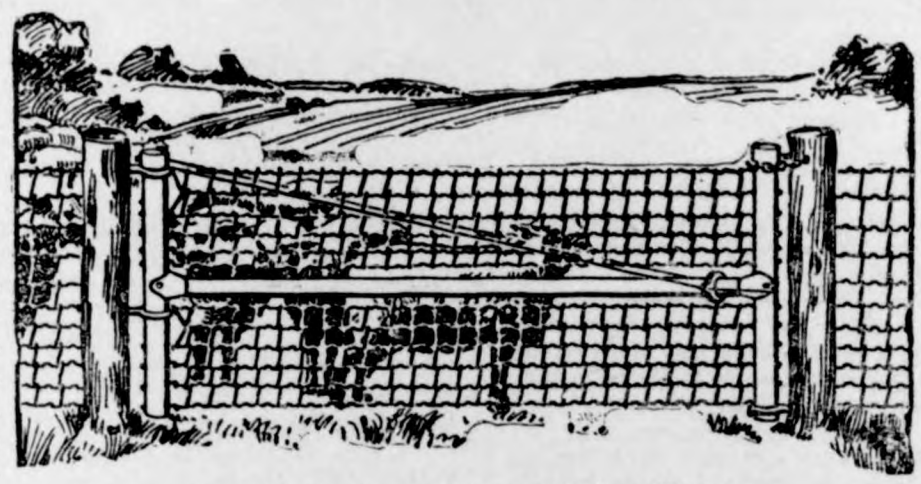
Stock Proof Gates



Hog Tight, Sheep Tight, Chicken Tight.

IOWA gates can be hung close to the ground but will never drag because the outer end is adjustable. Hog tight mesh and stretchers on every wire. Gate fastened at both the top and bottom plain strong hinges no wearing parts.

The Rolled Steel Tubing used in the frame instead of gas pipe makes them proof agains any stock.

A chain is only as strong as its weakest link. Why not use Iowa gates to match your good fences? You will find them strong but easy to handle—convenient in summer and winter—will swing up hill or down hill as you wish.

When you have time drop around and look over the sample gate hung up at

Events of Recent Occurrence Throughout the Commonwealth.

$34,611 SHORTAGE IN SAC.

Treasurer's Peculations Are Larger Than Anticipated.

Sac City.—W. A. Burnap, expert accountant, who was hired by the county to go over the books of W. H. Pettis, recently treasurer of Sac county, and ascertain the exact amount of Pettis' shortage, has made his report to the county board of supervisors after several weeks of thorough investigation. Mr. Burnap finds the shortage to be $34,611.80.

He made investigation of all the entries in the tax lists and other details and found errors in the office to consist of three kinds: First, cancellations, where receipts had been issued and afterwards cancelled; second, duplications, where two receipts of the same number had been issued and only one carried to the tax register; third, omissions, where moneys have been received and not accounted for.

Mr. Burnap finds that the method used in checking up the treasurer is the same employed by a large majority of counties in the state, and is the method that has been used since the organization of this county. He does not blame the board of supervisors for not making the discovery long ago, for he believes they did the same as most men would have done. He has recommended the installing of a system in the auditor's office which will prevent such crooked transactions hereafter.

When the shortage was first discovered local men figured the amount at about $27,000 and it was believed that the report of the expert would not change the amount materially That the amount is larger by nearly $8,000 comes as a surprise.

Sac City.—Following the report of the expert, showing the amount of the shortage, came the arrest of former County Treasurer William H Pettis, on information to which about twenty citizens of Sac county swore charging him with embezzlement of the county funds. He furnished a bond of $5,000 signed by his wife which secures his appearance before the grand jury at the August term of the district court.

Real estate and other property were turned over to the bondsmen several weeks ago, which footed up to $27,085.41. Mrs. Pettis also gave a note secured by a mortgage on her farm in Coon Valley township, for $7,526.39 to W. Jackson, and the bondsmen will suffer practically nothing.

MOTHER DROWNS BABIES.

Mrs. Johnson of Ida Grove Throws Four in Well.

Ida Grove.—While temporarily insane Mrs. August J. Johnson drowned her four little children in the cistern at their farm home a mile south of town. The youngest is about a year old and the oldest about 6. There were two little boys and two girls.

It is not known how she did it, as her husband was in the field at the time. She drowned the four children and tried to drown herself when neighbors and people from town came running in.

Word was sent to town and crowds went out in autos. When Will Anderson reached there she was trying to choke herself with a bed cover and fought like a fiend when he overpowered her and pulled it out of her throat.

The little ones were quickly pulled out of the cistern, but all were dead and though the crowds worked on them for an hour, it was in vain.

SON SLAIN BY MOTHER.

Awful Act of Insane Woman Near Red Oak.

Red Oak.—Milo Wilcox, who lives two miles from Wallin, eleven miles northeast of Red Oak, went violently insane. Securing a butcher knife, she stabbed her 6-year-old son, attacked her 11-year-old daughter, wounding her severely, and then turned the knife on herself, inflicting dangerous cuts.

The boy died within a few hours and the daughter and mothers are still unconscious.

Narrowly Escaps Death.

Sioux City.—In a fire in the Oxford hotel several of the guests narrowly escaped death. The throwing of a lighted match into a closet containing the gas meter was the cause of the blaze. Almost instantly there was an explosion. Miss Agnes Holm, who had been just dismissed from a hospital and was still weak was rescued from the second story window, after having been overcome by the smoke. Her condition is serious.

HALF A MILLION LOSS.

Northeastern Iowa Paralyzed by Recent Storm.

Dubuque.—Athough a week has passed since the storm which devastated the upper Mississippi section, scarcely any of the towns struck have more than recovered from the paralyzing effects of the rain and hail. Business is at a standstill in Prairie du Chien, Wis., Waukon and McGregor, Iowa.

McGregor, by reason of its peculiar location, built on an eminence, yet surrounded by hills, perhaps is the greatest sufferer. No effort at that point has been made to resume traffic. Every energy of the public, headed by Mayor Walters, is being bent toward an effort to purify the place. With six feet of water rushing through the main streets for hours on Saturday night, and every cellar still filled with water, every first floor the place of deposit for bushels of mud, the situation is serious.

Hot weather has marked the time since the storm. The filth and debris that has accumulated is a rampant breeder of disease and infection. A number of cases of typhoid already are reported and redoubled efforts are being made to clean up. Dubuque sent up a fire engine which will be used to pump out cellars and depressions in the heart of the city.

There are thousands of dollars worth of rebuilding to be done before the town will in any degree resemble its former self. Large forces of men from surrounding towns and a half hundred from Dubuque are on the ground working long hours. The first consideration is the public health. Later the work of restoring destroyed frame structures and marred first stories of brick buildings will be attended to. Thousands of panes of glass have been hurried into the town. There was not sufficient window lights in the combined hardware stocks of the town to supply the demand that the tremendous bombardment of hail created. There was scarcely a widow left intact in the city.

As to the loss: There are various estimates at McGregor. They range from $300,000 to $500,000. This damage was done in and about McGregor. There is not a store in the town conducting business on its former basis. Every stock of goods was damaged in degrees ranging from partial to total.

Great as was the damage in the various towns visited by the flood and hail, such damage is small compared with that sustained by growing crops throughout the northeast section of Iowa. There is no richer land in the country than may be found in this section, and on many farms the loss is nearly total.

CHILD SLAYER IN COURT.

Little Kenneth Reeves Held on Manslaughter Charge.

Des Moines.—Judge McHenry, sitting as juvenile court judge, will hear what the little playmates of Kenneth Reeves and Cecil Jenkins have to say of the childish quarrel of these two lads that ended in the death of the little Jenkins boy. Then the judge will decide whether the child of 9, whose sudden passion caused him to strike the blow that killed Cecil Jenkins, shall be sent to the reform school for years and years or permitted to go free with the lifelong memory of his awful deed as punishment enough.

After remaining unconscious all night, Cecil Jenkins died at his father's home, 412 South East Fourth street, and Kenneth Reeves is confined in the matron's room at the police station. Young Reeves struck the Jenkins boy with a broom handle during a quarrel, crushing the skull.

ATTACK ATTORNEY.

Proceedings Begun to Oust County Official.

Burlington.—A sensation was created by the appearance of Assistant States Attorney Cossen in district court here with a petition for the removal of County Attorney Kuhlmeier for failure to enforce the provisions of the mulct law.

The petition was signed by Rev. C. L. Tennant, pastor of Grace M. E. church, and cites the fact that Kuhlmeier has not attempted to carry out the orders of the attorney general to enforce the provisions of the law in Burlington. The case was heard by Judge Withrow, who after consideration decided that it was a matter to come before the district court in its regular fall term, and it was so ordered.

This is the first move on the part of the state to enforce the provisions of the mulct law in Burlington. It promises to become a celebrated case.

IOWA DEMOCRACY

STATE CONVENTION MEETS AT SIOUX CITY.

NAME HOUSE AND HIGBIE

They Are Nominees of the Party for Judges of the Supreme Court.

Sioux City.—The democratic state convention adopted a platform and nominated A. J. House of Maquoketa and D. W. Higbie of Creston for justices of the supreme court.

Clint Price of Indianola was elected chairman of the democratic state central committee. John F. Dalton of Manson was elected secretary of the committee.

The vote on nominations for supreme justices follows: A. J. Maquoketa, 730; D. W. Higbie of Creston, 612; W. H. Jacques of Ottumwa 376; Theo. Bradford of Marshalltown, 130.

Tim Clary of New Hampton was temporary chairman of the convention and the convention organized by making Jeremiah Sullivan of Des Moines permanent chairman.

The democratic platform follows:

"We hail with gratification the certainty of the nomination for president of the United States of the great commoner, William Jennings Bryan at the hands of the democratic national convention to meet in Denver July 7, 1908.

"We rejoice in the fact that the democrats of Iowa have nominated for United States senator the Hon. Claude R. Porter, a man who sincerely and steadfastly stands for the progressive reform ideas unsuccessfully urged by Governor Cummins.

"We rejoice further in the nomination by the democracy of the state of Iowa of that gallant old soldier and statesman, the Hon. Fred. E. White for governor of this state. His election would mean an able and economical administration of that high office and a guarantee that the plot of republican reactionaries will be foiled and that the hand on the dial of progress shall not be turned back in Iowa.

"We demand such legislation as will make the American house of lords more responsive to the people's will and to this end favor the election of United States senators by popular vote.

"We are opposed to government by injunction and its putative father, and urge the hosts of organized labor to support the only party that is truly in sympathy with their just demands and will sincerely attempt to carry them out when entrusted with the power so to do. We realize the importance to the farmers and people of this country of the subject of good roads. and favor such legislation as will promote it. We also favor the improvement of our interior waterways on a comprehensive plan to supplement the inadequate transportation facilities afforded by the railroads in normal times of business activity.

"We denounce the injustice of prevailing railroad freight rates as a discrimination against the people of Iowa, and we instruct our representatives in legislature and congress to take such action as will make impossible the contemplated general raise of freight rates, which raise is to be made on the fraudulent pretext that it is necessary to make up for shortage in passenger receipts, due to the 2-cent fare law, which shortage does not exist in fact. We favor an increase of the powers of our state railroad and interstate commerce commissions to this end.

"We demand the enforcement of the Iowa statutes against trusts and illegal combinations in restraint of trade operating in Iowa.

"We also ask the legislature to define more precisely the powers of local boards of health to the end that there be no needless oppression of the people by reckless autocratic orders and unnecessarily heavy quarantine expense. We favor reasonable effort and diligence towards protecting the public health, but believe that all regulations and restrictions to that end should be prescribed by the legislature rather than to be left to the state board of health. Also we deplore the manner in which insignificant epidemics have been used to lay great burdens of taxation against the various counties of this state.

"We favor the establishment of a state insurance commissioner, to be appointed by the executive and approved by the senate. We favor state recognition of institutes and assemblies for the purpose of enhancing agricultural interests, and especially do we commend the recognition of co-operative institutions.

"We recognize the dairy interest as one of the most important in this state, and we ask the legislature to give it such encouragement as will bring the herds and manufacturing processes of our dairymen up to the hightest standard that may be obtained.

"We reaffim the traditional policy of the democratic party with reference to local self government and home rule.

"We favor a law guaranteeing bank deposits similar to that recommended by W. J. Bryan and now in successful operation in the new democrat state of Oklahoma."

REPUBLICANS ME

HARMONIOUS CONVENTION WATERLOO.

PROGRESSIVES IN CONTR

Platform Adopted, Candidates Nominated and State Committee Elected.

Waterloo.—Under the primary l the republican state convention h no business to transact except adoption of a platform, the nomi tion of two candidates for judges the supreme court, and the elect of a state committee.

There were no contests. The p gressives were in control and org ized the convention.

William S. Hart of Allama county was temporary chairman the committee on permanent org ization selected Robert Healy of F Dodge as permanent chairman.

The nomination of Supreme Justi Scott M. Ladd and S. M. Weaver w purely a formal matter. Judge K nedy of Sioux City included them the same motion, and Lewis Mi seconded it, and they were nomina by acclamation. All other nomi tions were made at the primary.

The platform follows:

"We, the republican party of Io in convention assembled, do appro most heartily our national party pl form recently adopted at Chicago a we do hereby emphatically indo the wise policies and splendid adm istration of President Theodo Roosevelt. We unhestitatingly d clare that the party presents to t nation a worthy successor and grand leader in the candidacy of Wi liam H. Taft for president and Ja wise his associate, James S. Sherm for vice president.

"We are proud to indorse the wi statesmanship of United States Se tors William B. Allison and Jonath P. Dolliver and our entire delegati in congress. Especially do we glo in the peerless position of influen and leadership in the councils of t nation which our venerable senat has given to our state.

"It is with pride and confidenc that we appeal to the people of Io for their approval of the wise, ab and economical conduct of our sta affairs by the present republican a ministration. The maintenance our public institutions has been e fected with a broad intelligence a the administration of our entire sta government has been conducted wi such integrity and efficiency as constitute a period conspicuous in t statesmanship of our time.

"We rejoice in the great advanc ment in popular government secure by recent republican legislation u der the able, sincere and courageo leadership of Gov. Albert B. Cu mins. We believe that the abolitio of the railway pass has removed a insidious temptation from the path of our public servants.

"We believe that the law prohibi ing contributions by corporations political campaigns has materiall purified our politics. We believe th the Iowa legislature, by preventin the creation of fictitious values an the issuance of watered stock, ha pointed to the nation the way to in tegrity and confidence in the se curities of the modern corporation.

"We believe that the enactment a 2-cent fare law has proved just t our common carriers, while giving t every citizen, one man with another absolute equality in the tax he pays for his personal transportation.

"We approve the efforts of the las legislature to secure joint freight rates and in passing the pure food law. We believe that the enactment of a state wide primary law, while perhaps showing some imperfections in detail which can be corrected, has fully vindicated the wisdom of its principles in bringing the nomination of party candidates to the unperverted choice of all the voters, and we hereby declare that its provisions should never be impaired in principle or in purpose. We especially commend the restrictions which this law has placed upon the character of campaign expenditures and their compulsory publicity.

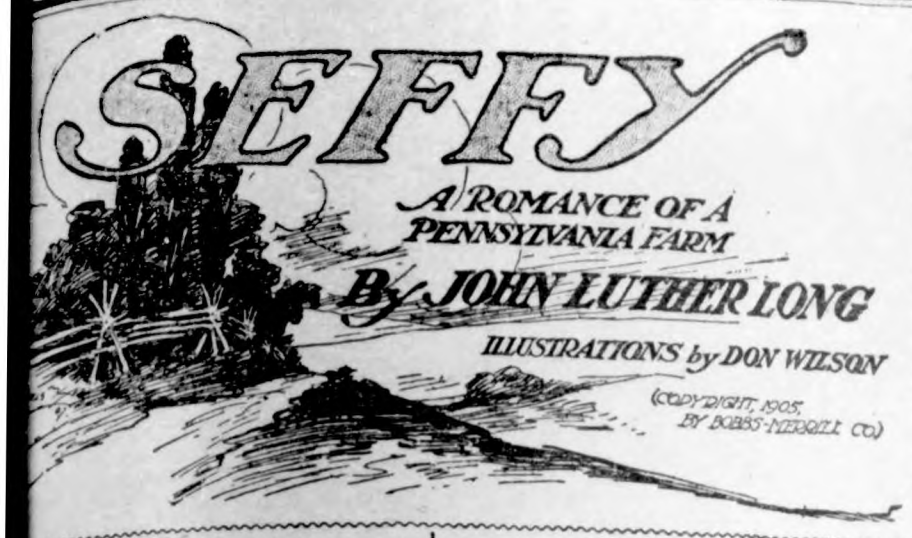
"We demand for the agricultural interests of Iowa the same co-operation from the railways of this state in reduced passenger rates for the Iowa state fair that railroads extend to the state fairs and large public gatherings of neighboring states.

"Duly appreciating the supreme importance of the agricultural interests of our state as well as the rapidly growing importance of the manufacturing interests, and recognizing the wisdom of promoting these interests we favor the most ample provisions for general education along industrial and agricultural lines.

"Loyal to the national declaration of our party principles and faithful to the record of our great party, we do hereby present to the people of Iowa a united party, declaring approval for the election of Senator William B. Allison for his successor, and all the nominees of the party, state, congressional, legislative and county.

"This committee recommends the adoption of the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That this convention has learned with regret of the death of former President Cleveland, an executive whose patriotism, firmness and courage challenged the admiration of his fellow countrymen of all parties and honored American manhood. It extends its sympathy to his bereaved family and to the nation he loved and served with fidelity and sincerity."



SYNOPSIS.

e crowning desire in the life of old ngartner, a Pennsylvania German, is btain possession of the beautiful low which lies just between Baumer's property and the railroad staThe property in question was ined by Sarah Pressel, very pretty athletic young girl, and belonged to her. At length Baumgartner to realize that his only hope of ning the property would be through marriage of his son Sephenijah to h Pressel. In a mock auction "Seffy," ephenijah P. nother stare—another conviction he utter impossibility of such a g!

"Yes! With a club! A flat-iron! A potato masher! A poker!"

Seffy could laugh now. She was becoming absurd. Had he only known that she—poor futile woman!—was trying to secure in advance their happiness in the turmoil which she knew would come!

"Yes! That is the way for such as me! The only way! And I'm used to it!"

Now Seffy was shocked!

"My father—or mother—or granny—or"—she hesitated—"Sam—have, at one time or another, used all these things on me. I need the snaffle! You need the whip!"

And she laughed a little herself, and that was Seffy's excuse for joining her.

"You have no temper and I have a thousand times too much. You can see how that will work. And, Seffy, you got a bad reputation about here now, and I wouldn't like you to have it always. So you must brace up and do things to make people like you again. I want you to be able to face any one at the store—and do it in front of Sam."

The dull Seffy answered:

"But what can I do?"

The whole case seemed quite hopeless.

"I don't know. But there is something. Ask your pappy. Whatever it is, I will help you. You know it makes me foolish, too. And I hate that more than anything — being laughed at. If I was you, I'd lick Sam. But I know you won't. I expect he's too big for you. But there are other things."

And Seffy left her at her door that night, determined to do some great thing to set himself properly before the little community once more. Because—once more—she had let him kiss her.

He and his father held a star-chamber session that night yet—Seffy waking him up for it.

"Take her home from church, begoshens!" adjudged his father.

Now this seems small advice upon a small matter. But it was very great advice upon a very great matter, as you will see.

VIII.

The White Signal Which Might as Well Have Been Black.

No suitor in German-Pennsylvania, though it be in Maryland, has entirely established his right to the maiden of his choice, either before the public or in her sight or his own, until he has escorted her offhand from church on a Sunday night. And this he must accomplish at the church door, out of—sometimes—a savage rivalry challenging disaster.

For by this simple, primitive, heroic process the status of contestants for a maid's favor is fixed. He whose arm is taken can face his little world on Monday. He whose arm is rejected is, on Monday, a social exile. For the small world of the vicinage is always there and this is the maiden's public election of him she chooses to honor, and her public rebuke to his too presumptuous rival. And, after that, she is a poor thing indeed who will be seen in public with the latter. For nothing is more sweet and cruel than love.

Seffy was not a publicly-acknowledged suitor. He could not be. It was impossible! There was that tombstone still up in the store. Sam had not yet been dislodged. And Seffy had not yet arrived where he might put the awful question—there was a recognized period for this, and events had put it further and further off! Indeed, he shuddered when he thought of it—even then, after that understanding with Sally!—and contemplated getting his father to do it for him.

It had become known, in the wireless way such things spread in the country, that there had been a tentative making-up between Seffy and Sally. But Seffy was still not received in public. Nor did he appear with Sally! Nor might he call upon her! There must be some open defiance and victory which all could see and understand before these things might happen. The right hand of renewed fellowship would not be extended to Seffy until he had met and vanquished his rival in public. It was the primitive right of the strongest, proved physically here as in the Roman circus. Seffy had never shown himself a master of material prowess. He demurred a bit at such a plunge into the arena. But there was no other way.

"Why, Sef," advised his father, "after that it's a dead open and shut game. You better do the biggest sing you ken—and that's the end of it. If I had Sally on my side, I wouldn't keer who the hell was on the other! You take her home from church! Yas, right afore their dam' noses! Then they'll run after you and send you presents. It ain't no guess-work for you! You know that Sally will be waiting for you wiss her arm all ready to take yourn. Gosh! I nefer had no such sure sing. I had to take my chances wiss you' mammy! And it was three other fellers wiss their arms out—and the right side yet! But your daddy was close up against the church door. And when she come out he didn't waste no time a-saying polite, 'Miss Hengler, ken I haf the pleasure to see you home this evening?' I'd 'a' lost the game if I had waited to git off all that dictionary stuff! Yassir! For right opposite me was Bill Eisenkrout—Sam's uncle—and I knowed his arm'd shoot out like a patent cornhusker the minute you' mammy come.

"He was mighty quick, but mighty polite! I knowed he'd say that foolishness about being pleased to see her home. Well, she come out and I chust grabbed. And while I was marching on like a conquering hero, informing her that it was a nice efening, I could hear Bill on the off side, gitting out that stuff 'bout pleasure and seeing her home Nancy says, says she: 'Sank you, Mr. Eisenkrout, I'm suited;' and I laughed like hell! And, begoshens, Nancy laughed too! And that settled Bill for efer more! Oh, it's nossing like a laugh at the right time to kill a man off! Bill left town the next day. He had too. And he didn't show up tell the next fall! Sef, you got a sure sing. And, begoshens, you might just as well finish Sam up in the same job—put him out of town. Next Sunday you watch Sam. Keep right opposite him. Then git your arm in action about a second sooner. Left side, you know, her right! Sally 'll be on the lookout. Don't stop to say any fool sings about the pleasure of seeing her home. Do it. And, when Sam gits his work in, laugh! Laugh like a bull! And git Sally to laugh. I bet you two dollars and ten cents that Sam won't be in town the day!"

Like a campaign speech was the effect of this!

Seffy objected no longer. He said he would do it all! Perhaps this, too, got about. At all events, before the next Sunday, the interest created by their rivalry was more than equal to the voice of the Gospel. All the township would be at church!

Sam would not be dislodged. He invented the most diabolical schemes for sequestrating Sally to himself during the week which followed—into which guileless Sally often fell—and which seemed to proclaim her suitor to be himself. Sam, you remember, had access to Sally, but Seffy had not. Seffy confessed that this looked sinister. True, he remembered all that had passed between them. But once before he had been in error.

So that Seffy, before the week's end, began once more—and more strongly—to deprecate the necessity for this public demonstration of his status. His father demanded it as a diplomatic necessity, inasmuch as Sally still retained Sam on a basis so much like his own as to make the situation extremely embarrassing to even Old Baumgartner, who had let it be known that he was the active coadjutor of his son. To vanquish Seffy was to vanquish him, and he, if not Seffy himself, screwed Seffy's courage to the sticking point. After this, Seffy weakened no more, but proclaimed his purpose. It was generally conceded that the one who failed now would have to leave town.

So here was retiring little Seffy forced by circumstances into a public rivalry which he detested, and, it may as well be confessed—feared. It must, also, be explained that Sally's course in maintaining these two strings to her bow until the breaking moment was not only universally commended, but was the unswerving custom of the vicinage for girls so fortunate as to have two strings. It was held likely to force one or the other to the point—and this was the purpose of rustic coquetry! And Sally's coquetry was not only acknowledged; it was tolerated, and, I fear, encouraged. And, alas, it had been as sweet to her as vinous dissipation to men. But now it had made not only her own, but Seffy's position tremendously more difficult.

"SEF, YOU GOT A SURE SING."

HIS FIRST LITERARY EFFORT.

Not Likely Among the "Six Best Sellers" of That Year.

A party of friends had gathered in the author's house to congratulate him on the success of his new book. They were extravagantly enthusiastic, as friends are apt to be on such occasions, and the young author was swelling visibly. The author's mother beamed. Finally one of the guests turned to her. "Tell me, did your son show symptoms of literary genius at an early age? I presume he did, and you've got some baby effusion treasured away." "I have the first letter he ever wrote me," said the mother smiling, "and maybe you'd call it his first literary effort. He was on a visit to his grandmother's and he had never visited her without me before. But maybe you'd like to hear the letter." The guests chorused "Yes" eagerly. The mother produced a crumpled envelope and paper and read slowly: "Dear Mama—The dogs is awful thick here. Your loving son."

Fat Men and Jobs.

Employment agents say it's about as hard to get work for a fat man as for a gray-haired one. According to their statements, employers of labor hold that a fat man is indolent. They assert that the hustler, the fast, nervous, energetic worker, is sinewy rather than fat, and does 30 per cent. more work than the soft, fat fellow. "It is not uncommon for us to advise fat applicants to diet," said an employment agent, "and reduce their weight before beginning to canvass for a job." So far as recorded, Dr. Osler has expressed no opinion on the expediency of chloroforming men who are running to adipose tissue.

The Passion of Laziness.

It is indeed this passion of laziness, which is characteristic of the times, that is responsible for half the crime in our daily history.—Olive Christian Malvery in "The Soul Market."

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

SUFFERED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

With Eczema—Her Limb Peeled and Foot Was Raw—Thought Amputation Was Necessary—Believes Life Saved by Cuticura.

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off. At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor was surprised and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. Mrs. J. B. Renaud, 277 Mentana St., Montreal, Que., Feb. 20, 1907."

Her Explanation.

Otto E. Schaar, president of the Waiters' club of New York, in a recent argument on tipping, said to his opponent, sharply: "Your reply reminds me of a woman's reply in a German court. This woman was accused of poisoning her husband. The prosecuting attorney said to her: 'You have heard the evidence. The body contained enough arsenic to kill ten persons. What have you to say?' 'My husband,' the woman answered, 'was a big eater.'"

In a Morocco Harem.

Every woman in the harem has her face decorated in the most curious manner. The practice is to elongate the eyebrows to the ears and to embellish the chin with little points of black paint. In contrast with the men, their complexions are very fair, as they are shut within walls and are never exposed to the sun.

OBITUARY.

DIED.—June 26, 1908, Mr. John Fredrick George. The funeral service was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the house of Mr. George's. At 2:30 a service was held in the Ger. M. E. church at which Rev, Lemker preached after which the body was taken to its resting place. John George was born in Germany in 1822 where he lived with his father until he was married in 1847. That same year Mr. and Mrs. George came to America and lived at Milwaukee, Wis. The year following they moved near Madison, Wis. and began farming. In 1861 Mr. George was called to enter the army and was in a number of heavy battles and was wounded so that he was not able to enter any more battles. In a few years after the war he moved to Charles City, Iowa with family. Here is where he joined the Ger. M. E. church and has been a member ever since. After living there for 12 years they moved to Germantown but they only stayed there two years when they moved to S. Dak. and began to farm there again but found no suitable place there so they finally came to our town of Klemme. For the last two years he has been sick more or less with kidney disease. He was growing weaker more and more when in the last nine days the desease got a hold on the old man. He died June 26, 1908 at 8 o'clock a. m. Tho' we al ways regret seeing our friends depart but yet we must say that he reached an old age, being 86 years old at his death. He leaves his wife who has also passed her 83rd birthdry, a daughter Mrs. Sampson and five sons. Our sympathy is with the bereaved relatives.

Summer Vacation?

Let us help you to decide the question.

"Northern and Eastern Summer Resorts" is an attractive illustrated booklet telling of the many pleasures to be enjoyed in Chicago, at the Wisconsin or Minnesota or Great Lakes resorts, at Niagara Falls, down the St. Lawrence River, in the Adirondacks, or on the Atlantic sea coast.

"Under the Turquoise Sky" tells of the delights of Colorado and the Rockies—80 pages, beautifully illustrated.

Rigid System in Denmark.

In Denmark few housewives have trouble with their servants. A system has been perfected which guarantees a housewife honest and good servants, as well as independence and fair treatment to those employed. When a young woman obtains employment she goes to a police station and gets a book which testifies to her good character, and in which is entered the name of the woman into whose service she enters. Without this book of character a servant cannot secure employment. This book she gives to her new mistress; in return she gets a key to the front door of the house. The servant enjoys absolute independence. Should she desire to leave the service, she is required to give her mistress two weeks' notice. When she leaves she receives her book, and reports off at the police station. Should several weeks or months elapse before she again secures employment, she is required to give an account of herself, and tell where she has been, at the police station.

Prized the May Dew.

In Pepys' time May dew—that is, dew gathered from the grass on a May day—was highly prized for bleaching linen and improving the complexion. Pepys wrote in 1667: "My wife away down with Jane and W. Hewer to Woolwich, in order to a little air and to lie there to-night, and so to gather May dew to-morrow morning, which Mrs. Turner hath taught her is the only thing in the world to wash her face with; and I am contented with it." Two years later he made this entry in his diary: "Troubled, about three in the morning, with my wife's calling her maid up, and rising herself, to go with her coach abroad, to gather May dew, which she did, and I troubled her for it for fear of any hurt going abroad so betimes happening to her; but I to sleep again, she came home about six."

Problem in Political Economy.

"It's no use," said the young man with heavy-rimmed eyeglasses. "I can't get this political economy straight."

"What's the trouble?" asked the professor.

"I can't discover whether a lot of people go broke because we have hard times or whether we have hard times because a lot of people go broke."

The sewerage problem has been solved by the city of Hanley, England. Its new plant for the purification of sewage, which cost $350,000, will dispose of 9,000,000 gallons of sewage a day, and the effluent from the beds is so clear that fish will live in it for an indefinite period.

GROVER CLEVELAND IS DEAD

Ex-President Passes Away at His Princeton Home.

Rose Rapidly from Time of His Election as Mayor of Buffalo in 1881, Governor of New York in 1882, and Elected to Presidency in 1884—The Last of the Ex-Presidents.

Princeton, N. J.—Grover Cleveland died suddenly Wednesday at his home here.

While it was known that Mr. Cleveland had for the past three months been suffering from a severe attack of rheumatic gout and acute indigestion, his death came as a complete surprise.

He had been a sufferer from gout and diabetes for more than two years. Early in 1906 he was stricken with an attack of indigestion, the result of diabetes, and for weeks was unable to partake of any except liquid nourishment.

A sojourn in the south improved his health considerably.

Suffers Second Attack.

Mr. Cleveland returned to Princeton and resumed his duties as trustee of the Equitable Life Company.

Early last year he had a repetition of the attack of indigestion and for some weeks his condition was such that his life was despaired of.

Mr. Cleveland made a splendid fight for life and won. In February last diabetes began to make itself felt again, and Mr. Cleveland became subject to spells of unconsciousness, coupled again with inability to assimilate food. Death finally came at 8:40 a. m. Wednesday.

Causes of His Death.

The following statement, signed by Dr. Joseph B. Bryant, Dr. George R. Lockwood and Dr. J. M. Camochan, was given out:

"Mr. Cleveland for many years has suffered from repeated attacks of gastral intestinal origin. Also he had a long-standing organic disease of the heart and kidneys and heart failure complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and oedema were the immediate causes of his death."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND

LIFE OF CLEVELAND A BUSY ONE.

Born in Caldwell, N. J., and a Descendant of English Stock.

Grover Cleveland, the twenty-second and twenty-fourth president of the United States, was born March 18, 1837, in Caldwell, N. J. His family came from England and settled in Massachusetts in the early part of the seventeenth century. His father was a physician and had been ordained as a minister and married the daughter of a Baltimore merchant, who had come from Ireland. In 1841 the Cleveland family removed to Fayetteville, N. Y., where young Grover received his first schooling, and where later at an early age he served as a clerk in a small country store. Still later, when his parents settled in Clinton, N. Y., he pursued his studies further, and when only 17 he was appointed assistant teacher in the New York institution for the blind. In 1855 Cleveland assisted his uncle, Lewis F. Allen, in the compilation of the "American Herd Book," and during the same period he served a clerkship with the law firm of Rogers, Bowen & Rogers, at Buffalo.

Mr. Cleveland received his first public office when appointed assistant district attorney of Erie county. At that time he was supporting his mother and sister and when he was drafted to serve in the army he was forced to borrow sufficient funds to send a substitute. In 1865 he was defeated for the position of district attorney of his county and entered into partnership with Isaac V. Vanderpool. In 1869 he joined the firm of Lanning, Cleveland & Folsom.

Nominated for Mayor of Buffalo.

In 1881 he was nominated as the Democratic candidate for mayor of Buffalo and was elected by the largest majority ever given in that city, although the Republican state ticket was carried. While serving as mayor of Buffalo he became known as the "veto mayor," for his fearless exercise of that right in checking the extravagance and the illegal expenditure of public moneys. In 1882 Mr. Cleveland ran for governor of New York against Charles J. Folger, then United States secretary of the treasury, and won by a plurality of nearly 200,000.

At the Democratic national convention held in Chicago in July, 1884, Cleveland was nominated by his party as its candidate for the presidency of the United States and at the election in the following November was chosen to that office. In the electoral college his plurality over his opponent, Mr. Blaine, was 37 votes. Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated March 4, 1885, and the oath of office was administered to him by Chief Justice Waite. While president he exercised the veto power beyond all precedent and out of 987 bills he refused to affix his signature to 115.

Beaten in Second Effort.

In 1888 he was a candidate for a second term, but was defeated in the election of that year by Benjamin Harrison. After his retirement from public life he settled in New York city, where he opened a law office. He had a large practice and was frequently in Washington arguing important cases before the United States supreme court.

At the national Democratic convention held in Chicago in June, 1892, he was for the third time named as his party's candidate for the presidency and in the following November was elected.

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

Cause for Thanks?

It was at a social gathering of one of the mutual improvement societies which help to pass the shining (or otherwise) hour in an edifying manner.

A little singing was to be indulged in by some of the members, and about half-way down the program the name of Miss Molemy-Brown figured. Alas, however, when the time came for her to appear a messenger arrived to say that the lady was suffering from a cold, and, therefore, the chairman had to excuse her to the audience.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "I have to announce that Miss Brown will be unable to sing, as announced, and, therefore, Mr. Green will give us 'A Song of Thanksgiving.'"—Stray Stories.

Value of Brief Rests.

If overworked homemakers whose nerves are "worn to frazzle edge would acquire the habit of sitting or lying absolutely still, relaxed and motionless for five or ten minutes twice a day, they would soon see improvement. The mind must be relaxed, worries dropped, thoughts wandering to pleasant things. You will probably try this several times before you get it right, but after a little practice you will find that it yields large returns, far surpassing the sacrifice of the time it takes to practice it.

With a smooth iron and Defiance Starch, you can launder your shirt waist just as well at home as the steam laundry can; it will have the proper stiffness and finish, there will be less wear and tear of the goods and it will be a positive pleasure to use a Starch that does not stick to the iron.

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine has been successful in relieving the suffering of women or received so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every one you meet has either been benefited by it, or has friends who have.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., any woman any day may see the files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, and here are the letters in which they openly state over their own signatures that they were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, without drugs, and is wholesome and harmless.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains the ingredients which act directly upon the feminine organism, restoring them to a healthy normal condition.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to the sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

UPRISING IN MEXICO

TWO THOUSAND SOLDIERS ARE SENT INTO TORREON.

UNITED STATES IS INVOLVED

Mexican Government Declares Revolution Was Hatched in this Country.

City of Mexico, June 29.—Ambassador Enrique C. Creel has been directed to proceed to Washington immediately.

This sudden change in the plans of the ambassador who had received a long leave of absence from his government with the intention of spending a number of months in his home state of Chihuahua, was occasioned by the recent raid made on the town of Las Vacas.

The Mexican state department will make strong representations to the state department at Washington asking the United States authorities to in every way aid in checking the men who attacked Las Vacas on the ground that the whole raid was planned and outfitted on American soil.

Minister of Foreign Affairs Mariscal said that every Mexican involved in the recent raids was subject to extradition as a common criminal, inasmuch as the acts of violence committed by them were not directed by any revolutionary movement organized on Mexican soil.

Mexico will ask that certain of the ring leaders who may be captured on United States soil be tried by the courts of that nation for a violation of the neutrality laws.

Ambassador Creel is expected to arrive in Washington Tuesday.

El Paso, Tex., June 29.—Two thousand troops have arrived in Torreon to protect that city from the threatened attack by revolutionists and the Americans are sending their families to the states for safety, according to information brought here last night by passengers on the Mexican Central

The revolutionists have attacked the village of Matamoras, Coahuila, about fifteen miles from Torren, and have occupied that town.

Official advices relative to sending troops to Torreon say that with the forces stationed there the town is now impregnable.

In Chihuahua there is considerable alarm among the citizens and guards numbering from twenty to twenty-five soldiers in a single patrol are passing through the streets.

The jails are protected by reinforced guards and troops are stationed on the roofs of public buildings. The jailers are in command of the troops.

Two hundred men of the Eighteenth battalion, Mexican infantry, commanded by Col. Luis Ballesteros, arrived last night in Juarez, across the river from here and will be distributed in the vicinity of that town. These reinforcements make an aggregate of 500 soldiers stationed in Juarez.

Mayor Mateus in an interview tonight declared that no trouble in Juarez was anticipated and that the Eighteenth battalion has been sent to the border simply as a precautionary measure.

Guards are maintained around the jail and public buildings of Juarez and the arrival of reinforcements is probably responsible for a rumor that the Juarez officials are informed of a plan to attack that city.

Governor Cardeleas of Coahuila has telegraphed the governor of Durango notifying him that a number of the men responsible for recent disturbances in his state have fled to Durango and requesting all possible assistance in apprehending the fugitives.

Information brought last night by passengers on the incoming Mexican Central trains is that all bridges and approaches to Torreon on every road except the Mexican Central have been burned. The international line out of Torreon, on which is located the town of Matamoras, reported to be in the hands of revolutionists has suffered heavily, and the Coahuila & Pacific railway is entirely tied up as the result of depredations committed by revolutionists.

A train on the Coahuila & Pacific was attacked Friday night soon after leaving Torreon, but the crew succeeded in running the train back to Torreon and escaping.

There is a general movement of troops from Mexico City to the north and reinforcements are being rushed to Jiminez, which is said to be still in the hands of revolutionists.

LEADER IS A RANCHMAN.

He Lives at Saltillo in the State of Coahuila.

El Paso, Tex., June 29.—According to C. W. Patton, a mining expert, who arrived last night from the Teheran, Torreon funds for the incipient revolution in northern Mexico have been furnished by a wealthy ranch owner near Saltillo.

CLEVELAND AT REST

DISTINGUISHED MOURNERS AT BIER OF EX-PRESIDENT.

THE PRESIDENT WAS THERE

Extreme Simplicity Marks the Occasion—No Eulogy of Dead Ex-President Was Delivered.

Princeton, N. J., June 26.—Grover Cleveland's body lies buried today in the Cleveland plot in Princeton cemetery.

At 6 o'clock, just as the sun was sinking in the west, a distinguished company watched the body lowered into the grave. Then the simple burial service of the Presbyterian church was read and before the last carriage in the cortege had driven up to the path leading to the burial place the benediction had been pronounced and the members of the family, President Roosevelt and others who had gathered about the grave, were leaving the cemetery.

Many of the personal friends of the dead statesman lingered about the spot which was to mark his last resting place and each in turn was permitted to cast a handful of earth into the grave.

Agreeable to the wishes of Mrs. Cleveland the services both at the house and at the cemetery were of the simplest character. An invocation, scriptural reading, a brief prayer and the reading of Wordsworth's poem, "Character of the Happy Warrior," constituted the services at the house while the reading of the burial service at the grave was brief and impressive.

The funeral was of a strictly private nature, but those in attendance numbered many distinguished citizens, including President Roosevelt, Governors Fort of New Jersey, Hughes of New York, Hoke Smith of Georgia, former members of President Cleveland's cabinet, officials of the Equitable Life Insurance society, members of the Princeton university faculty and friends and neighbors.

Mr. Cleveland was buried with all the simplicity and privacy that he himself might have wished, as a private citizen, rather than as the former chief executive of the nation. There was nothing that savored of the official, and the military element was injected solely as a measure of precaution in protecting President Roosevelt.

The president arrived at 4:38 p. m. and was met at the station by Governor Fort. The president, Governor Fort and Secretary Loeb were driven at once to "Westland." Upon his arrival at the house the president went to Mrs. Cleveland, offering her his sympathy and expressing keen regret at Mr. Cleveland's death.

The president then returned to the reception room, where the body had been removed in the afternoon from the room on the second floor, in which Mr. Cleveland had died. A few minutes later the four clergymen who officiated came down the stairs to the hall leading to the reception room followed by Mrs. Cleveland and the children, Esther and Richard. As they appeared upon the landing, accompanied by Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, the whole company rose and remained standing throughout the services.

The services began with an invocation by the Rev. Sylvester W. Beach of the First Presbyterian church of Princeton, which was followed by scriptural reading by the Rev. Maitland V. Bartlett of the West Farms Presbyterian church of New York, a former pastor of Mr. Cleveland, who read from the fourteenth chapter of the book of John and a number of passages from the fourth and twenty-second chapters of St. Paul to the Thessalonians.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke said that "according to the request of one whose slightest wish at this moment we all respect there will be no address or sermon, but there was a poem written more than a hundred years ago by William Wordsworth which is expressive of his character."

He then read the poem entitled "Character of the Happy Warrior." This, followed by reading from the Presbyterian book of common worship, the services at the house concluded with prayer.

The services were concluded at 5:30 and five minutes later the casket had been tenderly carried to the hearse and the procession started on its way to the cemetery.

Bananas are now cooled in the cars. The chilled air is injected into the cars and allowed to fill the interstices of the cargo until it is all thoroughly cooled. The cars are then partially closed and radiation prevented as much as possible, and under these conditions the cargo is carried on to the next distributing-joint, where a new supply of cold air is injected and a suitable temperature produced.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

It is said that the primeval oyster was a foot long. It is to be hoped that the present-day etiquette as to his consumption did not prevail at that time.

A Youngstown (O.) man says he'll sail an airship from Hammondsport, N. Y., home in eight hours. He's taking on a heavier cargo of faith than of gasoline.

Girls in Denmark take out insurance against becoming old maids. Bachelors in this country would welcome something of the sort as a protection against matrimony.

The year-old prince royal of Spain has been enlisted as a private soldier in the king's regiment. Promotion from the ranks will not be difficult to arrange in his case.

Blue-blooded Americans who find the modern game of politics a little beneath them will be accommodated by the transatlantic steamship companies at the usual rates.

King Edward refuses the job of reforming Russia and giving it a constitutional government during his talk with the czar on the Gulf of Finland Edward recognizes his limitations.

In three years England has paid nearly $250,000,000 of the national debt and proposes an old-age pension to cost $30,000,000 a year. This looks as if financial panics were sidestepping the right little, tight little isle.

According to the opinion of a certain physician, people who are tall and fair are predisposed toward rheumatism and those who are short and dark are predisposed toward nervous disorders. What about the women who are disposed to change their hair and complexions to harmonize with each season's fashionable color?

Australia is preparing to show honor to the visiting American battleship fleet while that great aggregation of fighting craft is still a long way off. The British squadron on duty in that section of the world will meet the United States vessels at the Fiji islands and escort them to Australian waters, and great will be the jollification at the antipodes.

Americans are not the only ones who are carrying on exciting experiments with flying machines. A French aeronaut has made a trip with an aeroplane skimming along for several thousands of feet not more than six or seven feet from the ground. There is at least one advantage in flying as low as that. The smash-up is not likely to be so great when the collapse comes.

A Reading railroad train ran into a team driven by an 11-year-old boy the other day, wrecked the wagon and threw the boy into the air. A brakeman who happened to be standing on the locomotive steps at the time caught the boy by the arm as he came down and saved his life. If the brakeman was a baseball player in his youth, the incident affords another illustration of the value of athletic sports.

CONVENTION IS NOW UNDER WAY

Democrats Begin Work of Nominating Candidates and Formulating the Principles of the Party

Denver, Col., July 7.—Chairman Thomas Taggart of the Democratic national committeee formally called the national convention to order almost precisely at noon.

The opening prayer was made by Rt. Rev. James J. Keane, archbishop of Wyoming, and after a short interval Urey Woodson of Kentucky, secretary of the national committee, read the call for the convention.

A period of delay followed during which the delegates exhibited symptoms of impatience, although the spacious auditorium, crowded as it was to the very doors, was delightfully cool, and then the committee on rules made its report and the officers of the convention were announced, as follows:

Temporary chairman—Theodore A. Bell, California.

General secretary—Urey Woodson, Kentucky.

Assistant general secretary—Edwin Sefton, Washington, D. C.

Sergeant-at-arms—John I. Martin, Missouri.

Chief assistant sergeant-at-arms—J. C. Fenn, Indiana.

Chaplain for opening day—Rt. Rev. James J. Keane, archbishop of Wyoming.

Chief doorkeeper—Eugene W. Sullivan, Illinois.

Parliamentarian—H. D. Crutchfield, Kentucky.

Official stenographer—M. W. Blumberg, Washington, D. C.

Bell Rouses Enthusiasm.

The eloquent speech of Temporary Chairman Bell was listened to with the deepest attention, but the enthusiasm of the audience found vent in long-continued applause when the speaker made a telling point or mentioned the name of some one or other of the acknowledged leaders of the party.

All in Red, White and Blue.

Red, white and blue were the only colors used in decorating the auditorium, and the decorations were declared to be the most elaborate ever seen in a Democratic convention. A unique feature was 52 huge stars artistically arranged on the ceiling. These stars represented the states, territories and insular possessions, the names appearing in bluo letters on a white background in the center of each star. The points of the stars were red and white.

Directly over the speaker's platform, against the wall of the building near the junction with the ceiling, was a large shield, 16 feet high, carrying six flags 12 feet long draped in artistic folds. In addition to this main shield there were four other shields over the platform, each ten feet high. The six flags on these shields were eight feet long.

Fine Portrait of Washington.

Just below the main shield hung a mammoth portrait of George Washington, 14 by 16 feet in dimensions. Red, white and blue bunting was draped from the sides of the shield to the bottom of the portrait of the "Father of His Country."

Directly under the last shield, on each side of the Washington portrait, was suspended a portrait, one of Thomas Jefferson and the other of Andrew Jackson. On each side of these pictures a large American flag was draped. These flags are 40 by 60 feet in dimensions. Beyond these pictures, at each end of the wall, and hanging above the gallery, was suspended a pendant, ten feet in diameter, upon which bunting was draped. Upon these pendants a tiger was painted. The back of the platform was banked with palms. Twenty stuffed American eagles, with extended wings, were suspended over the platform, each bird carrying in his bill red, white and blue silk ribbons that were draped back to the wall.

Large Amount of Bunting Used.

In the auditorium the balcony extends all the way around the huge building, but the galleries are limited to each end. The front of the balcony and the fronts of the galleries and boxes were draped with bunting, 55,000 yards being necessary to complete this part of the decorative scheme. At intervals of five feet shields, three feet high, were placed.

Thousands of yards of bunting were used in draping the corridors of the building and the walls of the balcony and galleries. Delegates were supplied with small American flags to wave when their feelings reached a pitch that compelled an extraordinary demonstration.

Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, three of the main thoroughfares in the city, were revelations in color. On Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets there are eight iron ornamental electric poles to a block, four on each side of the street. On these streets the poles were draped with red, white and blue bunting. Wires were stretched across the street from these poles and from each wire two American flags were suspended. The flags hung over the street and were "weighted" to prevent them from becoming tangled and torn by the wind

BEATS HEARST IN RECOUNT

M'CLELLAN WINS MAYORALTY CONTEST IN NEW YORK.

Long Drawn Out Litigation Is Terminated—Jury's Verdict Ordered by Judge.

New York.—George B. McClellan was declared to have been duly elected mayor of New York over W. R. Hearst in 1905 by Justice Lambert Tuesday, and by the justice's orders the jury returned a verdict to that effect. This for the present at least terminates the long-drawn litigation instituted by Mr. Hearst involving the enactment of a law providing for a recount.

This left McClellan with a plurality of nearly 3,000, and counsel for Atty.-Gen. W. S. Jackson, who brought quo warranto proceedings against the mayor, was unable to prove his contention that the ballot boxes were stuffed.

Justice Lambert directed the jury to find a verdict for Mayor McClellan, upholding Mr. McClellan's election.

In his address to the jury Justice Lambert said that no fraud had been proved in the case, and if he should permit the disfranchisement of citizens on such slight evidence, this country would last but a very short time.

TALLEST OF SKY-SCRAPERS.

Equitable Life Will Erect a Sixty-Two Story Structure.

New York.—Plans for a new skyscraper, which will overtop all New York's lofty buildings and the flagpole of which will pierce the sky at a greater height than the Eiffel Tower in Paris, the highest structure in the world, were filed Monday by architects for the Equitable Life Assurance society with the building department.

The projected building for the Equitable will be a 62-story structure, 909 feet from the curb to the tip of the tower, upon which will be stepped a flagpole 150 feet in length. The ball on the flagpole will be 74 feet higher than the 985-foot steel Eiffel Tower.

Francis G. Bailey Escapes.

Puerto Cortez, Honduras.—Francis G. Bailey, the president of the Export Shipping company of New Jersey, who, together with his brother, Albert W. Bailey, Charles H. H. Myers and Capt. Albert Oxley was placed aboard the Norwegian steamer Utstein Tuesday in custody of Lieut. P. W. Beery of the New York police department, made his escape in a small boat from the steamer Tuesday night. The boat was found on the beach Wednesday morning. A search is being made by soldiers in the woods and swamps.

DISASTER IN RUSSIAN MINE

At Least 200 Men Killed by an Explosion of Gas.

Yusovo, European Russia.—A terrible explosion of gas occurred in the Rikovsky mine Wednesday evening in which a large number of miners were at work. One hundred and fifty-seven bodies have been recovered, all of which are badly burned but it is believed that the death roll will reach at least 200.

Seventy-three of the men were rescued alive Thursday, but many of them are in a serious condition. Two of the rescued died soon after being taken out of the shaft. There is great excitement here and troops have been called into service to prevent disorders.

Altogether 550 men were working in the great mine when the explosion occurred. The first intimation of the disaster received by those above ground came in the form of what appeared to be an earthquake.

The earth trembled violently for an instant, the houses rocking as if they were about to collapse.

In another instant flames shot out of the mouth of the mine to a great height. The outburst of fire was followed by a low, seemingly muffled roar, and then the citizens realized there had been an explosion underground. The rush for the mine shaft once began.

The mouth of the mine was left almost intact after the explosion. Fans were set going, and it was cleared of smoke. Then rescue work was started.

THREE SUICIDES IN MILWAUKEE

One Man Wills His Ashes to a Girl for Toothpowder.

Milwaukee.—Three suicides in Milwaukee in one day is the record for some time past. Two of the victims left unusual requests. One, a crippled bootblack, named Walter Barnes, left a note addressed to a local physician requesting that his body be dissected in order to ascertain what was the matter with his legs.

R. Schultz, whose body was found hanging in the woods, left this request:

"I wish to be cremated and hereby will my ashes to Miss Meta Guettner, 618 Twenty-second street, who can use them for toothpowder."

Wilson on Western Tour.

Washington.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson left Thursday night for an extended tour of the west in the interest of the work which the department is conducting in that section of the country. The trip will be in the nature of a vacation, as the secretary has been pretty closely confined to his desk for the past ten months. He will stop en route at Traer, his Iowa home, for a few days' rest prior to visiting the various western states. The secretary probably will be gone for more than a month.

Mrs. Mae Wood Indicted.

New York. — Mae C. Wood, the Omaha woman who sued United States Senator Thomas C. Platt for divorce, was indicted by a grand jury Wednesday on charges of perjury and forgery.

Miss Wood is charged with having signed Senator Platt's name to a document acknowledging her as his wife. The perjury indictment is based on Miss Wood's testimony in the divorce action, when she testified that she was married to the senator at the Fifth avenue hotel in 1901 hen the benediction had been said y hastened out and found himself lace—close to the door, according his father's word—in one of the s of young men which stretched either side of the path from the rch door to the road beyond, at t a quarter of a mile. But he did see Sam. Some one pushed in t of him. And, instead of com- ng for his position, he yielded it found one further down, still seek- the location of his rival. He was ded from this one, too, and he let o and sought another one because ad not seen Sam. And it was nec- ry to his father's scheme, he re- mbered, that Sam and he should be ut opposite. Of course, all this error. His place was right by the rch door. That was where Sally a right to expect to find him. It become a public matter, too. The lic had its rights. It expected him re, even if he had to shed the blood oses to stay there. This had often pened. But he was bewildered in contradictory courses advised by father, and, finally, seeking that ch seemed best, found that which worst. Dull Seffy!

e at last discovered Sam and d a lodgment for himself opposite away down near the gate, where the married men were—such as waited for their wives—who ami- smoked until they came along. unmarried maiden ever expects to matched there. And, had Seffy n as wise as he was not, he would have halted there. But he was ded by Sam. There he was in the osite line, the wrong one, indif- ntly chatting, and even smoking, h Hilary Groff—a married man. y was now so sure of his conquest, t Sam's indifference vexed him. Ev- ntly he did not mean to contend h him for Sally's arm, and it was to a cheap and bloodless victory. For y was one of those who grow brave opposition diminishes.

nd now they were slowly coming rn—the maidens running the gant- of love. One—two—three—four— —a dozen happy matings were de. Seffy was counting. One poor p was "sacked." He crushed his over his eyes and charged back ough the lines and across the fields o matter where. And then came ly!—in a trim little hat with a flut- ng ribbon that looked for all the rld like the white signal, bearing aight down upon him! But there s something in her eyes—expectant illitant—that made them starry. On e came with her head in the air— king neither to the right nor to the left, as if she expected to walk home alone, nearly three miles!

"Oh, no!" thought Seffy—and Sam.

But a bit of terror smote her face pale when she had passed the door—alone—and showed more and more as she went on. Some one laughed—then there was an unmistakable titter along the line. Still Sally passed on, keeping her temper as never before. Was not the old man right about the effect of laughter?

But now the temper loosed itself slowly—her face was scarlet. She had nearly reached the married men. Some one whispered:

"Gosh! He's gitting even by sacking her!"

This was repeated. There was more laughter and more tittering. The crowd deserted the lines nearest the church and followed Sally down on either side in huge tumultuous phalanxes to see what would happen—if it were possible that she would have to go home alone. Several young men who had never dared to approach her began to think of it. They knew that rather than not be taken at all she would take any one of them! There was more tumult now than laughter. And Sally's face grew so white that her eyes blazed like stars in the midst of it.

Seffy quailed. He recognized the temper—only he had never seen it as terrible as this. He had forgotten Sam. It was only Sally he saw, as one sees with fear-stalled nerves the locomotive as it leaps upon him.

And the onlookers, crowding at the sides, thought it a great and terrible hand to hand battle—to wait that way till the last moment and then to spring like tigers—or a piece of tremendous foolishness.

"Both of you must be absolute sure," said Hilary Groff to Sam, "or absolute fools! Ain't you got no pity on the girl?"

"Shut up!" answered Sam, "and watch. I'm calculating on him leaving town to-morrow. That is my game. And I'm playing for the pot."

You see that Sam had not forgotten Seffy for a moment, even if Seffy had forgotten him. He stepped noiselessly three paces toward Sally, crossed in front of Seffy and took her arm. There was a laugh almost ribald. Seffy could not see clearly—he could, least of all, think clearly—he did not know what had happened. He saw only the little white signal before him and blindly put out his arm.

It did not reach Sally at all, but Sam who turned and said with an imitation of girlish politeness:

"Thank you, Mr. Baumgartner, I'm suited."

And, Sally, her face flaming with vengeance, took the trouble to turn back and cry—not into his ear, but into his very heart:

"Thank you, I'm suited."

There are some people to whom no punishment seems sufficient, while any remains to be administered. One of the onlookers was of such a sort. He cried out as poor Seffy slunk away:

"Give her back her dollar!"

And another:

"Or ninety-nine cents, anyhow!"

Seffy quailed and drew back from the line—it was the instant that makes or mars—and he had lost. He might still have knocked Sam down and won—this would have been perfectly proper—but he followed the man who had but a moment before crushed through the line, and wild jeers followed him.

X.

The Huge Fist of the Farmer.

From that day Seffy avoided all public places—and all men. He was nobody—nothing. He fell rapidly into that kind of disrepute which is common to persons with failing reputations. It was to his discredit that he did not leave town, but this his father prevented. Again he took to the cotton woods and the Poison springs, with, perhaps, the dim hope that Sally might again find him there, and that the peeping moon might again interfere on his behalf.

But the moon went through all her phases and then slowly turned her back on him—and Sally never came. In their casual meetings she was ice. Once they passed on the road to the store. She was in precisely the dear garments he remembered so well—of that first day—and as gay as then. He trembled, and then looked up like a mortally wounded animal. She was looking calmly over his head. To the rest of the world she was gayer than ever, though that Sunday night laugh still echoed in her head—kept her maddened. After all, it wasn't worth while to care for even Seffy with such a little spirit. Why didn't he fight—kill Sam or somebody? And the cunning Sam set the story more widely going that for revenge Seffy had deserted her at the church door and that he had first laughed—Seffy. This was too piquant to be passed over, and it was heard far and wide.

To Seffy's father, who, even in this dire strait, strove for happiness for them both—and, of course, the pasture-field—she said with more abandoned disrespect than she had ever addressed to any one:

"You ought to be glad that I do not take revenge on him! If he wasn't so little I would. But he's not worth bothering about. Sacked me, did he? I'll show him!"

"Why, Sally! What would you do?"

"Put him over my knee and spank him and then pen him in the cellar!"

"Sally, don't talk like that," pleaded the old man. "It sp'iles your voice."

And Sally gave him then and there a rude specimen of how her voice was being spoiled—which I may not reproduce. But it was expressed in anathema. Indeed, others had noticed that her voice, somehow, had lost its soft richness. She was particularly kind to the young storekeeper now, and he was particularly reckless and drunken. And rumor presently had it that she was known to be drunk with him sometimes!

CROSSED IN FRONT OF SEFFY AND TOOK HER ARM

"Sally—" said Seffy timorously, one day, (he had waited to tell her this) "you don't think—you don't believe—that I—said——"

"I know," said Sally in voice that froze him, "that you are a fool—and I am not fond of fools. Go away! Be glad I don't lick you!"

And then rumor had it that she and Sam were to be married—"for spite."

But, curiously enough, the person most affected by all this was not Sally, nor Seffy, nor Sam. It was Seffy's father, whose sufferings were nearing agony. Nothing could be done with Seffy. And course of the love between them, which had never been ruffled since Seffy was born, was often ruffled now. The old man, as their relations grew strained, became more and more exasperated at Seffy's lack of initiative.

"Gosh-a'mighty! You goin' to let that molasses-tapper set right down on you and nefer git off? Can't you see that she wants you? It don't matter what she says! Don't you know it's a dare? Air you going to take a dare? Why, you usen't to when you was a baby! When you year that durned new laugh of Sally's can't you see that somesing's wrong? She's drinking! That's what! You think she'd laugh so and drink if she wass happy? You was a fool—yas, a durn fool. It's your fault. Go right up to her like a man and say so."

"I did," said Seffy.

"Hah, you did? An' what she says?"

"She said she knowed it!"

"Well—begoshens! She's a worse fool. Gather her in and make a fool off of her and git efen! Turning her back on an ol' man that harms no one—and her guardeen yit!"

Alas, this was another thing he had done to secure the pasture-field—made himself her legal guardian!

"I'll gife it up—the guardeen. Yassir. She ken take keer herself. Fool—of course. Bose fools! You wait tell she marries that durn molasses-tapper if you want to see fun!"

There was such real agony in the old man's voice that Seffy suffered, too.

"Pappy, I'm sorry—I ain't no good, I expect. I guess I'll go away before the wedding."

"Wedding—wedding! You goin' to let that wedding go on? And him git the pasture-field? Put him between us and the railroad!"

"How can I stop it, pappy?"

"By marrying her yourself!"

"I got enough, pappy," said Seffy hopelessly. "They'd lynch me if I tried it again. I guess I'd better go away."

Quick anger flamed in his father's face at this invertebrate submission. And his voice, when he spoke, was harsher than Seffy had ever heard it.

"Got enough—got enough—that's all you know! And go away! That's all you ken say, you bull-headed idjiot! Go and apologize and git her back. Don't run. Then marry her next day. That'll settle the molasses-tapper, I expect, and show that you got an inch or two of backbone! Choke her—chloroform her and carry her off!"

CALLS FOR IMMEDIATE ACTION.

Chronic Bachelor Makes a Few Remarks About the Modern Hatpin.

"There ought to be a law against women carrying unconcealed weapons," growled the chronic bachelor at the club. "That I haven't been stabbed to death or maimed for life before this is due to a combination of agility and good luck, I'm convinced. I tell you, it keeps a man busy dodging nowadays to avoid blood letting when he's traveling in a crowded conveyance with women, or even walking on a crowded thoroughfare. A woman is positively a menace to life the moment she gets outdoors." "Why outdoors especially?" "Hatpins! Hatpins! Foot and a half long, some of 'em. They stick out from both sides of a hat like spears. Every time a woman turns her head these wicked-looking spears sweep around in a two-foot radius; and every time she bobs her head up and down she takes a chance of raking the nearest person fore and aft. Suppress the woman or the hatpin, I say." "Let's make it the hatpin," suggested the married man, gently.

Wild Boar a Hard Fighter.

For sheer deviltry and insane ferocity the boar stands pre-eminent and for courage he has no equal among animals. A wild boar charging has been known to bring an elephant down on its knees, and one well authenticated fight is recorded between a boar and a full grown tiger in which the boar more than held its own. Tigers have the greatest respect for wild boars and treat them accordingly. In matter of speed the horse has not yet been foaled which can catch a boar in its first burst. I have seen a man on a thoroughbred Arab try to cut out a boar in breaking back to cover, and the boar literally walked around him.—Recreation.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 304 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervousness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and since taking it I feel so much better, and I can again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

KLEMME CELEBRATED.

The 4th of July.

The Weather was fine—the Attractions were Grand and Everybody was well Satisfied.

Although it took our people a considerable time to make up their minds that they really wanted to celebrate but after they had so decided they went in to win. For many days before the celebration preparations were going on as the day aproached nearer and nearer it began to look more and more like a celebration.

The morning of the 4th dawned with black looking clouds in the sky and those who had made such an effort to make the day a success began to feel somewhat disheartened but by 8:00 o'clock Old Sol came out in all his glory and by 9:00 o'clock our streets were crowded with people.

The parade at 9:30 was in readiness with some 20 odd number of floats and each better than the other with none so poor that any need be ashamed of the effort to represent his or her business.

Immediately after the parade the May Pole exercise took place a feat by a dozen of our young ladies acting in unison in winding red and white ribbons around a blue colored pole. This was enjoyed by all who witnessed it and the girls are recipients of many fine compliments.

Following this the exercises in the tent took place at which place the seating capacity was 600 or more and it was crowded to its utmost capacity. There was not even standing room left under the canvas.

The fact that Rev. A. C. Lillie was chosen as orator of the day no doubt constrained the people to be in attendance. This young man, though young in years, is old in wisdom and all who heard him say with one accord "Lillie is alright."

Outside of saying that the invocation, by Rev. Ebert, was in hearty accord with the day and God's blessing was invoked in all its abundance and that the singing was good we will pass to and over the dinner hour to the ball game which took place at 2:30. The home team took the field and opened the game by allowing the visiting team to secure 3 runs in the first inning. Klemme took one run the first time they came to bat and thus the score weaved backward and forward until in the ninth inning our boys found themselves six whole scores in the lead and the end was twelve to six in favor of Klemme. Jno. Braund did the umpiring and gave undisputed satisfaction.

After the ball game the street sports were in order and everything passed off nicely. Following are the names of those who took part in the several contests:

Free for all foot race—M. I. Parker 1st, Fred Schuldt 2nd.

Fat man's race—Mr. Ford 1st, John Henschen 2nd.

Boys under 15—Earl Mann 1st Aug. Bock, 2nd.

Sack race—Fred Ridder 1st,

Barrel race—Mr. Wilcox 1st, G. Schoenwetter 2nd,

Dutchman's race—Henry S. Schwartz 1st, G. Remker 2nd.

Egg race—R. Baack 1st, F. Ridder 2nd.

Running broad jump—M. I. Parker 1st, Harve Allen 2nd.

Running high jump—Howard Williamson 1st, Ernest Wellemeyer 2nd.

Standing broad jump—M. I. Parker 1st, Adolph Ridder 2nd.

Following the supper hour the band boys entertained the people with an evening concert. Most all the remarks that we heard in regard to the band are to the effect that they did "quite well." The boys rendered several up to-date selections that seemed to be generally appreciated.

After the concert the fireworks took place and we did not realize how large a crowd of people our town could accommodate but as one surveyed this vast concourse of humanity from an elevated position one began to realize that there must have been at least between two and three thousand people here and they all with one glad voice pronounced our fire-works excellent. The display was one to be proud of.

When this feature was over the crowd was turned loose to enjoyment anywhere the could inside the city limits. Our hotels and restaurants treated the visitors with genialty and wholesouled courtiness and held their bill of fare within the reach of all.

Many took themselves to the dance after the fire works, many sought comfort at the refreshment tables and others took themselver homeward. Everybody seemed to enjoy him or herself and the town of Klemme once more has the honor of doing herself proud from sun to sun-set. Yes, when Kl celebrates she turns the loose and he screams w the fury the old bird can m Hurrah for Klemme!

The belles of England, during the reign of Henry VII., carried little hand-mirrors suspended from their girdles. The same custom prevailed in the time of Elizabeth and James I. They formed the center of many fans at that period and later.

IT WILL BE RALPH HEREAFTER.

A Youngster's Outspokenness That Taught Grandpa a Lesson.

There is a very well-known man in Brooklyn who is particularly proud of his grandson, a bright boy of four years and a few months. But, like all fond grandpas, he believed teasing amusing to the child as well as to himself—and he recently received the shock he deserved. The little lad was playing industriously with a doll when the proud grandpa said:

"My! playing with a doll—why your name must be Susie—not Ralph."

No word from the boy, who kept right on playing with the doll.

"Susie," said the grandpa, just rushing to his fate, "do you like dolls?"

The boy moved perceptibly, but clung to the doll.

"Dear little Susie—you used to be a boy."

The boy lifted his head indignantly and with deep pathos, said: "Grandpa, I hate to tell you so, but you're a d—— fool."

Great was the consternation of the grandfather and amazement of the mother, who tragically ordered the boy to his room, while she called attention to the tears that rolled down her cheeks at such a fearful offense. Finally she told the little fellow that he might be forgiven if he begged his grandpa's pardon. But the boy believed his grandpa the offender and said so. His mother sternly read him a lesson against profanity, and especially about disrespect to grandparents. The little fellow was touched, and going over to his grandpa said, compromisingly:

"I am sorry I called you a d—— fool—but if I cannot call you a fool can I call you a lemon?"

Hereafter grandpa will call Ralph by his right name.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Naming the Baby.

The naming of a baby is considered important even among people whom we are apt to regard as uncivilized. And, curiously enough, these very folk contrive to avoid the arguments that so often ensue when father and mother disagree over whether the little stranger shall be called Jack or Marmaduke, Priscilla or Jane.

The Mahometan father and mother each write the choice of a name on a slip of paper and place both in the Koran. Whichever slip is drawn first is the name given to the child.

A pretty Egyptian custom is to light three candles, naming each after a god or some exalted personage. The child is called after the candle which burns longest.

Hindu mothers name their children, paterfamilias not having a word to say in the matter. The naming ceremony usually takes place when the baby is about 12 days old, and a flower name is usually chosen.

Chinese girls are simply numbered one, two, or three, until they reach years of discretion, when they are allowed to choose a name for themselves. The boys, however, are given a temporary name until they are 20, when pa decides what magnificent appellation they shall rejoice in for the rest of their lives.—N. Y. Weekly.

DEPOSITORS FAVORED.

Secure Tactical Advantage in $350,000 Case at Chariton.

Chariton.—For some time the depositors of the defunct First National bank have been trying to have to $350,000 claim of the Modern Woodmen of America thrown out, and Attorneys Stuart, Stuart & Stuart have been working on the case for some time. They have finally succeeded in getting a ruling from the comptroller of the currency that will reverse the position of the two parties in the case, and the Modern Woodmen will be put on the offensive in the case instead of the depositors.

Attorneys Stuart claimed to the comptroller that the admission of the Woodmen claim as a bona fide deposit in the bank, without the depositors having an opportunity to show that it was not a bona fide deposit, was unfair to the depositors, so the comptroller finally consented, if the depositors would put up a bond sufficient to cover the costs in the trial of the case, to reverse his first ruling in the matter, and throw out the Woodmen claim, thus forcing the burden of proof on the Woodmen, instead of on the depositors. The case will have to be tried in court the same as before, but the Woodmen will now be the plaintiff and the depositors the defendant, which is an advantage for the depositors.

Receiver Jamison say there is now a little over $260,000 on hand for the depositors, and will ask permission to pay the first dividend as soon as the preferred claims are ruled upon by Federal Judge Smith McPherson, who will hold federal court, to hear all the preferred claims in a bulk. There are eight or ten of these claims, the principal one being the deposit of Lucas county in the defunct First National bank. It is probable that the case will be appealed to the circuit court of appeals, no matter which way Judge McPherson decides it. The term of court to he held will be known as part of the Creston term, it being held here only for convenience, as all the evidence is here.

THREE DROWN IN LAKE.

Gasoline Launch Tank Explodes; Five Thrown Out.

Muscatine.—By the capsizing of an over crowded launch and explosion of a gasoline reservoir at Resley lake, a short distance north of Muscatine, three persons, two girls and a boy, were drowned. A picnic party of five were in the launch at the time and the craft proved too frail to bear the weight of so many. All were thrown into the water, but two managed to save themselves without assistance. One of the drowned girls sank below the water and was not seen alive afterward. The bodies were not recovered until several hours after the accident. The names of the drowned follow: Maure Garnes of Muscatine, Ether Crozen of Atalissa, and Clyde Slater of Muscatine. Richard Waters and Elmer Hain, both of Atalissa saved themselves.

ROBBERS BET HIS ALL.

Valuable Satchel is Stolen From Humboldt Man.

Fort Dodge.—Mr. H. Meyers of Humboldt, while waiting for an eastbound train in the Illinois Central waiting room, had his grip stolen in which were notes and other papers amounting to between $5,000 and $6,000. He was en route with his wife to Indianapolis and had but recently severed his connection with the firm he had represented on the road for twenty-nine years and in the settlement had received salary and commissions amounting to nearly $5,000. The police have been working on the case, but so far have failed to locate the missing grip.

Want Better Terminals.

Sioux City.—The Sioux City board of trade has adopted resolutions calling on the railroads centering in Sioux City to co-operate with the stock yards company in increasing the switching facilities. Interests identified with the live stock and grain business believe that the cattle and hog shipments will be extremely heavy this summer and the grain receipts will also amount to many thousands of cars weekly. The stock yards company is willing to construct extra tracks.

Dubuque Boy's Body Recovered.

Dubuque.—The body of 12-year-old Arnold Luschinger, who drowned Sunday, has been recovered from the Mississippi.

CHILD SLAYER RELEASED.

Judge Says He Thinks The Boy Guiltless.

Des Moines.—Upon a showing that little Kenneth Reeves aged 10, struck the blow which indirectly resulted in the death of Cecil Jenkins only after young Jenkins had first struck him, Judge McHenry ordered Kenneth released.

"I shall place the case before the grand jury next fall, but in the meantime this boy is remanded only to the care of his parents," said the court.

In addition to the evidence of self-defense, the testimony showed that death probably was not caused by the blow from the mopstick, but from the fall upon the brick sidewalk. It was also shown that Cecil had beaten Kenneth once on their way home from school.

In rendering his decision Judge McHenry said:

"It is the nature of every true American boy to strike back when he is struck first. I cannot say that I find fault with this boy for not permitting himself to be imposed upon. When I was a boy I used to fight for my rights myself. The greatest fault with youngsters today is not in themselves, but their parents. I do not censure these parents, because nothing has been shown but what they took proper care of this boy. But the majority of cases in juvenile court can be traced to the neglect of parents."

WRECK RESULTS FATALLY.

One Killed and Several Badly Injured in Collision.

Des Moines.—W. H. Urbahns, baggageman and brakeman on the Rock Island Island interurban, was killed and several people were injured in a wreck that occurred when a Great Western engine with caboose and extra tank backed into the Rock Island local near East Seventeenth street.

When the truck of the Great Western train hit the smoking car of the local it was torn from its tender and the smoking car was turned over on its side, completely demolishing it and holding several passengers prisoners until help could arrive or they could break their own way out.

Brakeman Urbahns was standing in the baggage car when the crash came. The impact sent him hurling across the car against a large trunk, cutting a deed gash in his head which rendered him unconscious. Other passengers were hurled against the other side of the car, some sustaining serious injuries, other only slight brouses.

Conflicting stories arise as to the real cause of the wreck. Both trains were making for the crossing and it seems a misunderstanding arose between the engineers as to who had the right of way.

BUNKO A FARMER.

Wealthy Scott County Man Loses a Roll of $2,000.

Davenport.—Herman Ehlmann, a wealthy retired farmer, was induced by a couple of strangers to drive into the country and inspect a farm they claimed to own and to go to the Scott County Savings bank and get $2,000 with which to buy it

The strangers made their getaway, leaving Ehlmann with a tin box in which was half a brick securely packed in paper and the following note:

"You have been skinned, and when you open this box we will be in Canada. Keep this to yourself and no fun will be made of you. Goodby. We will be in Canada."

Stallion's Bite Is Fatal.

Elma.—Matt H. Doyle, a prominent former living a few miles west of here, died from blood poisoning. A week ago he was caring for a stallion, when the animal bit him on the back of the hand. The wound was not larger than a dime, and at first was not though to be serious. But the poison from the horse's saliva infected the wound and spread rapidly through the body. The patient was delirious for three days.

Brakeman Hurt by Fall.

Marshalltown.—When he went to step from one car to another, not knowing that the train had been uncoupled, J. C. Fredie of St. Joseph Mo., a Chicago Great Western freight brakeman, 26 years old, fell to the ground and was severely injured. The man's right leg was broken above the ankle and he sustained a fracture of the bones of the heel of the other foot Fredie was removed to St. Thomas hospital.

SMALL THING HE FORGOT.

May Have Accounted for His Proposal Being Turned Down.

Senator Beveridge described, at a dinner, an absent-minded farmer.

"The man was so absent-minded," he said, "that he couldn't open his mouth without making an arrant ass of himself.

"Once he courted a young woman. His suit looked promising for a time. Then, with a sorrowful visage, he ceased his courtship.

"'Yet she seemed infatuated with you, Jabez,' said I, one day when he came to me for sympathy.

"'She were, too,' Jabez agreed.

"'Well, what could have been the trouble?'

"'Dunno,' said he. He filled his pipe. 'Dunno; but when I perposed, she turned me down cold.'

"'Perhaps your proposal wasn't ardent enough?' I suggested.

"'Oh, it was fiery,' said Jabez. 'Hot as pepper. I told her she was the only woman I'd ever loved, ever looked at, ever thought of, or—'

"'But, said I, 'you forgot, then, you were a widower.'

"'Jingo,' said Jabez, 'so I did.'"

HEALTH BRINGS HAPPINESS.

Invalid Once, a Happy Woman Now.

Mrs. C. R. Shelton, Pleasant Street, Covington, Tenn., says: "Once I seemed a helpless invalid, but now I enjoy the best of health. Kidney disease brought me down terribly. Rheumatic aches and pains made every move painful. The secretions were disordered and my head ached to distraction. I was in a bad condition, but medicines failed to help. I lost ground daily until I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once and soon made me strong and well."

DOCTOR SAID "USE CUTICURA"

In Bad Case of Eczema on Child—Disease Had Reached a Fearful State—His Order Resulted in Complete Cure.

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20. 1907."

He Was Prepared.

The lawyer was doing a cross-examining stunt.

"Now, sir," he said to the witness, "tell the court how far you were from the accused when he fired the shot."

"Thirteen feet, seven and three-quarters inches," answered the witness.

"Oh, come, now," said the lawyer, "how can you tell to the fraction of an inch?"

"I knew some fool would ask me," replied the other, "so I measured it."

Up to His Tricks.

Lord Rosslyn, at a dinner in New York, said of a notorious London spendthrift:

"When he was at Oxford he wired once to his uncle, whose heir he was:

"'If you don't send me a hundred by Saturday, I'll blow my brains out.'

"His uncle wired back:

"'You telegraphed me that before, and when I forwarded you my best revolver, you went and pawned it.'"

Somehow a compliment is pleasing to a woman even when she knows it isn't sincere.

MRS. FRANK STROEB

A Remarkable Recovery.

Mrs. Frank Stroebe, R. F. D. 1, Appleton, Wis., writes: "I began using Peruna a few months ago, when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck, could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and had no desire to live. Peruna made me look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength.

"I certainly think Peruna is without a rival as a tonic and strength builder."

HALSTEAD IS GONE

LEADER IN AMERICAN JOURNALISM DIES AT CINCINNATI.

HAD BEEN ILL FOR MONTHS

Sketch of His Long Career as Editor, War Correspondent and Writer on National Political Topics.

Cincinnati.—Murat Halstead, one of the leaders in American journalism for over half a century and widely known as a vigorous editorial and magazine writer, died at his home in this city Thursday afternoon, in his seventy-ninth year.

At his bedside were his wife, his son Robert and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur Stem. Mr. Halsted had been failing in strength for several months and Wednesday suffered from cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. and Mrs. Halstead celebrated their golden wedding anniversary a little more than a year ago, at which time Mr. Halstead's health seemed frail and as time passed he grew weaker, so that the news of his death was not wholly unexpected.

He was a native of Butler county, O., and after a short service on a literary weekly, he in 1853 became connected with the Cincinnati Commercial, in which he secured a small interest a year later, becoming chief owner in 1865. Nearly 20 years later his paper was consolidated with the Gazette and he was editor-in-chief of the combined newspaper until years afterwards when another consolidation was effected, new owners securing control.

For a time he was editor of the Brooklyn Standard-Union and during the last ten years he has figured largely as a magazine and special newspaper writer, besides issuing a number of books on current matters of historical interest. In the civil war Mr. Halstead personally reported many battles, being rated as a war correspondent of the first-class, and later in the Franco-German war and also in the Spanish-American war he added to his reputation in that line.

For 50 years he attended and reported all Republican national conventions and in 1860 he was the only newspaper man who reported all the varied political conventions of that year.

TEN YEARS FOR BARTNETT.

Prominent Railroad Man Sentenced for Irregularities.

San Francisco. — Walter J. Bartnett, formerly vice-president and general counsel for the Western Pacific railway and vice-president and general counsel for the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company, which failed in this city last November for about $9,000,000, was Wednesday sentenced to the San Quentin penitentiary for ten years by Superior Judge Conley. Bartnett was convicted of having hypothecated bonds and securities to the amount of $205,000 belonging to the estate of Ellen M. Colton, of which he was special administrator.

Bartnett's counsel immediately took an appeal after sentence was passed. Bartnett is well known in railroad and financial circles in New York.

ONE KILLED IN COLLISION.

Baggageman Dies in Railway Wreck at Des Moines, Ia.

Des Moines, Ia.—One man was killed, three were seriously injured and a half-dozen were slightly hurt when a Great Western work train crashed into the Rock Island-Indianola local at the East Sixteenth street crossing Wednesday at 11:38 a. m.

The truck of a tender on the work train passed entirely into the smoking car of the Rock Island passenger train, penning seven passengers in the rear end of the car. The turning of the coach hurled three trunks onto the prostrate form of Baggageman W. H. Urbahns, so injuring him that he died in the hospital.

Rhodus Brothers Arrested.

Chicago. — Birch F. Rhodus, Edward T. Rhodus and Thomas Rhodus were arrested late Monday afternoon charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud. The three brothers organized and promoted the Central Life Securities company and numerous subsidiary corporations, through which they are alleged to have obtained $3,000,000 in the last few years.

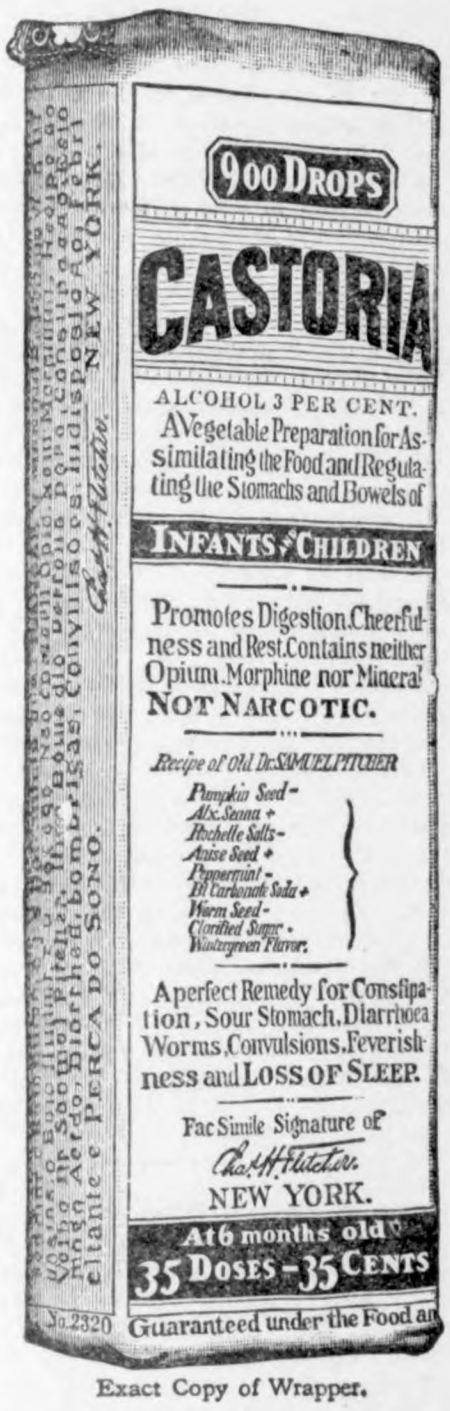
Nine Killed in Collision.

Knobnoster, Mo.—The fast California special train from St. Louis on the Missouri Pacific railroad collided with an equally fast St. Louis train from Kansas City two miles east of here at 5:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Nine persons were killed, all on the train from Kansas City, and at least 50 were injured.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

'GATOR ON THE RAMPAGE.

Edifying Story That Is Vouched for by the Georgia Ananias.

"Yes," said the fisherman, "the man had fished all the forenoon, an' hadn't got a nibble, so he took another swaller out the jug, pulled off his boots, an' lay down on the river bank an' went to sleep. As soon as he went to snorin' good, a alligator that had been watchin' him all the mornin' crawled up an' swallered his boots, likewise the jug, with 'bout half a gallon in it, I reckon. The cork came out, and, of course, the 'gator got the full benefit o' the whisky, which so turned its head that it lashed the water with its tail till the river was a foamin' mass, after which it crawled up on the bank agin an' made desp'rit efforts to climb trees an' turn double-somersaults, an' do all manner of impossible things!"

'Why didn't it swallow the fisherman, instead of his boot?" some one asked.

" Gators, gentlemen," said the storyteller, "can't stand ever'thing. They must draw the line some'rs."—Atlanta Constitution.

Bells.

Bells are understood to have had their origin in China, but at so remote a time that no precise date can be given. Their first use was to clear the air of evil spirits and to drive off the storms. Old European records tell how the tolling of bells kept the devils from assaulting believers; hence their connection with churches. Bells may be traced in Europe back to the sixth century, but were not generally introduced into the western church much before the eighth century.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

IDEAS FOR THE HOSTESS.

Some Novel and Simple Ways to Entertain Guests.

A Handkerchief Shower.

This affair for a prospective bride was arranged in a very clever manner. Twelve intimate friends were invited to luncheon with the request to bring the gift "mouchoir" rolled up into the smallest package possible. Before going to the dining-room the hostess took all the packages and disapepared. When luncheon was announced, with one voice the guests exclaimed "how pretty." Suspended from the chandalier there was an inverted Japanese umbrella, from each rib there was a smaller umbrella and from this hung by ribbons there was a gilded watering can the sprinkler of which had 12 holes with baby ribbons of different colors coming out. At the end of each ribbon there was a tightly rolled package. The effect was lovely. The place cards were miniature "Jap" parasols with the cards tied to the handles. The candle shades were ornamented with these same tiny parasols and small lanetrns filled with candied puffed rice were at each place. The mint sherbert, which was the dessert, had smilax twined around the tall glass with another little umbrella in the top of the glass.

A HYBRID IN HARNESS.

Department of Agriculture Has Hopes of Making a New Beast of Burden in This Country.

By means of two male zebras, imported from Abyssinia as the gift of King Menelik, and which are now at the National Zoological park in Washington, the department of agriculture hopes to make in this country a new beast of burden—a cross between the zebra and the horse, says Country Life in America. Experiments in this direction by the French authorities at Paris have been very successful. The hybrid is smaller than the horse. It is an exceedingly tough and wiry animal and will be suited to the warmer sections of the United States. The history of the American mule is suggestive of the possibilities of the zebra. A century ago the mule was a very scarce animal in the United States. Washington had done much to direct attention to his merits and had loaned the services of a large Spanish jack, presented to him by the king of Spain. But the mule did not become popular until well into the century. At our last census, however, we had nearly 3,000,000 mules, with a taxable value of $250,000. The possibilities from the two zebras are immense—they may combine with the donkey and back into the horse and thus introduce entirely new strains.

BUILDING FIRE IN OPEN.

Something Worth Remembering by Those Who Delight in the Pleasures of the Camp.

How to contrive a satisfactory fire in the open, say, at a picnic, is not known to everyone. The best way is to make a "tramp's" log-fire, the logs being placed—as this diagram plan indicates—with their ends over lapping in the center, which arrangement insures a good draught of air through the fire. The dotted portion of the diagram indicates the heap of leaves, twigs, etc., that is to be burned. As their ends are consumed the logs are pushed further into the fire.

Last Year's Flower Novelty.

One of the flower novelties of last year which was successfully grown by many experts is a tobacco plant which produces scarlet flowers, nicotiana Sanderae. It is named for its producer, an expert of England. The plant was originated by crossing two South American tobacco plants, one of which had white and the other red flowers. The result was a flower varying from a light pink to the deepest red.

Delusions About Police.

There is one class of persons who believe that the policeman of London is a kind of knight-errant. They believe that on the vigil of his appointment he watches his helmet, truncheon and large boots in some dim and sacred chapel, and that he would wear his lady's colors on his helmet if the rules of the service permitted it. It is one of the innumerable delusions of mere wealth.—Illustrated London News.

SHOWING THE WEDDING GIFTS.

Charming Exhibitions Made at French Bridals.

In Paris most charming conceits are devised to enhance the effect of an exhibition of wedding gifts in the bride's home. Sometimes the furniture is removed from one or two rooms to give space to show cases, where is made a tasteful array of the most delicate parts of the trousseau, and numberless bivelots. The heavier articles are suspended from screens or round the walls from hanging ribbons, pictures, or even dados of crinkled papier velours in some subdued shade. One of the most telling arrangements is dispersal against the walls of small tables covered with mignonette-green silk, and on which are artistically displayed the bridal treasures, to each of which is attached with a pink ribbon the card of the giver. The contents of every table are partly veiled by vaporous tulle held up to the wall by some bracket lamp, high statuette, and draped at the sides with large choux in pink satin. The coloring depends evidently on the prevailing tones of the house decoration. Such a treatment is light, tasteful and not too expensive. A scheme which involves larger reception rooms and a greater outlay of time and money consists of a triumphal arch in bamboo at the entrance to every door, often covered with climbers, whilst through the whole suite of rooms are distributed in profusion palm trees, jardinieres, tall vases and corbeilles full of flowers, giving the impression of a bower of flowers and foliage, in which are nestled the marvels of the bride's outfit and of her friends' generosity and taste.

A Complete Defense.

An Irish woman was accused of having stolen an iron soap kettle and cracked it, so that its usefulness was ended.

Her defense, when brought before the judge, was as follows: "Oi have witnesses here, yer honor, t' prove, first, that Oi niver had th' kittle in me possession; second, that Oi returned it t' Mrs. Casey widout a crack in it; and, third, that th' old kittle was cracked whin Oi s'thole it."

VELOZ IS RECALLED

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH VENEZUELA SEVERED.

CHARGE ORDERED HOME

No Danger of War with South American Republic—Washington Officials Regret Departure of Senor Veloz.

Washington.—The diplomatic relations between America and Venezuela that have existed uninterruptedly for more than half a ceutry, though in recent years severely strained, were completely severed Thursday.

At half-past three o'clock in the afternoon Senor Veloz-Goiticoa, the Venezuelan charge d'affaires, called at the state department by appointment to present to Acting Secretary Bacon notice from his government that he was to quit his post here, closing up the Venezuelan legation in Washingtoyn, and repair forthwith to Venezuela.

Taking leave of Acting Secretary Bacon and accepting the suggestion that he communicate in writing to Secretary Root the direction of his government in this matter, Senor Veloz paid hasty calls upon Assistant Secretaries Adee and Huntington Wilson and other officials of the state department who he has long and intimately known. Of course, officially, there was nothing for these gentlemen to say beyond mere formalities when made acquainted with the fact that the Venezuelan charge had been withdrawn. But personally they did not hesitate to express their sincere regret, for Senor Veloz has come to be very highly regarded in the diplomatic circle. Indeed it may be stated positively and from actual knowledge of what he has done in the years which he has passed in Washington as a representative of Venezuela that his personality has gone far toward deferring the rupture.

As to the future, it is pointed out by officials who have followed closely the developments in the Venezuelan situation that there is not the slightest danger of war in the immediate future, or indeed at all. Rather will the situation resemble that following the rupture of diplomatic relations between France and Venezuela, for instance, where legations were closed on both sides and all official relations terminated, while trade between the two countries continued and Frenchmen came to Venezuela and rich Venezuelans made their annual pilgrimages to Paris as if nothing had occurred.

AMERICAN MINISTER FIRED ON.

Mr. O'Brien Narrowly Escapes Death in Paraguayan Revolution.

La Paz, Bolivia.—Further details received here of the revolution in Paraguay state that while fighting was going on in Asuncion an incident occurred which might have had a most serious result. The American minister, Edward C. O'Brien, desirous of proffering his good offices in order to prevent further loss of life, while approaching the headquarters of the revolutionists was fired upon three times by government troops. According to the dispatches the minister's escape was miraculous, as many persons were killed in the vicinity. Discovering their error, the troops ceased firing and an officer hastened to give explanations to the minister, who is convinced that the act was not premeditated.

ANNA AND HELIE WEDDED.

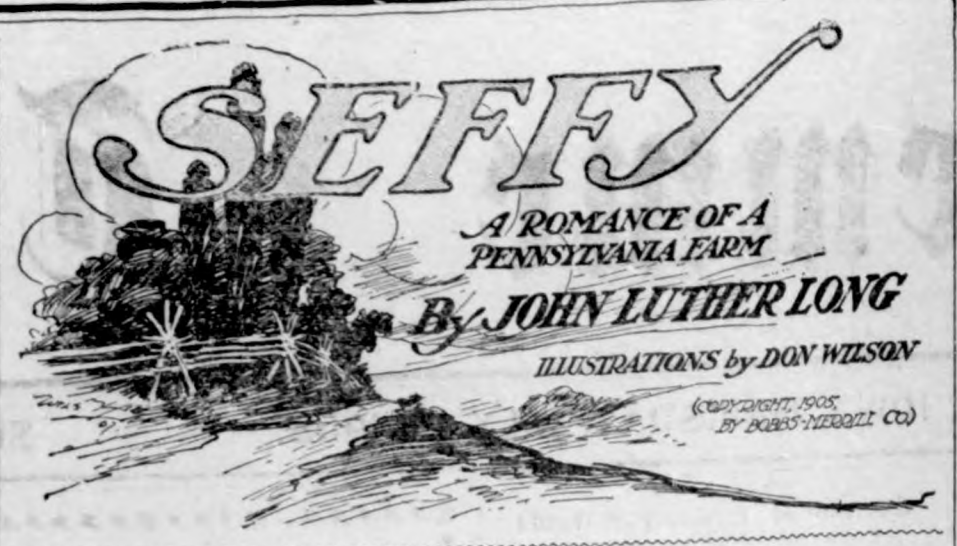
Mme. Gould Becomes Wife of Prince De Sagan.

London.—Mme. Anna Gould and Prince Helie de Sagan were married at a registry office in Henrietta street, off Covent Garden, Tuesday. A subsequent ceremony was conducted at the French Protestant church on Soho square.

The civil ceremony was simple. Outside of Prince Helie, Mme. Gould, the witnesses and the officials, no one was present. A great crowd, consisting largely of porters from the Covent Garden market, and employes of the publishing houses in the vicinity, assembled in the street outside. Prince Helie produced a copy of the notice filed with the registrar, establishing his two weeks' residence in the district, and the registrar granted his license.

Goulds May Be Reconciled.

New York.—Reports that Frank J. Gould and his wife have become reconciled were circulated Wednesday following the striking from the court calendar of an action entitled "Gould versus Gould."



SYNOPSIS.

The crowning desire in the life of old Baumgartner, a Pennsylvania German, is to obtain possession of the beautiful meadow which lies just between Baumgartner's property and the railroad station. The property in question was inherited by Sarah Pressel, very pretty and athletic young girl, and belonged solely to her. At length Baumgartner came to realize that his only hope of obtaining the property would be through the marriage of his son Sephenijah to Sarah Pressel. In a mock auction "Seffy," as Sephenijah P. Baumgartner, Jr., is popularly known, is raffled off by his father to Sarah for $1. He appears utterly incapicitated to win in any contest of love or life. Sarah Pressel is quite the opposite of Seffy. She is all life and animation. Her one fault is a very high temper. Baumgartner gives Seffy some lessons in courtship. Baumgartner has caused himself to be appointed guardian of Sally. Seffy is unable to resist the fascinating witcheries of Sally and he kisses her. She promises him, however, that she will never kiss any man but him. Sam Fritz, a drunken grocery clerk—old Baumgartner calls him a "molasses tapper"—calls on Sally and interrupts the kissing. They go into the parlor and begin a "sitting up" contest. In accordance with the customs of the place and the time, the one who is defeated in such a contest is unworthy the hand of the girl. Seffy goes to sleep and begins snoring. Sally leaves the room in a huff, saying: Good night, gentlemen." Seffy tells his father of his humiliation; of how Sam Fritz had pinned to his bosom while he slept a pasteboard tombstone bearing the inscription: "Sephenijah P. Baumgartner, Jr., went to his rest, June 10, 1871, in the twentieth year of his age. Gone but not forgot. Read backwards." Seffy and Sally meet at the Poison spring. She urges him to do something to redeem himself. The father advises Seffy to take Sally home from church. This would be the crucial test, according to the custom of the times, which often meant disgrace or even murder and suicide. It was the rule in such a test that the one whose arm the girl accepted when leaving the church would be the favored suitor, and the rejected one was disgraced and must leave town or triumph over his opponent by force. Seffy dreads the church ordeal. The church is crowded in expectancy of the enactment of the romance and a crowd awaits without. Seffy takes up his position outside the door to wait for the services to end and for Sally to come out. Sally appears, radiant in her expectancy. She walks down the steps alone, and on down the walk alone. Still Seffy hesitates. Alone she walks nearly to the gate while her face burns with the humiliation. Then Sam takes Sally's arm. She says: "I am satisfied," and Seffy is left in disgrace to be held up to the ridicule and scorn of the vicinage. Sam continues his drinking and Sally begins to acquire the habit. Old Baumgartner is disgusted at Seffy's miserable failure at the church test.

CHAPTER X.—Continued.

Seffy laughed at the absurdity of the thing. But it was unmirthful.

"Gosh-a'mighty! On a time like this you ken laugh! You right, you ain't no good—no, begoshens! You air an idjiot and fool! You no man! No, nor nefer will be! I'm sorry I'm you' daddy. I am, begoshens!"

Then, as his wrath mounted, he raised his huge fist and threatened Seffy.

"Git away from me, or I'll break your head! I can't stand you no more! You not worth a dam'—not a dam'—to nobody. You look like you' mammy's relatifes—and they was all no good—git away, I tell you!"

He roared ominously; for Seffy, amazed at this from his gentle old father, was looking straight up at him out of a child's round eyes, his lips parted, his throat exposed. Slowly, as his parent heaped contumely upon him, his sensitive young face whitened, and the light left it. Only, when his father mentioned his mother's name, he said with infinite softness:

"Why, pappy!"

But he stood without fear under the great fist—as he had often done.

"You hear! I told you to git away or I'll smash your face in! I don't want you no more. Go to your mammy's relatifes out west"—he laughed horridly—"and see what they'll do for you! You'll live on bread and water—they ain't got nossing else! You'll work all day and all night—and you'll haf no fun—they don't know no better—go!"

"Yes," said Seffy, turning dumbly away.

There was no doubt that he meant to go now. His dumb acquiescence in his sentence raised his father's wrath to fury.

"Yes—go, and be mighty quick about it. I'm chust itching to smash you. I'll nefer send for you if you rot in the poorhouse. I'll nefer mention you' name as long as I lif—no! I disown you! Never let me see you' dam' face again—go!"

It was all so utterly unbelievable that Seffy turned back. This raving madman his jolly old father, who had reverenced the memory of his mother and had taught him to do so—to mention her every time he prayed? The old man had turned, but Seffy came close and touched him gently. The caress only maddened him. Seffy cowed at the passion on the face of his father. He raised his fist.

"Git out—dam' you!" he shouted. "If you don't—" But the boy could not now.

The huge fist trembled on high a moment, some instinct of sanity struggling to control it—then it fell on Seffy's upturned face.

He dropped among the clods—his pale hair mingling with the dust—his hands inertly outlying—terror still quivering in his lips and nostrils. Blood slowly oozed from his mouth and nose, and a livid red mark began to grow upon the depression in his forhead which the blow had made.

One moment—two—the old man looked down at this. Then he understood that he had done it, and with a savage animal-cry he swept the boy into his arms. Seffy doubled inertly upon him, as the dead do. His father raced frenziedly home with him, leaping fences like a hound. He put him upon the pretty white bed the boy had been wont to make with such care for himself. It was dainty and smooth now. The blood dripped from Seffy's face and from his own beard and stained the white coverings. The sight was full of horror! He staggered drunkenly away. He looked hastily for his gun—meaning, perhaps, to kill himself. But then it seemed to him that Seffy sighed. He fell on his knees and agonized for the life he thought he had taken. Then he felt a pulsebeat. With a hoarse cry he rushed out into the road, calling for the doctor. Two people were coming toward him. It was Sam and Sally, returning from their marriage.

"THEN YOU GOT TROUBLE—TROUBLE, TOO, SALLY?"

By what he saw on old Baumgartner's face and hands, Sam was sobered. Both understood that they were approaching some tragedy.

"Who?" asked Sally, suddenly oblivious of Sam.

"Sam!" she turned upon her husband with command. "Bring the doctor!"

Sam went with satisfactory haste.

"Who hurt him?" asked Sally, as if she were ready to slay him who did.

"I. I killed him because he wouldn't marry you. You wouldn't marry him! Oh, you devil!"

It was at that instant that the great change in Sally came. She leaped before him into the house and up to Seffy's room. When the old man slowly followed she was there—with eyes bent upon Seffy's bloody, unconscious face. So she kept her eyes. She did not speak. And when the doctor came she was still there—as at first—unconscious as he, the doctor said.

He was not dead, and presently he breathed again. But his eyes remained closed, and, late that night, when he had drifted from unconsciousness into deep sleep, they put out the light and left him.

When they came again he had disappeared.

XI.
When Spring Came.

That was a cold and lonely winter for the old man. The bay mare stood in the stable and whinnied for Seffy. The old house was full of harsh echoes. Its spirit seemed to have gone. Seffy's father knew now what a rare thing is joy—and what a joyous creature Seffy had been.

The ground was hard to till. And often he thought about what he had said of Seffy's mother.

Then he would toil up the steep stair to the garret—he had become quite feeble—and take out of an old German chest a daguerreotype of her with Seffy in her arms. And sometimes he would cry over it until his beard was wet.

"God bless you, my little boy," he would sometimes say. "that you cared for her more than I did. You nefer called her no names.

"I didn't know I could be so mean to the dead—who don't deserfe it, and can't talk back. And, God-a'mighty! If any one's to be called names, it's me!—not her nor—you, Seffy, nor you! For I expect I'm a murderer!"

And sometimes, when his loneliness was too hard to be borne, he would go out and sit for hours and talk to the old bay mare—about Seffy. He fancied she quite understood, and I do, too.

When the spring came he plowed alone. And this was hardest of all. To plow around and around his vast fields with no one to meet in the other furrow—no one to talk, to smile, to laugh to—then, when noon came, to sit under the shade of some tree redolent with memories of the pretty little boy, where he and Seffy had sat, from his childhood to his manhood, and eat the food which choked!

Oh, if he could only have laughed—at himself, at Seffy, at the mare, at anybody or anything! If he could only have laughed!

And he knew that every animal on the place wondered and hungered for little Seffy and questioned him with pathetic eyes, while he, at first, guiltily kept silent—then tried to confess his shame to them.

"Yas," he told the mare, "I done it—I struck him—here, right here! In the face—while his eyes was looking in mine—pleading—and here was blood—and here and here—and dust in his hair—and his eyes was closed—and when I run home wiss him his legs dangled like he was dead. And he crawled away somewheres to die—I don't know why they don't come and hang me. I haf told 'em all that I killed him. But no one don't arrest me."

Clock Is Stopped.

Leading up to the nomination were hours that began with picturesque enthusiasm, which grew into unconquerable disorder. The nominating speeches were made amid scenes akin to panic at certain stages.

At 12 o'clock midnight the convention clock was stopped, so that constructively the nomination of Bryan could take place at Thursday's session of the convention. Will the Friday hoodoo be overcome by this technical evasion? is a question that was in the minds of enthusiastic Bryan Democrats, as they wended their way from the convention hall in the early morning hours.

A wilder demonstration than that over the first mention of Bryan's name on Wednesday followed the concluding word of the speech of Ignatius J. Dunn of Nebraska, which formally presented the name of Democracy's champion to the convention.

An hour and seven minutes, against the one hour and 28 minutes of the day before, marked the cheering and tumult, but the densely, overcrowded auditorium made the confusion worse confounded.

Johnson and Gray Named.

Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota and Judge George Gray of Delaware were placed in nomination along with Bryan. Small as was the following of either, in comparison with that of the Nebraskan, the scenes of confusion, owing to the uncontrollable size of the crowd, were approximately great.

Gov. Johnson was placed in nomination by Winfield Scott Hammond of Minnesota, Connecticut yielding to the gopher state.

Judge Gray's name was presented by Irving F. Handy of Delaware. Mr. Handy felt how sadly he was in the minority when, after he had talked awhile, the crowd attempted to choke him off.

Seconding Speeches.

Seconding speeches for Bryan were made by Senator Gearin of Oregon, Gov. Glenn of South Carolina, and Gov. Claude Swanson of Virginia. Gov. Glenn's speech created much excitement, being devoted largely to a defense of Bryan against attacks branding him as a Socialist. At the conclusion of his remarks, which were not in accord with the spirit of the convention, Permanent Chairman Clayton, who at the day session has superseded Temporary Chairman Bell as wielder of the gavel, exclaimed that William Jennings Bryan needed no defenders, and elicited tremendous applause.

The opening session lasted three hours and brought about the completion of the permanent organization of the convention, with the resounding address of Congressman Clayton of Alabama, permanent chairman of the convention. When the session opened at night, every formality of organization had been accomplished and the decks were clear for the supreme work of adopting the platform and naming the candidates.

Clayton Delivers His Address.

The address of the permanent chairman, Mr. Clayton, proved to be a caustic arraignment of the failure of Roosevelt policies, and an enunciation of Democratic doctrine. The ringing voice of the orator and the emphasis of his gestures stirred the listening thousands to frequent demonstrations of enthusiastic approval.

At 2:30 o'clock the platform committee was not yet prepared to report, and the convention took a recess until evening, so that all remaining differences of detail on the platform could be reconciled and the document be ready for adoption and the presidential nomination be reached before the adjournment of the night session.

It was 7:50 o'clock when Chairman Clayton began to rap for order, which he secured within the minute.

Pending the report of the committee of inquiry, Thomas P. Ball of Texas was invited to address the convention.

After his speech came talks by Senator Grady of New York, Judge Wade of Iowa and Champ Clark of Missouri.

"The secretary will now proceed to call the roll of states for nominations for the office of president of the United States," shouted Chairman Clayton.

"Alabama," called the clerk.

The chairman of that delegation arose and was recognized.

"Knowing that Nebraska will make no mistake in nominating the right man," he said, "Alabama yields to Nebraska."

"I. J. Dunn of Omaha will speak for the Nebraska delegation," announced the chairman of that state, while the cheering which followed the first statement from Alabama continued unabated.

Dunn Nominates Bryan.

Mr. Dunn, who was to make that speech of the convention in which the greatest interest was felt by the delegates and the spectators, is scarcely of middle age. His clean-cut, determined-looking, clean-shaven face is surmounted by dark brown hair, which owing to the emphatic manner in which he emphasized his speech with his head, was soon touching the center of his forehead. He spoke clearly and with a pleasing manner of delivery. As Mr. Dunn proceeded, almost every allusion he made to the character of Mr. Bryan was enthusiastically applauded, although he had not yet mentioned the name of the Nebraska candidate. When Mr. Dunn declared that his candidate was the choice of the militant Democracy of the country the convention broke in with wild cheers. The ever ready flags were tossed aloft and a roar of applause swept through the hall.

Big Demonstration Starts.

Mr. Dunn brought out the name of "William Jennings Bryan" with intense dramatic force, and the response from the great throng was electric. The delegates sprang up, the galleries followed suit, and the demonstration was under way in a manner that promised to rival Wednesday's exhibition of enthusiasm.

A few moments after the cheering began an immense oil painting of Mr. Bryan was lowered from behind a monster American shield which had reposed over the chairman's desk ever since the convention began. The appearance of the picture raised the pitch of the outburst, and the enthusiasm was still instence when the convention adjourned until 1 o'clock Friday afternoon.

KERN FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

Convention Names Indiana Man as Running Mate for Bryan.

Denver, Col.—At one o'clock Friday afternoon, the hour to which the convention had adjourned, not one-fourth of the delegates were in their seats, and they were coming slowly into the hall. The heat was even greater than on Thursday and the temperature inside the hall was high and uncomfortable. The public, however, seemed to have as much interest as ever in the convention, and the galleries were packed long before any considerable number of delegates had arrived.

The convention was called to order at 1:40.

The nomination of a candidate for vice-president was the only business before the convention. J. J. Walsh presented the name of Archibald McNeill of Connecticut. Gov. Thomas of Colorado named Charles A. Towne of New York. Thomas R. Marshall urged the claims of John W. Kern of Indiana, and the convention cheered the presentation of the name of the Hoosier statesman.

Gov. Folk of Missouri seconded the nomination of Mr. Kern.

Gov. Hill of Georgia put in nomination Clark Howell.

Hill of Georgia withdrew Howell's name and seconded the nomination of Mr. Kern.

Charles A. Towne also withdrew from the contest, and urged his friends to unite on Kern.

The withdrawals increased the vigor of the demonstrations in favor of Kern, and on the motion that he be nominated by acclamation, which was carried, the cheering resembled closely the enthusiasm which had been evinced at the nomination of Mr Bryan the day before.

Wearied by the two tumultuous sessions, the delegates left the convention hall and the great gathering was at an end.

Sketch of Kern's Career.

John Worth Kern was born in Howard county, Indiana, December 20 1849. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1869 at the age of 20 years, with the degree of doctor of laws. His first official position which brought him into the public eye was when fulfilling his duties as a reporter of the supreme court of Indiana, which office he held from 1885 to 1889. For four years—1892 to 1896—he was a state senator. He became city attorney of Indianapolis in 1897, and held that office for four years. A year before he gave up the office he ran for the gubernatorial chair in Indiana, and was beaten. Four years later—in 1904—he also tried for the governorship on the Democratic ticket, and was again defeated. Later he received the complimentary vote of the party for United States senator.

WOULD ACCEPT BUT ONE TERM.

Mr. Bryan Asserts He Would Never Be Candidate for Re-Election.

Fairview, Lincoln.—The following statement was made by William Jennings Bryan when he received announcement of his nomination as the candidate of the Democratic party for president:

"The honor is the highest official possession in the world, and no one occupying it can afford to have his views upon public questions biased by personal ambition. Recognizing his responsibility to God and his obligation to his countrymen, he should enter upon the discharge of his duties with singleness of purpose. Believing that one can best do this when he is not planning for a second term, I announce now, as I have on former occasions, that if elected I shall not be a candidate for re-election.

"This is a nomination as purely from the people as can be, and if elected, my obligation will be as purely to the people. I appreciate the honor the more because it came not from one person or a few persons, but from the rank and file, acting freely and without compulsion."

A man entered a drug store in a poor neighborhood in New York City and asked for a pound of powdered sulphur. It was quickly weighed and wrapped up. "Fifteen cents, please," said the druggist. "Fifteen cents?" exclaimed the customer. "I can get it for ten cents 'up above' "—indicating "up-street". The druggist threw the parcel in a drawer, saying: "You can go down below and get it for nothing."

ENEMY KNEW BULLER'S PLANS

English General Understood Only "Fighting by the Book."

It was one of the dearest desires of the scriptural writer that "mine adversary had written a book." It was one of the comforts and safeguards of the Boers in the Transvaal war that their early adversary had actually written and published a book, officially indorsed and widely circulated. The volume in question was the standard of tactics of the British army, and the author of it was one of the notable incidents of the Boer war.

Capt. Fritz Duquesne, of the Boer army, who was captured and sent to Bermuda as a prisoner and afterward escaped to New York, told the other day, in speaking of the death of Buller, how the Boer army managed to beat him so badly when he was sent to South Africa. He gave Buller credit for the very highest order of courage and the most indomitable will to do his best for his flag, but asserted that Buller was so handicapped by his own writings on military affairs that all the enemy had to do to beat him was to study his own text-book. Buller was the author of the book by which the British army fought, and he followed it religiously. The Boers had an abundant supply of the books and were to follow them up. By consulting the book the Boers could tell precisely what Buller would do next after he had done a certain thing. If he shelled a position with lyddite, the book would tell what would follow, and the Boers had only to look at the text to inform themselves as to the nature of defense or attack that it was necessary to make.

The Magazine Short Story.

Ambrose Bierce, the author of "In the Midst of Life," has a right to discuss short stories, for his grim book sets him, in the opinion of the leading foreign critics, beside Edgar Allan Poe.

Mr. Mr. Bierce discussed the magazine short story at a recent luncheon.

"There are exceptions to everything," said he, "but the reason for the conventionality and worthlessness of the typical magazine short story is not hard to find.

"Let me repeat a dialogue to you.

"A writer of magazine short stories took a young lady in to dinner.

"'I know you are awfully famous, Mr. Biggin,' said the young lady, 'but though I have read a great many of your tales, I don't like them a bit.'

"Biggin smiled.

"'Of course you don't like them,' said he. 'Why should you? They aren't written to please the public.'

"'Not written to please the public?' said the girl.

"'No, indeed,' said Biggin, laughing heartily at her ignorance. 'They were written, of course, to please the magazine editors.'"

Dispute Over Famous Picture.

There has been much discussion in art-loving circles in London the last week or so, regarding the great price paid for the beautiful Gainsborough, which is said to recall the much greater price given for the same master's "Duchess of Devonshire," 30 years ago. A London writer says the curious thing about that famous sale was a difference of opinion between the greatest painter of his day and all the rest of the world as to the artistic value of the picture. Millais did not think it was a Gainsborough at all—not because of any technical detail of execution, but simply because the view of a woman was not Gainsborough's view. Millais exclaimed, "Look at Gainsborough's women—why, you want to die for them! But no one ever wanted to have a finger-ache for that duchess." But every one does not share Millais' opinion. "The Duchess of Devonshire" is a mighty attractive young woman to behold, if not to die for.

On Board S. S. Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse.

July 4, 1908.

We left New York City Tuesday morning and took the ferry to Hoboken and in a few minutes were on board the big monster which is 649 feet long, and seemed more like a little city in minature than a boat. We were received with a cordiallity as an American is unacustomed to. As we entered our state room we found some mail for us already on the table. In less than one hour all the decks were crowded with those who would be passangers and those who had come to see their friends off. Then came a scene which our pen can not describe. As friends and relatives parted with handshakes and embracings with sobs and tears, wishing each other well and bidding "goodbye", all this was most touching. When the great whistle sounded there was a great rush to get off by those who did not want to go. Now hundreds upon hundreds stood on the wharf waving hands, hats flags and handkerchiefs, some cheering and others crying. As the band began to play the last rope was loosened and the boat began to move. Then a storm of "goodbys" broke forth. Many threw flowers on the decks while others cried as tho' their hearts would break. We ourselves could not keep back the tears at this moment. We somehowe felt strange that there was no one to bid us "farewell" and yet this would have made it much harder had some been there.

The weather was ideal and the ocean as smoothe as a mirror. We were very thankful for this as the trembling of the ship caused by the working of the great twin screws underneath was enough to "up-set" many without the waves rocking the ship. Quite a number complained of feeling sea sick at the first meal. Since then some have been missing at every meal.

Our places at the table was assigned by numbers and we were fortunate to be assigned to the first table. There are 14 tables in our apartment with room for about 190. Breakfast and supper consist of a four-course menu and dinner of a six-course. Besides this there is a lunch served between meals.

Every forenoon there is a concert on the deck and in the evening in the dining room. These are free to all.

We never expected to see the ocean as calm as it has been these five days. They tell us we are making one of the fastest trips this boat has ever made if she can keep up at this rate. Other boats are likewise breaking their record as it is seldom that the ocean is quiet for such a length of time. We have spent most of the time each day on deck. If anything it was rather cool after leaving the gulf stream.

Mrs. Wessel and myself have not missed a meal so far. Lurena took part of her meals in her room or on deck, as she experienced a dizziness in the dining room, which is one floor down.

Tho' the ship is crowded to its utmost, there are very few Americans on board. A large percent seems to be Jews. While some are disagreeable passangers we have made the acquaintance of a few very nice people especially a gentleman and lady from Baltimore who are next to us at the table.

This morning at an early hour the band came on deck and played "The Star Spangled Banner" while the captain had a large U. S. flag hoisted to the top of the mast and a German flag to the rear of the ship. Captain Polack is a large typical German, but very common and pleasant. He makes his rounds once each day, joking with the men, playing with the children and cheering the sick The stewards are all very accommodating be it in your room, at the table or on deck, they are always at your service. It is now 5:30 P. M. and the bell is calling us for supper, and we are thinking of our friends in Iowa who are likely just finishing their picnic dinner (1. P. M.) If all goes well we will reach Plymouth Eng. early Monday morning where a few passengers will leave us. Then we will cut across to Cherbourg, France, where a large number will get off. Tuesday morning we expect to reace Bremen. Mail addressed to us in care of Rev. C. H. Burkhardt, Bremen, Nordstrasze 78 b. will be forwarded to us.

Yours truly,
G. H. WESSEL.

Gruetzmacher Bros. have been busy the past week disposing of farm machinery. The past week they set up five McCormick binders. Their best man Wm. Newell and assisted by H. L. Schuldt are their expert machinists.

Last week Saturday was one of the hottest days we have had so far. The thermometer registered 102. We have been very fortuuate of late in not receiving any rain which is giving our farmers good weather for haying and some even are cutting their early oats. Since the hot weather corn is doing splendid. one can almost see it grow. We hope for a continuation of the present weather.

There was not a regular 4th of July celebration in Hancock Co. this year. The people of Britt scattered out in nearly all directions, many went to Clear Lake and Mason City, some to Crystal, Eagle and Twin Lakes. What remained at home contented themselves with family picnics and all seemed to enjoy the day.—Britt News.

You are mistaken Brc. Simkins in your statement by saying that there was not a regular 4th of July celebration in Hancock county this year. If you would have been in Klemme the 4th and seen the large crowd of people and the various kinds of amusements that were had that day, you would have said that Klemme certainly celebrated and did it right. Every one said that it was one of the best celebrations ever had in Hancock Co.

HADN'T WALKED ALL THE WAY.

Prisoner at Least Had Change While Crossing River.

"Down in Alabama," said John D. Fearhake, "there's a deputy marshal who doesn't let any such trifles as extradition laws stop him. Term of court was about to begin at one time, and a gentleman who was out on bail was reported to be enjoying himself over in Georgia. Deputy Jim went after him. Next day he telegraphed the judge: 'I have persuaded him to come.' A few days later he rode into town on a mule, leading his prisoner, tied up snugly with a clothes line. The prisoner looked as if he had seen hard service.

"'Why, for heaven's sake, Jim,' said the judge, 'you didn't make him walk all the way from Georgia, did you?'

"'No, sir,' said Jim.

"'I hoped not,' said the judge.

"'No,' said Jim, 'part of the way I drug him, and when we come to the Tallapoosa river, he swum.'"—Woman's Home Journal.

TWO CURES OF ECZEMA

Baby Had Severe Attack—Grandfather Suffered Torments with It—Owe Recovery to Cuticura.

"In 1884 my grandson, a babe, had an attack of eczema, and after trying the doctors to the extent of heavy bills and an increase of the disease and suffering, I recommended Cuticura and in a few weeks the child was well. He is to-day a strong man and absolutely free from the disease. A few years ago I contracted eczema, and became an intense sufferer. A whole winter passed without once having on shoes, nearly from the knees to the toes being covered with virulent sores. I tried many doctors to no purpose. Then I procured the Cuticura Remedies and found immediate improvement and final cure. M. W. LaRue, 845 Seventh St., Louisville, Ky., Apr. 23 and May 14, '07."

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Denver, Colo.—The following is a synopsis of the platform adopted by the Democratic national convention:

Preamble—We, the representatives of the Democracy of the United States in delegate convention assembled, reaffirm our faith in and pledge our loyalty to the principles of our party.

We rejoice at the increasing signs of awakening in the United States. The various investigations have traced graft and political corruption to the representatives of predatory wealth and laid bare the unscrupulous methods by which they have debauched elections and preyed upon a defenseless public through the subservient officials whom they have raised to place and power.

The conscience of the nation is now aroused and will, if honestly appealed to, free the government from the grip of those who have made it a business asset of the favor-seeking corporation. It must become again "a government of the people, by the people and for the people," and be administered in its departments according to the Jeffersonian maxim: "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

This is the overshadowing issue at this time; it manifests itself in all the questions now under discussion and demands immediate consideration.

Publicity for Funds—We heartily approve of the laws prohibiting the pass and the rebate and insist upon further legislation, state and national, making it unlawful for any corporation to contribute to campaign funds and providing for publication before the election of all the individual contributions above a reasonable minimum.

State's Rights—Believing with Jefferson in "the support of the state governments in all their rights as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwark against anti-republican tendencies," and in "the preservation of the general government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad," we are opposed to the centralization implied in the suggestions, now frequently made, that the powers of general government should be extended by judicial construction.

Senators by Direct Vote—We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people and regard this reform as the gateway to all other national reforms.

Trusts and Monopolies—A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable; we therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal law against trusts and trust magnates, and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States. Among the additional remedies we specify three: First, a law preventing the duplication of directors among competing corporations; second, a license system which will, without abridging the right of each state to create corporations, or its right to regulate as it will foreign corporations doing business within its limits, make it necessary for a manufacturing or trading corporation engaged in interstate commerce to take out a federal license before it shall be permitted to control as much as 25 per cent. of the product in which it deals, the license to protect the public from watered stock and to prohibit the control by such corporation of more than 50 per cent. of the total of any product consumed in the United States; and third, a law compelling such licensed corporations to sell to all purchasers, in all parts of the country, on the same terms after making due allowance for cost of transportation.

Tariff Revision—We welcome the belated promise of tariff reform, now offered by a part of the Republican party, as a tardy recognition of the righteousness of the Democratic position on this question, but the people cannot safely intrust the execution of this important work to a party which is so obligated to the highly protected interests that it postpones relief until after the election. And we call attention to the significant fact that the promise now made by those Republicans who favor tariff revision is wholly vitiated by the use of the very qualifying words under which the present tariff iniquities have grown up. We favor an immediate revision of the tariff by the reduction of import duties. Articles entering into competition with articles controlled by trusts should be placed upon the free list; material reductions should be made in the tariff upon the necessaries of life, and reductions should be made in such other schedules as may be necessary to restore the tariff to a revenue basis.

Income and Inheritance Tax—We favor an income tax as part of our revenue system, and we urge the submission of a constitutional amendment specifically authorizing congress to levy and collect a tax upon individual and corporate incomes, to the end that wealth may bear its proportionate share of the burdens of the federal government. We favor a national inheritance tax to reach the "swollen fortunes" already in existence, but we believe that it is better to permanently prevent "swollen fortunes" by abolishing privileges and favoritism upon which they are based.

Railroad Regulation—We assert the right of congress to exercise complete control over interstate commerce, and we assert the right of each state to exercise just as complete control over commerce within its borders. We demand such an enlargement of the powers of national and state railway commissions as may be necessary to give full protection to persons and places from discrimination and extortion. We believe that both the nation and the various states should, first, ascertain the present value of railroads measured by the cost of reproduction; second, prohibit the issue of any more watered stock on fictitious capitalization; third, prohibit the railroads from engaging in any business which brings them into competition with their shippers, and, fourth, reduce transportation rates until they reach a point where they will yield only a reasonable return on the present value of the roads, such reasonable return being defined as return sufficient to keep the stock of the roads at par when such roads are honestly capitalized.

Postal Savings Banks—We favor the postal savings bank, and, in addition thereto, insist upon the passage of laws, state and national, for the better regulation of banks and for the protection of bank deposits.

Currency—We believe that, in so far as the needs of commerce require an emergency currency, such currency should be issued and controlled by the federal government, and that it should be loaned upon adequate security and at a rate of interest which will compel its retirement when the emergency is past. We demand, further, that favoritism in the deposit of treasury funds shall be abolished and that surplus revenues shall be deposited at competitive rates upon sufficient security and fairly distributed throughout the country.

Labor and Arbitration—We favor the eight-hour day. We believe in the conciliation of capital and labor and favor every legitimate means for the adjustment of disputes between corporate employers and their employes to the end that justice may be done to those who toil and that society may be relieved from the embarrassment occasioned by prolonged strikes and lockouts.

Injunctions—We favor such a modification of the law relating to injunctions as will, first, prevent the issuing of the writ in industrial disputes, except after notice to defendants; second, permit trial before a judge other than the one who issued the writ, and, third, allow a jury to be summoned in all cases where the alleged contempt is committed outside the presence of the court.

Employers' Liability—We favor an employers' liability law, applicable to both private and public employers.

Immigration—We favor full protection by both national and state governments within their respective spheres of all foreigners residing in the United States under treaty, but we are opposed to the admission of Asiatic immigrants who cannot be amalgamated with our population or whose presence among us would raise a race issue and involve us in diplomatic controversies with oriental powers, and we demand a stricter enforcement of the immigration laws against any immigrant who advocates assassination as a means of reforming our government.

Canal and Water Ways—We believe that the Panama canal will prove of great value to our country and favor its speedy completion. We urge liberal appropriations for the improvement and development of interior water ways, believing that such expenditures will return a large dividend in lessened cost of transportation.

Pensions—We favor a generous pension policy, both as a matter of justice to the surviving veterans and their dependents and because it relieves the country of the necessity of maintaining a large standing army.

Philippines—We condemn the experiment in imperialism as an inexcusable blunder which has involved us in an enormous expense, brought us weakness instead of strength and laid our nation open to the charge of abandoning the fundamental doctrine of self-government. We favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippines as soon as a stable government can be established, such independence to be guaranteed by us as we guarantee the independence of Cuba until the neutralization of the islands can be secured by treaty with other powers. In recognizing the independence of the Philippines our government could retain such land as may be necessary for coaling stations and naval bases.

Advice to the Lovelorn.

An Albany politician was discussing the heart troubles that ofttimes draw famous men unwillingly into court.

"If these men," said he, "would paste in their hats poor expatriated Abe Hummel's advice, they'd have no difficulty whatever.

"Abe's advice, which he incessantly repeated to his clients, was:

"'Never make love to a woman through an ink bottle.'"

An Accident.

A "perfect lady" was charged in the police court with having broken her umbrella over the head of another "perfect lady."

"What have you to say to the charge?" asked the magistrate.

"It was an accident, your honor."

"Do you mean to say that after smashing an umbrella over this woman's head you claim it was an accident?"

"Sure, yes; but I meant not to break my umbrella."

The Useful Reason.

Rev. Sydney Goodman—his Men's church at Atlantic City, with its smoking congregations and its moving pictures, has already brought out many imitators—is noted for the brilliancy and originality of his sermons.

"Even in a begging sermon," said a member of the Men's church, "Mr. Goodman can amuse. He began a recent begging sermon in this manner:

"'A deacon said to the minister's wife:

"'Why is your husband always asking for money, money, money?'

"The minister's wife sighed:

"'I suppose it is because you never give him any,' said she."

HIS WAY OF PROPOSING.

He—They tell me you're great at guessing conundrums.

She—Well, rather good.

He—Here's one for you: If I were to ask you to marry me, what would you say?

DIFFERENT NOW

Athlete Finds Better Training Food.

It was formerly the belief that to become strong, athletes must eat plenty of meat.

This is all out of date now, and many trainers feed athletes on the well-known food, Grape-Nuts, made of wheat and barley, and cut the meat down to a small portion once a day.

"Three years ago," writes a Mich. man, "having become interested in athletics, I found I would have to stop eating pastry and some other kinds of food.

"I got some Grape-Nuts, and was soon eating the food at every meal, for I found that when I went on the track, I felt more lively and active.

"Later, I began also to drink Postum in place of coffee, and the way I gained muscle and strength on this diet was certainly great. On the day of a field meet in June I weighed 124 lbs. On the opening of the football season in Sept., I weighed 140. I attribute my fine condition and good work to the discontinuation of improper food and coffee, and the using of Grape-Nuts and Postum, my principal diet during training season being Grape-Nuts.

"Before I used Grape-Nuts I never felt right in the morning—always kind of 'out of sorts' with my stomach. But now when I rise I feel good, and after a breakfast largely of Grape-Nuts with cream, and a cup of Postum, I feel like a new man." "There's a Reason."

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for the blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

BETRAYS HER LOVER.

Mrs. Frank Shercliffe in Trouble at Des Moines.

Des Moines.—Owen Ball, alias Owen Coleman, arrested at Marshalltown in company with Mrs. Sherman Morris or Mrs. "Frank Shercliffe," is held to answer the charge of robbing the Northern Pacific train in the limits of Minneapolis on the evening of April 16. Chief of Detectives Col. E. E. Johnston of Des Moines turned the trick.

Arrested through love for Mrs. Shercliffe, the wife of his old pal, Ball is in the city jail, betrayed by her when in the sweatbox and facing strong evidence that started three weeks ago in the theft of a new silk umbrella.

Special Agent McFetredge of the Northern Pacific arrived in Des Moines and told Col. Johnston that he is certain Ball and Shercliffe are the train robbers the road wants.

Mrs. Shercliffe, after a night in the matron's room, confessed to the detectives that Ball told her that he and her husband robbed the train. She told a story in which all the details fitted into the train of facts that the railroad company agents collected at the time of the robbery.

Complaint of the theft of an umbrella three weeks ago from Chas. Bayor at the McCurnin Drug company, put the detectives on the trail. Sims and Brunnemer worked on the case with Johnston. They traced the man from the description of the drug clerks onto a Highland Park car and to the home of Mrs. Sherman Morris, wife of Frank Shercliffe, famous through his connection with the great Pollock diamond robbery, and now in jail in Leadville, Col., for the murder of a man in that city years ago.

The detectives learned then, more about Ball, who went under the name of Coleman. His frequent visits to the Morris home were followed by letters. Some of these recovered, show a strong affection between the alleged train robber and his old pal's wife. Love letters passed. And finally one in which the climax of affection was reached told Mrs. Shercliffe to place her children in safety and meet Ball at Marshalltown. The wife took her children to her mother and went to meet her lover.

Mrs. Shercliffe arrived in Marshalltown and went at once to the Ball home. But her lover failed to appear and she waited there for him two days. Then he came. The two were much together and were on the streets several times in each other's company. Finally the Des Moines police completed the gathering of the circumstantial evidence and Col. Johnston gathered the web in his hand and closed in on the couple.

Des Moines.—Owen Ball, arrested at Marshalltown in company with Mrs. Frank Shercliffe, wife of the famous diamond robber has made a full and complete confession of his participation with Shercliffe in the robbing of a Northern Pacific train in the city limits of Minneapolis on the night of April 16.

Ball also confessed to the robbery of a St. Paul drug store the night before. In this he was also assisted by Shercliffe. Special Agent McFetridge of the Northern Pacific left Des Moines with his prisoner for St. Paul and Minneapolis and Ball has promised the officers he will conduct them to the spot where he and Shercliffe hid a number of watches taken from passengers on the night of the holdup.

Mrs. Shercliffe now denies that she eloped with Ball and declares that she was inveigled to Marshalltown in the hopes of finding a home for herself and her two babies.

Leadville, Colo., July 10.—"I would not believe my wife would elope if I were to see it," said Sherman Morris, alias Shercliffe when a telegram showing the arrest of Ball was shown him. He denied knowledge of the Northern Pacific robbery. Morris was cool and perfectly self-possessed when he made this emphatic denial.

Tries to Kill Himself.

Council Bluffs.—George Lyon, a young man living in the country south of Macedonia made two attempts to commit suicide. He first tried to drown himself in a tank, and then slashed his throat with a razor. Twenty-five stitches were taken, and he may recover. No motive is known for the act.

Thieves Make Haul.

Mason City.—Fifty dollars in money and a quantity of goods were stolen from the J. E. Emery drug store here. The door was broken in by thieves. A large plate glass window was also shattered No clue has been discovered.

VICTIM OF CONSCIENCE.

Woman Flayed by Carrie Nation Ends Her Life.

Des Moines.—Shamed in public by Carrie Nation, Mrs. Ann D. Sperry ("Vernie Dawson") killed herself at 210 East Court avenue at midnight after an evening of the wildest revelry.

She left the dance hall in the midst of the orgy and took a number of mercury tablets. Her companions suspected her intention from the manner in which she has been brooding over Mrs. Nation's reproaches and followed her to her room. There they found her lying on the bed, already losing consciousness. Dr. Welpton was summoned, but by the time he arrived, the poison had gone into her system. She lived until 6 o'clock, and before she died, told the inmates of the house that she had kidnaped her two small children from the Davenport Children's home two weeks ago.

Before she could tell their address, she died.

The woman was divorced from her husband in Galesburg Ill., recently and he was given the custody of the children.

When Carrie Nation made her night visit to the houses of ill fame on her Chautauqua trip to Des Moines she singled out Vernie Dawson for vitriolic censure and called on her to reform. The girl sobbed at the time and left the room, afterwards, it is said, sending for Mrs. Nation to tell her her troubles.

The woman was 28 years old and had been in the resort only a short time.

KILLS THE TOWN MARSHAL.

Gowrie Youth Revenges Self Upon the Officer.

Gowrie.—Town Marshal Tom Nichols, aged 34 years, was shot to death by William Carr, aged 22. The officer had arrested the youth when the latter had gotten into an altercation with a stranger who stepped from a Rock Island train. After the fight the stranger disappeared and Marshal Nichols took Carr off to jail. The youth, however, broke away and went to his home and got a Winchester rifle. Meeting the marshal later he fired and killed the officer. He was later arrested and hurried to Fort Dodge for safe keeping.

Coroner Lowrie of Fort Dodge held an inquest, the verdict being that Nichols came to his death at the hands of William Carr.

Carr's father is in jail serving a thirty days' sentence for intoxication.

Smallpox Claims Victim.

Council Bluffs.—Frank Boyd, aged thirty-one, died of smallpox at his home in the western part of the city, making the second death from this disease within a week. Mrs. J. F. Snyder, who succumbed to a form of the disease was a sister of Snyder, though living in a different section of the city Boyd was the man who became delirious from the disease, and created a reign of terror in the neighborhood by running about wildly. Church services in the western section of the city have been ordered discontinued for a time.

Fire Bugs Attack Saloon.

Farley.—Someone made an almost successful attempt to burn down the saloon of John J. Callahan. A couple of window panes were broken and the front of the building saturated with kerosene. The fire burned all night long, but owing to the absence of any wind did not gain much headway, although there was a newspaper partly burned alongside of a keg of wine which was badly charred. So far as he knows Mr. Callahan has no enemies who would resort to such base tactics to obtain revenge.

Fire at Griswold.

Griswold.—The large clothing store of W. J. Woodward & Son and the meat market of E. S. Jenkins were destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of over $7,000. The Woodward store and building are a total loss but a part of the goods were saved from the Jenkins store. There was $4,000 insurance on the burned property The cause of the fire is not known.

Hobson Repeats Words.

Webster City, July 12.—From the Chautauqua platform in this city yesterday afternoon, Capt. Hobson repeated the statement which brought riot into the democratic convention saying that he had recently heard President Roosevelt say that a Japanese exclusion act meant certain and immediate war with Japan.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

Novel Flower Party.

At an afternoon party given for 15 or 20 girls, each was requested to come wearing something to indicate a "flower." It certainly was a regular "flower garden of girls" that assembled on the broad flower decked porch. The hostess gave out little hand-painted flower shaped booklets for the guesses to be written in and a prize of a huge bouquet of asters was awarded to the girl who guessed the most and a box of marshmallows to the one having the least correct guesses. Some of the representations were exceedingly clever; a row of pins conspicuously worn on the front of the gown was "rose," several pink bows of huge proportions was "pinks," while a button fastened on with a nail was "bachelor's button;" a girl resplendent in silver stars proudly said she was a whole bouquet of "asters."

Space forbids giving any more examples, but it will be readily seen how this idea could be adapted to almost any entertainment. Ice cream was served in individual "flower" molds.

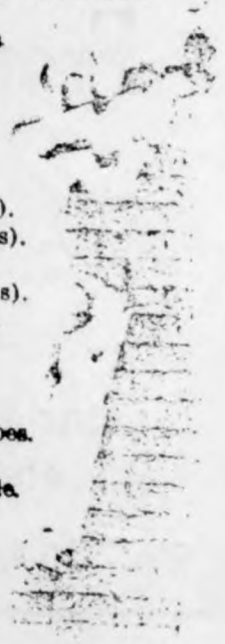
Riddles.

Here is a most ingenious riddle by Bishop Wilberforce which will afford keen amusement arranged as a contest. At the head of the paper write: "I am a singular piece of mechanism as every one admits;" then write the following questions:

1—I have a carpenter's tool box.
2—Two lids.
3—Two musical instruments.
4—Ten articles used by a carpenter.
5—Two lofty trees.
6—Two good fish.
7—A number of shell fish.
8—A fine stag.
9—A number of small animals, swift and shy.
10—Two playful animals.
11—A number of weathercocks.
12—Two established measures.
13—Two implements of war.
14—Whips without handles.
15—The steps of a hotel.
16—The sides of a vote.
17—Fine flowers.
18—A fruit.
19—Two scholars.
20—Two places of worship.
21—Ten Spanish noblemen to wait upon me.
22—A way out of difficulty.
23—A poor bed.
24—A desert place.
25—A probable remark of Nebuchadnezzar when eating grass.

ANSWERS.

The human body which has:



1—A chest.
2—Two eyelids.
3—Drums.
4—Nails.
5—Palms.
6—Soles.
7—Muscles.
8—Hart (heart).
9—Hares (hairs).
10—Calves.
11—Vanes (veins).

16—Ayes and noes.
17—Tulips.
18—Adam's apple.
19—Pupils.
20—Temples.
21—Ten-dons.
22—Cheek.
23—Pallet.
24—Waste.
25—"I browse" (eye brows).

MADAME MERRI

Emergency Outfits.

Every household should have an emergency outfit made up of clean linen rags or sterilized gauze, a roll of absorbent cotton, several rolls of bandages, from one-half to two and a half inches wide (each roll containing about five yards), a spool of adhesive plaster a half inch wide, an ounce of boracic acid powder, a two or three ounce bottle of carbolic acid, a bag of clean salt, a cake of clean aseptic soap, a bottle of lysol, a clean, white porcelain washbowl, clean towels, a piece of stout new muslin bandage about a yard long, smooth stick 18 inches long and a half inch in diameter, a graduate measuring glass. Besides these, two fomentation cloths a yard wide by two yards long.

All these should be made clean and sterile, or free from germs and wrapped in a clean sheet, and then in a square of clean, new mackintosh, and then placed where they can be gotten at at once.—The Housekeeper.

A Complete Defense.

An Irish woman was accused of having stolen an iron soap kettle and cracked it, so that its usefulness was ended.

Her defense, when brought before the judge, was as follows: "Oi have witnesses here, yer honor, t' prove, first, that Oi niver had th' kittle in me possession; second, that Oi returned it t' Mrs. Casey widout a crack in it; and, third, that th' old kittle was cracked whin Oi s'hole it."

BARNYARD SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

Mrs. Plymouth Rock—Glad to have you for a neighbor, Mrs. Buff; but your first step will be to get social recognition.

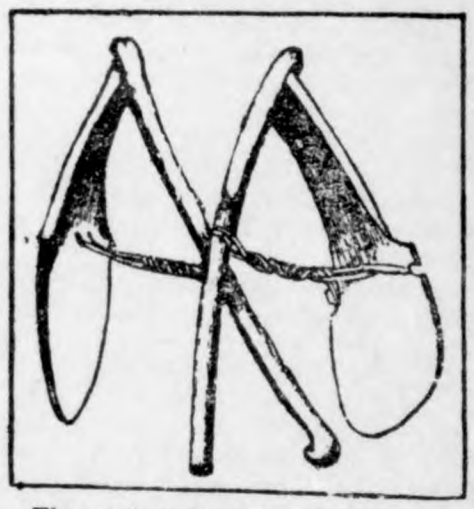
Mrs. Buff Cochin—That's all fixed, as I have letters to the Duck family, and I am reliably informed they are strictly in the swim.

Cheerful.

A nervous young minister, in visiting a remote village, had an unpleasant experience. The old lady at whose house he stayed, in showing him his room, said:

"It ain't anybody I'd put in this room. This here room is full of sacred associations to me," she went on. "My first husband died in that bed with his head on these pillows, and poor Mr. Jenks died sitting in that corner. Sometimes when I come into the room in the dark I think I see him sitting there still. My own father died layin' right on the lounge right under the window there. Poor pa, he was a spiritualist, and he allus said he'd appear in this room after he died, and sometimes I am foolish enough to look for him. If you should see anything of him to-night, you'd better not tell me. It'd be a sign to me that there was something in spiritualism, and I'd hate to think that. My son by my first husband fell dead of heart disease right where you stand. He was a doctor, and there's two whole skeletons in that closet there belonged to him, and half a dozen skulls in that lower drawer. If you are up early and want something to amuse yourself with before breakfast just open that cupboard there, and you will find a lot of dead men's bones. My poor boy thought a lot of them. Well, good night, and pleasant dreams."

HOES MADE OF WOOD.



The ancient Egyptians used wooden hoes. The blades and handles were simply inserted the one into the other and bound together with a twisted rope.

Small Channel Island.

Jethou island is by far the smallest of the channel islands, and boasts the distinction of being the smallest inhabited island in Europe, having, indeed, only one dwelling house upon it. It has a population of seven souls. It has no road or pathway or post. At the last census more than half the population of the island was absent, having gone into Guernsey market with the butter and cream from the Jethou cows. The weather being bad, the visitors had to stay at Guernsey during the census time.

Secured Vetoran Catfish.

Nearly asleep reading about a bear coming up a bank after a hunter, Howard Davidheiser was almost pulled into the water by a sudden pulling at his rod while fishing at Sanatoga Lake, Pa. The rod did finally break, but Davidheiser managed to land his prize, an ancient catfish over 17 inches long. He was badly stung in the thumb, however, and his hand swelled to alarming proportions. Half a dozen hooks were found inside the fish, an indication of how crafty he had been in escaping from the anglers.

New Decorative Idea.

The hostes who wishes something different is asked to try using striped and fancy grasses, rushes and little wild foliage plants that grow in damp places and along streams. A table can be made very pretty with these, using no flowers. Try it.

Clover Growing.

Clover occupies a place in Iowa agriculture that no other crop can fill. As sources of cheap protein and as a nitrogen gatherer it is indespensible to both the live stock and the grain farmer. At the present time, however, clover is a secondary crop both in acerage and in value. For every acre of clover in the state there are 16 acres of timothy and 46 acres of corn. At same time farmers are buying large quantities of high priced concentrates for feeding purposes and in some cases commercial fertilizers to maintain the productivity of their soil when clover will cheaply supply both of these needs. One of the reasons for the small acreage of clover is the difficulty in securing a stand. This is especially noticeable in the southern part of the state where the soils are often low in humus. The Soils Department of the Iowa Experiment Station has been conducting a series of experiments with a view to putting clover growing on a more certain and profitable basis. The results of these investigations have been published ih Bulletin No. 98, "Clover Growing on the Loess and Till Soils of Southern Iowa," which map be obtained free upon application to Director Curtiss, Ames, Iowa.

MOB BEATS WITNESS.

Brutal Assault Perpetrated on Saloon Prosecutor.

Davenport.—Davenport was the scene on the 14th of another mob assault upon those engaged in the prosecution of the saloons which are doing business in violation of the mulct law regulations. A crowd of men attacked and beat and kicked William Schoenig of Muscatine, one of the witnesses against the eight saloon keepers who were arrested yesterday on bench warrants for violating the terms of the injunctions against them. He had just come from the court room where the cases were called when he was beset by three ruffians and thrown into the street. Immediately a mob of thirty or forty men, many of them saloon keepers and saloon frequenters, surrounded Schoenig and kicked and beat him.

H. V. Bettes, the attorney in charge of the prosecution, rushed into the county attorney's office in the court house and called the police. In ten minutes the police responded, but the mob had scattered and the police found only the victim, bruised and bleeding, on the pavement. Schoenig was taken to the hospital, where he now is. His injuries are painful, but not serious.

The assault was similar to that upon Captain Neal some months ago. It was prompted by the action of the Civic federation in causing the arrest of eight saloon men who were alleged to be violating the terms of the injunction against them. There had been much rabid talk since these arrests and an angry crowd was in the vicinity of the court room when the cases were called shortly before noon. Animosity was especially directed against Schoenig, who came here as a paid witness to secure evidence.

No arrests have been made for the assault because the assailants were not identified. The Civic federation declares that at least three men, strangers, were imported to do the business and they are not known.

$1,000 PACKAGE LOST.

Express Companies at Des Moines Have Mystery.

Des Moines.—A package containing $1,000 has disappeared from the Des Moines office of the Adams Express company. It was one of three identical packages and while the other two reached their destination without mishap, this one has completely vanished. From all that can be learned, though several of the cleverest detectives in the company's employ are at work on the case, no clue has been discovered as to what has become of the missing $1,000 package.

It is understood that the packages of currency were consigned by a Des Moines bank to an outside address and that this one was either lost or stolen from the local office of the Adams Express company.

After a search of three days, in which he was assisted by Local Manager B. F. Stretton, Superintendent Swift of the Adams company left for Chicago with the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the package still unsolved. A vigorous search, in which several of the company's most efficient men are engaged, is, however, still being prosecuted and tracers have been sent out.

Officials of the company maintain the greatest secrecy in regard to the loss of the package. They deny, however, that suspicion points to any of the employes of the local office, and intimate that the package was merely mislaid, expressing themselves as confident that the missing package will turn up sooner or later.

Both Mr. Swift and Mr. Stretton stated that the packages were not consigned to parties in Des Moines, but did not deny that they had been sent from a Des Moines bank to outside parties. Des Moines bankers, however, profess an ignorance of the existence of the three $1,000 packages.

Inspect Children's Teeth.

Iowa City.—Dr. E. A. Rogers of the state university dental school is firmly convinced that there ought to be compulsory examination of the teeth of school children from time to time. He declares that the average child's mouth is in a condition that menaces its health and that if examinations were required and bad teeth remedied the country's general health would be greatly improved. Dr. Rogers backs up his theory with the facts developed in a recent examination of the teeth of eight-two Iowa City school children. At that time 2,735 teeth were found that needed attention

WOODMEN SUE FAILED BANK.

Chariton Institution Made Defendant in Big Suit.

Des Moines.—For the purpose of recovering the funds lost through the failure of the First National bank of Chariton the Modern Woodmen of America has started suit in federal court here for $420,755.49 against James H. Jamison, receiver of the bank, and L. O. Murray, controller of currency.

In its bill of complaint the fraternal order demands the return of $350,000 cash which was deposited in the bank with interest from Dec. 7, 1907, and a lien of $70,755.49 bringing the total up to $420,755.49.

The suit is a result of the defalcations and suicide of Cashier Frank H. Crocker, which wrecked the bank. James H. Jamison, who was appointed receiver, secured the consent of the government officials to allow the Modern Woodmen order the $350,000 it had on deposit. But this order was rescinded July 1 and it was decided to bring suit.

At a recent meeting of the bank directors they agreed to pay the expenses of fighting the action, thus relieving Receiver Jamison. The First National bank of Chicago, the National Park Bank of New York City, the National Bank of the Republic, Chicago, and the National Bank of Commerce of Kansas City are also indirectly involved in the action.

According to the complaint filed yesterday the Chariton bank has been a depository for the Modern Woodmen since 1899. Up to Sept. 27, 1906, the order had $400,000 on deposit there. At that time the head banker withdrew $50,000, leaving $350,000 on deposit.

The suit is brought to establish a claim against the received of the bank and the controller of the currency so as to get an order of the court to participate in the distribution of the assets.

KEG PARTY ENDS IN MURDER.

Cresco Young Man's Drunkenness Costs a Human Life.

Cresco.—A "keg party", a little spree, and then a few hours' beastly drunkenness has just resulted in the death of one man and may cause another the loss of his liberty for the rest of his lifetime. Charles Brown, the dead man, died of injuries sustained at the hand of Alfred Crawford, who beat Brown, jumped on his abdomen and otherwise assaulted him. Crawford is now in jail here, a very penitent man, bitterly condemning himself for his indulgence in "booze".

The whole affair happened at the farm of Charles Brown. Crawford and George Brown, a son of the dead man, took out from town a keg of beer for a "high time". They filled themselves with the intoxicant and by the time Brown the senior came home, Crawford especially was in a fighting mood. When the elder Brown called him to account for annoying Brown's little daughter, Crawford resented it and struck the older man down. Infuriated, Crawford followed up his first assault by jumping on the prostrate man and inflicting injuries from which he later died.

Crawford says he has no recollection of what he did. While he was still partly drunk he came into Cresco called on the mayor and offered to pay a fine, telling in a drunken way that he had licked somebody. He was held and when the facts became known was cited to appear before the grand jury in October.

Crawford is a young man and married.

MISTAKE KILLS BABY.

Accidentally Drops Bolt on Child's Head.

Webster City.—While working at the top of a wind mill at his farm near Duncombe, John McDonald accidentally dropped a bolt. His little 2-year-old son, Wilfred, was playing about under the mill. The falling bolt struck the baby on the head, fracturing the skull in an ugly manner.

The parents, nearly crazed over the accident, brought the child to this city to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, where it died a few hours after arrival.

In the hope of saving the child the doctors performed an operation, but no relief was secured. The babe was a great favorite of the father and followed him about the farm a great deal. The circumstances surrounding the death of the little one have left the parents heart broken and verging upon nervous prostration. In the family are eight other children.

TUG OF WAR TEAM VIOLATES RULES OF THE CONTEST.

Men Wear Steel Shod Shoes—Americans Retire After Making Protest That Is Not Allowed.

London.—A serious controversy has arisen between the American athletes and the British Olympic association. The Americans' chief cause of complaint is the arbitrary manner in which their protest against "the flagrantly unfair method of conducting the tug-of-war," was dismissed. Every unprejudiced spectator present at Friday's meeting was convinced that the Americans were justified in refusing to go on with that event.

The United Kingdom had three teams entered in the tug-of-war, made up of the police of the city of London, Liverpool and the metropolitan forces. The drawings brought the American and Liverpool teams into the arena first. The American team complied with the rule which says:

"No competitor shall wear prepared boots or shoes or boots or shoes with any projecting nails, tips, sprigs, points, hollows or projections of any kind."

The Liverpool police appeared in enormous shoes which had steel rims around the heels. The Americans pulled, under protest and making little effort, and then filed a formal protest, which was ignored.

In the semi-final in the fancy diving competition, George W. Gaidzik of the Chicago Athletic association won his heat by a handsome margin. He scored 85.6, while Zurner of Germany was second with 82.8.

As was expected, C. M. Daniels of the New York Athletic club won his heat in the first round of the 100-meter swim, his time, 1:05 4-5, being several seconds below that of the winner of another heat. The heat winners in this contest included H. J. Hepner of the Illinois Athletic club and L. G. Rich, Brookline Swimming club.

London.—Thursday was America's day in the Olympic sports at the stadium, both big events which reached tho finals, throwing the discus, free style, and putting the shot, being carried off by Martin J. Sheridan of the Irish-American Athletic club, and Ralph Rose of the Olympic club, San Francisco, respectively.

London. — The gold medals went to Great Britain, France and Sweden, as the winners of the finals of Wednesday's events at the Olympic games. Great Britain was a double winner and France and Sweden each secured one first.

WOMAN FASTS FIFTY-SIX DAYS.

Remarkable Efforts of Mrs. John F. Dietz of Wisconsin.

Winter, Wis.—Mrs. John Dietz, wife of the famous defender of Cameron dam, has just finished a fast of 56 days. Not only does she know no ill effects of this world's record-breaking effort, but she probably owes her life to it. She underwent the trying ordeal to cure appendicitis and according to her husband she has succeeded.

"Mrs. Dietz has just concluded a 56-days' fast and now is free of all pain," declared Mr. Dietz. "She lost 50 or 60 pounds in weight but she will soon regain that."

She was unable to get a doctor because of the legal war that has been waged against Dietz for five years. Dietz has not been arrested during all that time, although all the court machinery of the state was invoked.

He shuddered and thought of the plowed field with Seffy lying there.

"Good night!" he said with averted face.

"I didn't mean that, pappy—I didn't mean that you killed him. He's not dead. Pappy, kiss me—good night! And forgive me."

But this also made her dearer to him. And so, little by little, they drew closer and closer, until a certain happiness was his and a certain content hers. Occasionally they laughed. "Just like Seffy!" she said the first time and cried, pushing him out of the door when he would have asked a question.

But he asked his question one day. It was whether she had loved Seffy.

"Not till Seffy comes!" she cried. "I won't answer."

"Sally," he said solemnly, "I killed my little boy. He is dead. I hurt him —I made him afeared of me—he dragged himself away to die, like wild animals that air hurt by men. So you will have to tell me."

"No—no!" she begged. "He is not dead. And some day he will come back to us—you——"

"Sally, you said 'us'?"

"Yes. Forgive me. I meant—you."

"Did you mean me?"

"Yes—oh, yes!"

"Cross your breast!"

She made this adjuration with a smile.

But when he had gone, she groveled on the floor and cried:

"Pappy," she said afterward, "you have been very good to me!"

"You have kept me from going crazy, I think."

"You haf kep' my ol' heart from breaking, I expect. Yas, I know, now, that there is such a sing as proke hearts," he averred.

"You'll nefer work for you' keep while I'fe got a dollar," said the old man. "I owe you that much for—for——"

She liked that. She was sitting on a low stool at his feet, her elbow on his knee—her favorite attitude. She crowded a little closer.

"Pappy," she said presently, "let me come and keep your house."

"Do you mean that?" asked the old man joyously.

"Yes!" she said.

"But why? That's hard work for a gal that's not used to it."

"Oh, maybe I want to be where Seffy was. For—some day—some day—he'll come back and I—want to be there—to ask his pardon."

They were silent for a while and then the old man said huskily:

"You shall. You shall sleep in Seffy's bed. You shall look in his little cracked looking-glass. You shall set in his place at the table. You shall be my Seffy! And we'll wait for him together and we'll bose ast his pardon —when he comes—when he comes."

"May I ride his mare—and plow with her?"

"You—you—you?" he questioned in his ecstasy. "Ken you?—say—do you sink you ken?"

"Yes," she said very softly. "If you will let me, I will be all and everything Seffy was to you. I took him from you. Let me do my best to replace him. It is for that—that, only, that I have cared. We shall rent this house and that will help—for I know you have been getting poor, too—and —and—if you will take it—I—I—want to give you—the pasture-field—for—oh, for Seffy's sake. Will you take it?" For he had demurred. "For Seffy's sake—just as you would take it from him—and as he would give it to you—if he were all—here? I want to be both son and daughter to you. Let me be Seffy and myself too! It is much—but let me try."

But he had caught that little slip of the tongue, and was dumb.

They sat silent by the fire for a long time then. Presently the old man rose and lifting her he said, with a smile such as she had never seen on his face:

"Yas—for Seffy's sake—come! Now!"

It was night. But he led her from her own house to his. And that night she slept in Seffy's bed.

One of Sally's duties was the nightly reading of the Farm Journal. And just now this paper, edited by a gentleman who knew nothing about farming—and by him edited well—was full of the great meeting of the National Farmers' League of the United States of America, which was in session at Omaha.

"By far the most intelligent and interesting paper of the session, thus far," Sally read one night, "was that on 'The Proper Succession of Crops in Maryland' by the youthful president of the Kansas State league, Mr.——" Sally rose suddenly and vanished to the kitchen where there was a light.

"What was it?" asked the old man when she returned.

"I—I choked," said Sally quite truthfully, "and went for a drink."

"Yas—don't read no more. We'll find out about the succession to-morrow night. But what was the smart feller's name?"

She pretended to look for it, and when she pretended to have found it:

"Mr.—S. P. Brown," she read.

"A Kansas man—about Maryland! Huh!"

But that night, after Seffy's father was in bed, Sally wrote a pitiful letter —perhaps the first she had ever written:

"Dear Seffy (it ran):

"Please come home. Come as soon as you get this. Your pappy wants you. He is old and sorry, so please come right away.

"Sephenijah P. Baumgartner, Senior."

But the envelope was addressed to

"Mr. S. P. Baumgartner, Jr.,
"President Kas. State League,
"Kansas."

The post-mistress smiled indulgently as Sally handed in the letter the next day.

"A long way off," she said.

"Yes," said Sally, fidgeting with her bonnet. "How soon do you think it will get there?"

The post-mistress reflected.

"About a week," she said then.

"So long?"

But, as a matter of fact, she had thought it would take longer. Kansas was a vague place in those days, and a vast distance away.

"Well," said the post-mistress comfortingly, "mebby not quite so long. But better not count on its getting there sooner. I'll give it a good start. I'll put it in the mail bag now."

"Thank you," said Sally.

MODERN WORK WILL NOT LAST.

Newspapers and Books Printed To-Day Have Short Lives.

"The men who wrote history on tablets of stone in ages gone had a difficult task to perform, and had to cultivate the habit of brevity," says a writer in a German paper, "but what they wrote was preserved. It will be different with the newspapers and books of the present time. The paper upon which they are printed will disintegrate in a few years, and the records, historical, scientific and literary, will become dust. I saw two papers last week which told the whole story. One contained an account of the death of Napoleon Bonaparte. It was printed in 1821, was in a state of perfect preservation, and looked as though it might last, with ordinary care, a hundred years. The other paper was kept because its leading article described the surrender of Sedan, which had taken place a day before. Although it had been printed nearly 50 years later, the Sedan paper had to be handled carefully to prevent its tearing in the creases. One of these papers was printed on old-fashioned paper, and the other on the modern kind. With the two specimens before me I cannot refrain from urging once more that a few numbers of all books and newspapers, enough for all first-class libraries, be printed on good paper for the benefit of those who will live after us."

CRUDE METHODS OF SPINNING.

Which Were Long in Displacing the Spindle and Distaff.

The invention of the art of spinning was ascribed by the ancients to Minerva, the goddess of wisdom, says a writer in The Housekeeper. The date, 1500 B. C., is given as that of the beginning of the art in Greece, under the direction of the king of Arcadia, but pictured inscriptions on Egyptian monuments show that the use of the spindle and distaff was known in that country much earlier. The first distaff was simply a stick, around which the fiber to be spun was loosely coiled, held in the left hand; the spindle was a sort of top set in motion by a twirl of the hand, the fiber passing between the finger and thumb of the right hand. This invention was improved upon in the course of time by placing the spindle in a frame and making it revolve by mechanical action of the hand or foot in connection with a wheel or treadle—thus giving the true spinning wheel. The first recorded use of this was in the early years of the sixteenth century, but it was probably made and used long before this. The first spinning jenny, a machine working eight spindles, was invented in 1767.

Water Spreading Fire.

An amusing instance of ignorance of the properties of carbide of calcium occurred recently on a quay at Algiers. Five tons of carbide had been placed near a quantity of inflammable material, which suddenly caught fire. The firemen, instead of removing the boxes of carbide with hooks, smashed them, and then turned water upon the contents. The result was a great development of acetylene gas and a destructive fire, which might have been prevented by a little practical knowledge of chemistry.—Youth's Companion.

SAVED FROM MATERNAL WRATH.

Boys' Fervent Prayer Was Answered In the Nick of Time.

A suburbanite is fond of telling this story of his five-year-old son Bobby. Being of an inquiring turn of mind the youngster one day managed to turn on both faucets in the bathtub to see what would happen. It chanced that the stopper was in place, and the tub rapidly filled up, to the great delight of Bobby. Finally, however, the tub became so full that it threatened to overflow on to the floor, and Bobby, having a proper respect for the maternal slipper, became frightened and tried vainly to turn off the water. Being unable to, for some reason, he gazed tearfully at the ever-rising flood, and then, mindful both of his religious training and the occasional visits of the plumber, he plunged down on his knees, and his elder sister, who happened to be passing at the moment, heard him exclaim, fervently:

"O, Lord, please stop this water running! And, O, Lord, if you can't do it, please send somebody that can!"

His prayer was answered, for his sister rose to the occasion and turned off the water and temporarily saved Bobby from the much-feared slipper.

ITCHING HUMOR ON BOY

His Hands Were a Solid Mass, and Disease Spread All Over Body —Cured in 4 Days By Cuticura.

"One day we noticed that our little boy was all broken out with itching sores. We first noticed it on his little hands. His hands were not as bad then, and we didn't think anything serious would result. But the next day we heard of the Cuticura Remedies being so good for itching sores. By this time the disease had spread all over his body, and his hands were nothing but a solid mass of this itching disease. I purchased a box of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, and that night I took the Cuticura Soap and lukewarm water and washed him well. Then I dried him and took the Cuticura Ointment and anointed him with it. I did this every evening and in four nights he was entirely cured. Moisture in Butter.

The law limiting the legal amount of moisture in butter to 16 per cent has made it imperative that some simple and accurate plan of determining the moisture content be evolved.

The old methods are either inaccurate or else require expensive apparatus and a considerable knowledge of chemistry.

After a great deal of study and experimentation the Dairy Department of the Iowa Experiment Station has worked out a method which has proven very satisfactory. By the use of this plan any creameryman can with a very little practice make quick and reliable tests of the amount of moisture in butter. He will then be enabled to avoid exceeding the legal limit and at the same time keep from letting the percentage of moisture run too low which detracts from both the quality of the butter and the amount of the overrun. Bulletin No. 97 of the Iowa Experiment Station gives complete instructions for carrying out these moisture determinations. Copies may be obtained free of charge from Director C. F. Curtiss, Ames, Iowa.

The landlord was obdurate and declared that this was a progressive age and in his opinion man in shirt sleeves was no more shocking than a womon with no sleeves at all, and that a man without a coat upon his back was no more indecent than a woman attired in one of the advanced styles of a peekaboo waists. The women turned up their noses and left.

Good sensible man that landlord. If we knew who he was we would try and run our face for a meal there the next time we stop in Sioux City.—Britt Tribune.

A theater committee in Paris propose taking drastic action regarding the big-hat nuisance. They favor an ordinance which will permit any spectator to have the right to request the police officer on duty in the theater to call for the removal of any hat which prevents an unobstructed view of the stage. If the wearer refuses to comply, the officer may order her to leave the theater.

It is easy to arouse a controversy among theological students. At a Western college the students of theology gravely discussed the question whether, in the case of a prayer having been read from a printed slip, and there having been a typographical error entirely reversing the meaning of a passage, the petition was received by Providence as uttered or as originally written. The debaters spent a whole evening over the point, and then had a tie vote.

Brunettes are thought to be more tractable and less irritable than blondes; they are therefore preferred as clerks in the Treasury Department, Washington. A blonde, aware of this discrimination against light-complexioned young ladies, made a change in her appearance before undergoing examination as to her capabilities for a governmentposition. With the aid of a dark wig and a little coloring matter which darkened her complexion, she made herself acceptable to her judges, and was promptly appointed.

The College and the State Fair.

Ths Iowa state college of agriculture is reaching out for the boys and girls of the state and is getting them. The college has formed a close alliance with the State fair and the two are working together for the upbuilding of Iowa agriculture and industry. With the construction of the new administration building on the State Fair grounds this year, the state college people spoke at once for use of the old building used for some years as the central offices of the fair. This fine cottage has been given over to Ames people and they will make for the college an especially fine exhibit at the Fair. In fact it is the intention to closely connect the Fair and the college so that every year there will be held meetings of the college graduates and the young men and women eligible for the college work, and thus there will be benefit to all. The college scholarship contests formed the beginning of this alliance, and it is extending.

This year these contests of the boys and girls for college scholarships will be held commencing on Saturday of the Fair week, this year on August 22. The fair opens on the 20th. The boys will compete in stock judging and in sampling seed corn and the girls will display their ability to make biscuits and serve choice meats at the table.

Saturday will also be the children's day at the fair and old soldiers day. It will start the fair off well. The purpose in making of Saturday a full Fair day is to get a better start all around. It will open the races which will thus have a run of six days and it is certain the entire race program will be completed.

The live stock show will be as great as usual, perhaps finer than ever before. Secretary Simpson has received information leading to the conclusion that there will be back again this year practically every one of the old exhibitors and a number of new ones. Iowa has the first of the Fairs and it is found to be valuable that the breeders who make the big circuit start well. A million dollars worth of live stock will be shown. The exhibits in all departments will be up to the usual high standard.

An interesting new feature is added in a night show in the stock pavilion, which will be a live stock review and hippodrome. The usual night show will be given at the amphitheater, with Liberati's band and Pain's fireworks. All amusement features are up to the best.

DOUBTFUL STATES

MR. HITCHCOCK HAS CLEVER SCHEME FOR CAMPAIGN.

PROPAGANDA HAS COMMENCED

Solid States Must Do Yeoman Work in Rounding Up Doubtful Ones.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 20.—When Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the republican national committee arrived last evening to consult with the members of the national committee and chairman of western state and territorial committees, he was greeted by a large number of political leaders who had reached the springs during the day. He found assurances from others which made it certain that the two day's conference, which opens today will be a success.

Nothing of the kind now undertaken by Mr. Hitchcock was ever attempted in the history of national campaigns in any party. He announced upon his arrival here yesterday that it would be his purpose to have states which are certainly republican assist in campaigning in neighboring states which may be doubtful. To that end he his bringing the western leaders together.

Today there will be a general conference at which the various leaders will exchange ideas and formulate a system whereby one state may draw upon the political resources of another. After that Mr. Hitchcock will hold individual conference with the representatives of each of the seventeen states and territories which are sending men to the political gatherings.

According to Chairman Hitchcock there has been a lack of coherence between western leaders in past campaigns, the representatives of each state doing their best to pile up republican majorities but not helping other states which have more difficult battles to fight. He said yesterday that he wanted to broaden the responsibilities of each of the western republican leaders with a view of carrying the whole western region for Taft and Sherman.

When asked what western states he regarded as safely republican and what ones he classed as doubtful. Mr. Hitchcock said:

"I have determined not to make any predictions at any time. That will be my policy throughout the campaign. We won't neglect any territory where there is a bare chance of victory, either north, south, east or west, but I shall not indulge in forecasts."

A delegation from Denver arrived here last night to see Mr. Hitchcock and urge the selection of that city as the place of establishing a western headquarters for the distribution of campaign material and assignment of speakers. Salt Lake City is being considered also and no decision will be made until after Mr. Hitchcock returns to the east.

NOT FROM CORPORATIONS.

Taft Also Says Contributions Will Be Rejected.

Hot Springs, Va., July 20.—"The national republican committee will accept no contributions from corporations, said Judge William H. Taft, presidential candidate for the republican party, and in an interview he also referred to labor, prohibition and other questions.

Mr. Taft said that not only would the law of New York state, providing for the publicity of campaign contributions be obeyed by the national republican committee, but the federal law prohibiting such contributions by corporations in connection with the election of president, vice president, representatives or senators, would be followed without regard to any question of validity that might arise in respect to any provisions of that law. Answering questions as to the application of the national law to contributions for the election of presidential electors, Mr. Taft declared that the law would be obeyed exactly as it was passed by congress.

2,000 People Lose Lives.

Constantinople, July 19.—The recent inundations in the vicinity of Tokat, Asia Minor, were apparently more serious than was at first reported. According to a private letter received here from Samsun on the Black sea a total of 2,000 people lost their lives, including 300 prisoners, who were caught by the flood in the jail and drowned.

Peary Enters Belle Isle.

New York, July 20.—The arctic bound steamer Roosevelt has crossed the gulf of St. Lawrence and was about to enter the strait of Belle Isle at 6 o'clock last night. This report was collected in a message to The Associated Press from Commander Robert E. Peary.

FLEET REACHES HONOLULU

BATTLESHIPS ENTER HARBOR OF THE ISLAND CAPITAL.

Welcomed by Thousands—Entire Run from San Francisco Was Pleasant and Uneventful.

Honolulu.—The Atlantic battleship fleet arrived here at noon Thursday. By universal consent the day was made a complete holiday, all business being suspended and thousands of people from the different islands of the territory assembled on Diamond Head and other heights and points of vantage southeast of this city to view the approach of the armada.

Early in the morning the crowds began scrambling up the bluffs to catch the first sight of smoke above the southeastern horizon, and the first realization of the long-cherished hope came at 7:30 in the morning, when a message came from the leper settlement on the Island of Molokai that the fleet had been sighted there, steaming in line of squadron formation at a speed of ten knots. An overcast sky prevented the watchers near here from seeing far out to sea, but the patience of the lookouts was rewarded by the appearance of the Connecticut off the entrance to the channel at noon.

During the entire run to Honolulu the fleet experienced pleasant weather and smooth seas. For two hours or more daily, except on Sunday, the fleet had tactical evolutions and at the same time routine drills were carried on. No noteworthy incidents occurred on the entire voyage, and as a matter of fact, this, the first leg of a long cruise, was rather more uneventful than usual. The fleet never had to stop or slow down nor did any of the ships have to fall out of formation through accidents to steering gear.

The health of the crews has been very good and there have been no deaths or serious accidents since leaving San Francisco. The Nebraska, which was left behind when the fleet sailed from the Golden Gate on account of scarlet fever cases among her crew, overtook the fleet at 6:30 a. m. Wednesday.

THOMAS D. JORDAN DEAD.

Indicted Ex-Comptroller of the Equitable Expires Suddenly.

New York.—Thomas D. Jordan, formerly comptroller of the Equitable Life Assurance society, dropped dead of heart disease late Tuesday afternoon in the Wall street station of the subway. Mr. Jordan had parted from his son, Frank B. Jordan, only a moment before, and a messenger overtook the young man on the street and informed him of his father's death. It was in the course of the Armstrong committee insurance investigation that Mr. Jordan's name came prominently before the public. It was brought out then that Comptroller Jordan had secured loans aggregating $685,000 for himself and James W. Alexander former president of the Equitable, from the Mercantile Trust company, and that these loans had been covered up on the books of the company. This $685,000 came to be known as the "yellow dog" fund.

As a result of the disclosures the grand jury found 18 indictments for forgery and one for perjury against Jordan. Only recently Mr. Jordan appeared before Justice Goff to plead not guilty to the indictments. His trial was set for the fall.

TRAIN HURLED INTO DITCH.

White Mountain Express Wrecked, One Woman Being Killed.

Greenwich, Conn. — One woman was killed, two were perhaps mortally injured, and nearly a dozen persons were seriously hurt when the White Mountain Express, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was wrecked 100 feet west of the station here at 9:20 o'clock Thursday morning. Spreading rails caused the ten-car train to leave the tracks while it was crossing a bridge over Steamboat road, and five of the passenger coaches, including four Pullmans, were hurled into a ditch, where they collapsed like paper boxes. That so few of the 180 passengers were killed or injured seems little short of miraculous, as the train was going 50 miles an hour.

Plan to Help Illinois Blind.

Springfield, Ill. — The state board of public charities, at a meeting Thursday, authorized the appointment of a commission by President Billings of the board to ascertain the number of blind in the state and to formulate plans for the employment of the adult blind and for improving the efficiency of the state care in other particulars.

J. M. Greene Dies Suddenly.

Chamberlain, S. D.—J. M. Greene, formerly Republican national committeeman, the foremost citizen of Chamberlain, was found dead in his bed here Wednesday, supposedly of heart disease.

E. W. CHAFIN NAMED

CHICAGO LAWYER HEADS THE NATIONAL "DRY" TICKET.

CHOSEN ON THIRD BALLOT

Prof. A. S. Watkins of Ohio Is Put Up for Vice-President at Columbus Convention—Platform Is Short.

Columbus, O.—For president, Eugene W. Chafin, Chicago; for vice-president, Prof. Aaron S. Watkins, Ada, O.

The above ticket was nominated Thursday by the Prohibitionist national convention, both men being chosen unanimously. The full indorsement of the convention was not, however, given to Mr. Chafin until after three ballots had been taken.

On the first two ballots Mr. Chafin did not show a great amount of strength, receiving but 195 out of 1,083 votes on the first and 376 out of 1,087 on the second ballot. His nomination was practically assured, however, when the roll call began for the third ballot. His own state, which had voted largely for Daniel R. Sheen of Peoria, and the New York delegation, followed by those of Indiana and Wisconsin, came over to Mr. Chafin, and on the third ballot he received a total of 636 votes. The strongest competitor of Mr. Chafin was Rev. William B. Palmore of St. Louis, who received 274 votes on the first ballot and 418 on the second, and a comparatively small vote after it was evident that the nomination of Mr. Chafin could not be prevented.

Palmore Refuses Second Place.

The convention up to this time had run smoothly and without the slightest friction. It was decided to make Mr. Palmore the vice-presidential nominee and he was named by acclamation. He declined to accept the office, however, and persisted in his attitude despite the strong urgings of his friends. The convention, finding itself confronted with the necessity of naming another vice-presidential candidate, and many of the delegates, being anxious to catch the early night trains for their homes, became involved in a deep parliamentary tangle. The rules were several times suspended and the suspensions immediately revoked. Finally it was decided that Prof. Watkins should be named by acclamation.

There was no opposition to him at the moment and Chairman Scanlon was on the verge of declaring Prof. Watkins the nominee when delegates in various parts of the hall broke in with a flood of motions, counter motions, amendments and suspensions of the rules.

Watkins on First Ballot.

An extended debate followed which finally resulted in the restoration of the rules and a ballot for the vice-presidency. Three men were named, Prof. Watkins, T. B. Demaree of Kentucky and Charles S. Holler of Indiana. The ballot resulted in the nomination of Prof. Watkins by an overwhelming majority, and he was immediately thereafter, upon motion of the Kentucky delegates, made the unanimous choice of the convention.

Both the presidential and vice-presidential nominees are candidates for governor in their respective states on the Prohibition tickets.

Eugene W. Chafin, who leads the Prohibition party this year, is an attorney residing in Chicago. He is a native of Waukesha county, Wis., and for some years practiced law there.

The forenoon session of the convention was devoted to the discussion and adoption of a platform which is probably the shortest on record, containing not more than 350 words.

RETURNS TO HIS PRISON CELL.

Escaped Prisoner Gives Himself Up at Indiana Penitentiary.

Michigan City, Ind.—Thomas McCarthy, aged 40 years, for whose capture the warden of Indiana state prison here has had a reward standing for three years, returned to prison Tuesday evening voluntarily and gave himself up, with the prospect of serving 12 more years, unless the governor or parole board should release him sooner.

In 1905 McCarthy escaped after having been paroled. He went to the Pacific coast and after leading a precarious existence he joined the Salvation Army at Yakima, Wash. His conscience troubled him and after he had earned enough money he started back to prison, paying all his own expenses.

St. Paul's Population 225,300.

St. Paul, Minn.—St. Paul on June 1, 1908, had a population of 225,300, according to the new city directory for this year, which will soon be ready for distribution. This estimate is based on an increase of 12,566 names in the 1908 directory over that of 1905, when the state census showed St. Paul to have a population of 197,695.

DES MOINES LETTER

Items of Interest From Our Correspondent at the State Capital.

Faces $898,500 Fine.

Des Moines.—The Western Union Telegraph company of New York has been made the defendant in a suit for $898,500 brought against it by the state of Iowa for alleged violation of the state laws in regard to foreign corporations.

The petition filed by Attorney General H. W. Byers and Assistant Attorney General Cosson, consists of two counts. The first for $100,000 for failure to pay the customary fee on the capital stock of the corporation and the second for $789,500 represents the penalty fixed by the law for each day the company has been doing business in the state in violation of the state law.

As grounds for the first count of $100,000 the state alleges that the Western Union Telegraph company is incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000,000. The company began to do business in Iowa in September, 1886 and did not at that time or any time thereafter pretend to comply with the state laws regarding the operation of foreign corporations within the state, is the allegation.

In the first place, the state claims, the Western Union failed to pay to the secretary of the state the $25 fee for the first $10,000 of the capital stock of the corporation and the additional fee of $1 for every $1,000 of the authorized capital stock in excess of $10,000.

For this alleged failure on the part of the Western Union the state demands $100,000 which, it claims, represents the filing fee of a $100,000,000 corporation.

The $798,500 asked by the state in the second count of the petition represents the sum total of the penalty provided by law for the violation of the foreign corporation law, which provides that every foreign corporation shall file its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state, accompanied with a copy of resolutions passed by the board of directors of the corporation asking for a permit to do business in the state. The failure to make this filing makes the corporation liable to a fine of $100 for each day it does business in the state.

The Western Union began the operation of its wires in Iowa in September, 1886, and up to date has operated 7,985 days. The penalty of $100 a day for each of these 7,985 days makes the total due the state $789.500.

The state in its petition declares that it served notice upon the state manager of the Western Union Telegraph company, L. W. Ainsworth of Des Moines that the filing fee had never been paid and the company had been operating since 1886 without any authority or permit, and demanding payment. But, it is claimed by the state, the telegraph company has made no move to settle, and has even refused to comply with the demand. The million dollar suit against the company was then instituted by the state.

Byers After Barber Asphalt.

Attorney General H. W. Byers has started suit against the Barber Asphalt company in the name of the state of Iowa for $181,415, alleging violation of the state foreign corporation laws.

The grounds for the suit are practically the same as those set forth in the million dollar suit brought by the state against the Western Union Telegraph company for failure to pay a filing fee, and the penalty imposed by law for the failure.

The state claims that the Barber Asphalt company is a foreign corporation, having its head offices in Philadelphia. The authorized capital of the company is $3,900,000, it is alleged.

The Barber Asphalt company began to do business in Iowa in 1903, so it is alleged, and has never paid the customary filing fee or $25 for the first $10,000 of the capital stock and $1 for each additional $1,000 of the capital. The state asks the payment, therefore, of a filing fee of $3,915.

After Eight Years.

An Allamakee stock man sued the Milwaukee railroad company for damages for allowing a carload of cattle to freeze on a sidetrack. He brought suit at Wuakon. A jury awarded him damages measured by the difference between the actual—which the courts held to be the market—value of the stock unharmed and what he could get for the chilled and damaged stock. The supreme court has just affirmed the judgment against the railroad company.

Judge Bishop Suddenly Passes.

Judge Charles A. Bishop of the supreme court died suddenly at Waterloo on the 9th. He was standing in the lobby of the new Hotel Ellis, conversing with friends, when the summons came. In the middle of a sentence he straightened suddenly, gasped, and tottering, fell into the arms of those near him.

He was carried to a couch at once and physicians who happened to be present hastened to his side, but death had preceded, instantly and painlessly.

Judge Bishop was at Waterloo to attend the meeting of the state bar association. At the time of his death he was waiting with friends to go into the annual banquet of the organization which was to have been attended by several hundred attorneys and other prominent men. On account of his death the banquet was abandoned and the sessions of the convention will be curtailed.

Mrs. Bishop and the little six-year-old daughter and Mrs. Matthew Smith—Mr. Smith is a brother of the wife of Judge Bishop's son—are visiting at the summer home of Mrs. Bishop's parents, the Lyman home at a village north of Los Angeles and which is off a railroad and difficult of access.

When Judge Josiah Given of Polk county was appointed supreme judge by Gov. Larrabee in March, 1889, Mr. Bishop was appointed district judge in this district to fill the vacancy. He was not re-elected, however. In 1890 on account of the democratic landslide of that year, and resumed the practice of the law in this city.

In 1897 he was again appointed district judge in Polk county, by Gov. Francis M. Drake and the following year was elected to the full term of four years. He resigned from the bench, however, on March 3, 1902, to resume the practice as a member of the firm of Bishop, Dowell & Parrish.

In June of the same year, 1902, Judge C. M. Waterman of the supreme bench resigned to give his attention to the practice at Davenport, with Joe R. Lane. Gov. Albert B. Cummins at once appointed Judge Bishop to fill the vacancy and in 1902 he was elected to fill out the short term and in 1903 was elected for the full term, which ends Jan. 1, 1911, on account of the extension of a year of the term because of the adoption of the biennial elections amendment He was a candidate for the republican nomination for supreme judge in 1901 but because of the candidacy of Mr. Cummins for governor, both residing in Des Moines, he gave way in that year and at last did not go into the race.

Will Go to Interstate Body.

Attorney General H. W. Byers has prepared the first petition under the law of 1907 which authorized the state railroad commission and the attorney general to prosecute before the interstate commerce commission any charge of discrimination in interstate rates made by an Iowa shipper.

This petition probably will be filed with the interstate commerce commission.

It relates to the discrimination alleged to be practiced by the railroad companies which cross the Mississippi river at Dubuque. The case will be brought by the railroad commission against the Illinois Central Railroad company, the Dubuque and Dunleith Bridge company, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company, and A. B. Stickney, receiver for the Chicago Great Western Railroad company.

Sioux City Bank Holds Sack.

The famous Brown bank failure at Sheldon was brought into public attention after a year's quiet by the decision of the supreme court, which refused to name the People's Savings bank of Sioux City as one of the preferred creditors of the defunct institution. The People's bank held certificates of deposit in the Sheldon bank to the amount of $10,000 which was to have been used for the transaction of business. The claim was that it was a trust fund and therefore the bank had a priority claim in the settlement of the affairs of the Sheldon concern. The court held that the Sheldon bank also had some funds in the Sioux City concern and that they should be set off against each other and that the claims should be given no preference in settlement. A large number of similar claims held by other creditors also were settled in the same way, none of them being declared preferred creditors.

BORAX! NATURE'S DISINFECTANT, CLEANSER AND PURIFIER

Everybody realizes the necessity of some method of purification of sinks, drains and utensils in which may lurk the germ of a dreaded disease.

Health is a question of cleanliness and prevention.

Most people are familiar with the use of disinfectants in their ordinary sense—all of which are unpleasantly associated with disagreeable odors, on which are depended to kill the contagion (which disinfectants must of necessity be of a more or less dangerous character) and must be used for this purpose and for no other, and in consequence kept from children and careless handling.

There is, however, within the reach of all our readers a simple, safe and economical article that will not only answer for every disinfecting purpose—but can also be used for a multitude of domestic cleansing and purifying purposes—Borax.

Borax is a pure, white harmless powder coming direct from Nature's laboratory; in fact Borax has often been called "Nature's Cleanser and Disinfectant."

Two tablespoonfuls of Borax in a pailful of hot water poured down the grease-choked pipes of a sink, or flushed through a disease-laden drain, cleanses and purifies it, leaving it clean and sweet.

Bed clothing and clothes used in a sick room can be made hygienically clean and snowy-white, if washed in a hot solution of Borax water.

Kitchen and eating utensils, used during illness will be kept from all possibility of contagion if Borax is used when washing them. Pure as snow and harmless as salt, and because it can be used for almost every domestic and medical purpose, Borax must be considered the one great household necessity.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

Took the Wrong House.

On one of the Southern railroads there is a station building that is commonly known by travelers as the smallest railroad station in America.

It is of this station that the story is told that an old farmer was expecting a chicken house to arrive there, and he sent one of his hands, a newcomer, to fetch it.

Arriving there the man saw the house, loaded it on his wagon and started for home.

On the way he met a man in uniform with the words "Station Agent" on his cap.

"Say, hold on. What have you got on that wagon," he asked.

"My chicken house, of course," was the reply.

"Chicken house be jiggered," exploded the official. "That's the station."

A DEAD MAN'S JOKE

PERHAPS HE ENJOYED IT IN THE SPIRIT LAND.

Anyway, It Worked Very Successfully on Friend Who Hitherto Had Sincerely Mourned His Loss.

Thornley was a lovable chap, but an inveterate practical joker. When he decided to accept the offer of the South American syndicate and go to Venezuela his friends, who had suffered much from his pranks, wondered what he would do to the gentle subjects of Cipriano Castro. There were a dozen or more of them at the pier to see him off. Among them was Rolber. Between Thornley and Rolber there was a tie stronger than ordinary friendship. They had been boys together. They had been schoolmates. They married about the same time and were neighbors for many years.

"Gus, old man," said Thornley, as they were saying good-by for the last time, "I wish I had something to give you to remember me by, but I've been so busy lately preparing for this trip that I haven't had time to think of anything. Don't forget to write, will you?"

He Had His Joke at Last.

They shook hands again and then Thornley, reaching in his pocket, drew out three cigars.

"Smoke those, old man, and when you're smoking them remember me," he said.

Rolber took the cigars. The steamer sailed away and a few weeks later a letter from Thornley told of his safe arrival. Everything was strange, he said, but he hoped he would like the country.

Letters came at intervals and then came the news of Thornley's death. He had caught a fever and died suddenly.

The news was a great shock to Rolber. It was as if he had lost a brother.

Of the three cigars Thornley had given to him that day when he sailed away two had been smoked. Rolber preferred a pipe to a cigar, and after he heard of Thornley's death he had no desire to smoke the third. He put the cigar on his mantelpiece at home under a glass case, and every time he looked at it his thoughts turned to his dead friend.

Two years passed and still the cigar remained in its old place. Then, one night, Rolber discovered that all his smoking tobacco was gone. He searched high and low, but could not discover anything to smoke. He went at last to the mantelpiece and looked at Thornley's cigar. No, he would not think of smoking that. It would be a sacrilege. He turned away and took up a book. But there was no pleasure in reading. He was nervous and he needed a smoke. He searched again for some tobacco, although he knew there was none. Again he turned to read, but the craving of the steady smoker was too strong. He went and looked at the cigar. It had dried out, but still was in good condition. Sentiment and appetite struggled for a minute or two and sentiment won.

Rolber walked away and tried to satisfy his craving by putting his empty pipe in his mouth and drawing on it as if it were filled. That did not do. He simply had to smoke, and at last he turned back to the mantelpiece, lifted the glass case and took out Thornley's cigar. Just a moment he wavered. Then he struck a match, held the flame close to the cigar and with a sigh of satisfaction he drew in a lung full of smoke. It seemed to him that he never before had enjoyed a smoke so much. Three, four, five times he puffed contentment into his physical self and then—

There was a sudden burst of fire and sparks, a sharp report, the cigar was a wreck and Rolber was as nervous as a kitten.

"Well, I'll be switched," said Rolber, when he had recovered his wits. "Who would have thought that a man dead two years would play a joke on a fellow with a loaded cigar?"

STANDARD OIL WINS

COURT OF APPEALS KNOCKS OUT $29,240,000 PENALTY.

JUDGE LANDIS REVERSED

His Conduct of the Famous Rebate Case Is Severely Arraigned and a New Trial Is Ordered.

Chicago.—Federal judges in the court of appeals lifted the burden of a $29,240,000 fine from the shoulders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana Wednesday and reversed the judgment of Judge Landis, by which the heaviest fine ever imposed in a federal court was saddled upon the oil company found guilty on 1,462 counts of accepting rebates from railroads. Speedy rehearing of the case, which has attracted widespread attention, is considered improbable, and the counsel for the oil company contend that a second conviction cannot be obtained.

The case was remanded with instructions that a new trial be held.

The jurists making up the court of appeals are Judges Grosscup, Seaman and Baker.

Judge Grosscup delivered the opinion of the court, Judges Baker and Seaman concurring, and in sharp arraignment of the conduct of the trial judge intimated that he may have presumed to hold himself above the law.

Judge Landis Called Arbitrary.

The decision declares that the manner in which Judge Landis decided upon the number of offenses that had been committed by the defendant company was arbitrary. It holds that some other method than the one he used should have been applied.

Then it passes to the amount of the fine, which it declares was "sufficient to have wiped out many times the property of the defendant." The court holds that the only company on trial was the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. It says that this corporation alone could be punished and that to attempt to punish its holding corporation would be to assert that a person could be punished who was never before the court or who had never stood trial. This, the judges say, would be to assert a startling principle of law.

Others Than Commerce Law.

The court declares that the arraignment of the violation of an interstate commerce law was to be commended and that the results of such violations were not too strongly stated. It says, however, that the interstate commerce law is not the only one in the United States, and that it is because there are others that the case is reversed and remanded.

On the amount of the fine, the upper court said:

"Did the court in the fine imposed abuse its discretion? The defendant indicted, tried and convicted was the Standard Oil company, a corporation of Indiana. The capital stock of this corporation is $1,000,000. There is nothing in the record in the way of evidence that some of the assets of the corporation were in excess of that amount. It may therefore be safely assumed that but for the relation of the defendant to another corporation not before the court, the court would have measured out punishment on the basis of the facts just stated."

The judges then commented on the punishment of the defendant in such a large amount and continued, saying:

"Briefly stated, the reason of the trial court for imposing this sentence was because it was brought out on examination that the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was principally owned by the New Jersey corporation, a corporation not before the court. The trial court, adding that in concessions of the character for which the defendant before the court had been indicted, tried and convicted, the New Jersey corporation was not a 'virgin' offender.

"Can an American judge, without abuse of judicial discretion, condemn anyone who has not had his day in court? That to our minds, is strange doctrine in Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence."

President Orders Re-Trial.

Oyster Bay, N. Y. — President Roosevelt has directed the attorney general to take immediate steps for the re-trial of the Standard Oil case.

Battleships Resume Their Journey.

Z.

MACK IS CHAIRMAN

HE HEADS DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

MURPHY DRAWS THE LINE

Mack Must Attend to Chairmanship and Not Meddle in New York Politics.

Chicago, July 26.—Chairman—Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, N. Y.

Vice chairman—L. P. Hall of Nebraska.

Treasurer—Gov. S. N. Haskell of Oklahoma.

Sergeant-at-arms—John I. Martin of Missouri.

Secretary—Urey Woodson of Kentucky.

After a seven hour conference with William J. Bryan and John W. Kern, respectively democratic nominees for president and vice president, the subcommittee of the national democratic committee yesterday made its selections of the officers of the committee. It was the first time in many years that a national chairman has been selected by the democratic party only after a bitter contest had been waged. The choice of Mr. Mack was made possible only after the national leaders, Charles F. Murphy of Tammany and W. J. Connors, chairman of the state democratic committee, had yielded to the personal desires of Mr. Bryan.

When the democratic nominee for president reached here yesterday he was strongly in favor of Mr. Mack for the place, but Mr. Bryan frankly told the committee that he wished them to consider all candidates and make an appointment accordingly. There were in the race besides Mr. Mack, Judge M. J. Wade of Iowa, T. E. Ryan of Wisconsin, former governor James E. Campbell of Ohio and Urey Woodson of Kentucky.

The selection of Mr. Mack came only after two important long distance telephone conversations, one with William J. Connors at Buffalo, N. Y., and the other with Charles Murphy, the Tammany leader in New York. Mr. Connors is reported to have told Mr. Mack that Mr. Mack would be acceptable to him as national chairman if Mr. Murphy would also accept him. Mr. Connors was asked if he would telephone Mr. Murphy to that effect, but Mr. Connors replied that he preferred that Mr. Mack do his own talking with New York.

The proposition was then put to Mr. Murphy, and it is said the Tammany leader declared that Mr. Mack would be acceptable to him if he would confine his operations to the duties of national chairman and not interfere in New York politics.

John I. Martin was re-elected sergeant-at-arms and Urey Woodson was reelected secretary of the democratic national committee.

L. P. Hall of Nebraska was chosen vice chairman of the democratic national committee.

Governor Haskell of Oklahoma was chosen treasurer of the democratic national committee.

So pleased was Mr. Bryan with the result that he gave out a statement in which he openly announced that the appointment is a recognition of the eastern democracy and that a fight will be made to carry New York.

AMERICANS WIN FINALS.

Smithson Makes A World's Record In Hurdle.

London, July 26.—The Olympic games were brought to a conclusion yesterday afternoon, so far as the sports held in the stadium were concerned, when Queen Alexandra presented the gold medals and trophies to the successful competitors and the dowager duchess of Westminster, the duchess of Westminster, the duchess of Rutland and Lady Desborough handed the silver and bronze medals, the diplomas and the commemorative medals to those entitled to them.

A big crowd attended the function and cheered the athletes as they came up to receive their prizes. The Italian Dorando was honored with the greatest ovation, the sympathies of the spectators going out to the man who had missed the prize of the Marathon race when it was just within his grasp. The Americans were the most enthusiastic in the ovation given Dorando. Before the ceremony of prize giving began, America captured two events, the 110 meter hurdles and the 1,600 meter relay, the latter being the last event on the programme. The stars and stripes was the last national flag to float at the masthead. In all of the events concluded since the Olympic games began early in the year, including such games as water polo and other sports in which England alone competed, the present standing of the countries, counting wins only, is as follows: United Kindom 38, Americans 22, Sweden 7, France 4, Hungary 3, Norway, Germany, Canada, and Italy 2 each, and Belgium, South Africa and Finland 1 each.

In the field and track events, in which the points are counted five for first, three for second and one for third, the standing is: America 114½, united kindom 66 1-3, Sweden 12½, Canada 11, South Africa and Greece 8 each, Norway 5, Germany 4, Italy 3, Hungary 2 1-3, France 2 1-3, Australia and Finland 1 each.

ASKS FOR A FIGHTING NAVY

PRESIDENT ADDRESSES CONFERENCE ON NEW BATTLESHIPS.

Yacht Mayflower Runs Down Lumber Schooner and Saves Crew on Way to Newport.

Newport, R. I. — Pleading for popular support for a "first-class fighting navy," a navy capable of seeking out the enemy and "hammering him into quits," President Roosevelt was the central figure here Wednesday in the most notable conference of American naval officers ever called together to consult and discuss, in a broad, general way, the future United States battleships.

The president spoke publicly for more than half an hour, and then the conference went into executive session for one hour. During this session the president took a leading part in the discussion. He argued as a layman, he explained, and did not attempt to give advice to professional men. He impressed upon the officers, however, that it was given to them to keep the American navy abreast of the times and to make it the hard-hitting, efficient fighting force which he believes to be a guarantee against the possibility of war. Mr. Roosevelt characterized the navy as the cheapest form of safety insurance policy the nation can obtain. The president sailed for Oyster Bay in the afternoon, but the battleship conference will continue here and in Washington until definite plans for the ships to be laid down in the near future are decided upon.

When the trim little cruiser yacht Mayflower, flying the president's white crested flag of blue at the main truck, steamed into the harbor Wednesday morning nearly two hours behind schedule time, with her bowsprit missing, one anchor gone, bowplates dented and six strange figures in black oilskins and sou'westers gathered in the bow, she brought the story of an adventurous night's run in the blackest fog of the summer and of a collision in which the lumber-laden schooner Menawa was cut practically in two by the president's yacht.

PRINCE LANDS AT QUEBEC.

Warships Salute Wales and Governor General Welcomes Him.

Quebec, Que.—The prince of Wales landed from the British battleship Indomitable Wednesday amid the deafening roar of guns from the international fleet of British, French and American warships, and the tumultuous demonstrations of 50,000 persons massed upon the wharves and the terraced heights of the city.

It was a spectacle of truly royal splendor, for the latest type of British Dreadnought, with the royal standard flying came to anchor among the double column of foreign warships and the prince was welcomed ashore by Earl Grey, governor general of Canada, Premier Laurier and the assembled dignitaries, flanked by thousands of soldiers and a multitude of people.

Quebec, Que.—The prince of Wales had another day of strenuous activity beginning Friday morning with a grand review of the troops, sailors and marines on the plains of Abraham, then officiating as the title deeds of this historic battlefield were turned over as a permanent memorial, between times attending gala luncheons and dinners, and finally at night mingling with the gay throngs of beautifully-dressed women at the state ball at the Parliament building. About 23,000 men took part in the review.

BISHOP POTTER IS DEAD.

Noted New York Prelate Succumbs After Long Illness.

Cooperstown, N. Y.—Henry Codman Potter, seventh Protestant Episcopal bishop of the diocese of New York, died Tuesday night at "Fernleigh," his summer home here, after an illness of several weeks. The bishop was unconscious all day and the end, which came at 8:35 o'clock, was peaceful and quiet. The prelate was 74 years old.

Gathered at the bedside of the dying churchman were Mrs. Potter, his wife; Mrs. Mason C. Davidge, who came from California, and Miss Sarah Potter, his two daughters; Alonzo Potter, his son; Edward S. Clark, Stephen C. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Clark. Mrs. Charles Russell and Mrs. William Hyde, his two other daughters, who are abroad, have been notified.

Cooperstown, N. Y.—The funeral of Bishop C. Potter of the diocese of New York was held in this village Friday morning. The services were in the historic Christ church.

Lightning Kills Guardsmen.

Gettysburg, Pa.—As the result of a terrific electrical storm which passed over the Pennsylvania National Guard encampment here Thursday night, it is reported that three troopers were killed and two score injured, some of them seriously, by being struck by lightning. The tent occupied by Gov. Stuart was blown down, as were a number of others.

LIBERTY DAWNS FOR TURKS

SULTAN ABDUL ISSUES IRADE RESTORING CONSTITUTION.

Deputies Are Convened, Said Pasha, New Grand Vizier, Carrying Out the Reform.

Constantinople.—An imperial irade issued Friday ordains the assembling of a chamber of deputies in accordance with a constitution which has been elaborated by the sultan. The irade has been communicated to the valis and the district lieutenant governors with the necessary orders for the holding of elections.

The constitution which the irade now makes effective is practically the one worked out in 1876.

The grand vizier immediately took steps to carry out the orders of his imperial master. He addressed to all the provincial authorities concerned a circular telegram convening the chamber of deputies, in which he pointed out that the method of forming the chamber is determined by an organic statute which, according to the official communication, is "an illustrious institution of the sultan."

Adbul Hamid II.

Startling as was the sudden dismissal of Ferid Pasha from the grand viziership and the appointment of Said Pasha in his place, this step was as nothing compared to the sensation created in all quarters by the official announcement that the sultan had decided to convoke a parliament.

Belgrade, Servia. — Cipher dispatches received Friday night from the European villages of Macedonia declare that the Young Turks are complete masters of the situation.

All the Turkish authorities have surrendered themselves into their hands.

Vienna.—It is reported here that the towns of Monastir, Uskub and Saloniki are in the hands of the Young Turks. Order has been maintained everywhere.

Hughes Will Run Again.

Saranac Inn, N. Y.—Gov. Charles Hughes will accept a renomination if the Republican party of this state desires him to again be its candidate. In a statement made public Friday night the governor so declared himself and said the personal reasons which prompted him to say privately some time ago that he did not desire a renomination are not controlling and that "if renominated I ought to accept."

Eight Cadets Suspended.

West Point, N. Y.—Eight cadets in the United States Military academy here were sent to their homes Thursday as a result of hazing members of the fourth class.

WINS IN OLYMPIC MARATHON

American Captures Great Olympian Games Race.

London.—It would be no exaggeration, in the minds of the 100,000 spectators who witnessed the finishing struggle of the Marthon race at the Olympian arena Friday, to say that it was the most thrilling event that has occurred since that Marthon race in ancient Greece, where the victor fell at the goal and, with a wave of triumph, died. And it was won by an American.

It was an American day and the sentments of Thursday, which rankled strongly in the breasts of Americans here when they came to the stadium were forgotten not only in the victory of John F. Hayes, the Irish-American Atheltic club runner, but in the splendid record made by the other Americans, who were well to the front in the line of those that finished.

Six Americans started in the Marathon race and nine English runners. Of the first ten men to reach the coveted goal, four were Americans.

The second man was Hefferon of South Africa. The first Englishman who crossed the line came in twelfth. He was W. T. Clarke.

Dorando was first to enter the stadium at the finish. He staggered, dazed and delirious, and in the last 300 yards fell four times and was helped up by track officials, who finally half-carried him across the line. Because of this he was disqualified.

TWO DEAD, TWELVE WOUNDED

Bloody Career of Desperadoes In Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Boston. — Two dead, a man and a woman probably shot fatally, and ten others suffering from bullet wounds, sums up the record of the murderous career of two bandits who Wednesday terrorized the Jamaica Plain district, eluding the pursuit of hundreds of policemen and thousands of citizens. Starting on Tuesday night by entering a saloon in Jamaica Plain, three men, who are supposed to be Italians, killed one man with revolvers, wounded two others and, rifling the cash register, got away with $90.

Early Wednesday evening, after the police had searched for them unsuccessfully all day, two of the robbers again appeared in Jamaica Plain and, firing revolvers, ran through the most thickly settled part of the district, leaving a trail of victims behind them.

Early Thursday the pair were supposed to be hiding in Forest Hills cemetery, which was surrounded by several hundred heavily armed policemen.

Herbert S. Knox of Roslindale, night watchman at the cemetery, is the victim who is dead.

Boston.—One of the bandits who "shot up" Jamaica Plains, killed two persons, wounded 11, and then took refuge in a cemetery, was killed by the police, another was wounded and the third was arrested.

Forty Hurt in Collision.

Lovedale, Ill.—Forty persons were injured, some of them probably fatally, and more than a dozen so severely that they had to be taken to hospitals. Tuesday in a head-on collision between two Aurora, Elgin & Chicago cars at Lovedale station. The disaster occurred when the coaches were each running at a speed estimated at 40 miles an hour and the crash when they came together was terrific.

"Bill" Hazard Is Rescued.

Bassett, Neb.—"Bill" Hazard made his escape from jail at this place Friday. Several weeks ago he broke jail at Gregory, S. D., where he was held on the charge of stealing horses, and was captured last Thursday at Newport by Sheriff Marsh of Rock county and placed in jail here.

he remembered how he had kissed n, and put her head down and bed. They did not seem fit to be ed now—nor worth kissing.

ut the post-mistress liked her bet- ter that way and so do I. For she had acquired a daintiness that was almost immaculate.

As soon as Sally came, the post-mistress smiled and shook her head. For she had understood what the letter contained quite as if she had seen it. And she had watched anxiously for the answer.

"Not yet," she said compassionately.

Sally's legs weakened and she clutched at the little shelf before her. It took a moment to swallow the thing in her throat. Then she murmured:

"It's two weeks."

"Yes. But he'd have to be pretty prompt to get it here by this time."

Sally had been sure of this promptness. It never occurred to her to doubt. She would not have wasted a minute. She turned hopelessly away.

"Perhaps to-morrow!" said the kind post-mistress.

Sally veered, smiling.

"You think so?"

"Perhaps. One can never tell. Don't worry, dear. You see the address was very vague and it may be some time before they find him."

"You don't think it is too late?"

"I hope not, dear."

She had not thought of that before. She had fancied him waiting for some such recall. But, of course, he had formed other ties—he would be glad to forget her. He might be married! Of course he was! Otherwise he could not be a president!

"I guess it's too late," she said again.

"I would not think that. The address was very vague. But, after you were gone, I took the precaution to put a return address on the envelope, and if he does not get it, it will come back; but that will take some little time."

There was nothing the next day nor the next, nor for the many days afterward that she went to the post-office. She was no longer dressed up for the trip, and she was glad now she had not told his father.

For a while she had to lock herself in her room when the desire came on her to go to the post-office. And then she remained away three days, then a week, and then the post-mistress admitted that the letter had had time to be returned. She must not give up though. Strange things happen, sometimes, with letters.

The letter had been returned, the post-mistress had it then. But she pityingly thought it best that Sally should wait for it still, while she tried to send it back to him.

Otherwise it was very much as Sally had planned and hoped, save that she was a bit sadder. She kept Seffy's father's house, as, perhaps, no house was ever kept before. She had not been famous for the keeping of her own house in the days of her coquetteship. Her grandmother had attended to this—and then a maid who interpreted her faultlessly. But now her own hands did all—and did it with love. And she did replace Seffy—and more. For she plowed, and, after a brief apprenticeship, no one did it better. The bay mare was as kind to Sally as she had been to Seffy. Nothing in his life had ever been so sweet to the old man as those rests when they met. And no food was ever so piquant as that eaten under the trees at their nooning.

Sally still went to the post-office, and the post-mistress still had her letter where she could have put her hand hand upon it, though she mercifully concealed this.

But there was no hope. Not a word of confidence had passed between Sally and the kind post-mistress, but each knew that the other understood quite as if their confidence was complete. So that it was as if they spoke of an old matter when Sally said, one day:

"Yes—I guess it's too late. He's married."

"I wouldn't think so, if I were you, till I heard from him," said the compassionate woman behind the counter. "I thought so once. He went to war. I heard that he was killed. I married another man—just—oh, just because! Then he came back. I have always been sorry."

Something filled the speaker's eyes—and Sally, with the dumb intuition of the primitive nature, stood there a long time and said only, "Thank you."

But after that hope rose and lived again.

That night the post-mistress received, from Washington, the address of the Kansas State League of Farmers' clubs, and put it on the face of the returned letter and sent it forth again.

"No, Not Everybody," Sighed Sally.

XV.

Shall Seffy Enter at This Cue?

Winter had come again—the fifth one. They sat together in the great hearth of the kitchen, in their characteristic attitude when before a fire. The hickory logs sputtered savagely, but sent out to them, nevertheless, a grateful warmth. Their faces and bodies glowed in the fervor of it. And there is nothing like this to put one at peace with all the world.

"Sally," said the old man, "this is nice."

"Very nice," agreed Sally.

But also there is nothing like this to send one's memory backward. And this it was doing for both of them.

"Eferybody don't haf no such fire to-night." And the everybody he thought of as he sighed was—Seffy.

"No, not everybody," sighed Sally, propping her head upon his knee.

"Sally—who do you mean by eferybody?"

"Just one person," admitted Sally, "the same one you mean."

"Yas," said Seffy's father very softly, and then they were silent.

"Mebby some's got no homes—and out freezing to-night," the old man said presently.

"I hope not," said Sally. "We could take them in here if we knew where they are—couldn't we, pappy?"

But that last note was the one which dams up tears.

"Yas—if we knowed where they air! My God—if we chust knowed where they air! Sally, don't you nefer turn no one away from the door on a cold winter's night. You don't know who it might be!"

"I'll never turn any one away from the door!" said Sally with emotion.

"That's right, Sally. Some's dead. I'd rather be dead than haf no home."

"And I," agreed Sally.

"Nor no friends."

Sally nodded.

"Sally, how long is it sence you was married?"

"More than four years—nearly five, pappy."

"My! but sings is changed!" said the old man. "Efen the sun don't seem so bright no more."

"Yes, things are changed," said the girl.

"Yit it must be chust an idee. Why, the Bible says that summer and winter shall not change tell eferysing come to pass—eferysing—eferysing—" Then his voice broke. "Yit—yit—yit it's one sing ain't come to pass and it seems like it's nefer going to. It's better sence you come. But yit the house is damp—and shifery,"—he shivered himself—"and empty—like it was a funeral about all the time. Yit it's no one dead—no one's dead—he's not dead—chust gone. You said so—you said it first! And some day he'll come back and we'll git on our knees and beg his pardon. But it's so long—oh, my God—so long! Oh, Seffy—Seffy—little Seffy—I got a pain in my breast about you! You was all I had. Come back to me—come back! I'm a ol man. And I'm sorry—sorry—and broke—broke down. But if you'll come back—Sally, do you think he'll haf a scar on his face?"

Something stifled his utterance. The girl put out a soft hand to comfor him.

"Some day we shall know—see! Be brave!"

"Yas—yas—that's easy to say. Bu you nefer struck no one right in the face—when they was looking up a you—in that pleading kind of a way!'

She said piteously, "No."

"Then you don't know nossing abou it! Oh, my God! if you'd had it befor you for more than four years—like a picture—morning and efening—day and night—eferywheres! The blood on him—and the bed and me!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SHE SEIZED THE OPPORTUNITY.

Family Didn't Often Get Chance to Have Photographs Taken.

A philanthropic Cleveland man heard the other day of a family down in the flats who were in extreme need of financial aid. He made a trip down to the poor, miserably furnished home and found that the family was, indeed, having a struggle to get enough to eat. He pulled three five-dollar bills out of his wallet and handed it to the gaunt, half-starved looking mother and told her to take it and spend it as she thought best. A few days later he returned to see how the family were getting along. All the members in sight still looked poorly fed. "Did you buy some groceries with that $15?" he asked. "Well, no," said the woman, with some hesitation, "you see, it was the first time we had had so much money all at once, and it looked like such a good chance that we each went up and had a dozen cabinet photographs taken." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

REPARTEE OF THE JUVENILES.

Washington Children in Smart Exchange of Compliments.

Evidently there was a severance of friendly relations between two of a group of small girls who a minute before had been romping about the sward in Dupont Circle, for just as the writer approached the daughter of a southern legislator called out to her small companion from the west: "The girl with the red dress on is a cowgirl! The girl with the red dress on is a cowgirl!" Again and again the taunting challenge was hurled at the red-frocked western maid, who finally, with one supreme effort at self-control, retorted: "Oh very well, then, the girl who is a-hollerin' is a sheep! I'd sooner be a cowgirl than a sheep, 'cause the president is fond of cowboys and cowgirls, but not even a secretary likes a sheep!"

A Clever Woman.

She—"Mary Graham is certainly a very clever woman, yet she has little to say." He—"That's where her cleverness comes in. She leads a man to believe that she thinks he is worth listening to."

The Reason.

She—"My! that was a heavy play!" He—"Perhaps it was on account of the stage waits."

A SURGICAL OPERATION

If there is any one thing that a woman dreads more than another it is a surgical operation.

We can state without fear of a contradiction that there are hundreds, yes, thousands, of operations performed upon women in our hospitals which are entirely unnecessary and many have been avoided by

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

For proof of this statement read the following letters.

Mrs. Barbara Base, of Kingman, Kansas, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For eight years I suffered from the most severe form of female troubles and was told that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has saved my life and made me a well woman."

Mrs. Arthur R. House, of Church Road, Moorestown. N. J., writes:

"I feel it is my duty to let people know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female troubles, and last March my physician decided that an operation was necessary. My husband objected, and urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am well and strong."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, and backache.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Weary Willie's Complaint.

William J. Ryan, president of the supreme council of public hackmen of New York, said the other day that the winter panic had reduced the hackmen's receipts considerably.

"We'll have to come down to English rates—12 cents a mile instead of 50 cents—if we have many more such panics," Mr. Ryan said. "Everybody felt the pinch. I overheard a tramp grumbling in a public square.

"'The trade ain't like it used to be,' he said. 'Here ten times running today I've asked for a bit of bread, and what do they give me? Why, durn it, just a bit o' bread.'"—Exchange.

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

The Wife Did It All.

Hewitt—Couldn't you get the person you called up by telephone?

Jewett—Oh, yes.

Hewitt—But I didn't hear you say anything.

Jewett—It was my wife I called.

No Waits.

"I suppose you wait for the divine spark?" inquired the lady visitor.

"Heavens, no!" replied the bard. "If I did I would be waiting yet!"

I consented to try it to please him and was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for years. Kodol did it, I kept a bottle constantly and write this hopin that humanity may be benefitted. Youry truly J C Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, '94. Sold at G A Pabst & Co.

Peculiar things do happen in this world. Some times we are sadly disappointed in people, because they didn't do as well as we expected them to do. But on the other hand we are often surprised at the things our friends are able to accomplish and at the wonderful progress that our friends do make, it is marvelous to think of it. You can never tell by the looks of a frog what he can do. Just because he has big feet that is no reason why he can't be a traveller and so you can't tell anything about how far he can jump.

EDITOR TIMES—
Dear Sir:

We are once more on terre firma. As the ocean trip was such a pleasant one, we were not so very anxious to leave the ship. During the entire trip we did not see a white cap. Of course the boat would rock a little at times caused by the water being restless below the surface. Sunday was the dreariest day for us, as there was no service what ever. There were several ministers and four priests on board, but owing to the large number of Jews no attempt was made to hold a service. Monday morning we arose at 3 o'clock, having been awakened by the tumbling of trunks and baggage to be unloaded at Plymouth. We were one of the first on deck to watch for the sight of land. About 4 o'clock we caught the first glimpse of the Sicilian islands. A few hours later the rock-bibbed coast of England could be seen. As we sailed along the shore for some three hours the scenery was most beautiful. The side hills looked red as brick the roads winding up into the country, pink; the fields which are all divided into small patches and in every imaginable shape, inclosed with hedges, were tinted in various shades of green, according to the crops covering them. On the high peaks of the bluffs stand the forts with their high walls around them all in white.

Plymouth is an old city nestled bstween the hugh bluffs almost out of sight. As we pulled into the bay the machinery of our boat stopped for the first time in six days. Two ferry boats pulled up to us and took passangers and mail to shore. It may interest some to state that we had more than 1800 trunks and 3000 suit cases on board and several car loads of mail. After a short stop our boat turned and started for Cherbourg, France which we reached about 3 p. m. The old fortifications which were built many years ago, divided the bay from the channel but there is a large opening and we pulled into the bay to unload passangers and mail. On the massive walls lay scores of rusty cannons. This fortification would be a play thing to defend the city against the attack of an enemy at the present time. Passing thru' the English channel our speed was much retarted and we could notice the danger signals on every side. We now passed all kinds of boats and at one time counted more than 40 in sight. Tuesday morning every one was astir, packing grips, looking for land and getting ready to get off.

As we neared Bremen harbor there were hundreds on the platfor looking for friends. There was a great stampede to get off, but all had to wait their turn. In the custom house all our baggage had to be opened and searched by officers. This was very amusing indeed. One man had to pay 90c duty on a few plugs of tobacco, another 60c on a bottle of olives, etc. We could laugh as we got thru' free. This delayed us a long time.

The trip to Bremen was interesting to us, watching the fine Holstein cattle grazing in the pastures along the way side, the quaint old houses covered with moss, the turf fields, the pine forests and neatly kept fields. Bremen is a city of 272,000 inhabitants. We spent one day in old Bremen which lies in the centre of the city and was at one time inclosed by a great wall. We went through the old court house, bnilt 900 years ago and underneath the great wine cellar, running far under the street. Near it stands the Cathedral of St. Peter with its wonderful architecture. Scores of gothic arches, resting on all colors of marble pillars, run in various directions. The main building stands nearly 500 years. Under this building is a cellar where a number of bodies lie in stale, dried up by the air, but preserved so that even the folds in the clothes they wore is noticable. They vary in age fram 150 to 465 years.

We also spent some time in the Hall of art, the historic museum, the museum of ancient relics, the new court house and other old buildings. Part of a day we spent in the principal business streets, parks and a general trip around the city. We tried to find one square street corner in the business portion of the city but failed. Some streets are so narrow that two wagons could not pass each other if they tried. We start on a short side trip into Hanover, Friday, before we begin our long journey to the south. The weather has been dreary, with showers each day. The nights seem very short to us as it is light till 9 in the evening and daylight dawns before 3 in the morning. The time here is seven hours ahead of Iowa time

Yours truly,
Rev. G. H. Wessel.

Peculiar things do happen in this world. Some times we are sadly disappointed in people, because they didn't do as well as we expected them to do. But on the other hand we are often surprised at the things our friends are able to accomplish and at the wonderful progress that our friends do make, it is marvelous to think of it. You can never tell by the looks of a frog what he can do. Just because he has big feet that is no reason why he can't be a traveler and so you can't tell anything about how far he can jump.

EDITOR TIMES—
Dear Sir:

We are once more on terre firma. As the ocean trip was such a pleasant one, we were not so very anxious to leave the ship. During the entire trip we did not see a white cap. Of course the boat would rock a little at times caused by the water being restless below the surface. Sunday was the dreariest day for us, as there was no service what ever. There were several ministers and four priests on board, but owing to the large number of Jews no attempt was made to hold a service. Monday morning we arose at 3 o'clock, having been awakened by the tumbling of trunks and baggage to be unloaded at Plymouth. We were one of the first on deck to watch for the sight of land. About 4 o'clock we caught the first glimpse of the Sicilian islands. A few hours later the rock-ribbed coast of England could be seen. As we sailed along the shore for some three hours the scenery was most beautiful. The side hills looked red as brick the roads winding up into the country, pink; the fields which are all divided into small patches and in every imaginable shape, inclosed with hedges, were tinted in various shades of green, according to the crops covering them. On the high peaks of the bluffs stand the forts with their high walls around them all in white.

Plymouth is an old city nestled bstween the hugh bluffs almost out of sight. As we pulled into the bay the machinery of our boat stopped for the first time in six days. Two ferry boats pulled up to us and took passaugers and mail to shore. It may interest some to state that we had more than 1800 trunks and 3000 suit cases on board and several car loads of mail. After a short stop our boat turned and started for Cherbourg, France which we reached about 3 p. m. The old fortifications which were built many years ago, divided the bay from the channel but there is a large opening and we pulled into the bay to unload passangers and mail. On the massive walls lay scores of rusty cannons. This fortification would be a play thing to defend the [illegible] the back of an [illegible] time. Pas- [illegible] n channel our speed was much retarted and we could notice the danger signals on every side. We now passed all kinds of boats and at one time counted more than 40 in sight. Tuesday morning every one was astir, packing grips, looking for land and getting ready to get off.

As we neared Bremen harbor there were hundreds on the platfor looking for friends. There was a great stampede to get off, but all had to wait their turn. In the custom house all our baggage had to be opened and searched by officers. This was very amusing indeed. One man had to pay 90c duty on a few plugs of tobacco, another 60c on a bottle of olives, etc. We could laugh as we got thru' free. This delayed us a long time.

The trip to Bremen was interesting to us, watching the fine Holstein cattle grazing in the pastures along the way side, the quaint old houses covered with moss, the turf fields, the pine forests and neatly kept fields. Bremen is a city of 272,000 inhabitants. We spent one day in old Bremen which lies in the centre of the city and was at one time inclosed by a great wall. We went through the old court house, bnilt 900 years ago and underneath the great wine cellar, running far under the street. Near it stands the Cathedral of St. Peter with its wonderful architecture. Scores of gothic arches, resting on all colors of marble pillars, run in various directions. The main building stands nearly 500 years. Under this building is a cellar where a number of bodies lie in stale, dried up by the air, but preserved so that even the folds in the clothes they wore is noticable. They vary in age fram 150 to 465 years.

We also spent some time in the Hall of art, the historic museum, the museum of ancient relics, the new court house and other old buildings. Part of a day we spent in the principal business streets, parks and a general trip around the city. We tried to find one square street corner in the business portion of the city but failed. Some streets are so narrow that two wagons could not pass each other if they tried. We start on a short side trip into Hanover, Friday, before we begin our long journey to the south. The weather has been dreary, with showers each day. The nights seem very short to us as it is light till 9 in the evening and daylight dawns before 3 in the morning. The time here is seven hours ahead of Iowa time

Yours truly,
Rev. G. H. Wessel.

SENT PACKAGES BY NEIGHBORS.

Custom of Early Days of New England Settlement.

In the early days of the settlement of New England the custom of sending packages by neighbors who journeyed to different parts of the country was an established one. The note book of Schoolmaster Joseph Hawley of Northampton, Mass., when he started on a trip to Boston, was filled with such varied items as: "Capt. Partridge, a dial and a dish kettle," "son, Joseph, speckled red ribbon, whistles, buckles and fish hooks," "a shilling worth of plumb and spice," "two psalters, a bason and a quart pot." In "Old Paths and Legends of the New England Border" Katherine M. Abbott says that it was the same even as late as Judge Lyman's day; his daughter, Mrs. Lesley, writes of it in "Recollections of My Mother":

There were no expresses then, and so when it was known in the village of Northampton that Judge and Mrs. Lyman were going to Boston—and they always took pains to make it known—a throng of neighbors were coming in the whole evening before, not only to take an affectionate leave, but to bring parcels of every size and shape, and commissions of every variety.

One came with a dress she wanted to send to a daughter at school; one brought patterns of dry goods, with a request that Mrs. Lyman would purchase and bring home dresses for a family of five. And would she go to the orphan asylum and see if a good child of ten could be bound out to another neighbor? Would Mrs. Lyman bring the child back with her?

The neighbors walked into the library, where the packing was going on, and when all the family trunks were filled my father called out heartily: "Here, Hiram, bring down another trunk from the garret, the largest you can find, to hold all these parcels!"

A little boy came timidly in with a bundle nearly as large as himself, and "would this be too large for Mrs. Lyman to carry to grandmother?"

"No, indeed. Tell your mother I'll carry anything short of a cooking stove."

"Another trunk, Hiram," said my father, "and ask the driver to wait five minutes."

Those were the times when people could wait five minutes for a family so well known, and beloved. Our driver had only to whip up his horses a little faster.—Youth's Companion.

Eminently Practical.

The manager of the combination refreshment and music hall was grumpy on Tuesday morning. One of the first persons he interviewed was the leader of the new orchestra.

"What do you mean," he said, "by such spieling as you favored us with in this place last night?"

The conductor was floored by the unexpected attack.

"I don't understand," he said. "My men played well. I'll bet a ten-dollar hat that they produced the best music that was ever heard inside this hall. The applause of the audience proved that."

"That's just what I'm complaining about," growled the manager. "They played too well. It isn't profitable—not to me, at any rate—to play too well in a place of this kind. Extraordinarily good music cuts down sales. I want you to furnish good music, of course, something bright and catchy, but when the orchestra outdoes itself people get so interested that they just listen and forget to order drinks. Custom fell off ten per cent. last night, in spite of the record crowd, all on account of your men's expert fiddling. Hereafter lower your standard to a level that will not charm away thirst."

Clearing It Up.

"To which is a man most closely related," said the genealogist, "his first divorced wife's second husband or his present wife's first divorced husband?"

"So far as I can see, one tie is about as close as the other," said a thoughtful friend.

"So I should say," said the genealogist, "but Billy Bowen must have figured out a difference. Anyhow, when his first wife's second husband died Billy went to a ball game, but when his present wife's first husband died he went into mourning. I can't understand that."

"I can," said the thoughtful friend. "Billy's present wife was on the point of divorcing him so she could remarry her first husband. Now that he is dead she has decided to stick to Billy."

"Ah," said the genealogist.

Woman Wins Scholastic Honor.

Miss Stella Schaffer delivered the valedictory address for the graduating class of the Eclectic Medical college of the city of New York at the recent commencement exercises. It is the first time in more than ten years that such an honor has fallen to a woman. Miss Schaffer was also the winner of the electro-therapeutic prize.

The extraordinary popularity of fine white goods this summer makes the choice of Starch a matter of great importance. Defiance Starch, being free from all injurious chemicals, is the only one which is safe to use on fine fabrics. Its great strength as a stiffener makes half the usual quantity of Starch necessary, with the result of perfect finish, equal to that when the goods were new.

To Spread Temperance Cause.

Mrs. Katherine L. Stevenson has been commissioned by the International Woman's Christian Temperance Union to make a tour through China, Japan and Hawaii. She is to visit the most important educational institutions of the three countries and explain to the faculties and students the temperance measures adopted by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Costly Popularity.

France's cruiser Leon Gambetta is named after the famous politician, who died on December 31, 1882. In the times of his intense popularity Gambetta had an experience which he was wont to tell against himself. In Paris admirers unyoked his horses and dragged the carriage to his house. Gambetta would narrate this with an air of pride, and he would add, with a smile: "But I never saw my horses again!"

What Women Have Done.

Mrs. M. F. Johnston of Richmond, Ind., gave an interesting account at the Boston biennial of the G. F. W. C. of the Art association of that city, which is ten years old. Five hundred dollars is appropriated each year for the purchase of a picture, and the council gives $100 for the annual exhibition. The standard in pictures and crafts has changed, she says, and in the next few years much is expected that will give the children the opportunity of greater culture and knowledge of art.

Regular Burial Place.

A well-known English bishop some time since lost his third wife. A clergyman who had known the first wife returned from Africa and wanted to see the grave. He called at the cathedral and saw the verger.

"Can you tell me where the bishop's wife is buried?"

"Well, sir," replied the verger, "I don't know for certain, but he mostly buries 'em at Brompton."

HEALTH AND INCOME

Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good sturdy health helps one a lot to make money.

With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.

When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset.

"I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half day at a time.

"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts, which I did, making this food a large part of at least two meals a day.

"Today I am free from brain-tire, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an overworked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income." "There's a Reason."

WHO STOLE COAL?

Waterworks Plant Could Not Have Burned It.

Dubuque.—Although Judge Bonson has rendered his decision in the matter of the coal bill of the Martin Strelau company and entered judgment against the city of Dubuque in the sum of $43,000, the matter is not settled.

The public is not satisfied. There is no disposition on the part of the public to shirk any honest debt, but the question persists, how did this debt assume the magnitude it has? It is practically a settled fact that the municipally owned water works plant could not have consumed the amount of coal charged to it and which Judge Bonson by his decree says the city shall pay for.

Where did this coal go to? This is the question the public is asking. Here is the remarkable feature of the case and the one which makes the taxpayers hesitate. Under the stewardship of Trustees Ellwanger and Ryder and the general management of McArthur this condition on the coal account existed:

Jan. 1,'06 (there was owing)	$26,361.66
Mar. 1,'07 (there was owing)	39.646.89
Increase in debts in 14 mos.	$13.113.23
Paid in cash for coal.....	24,984.45
Total cost, 14 months....	$38,097.68

Now comes the amazing feature of the case. In the thirteen months and ten days of their management of the water works the new board of trustees has expended for coal the total sum of $19,707.16, or $18,397.52, about 50 per cent less than the sum expended during the preceding fourteen months period by the ousted trustees.

Trustee Alderman, now in charge of the coal account, declares it is a physical impossibility for the fire boxes to consume the amount of coal for which the department is charged during the fourteen months from Jan. 1, 1906, to March 1, 1907.

What became of this coal Who stole it? Who shared in the proceeds of this illgotten gain? This is the question that makes the city authorities hesitate when the proposition of assuming the old trustees' debt is brought up.

Mayor Schunk declares he never will sign warrants in liquidation of the Martin Strelau company's bill. The case will go to the supreme court.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE.

County Attorney Says He will Summon Election Officers.

Des Moines.—County Attorney Lawrence DeGraff states that he intends to have the judges and clerks of the Third precinct of the Second ward in the recent primary election summoned before the grand jury and interrogated with respect to how a mistake of fifty-six votes occurred in that precinct.

Congressman J. A. T. Hull gained fifty-six in that precinct on the recount by the board of supervisors. About 700 ballots were cast. There has been much speculation as to how twenty-eight ballots marked for Hull came to be counted for Prouty in the congressional contest.

Many unofficial explanations for the discrepancy have been advanced. County Attorney DeGraff apparently has not been satisfied with the informal explanations, and will now get the story into the official records.

He understands that there is full authority within the law for summoning the election officers before the grand jury and interrogating them with respect to what happened at the polls in the Third of the Second the night of June 2, 1908.

News that the grand jury will make inquiry into the situation in this precinct, at least, it is supposed, will be received by the politicians with great interest.

BOY MUTILATED BY HAY RAKE.

Lloyd Edgar of Morning Sun Seriously Injured.

Morning Sun.—Lloyd Edgar, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Edgar, while using one of the new side rakes, was thrown forward, the rake passing over his body and dragging it for a short distance, when he was thrown to one side. One of his ears was almost torn off, so that a number of stitches were necessary to put it in place, while he was badly bruised and his body torn in other places. The accident was due to the team becoming frightened and running away. One of the horses was killed in the accident.

SISTER VIOLENTLY INSANE.

Another Chapter Written In Gowrie Shooting.

Fort Dodge.—The 16-year-old sister of Wilbur Carr, the Gowrie young man who recently murdered Tom Nicholson, the Gowrie town marshal, is now thought to be violently insane as a result of the murder. She has brown rapidly worse and her condition is said to be exactly similar to her mother's just before it was necessary to take the latter to the asylum.

As soon as the young woman's brother was brought to this city after the murder, her heroism in comforting him gave place to a terrible reaction, and she was confined to her bed with one sinking spell after another. When she gained a little strength and came out of her stupor, she immediately began to talk of the murder and it haunted her mind so continually that she began to rave about it. With constant care and treatment she was brought out of this state and seemed to be getting along nicely until she began to grow worse suddenly and since then has been violent, her condition endangering those about her and herself, so that it may be necessary to send her to an asylum.

Throughout her entire sickness Miss Carr has threatened to kill herself at various intervals, and it is said that she recently bought a bottle of carbolic acid and now asks for it, "just to smell it". The house has been searched for poison, but it cannot be found, and the attendants are fearful lest she may evade them at sometime, and getting it, accomplish her end.

After her first illness, and when rationality first returned, feeble as she was, Miss Carr penned a note to the authorities at Cherokee, asking them to be sure that her mother did not get hold of any papers in which were accounts of murder.

The condition of the little family of children at home is pitiable, indeed. With their mother in the insane asylum, their father in jail at Gowrie, serving sentence for drunkenness, their brother jailed on the charge of murder, their sister in serious condition at their little home, they are being cared for by friends and an older brother who lives in a neighboring town.

CATTLEMEN WIN FIGHT.

Feeding in Transit Rates Must Be Given Them.

Washington, D. C.—The interstate commerce commission in an opinion by Commissioner Prouty handed down a decision in the case of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' association vs. the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway company and fifteen other railroad companies. This case is one that has attracted wide notice in Iowa and elsewhere and yesterday's decision is a partial victory for the Corn Belt Meat Producers' association.

It appeared in this case that to facilitate the handling of cattle for feeding purposes the defendants have permitted them to be brought in from various breeding pastures, stopped off for a time to be fattened and then sent on to market at the through rate, plus some additional charge for the privilege, and plus also the local rate from the feeding point for the additional weight which the cattle take on in process of fattening.

This feeding in transit privilege is granted by the tariffs of the defendant railroads in the states west of the Missouri river, but is not granted to Iowa points. The commission held that this results in an unlawful discrimination against Iowa points and the complainant shippers, but rates on live stock from Iowa point to Chicago were not found to be unreasonable. The grouping, however, it is held, should be revised, as at present they apparently discriminate against Iowa points.

KILLING STOCK IN PASTURES.

Animals Found Dead in Field With Skull Crushed.

Creston.—Considerable mystery surrounds the killing of a number of head of cattle lately, pastured in the fields of Mr. McDonald, southeast of this city. The first head were thought by the veterinarian to have died of poisoning or milk fever, but later another animal was found dead, with its skull crushed as though it had been sandbagged. The authorities at work on the case feel sure some one is killing this stock for revenge, but the parties owning the stock are unable to explain the matter, as they know of no reason for such acts against them.

Sheer white goods, in fact, any wash goods when new, owe much their attractiveness to the way they are laundered, this being done in manner to enhance their textile beauty. Home laundering would be equally satisfactory if proper attention were given to starching, the first essential being good Starch, which has sufficient strength to stiffen, without thickening the goods. Try Defiance Starch and you will be pleasantly surprised at the improved appearance of your work.

Like Belle Plaine's Jumbo.

A magnificent artesian well was struck last week by a party of coal prospectors who were working on the farm of William Moran, near the town of Moran, five miles northwest of Granger. A 4-inch hole had been sunk to a depth of about 340 feet when the water rushed out in an immense stream. Efforts to check the flow were unavailing and it is so strong that when confined to a pipe it sends a steady stream to a height of fifteen feet.

Mr. Moran is much pleased with the find and intends to convey the water by means of pipes and a hydraulic ram to all parts of his farm. The water is of fine quality, according to the statement of a Des Moines man who was present and the well is considered a most valuable find to the owner of the land. The flow is sufficient to provide abundance of water to several farms in the neighborhood and it is of the finest quality.

Many sightseers are coming to the Moran farm to witness the unusual spectacle.

No Petition In Muscatine.

The Iowa Anti-Saloon league has won its fight in Muscatine in the petition of consent canvass, so its officers declare. When the liquor men had finished the circulation of the petition they claimed a majority of signers to the petition of 420.

The league, assisted by the temperance workers in Muscatine, began the fight there Monday to challenge the signatures. So far they claim they have lowered the list of signatures by over 400 names, and within the thirty days in which to challenge, will easily have the petition defeated.

"The temperance people have the petition beaten to a standstill," said Supt. W. C. Barber, who has just returned from Muscatine. "The petition will never in the world get through in Muscatine. The temperance people have been aroused, and in the two days that the names have been challenged they have reduced the signatures by 400. They found many fakes and repeats so that it will be an easy matter to get withdrawals."

Prouty Placed In Nomination.

By a vote of 74½ to 51½ the delegates in the Seventh district republican convention on the 23rd nominated Judge S. F Prouty for congress over Congressman J. A. T. Hull, no notice that a nomination had been made at the primary of June 2 having been received by the convention.

R. I. Garden, one of Captain Hull's friends, protested the division of the vote of the delegates from Marion county. He insisted that Hull had seven delegates instead of five and a half as reported by Chairman Booth of the delegation. If Hull had been given the seven, instead of half the delegation, the total vote would have been: Prouty 73, Hull 7.

Adjournment was taken by the convention until the first Saturday in September unless earlier called by the chairman.

Captain Hull insisted the convention acted without power.

Conventions Name Judges.

Attorney General H. W. Byers has decided that conventions of the political parties must nominate candidates for judge to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Charles A. Bishop.

He held that the governor cannot appoint for a period extending beyond the next general election.

He has not yet decided how the conventions of the parties shall be constituted or called. He has decided practically that the committees cannot act for the parties in making the nominations. The democratic state central committee has chosen Captain Jaques of Ottumwa as the democratic candidate for judge, if the committees may act.

Saves Stockmen Much Money.

Henry Wallace, publisher of Wallace's Farmer, of this city, who is a close and intelligent student of freight rates, especially as they affect stock shipments from Iowa, states that the recent ruling by the interstate railway commission will effect a saving of $300,000 annually to the stockmen of the state. It requires the railroads to grant to Iowa shippers of stock what is known as the shipping in transit privilege. Though this concession has been extended, stock shippers in Nebraska and Kansas for years it has been denied to Iowa stock shippers.

Mr. Grandon Able to Bear Testimony to Wife's Accomplishments.

Sometimes there is a drop of regret in the cup of joy served by fate to the husband of a brilliant talker. "I should think it would be a privilege to sit at the table with your wife three times a day," said one of Mrs. Grandon's ardent feminine admirers.

"Only twice a day," said Mr. Grandon, with a bow. "I do not go home at noon."

"Too bad!" said the admirer. "We could not get on without her at club I'm sure. Why, I believe she could talk intelligently on a thousand topics!"

"She can—and does," said Mr. Grandon, and with another bow he slipped out just as his wife appeared. —Youths' Companion.

CUTICURA CURED FOUR

Southern Woman Suffered with Itching, Burning Rash—Three Little Babies Had Skin Troubles.

"My baby had a running sore on his neck and nothing that I did for it took effect until I used Cuticura. My face was nearly full of tetter or some similar skin disease. It would itch and burn so that I could hardly stand it. Two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment cured me. Two years after it broke out on my hands and wrist. Sometimes I would go nearly crazy for it itched so badly. I went back to my old stand-by, that had never failed me—one set of Cuticura Remedies did the work. One set also cured my uncle's baby whose head was a cake of sores, and another baby who was in the same fix. Mrs. Lillie Wilcher, 770 Eleventh St., Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 16, 1907."

Real Philosopher.

Philosophy, says Jerome K. Jerome, is the art of bearing other people's troubles. The truest philosopher he ever heard of was a woman. She was brought into the London hospital suffering from a poisoned leg. The house surgeon made a hurried examination. He was a man of blunt speech. "It will have to come off," he told her. "What, not all of it?" "The whole of it, I'm sorry to say," growled the house surgeon. "Nothing else for it?" "No other chance for you whatever," explained the house surgeon. "Ah, well, thank Gawd it's not my 'ead."

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

IDEAS FOR THE HOSTESS.

Some Novel and Simple Ways to Entertain Guests.

A Handkerchief Shower.

This affair for a prospective bride was arranged in a very clever manner. Twelve intimate friends were invited to luncheon with the request to bring the gift "mouchoir" rolled up into the smallest package possible. Before going to the dining-room the hostess took all the packages and disapepared. When luncheon was announced, with one voice the guests exclaimed "how pretty." Suspended from the chandalier there was an inverted Japanese umbrella, from each rib there was a smaller umbrella and from this hung by ribbons there was a gilded watering can the sprinkler of which had 12 holes with baby ribbons of different colors coming out. At the end of each ribbon there was a tightly rolled package. The effect was lovely. The place cards were miniature "Jap" parasols with the cards tied to the handles. The candle shades were ornamented with these same tiny parasols and small lanetrns filled with candied puffed rice were at each place. The mint sherbert, which was the dessert, had smilax twined around the tall glass with another little umbrella in the top of the glass.

The Colonel's Leg in History.

Col. Blank, who later called himself general, received, in a little skirmish of the Civil war, a slight scratch on the leg. In the days afterward he nursed his glorious wound with loving care and grew lamer year by year that the memory of his bravery might be ever fresh.

When grown old, as he sat one day caring for his leg and musing on the glorious past, a young man, a stranger visiting the family for a few days, approached him and inquired, sympathetically:

"Lame, general?"

"Yes, young man, I am lame."

"Been riding, sir?"

"No, sir," sternly and rebukingly, "I have not been riding."

"Ah, slipped on the ice, general?"

"No, sir!" with actual ferocity.

"Then, perhaps, sir, you have sprained your ankle?"

The old man slowly and carefully lifted his pet leg in both hands and tenderly set his foot upon the floor. Then he slowly rose from his seat and stood looking down with scornful pity at the unlucky youth. At last, in the sublimity of rage, he burst out:

"Go and read the history of your country, you puppy!"

The Child's Viewpoint.

Percy Alder, M. P., of London, told an amusing story of a small girl at a recent meeting of the Children's Happy Evenings association. The child had been sent away to the country for a holiday, and questioned as to what in all her holiday had pleased her most, this little slum maiden, whose London home adjoined a waste piece of land, replied: "Seeing no dead cats."

Birds Not Afraid of Man.

Among southern African birds which manifest wonderful tameness is the Cape wagtail, which not only penetrates to the living room in search of flies, but will pick them from the old Boer's velschoons as he sits on his stoep, and perch about his chair.

A French gentleman is credited with having invented a mitrailleuse worked by electricity that can fire, without powder, 1,200 bullets a minute. This would mean a more rapid service than anything yet known, and the assertion is made that the gun is likely to revolutionize modern artillery. But radical changes have been reported so often of late that it looks as though revolutionizing systems has become a continuous performance.

Six years ago the sword was abolished in the British army as the weapon of the unmounted officer. It was considered a useless weapon and a dangerous mark of distinction to reveal to the enemy's sharpshooters. This year it has been restored, because experience showed that the enemy could distinguish the officer by his position, and that in close conflict the sword is a useful weapon. The restoration affects a much larger army than any that fights in the field, the army of minor poets, for whom the sword is the traditional symbol of warfare.

SHERIFFS TO SUE.

Cases Involving Many Thousands to Be Instituted.

Webster City.—The Iowa Sheriffs' association has plans afoot to bring suits against practically every county in Iowa. These suits, involving tens of thousands of dollars, will be brought by the sheriffs of the respective counties and will be claims for portions of alleged unpaid back salary for five years, the statute of limitations barring claims older than this. It is claimed that in counties where the sheriff has but one deputy, which includes most of the counties of the state, the salary of the deputy should be paid by the county. Each sheriff now pays his deputy from his own salary, and the claim is now made that these officials should pay deputy salary only where they have more than one.

A case involving this point has just been tried in Fayette county and the sheriff won. It is the decision of the Fayette county court that forms the basis for the action of the state sheriffs' association. The Fayette case has been appealed to the supreme court, and the state association of sheriffs has decided to fight the case there to a standstill. In case the lower court is sustained, action against practically every county in the state will follow.

Sheriff Thompson of this city attended the state meeting at Davenport. At the end of the present year he will retire from office, having served five years. His salary allowance is $1,800, out of which he pays his deputy $600. In the event that the Fayette decision is affirmed, he would have a claim of $3,000 against Hamilton county, and this is probably below the average of what other claims over the state would amount to. When the sheriffs of the state met last year, this question was discussed, and it was practically to make the case then pending in the Fayette county court a test. The supreme court's construction of this matter will be awaited with unusual interest in practically every county in Iowa.

HOLDEN TO KANSAS?

May Become Head of Agricultural School.

Ames.—The presidency of Morningside college at Sioux City and that of Kansas State college may be filled by members of the Iowa State college faculty. Friends of Dr. O. H. Cessna, professor of history and phychology, are said to be urging him for the former position, while for the latter professor P. G. Holden is being considered. Both gentlemen possess in the very highest degree the essential qualifications of the successful administrator. It is known here that neither of them has done, or will do anything to secure an election, in fact friends have urged them not to consider a proposition or accept should positions be tendered. Both are happily situated here and friends of the college and state hope they may not be tempted to leave.

HORSE'S TAIL IN THRASHER.

It is Literally Torn From Animal's Body.

Nevada.—A most peculiar accident happened at the H. C. Lowery farm southeast of town. While engaged in thrashing on the farm Cecil Mullen, who was driving a team belonging to Homer White, a neighboring farmer, drove up near the machine, and while fighting flies one of the horses switched its tail into a rapidly running belt. The tail was literally torn from the horse, leaving only a short stump. The animal became frantic and ran away, tipping over the wagon and throwing young Mullen to the ground. While no bones were broken, he was badly bruised up, especially about the right arm. He was brought to his home in this city and is now getting along very nicely.

To Compel Saloon To Go.

Dubuque.—Joseph Needham, plaintiff in the several cases against Mayor Schunk has filed affidavits showing that H. A. Schunk's liquor house, which the mayor declares he has no interest in, is within the 300-foot limit of the Christian Science church, contrary to the provisions of the mulct law.

The amusing feature of the case is that there are two other places which sell liquor closer to the church than the Schunk concern. Schunk beat Needham once for election as mayor and once before the primaries for the nomination.

DUBUQUE SALOONS QUIT.

Twenty-five Out of Business as Result of Agitation.

Dubuque.—When the mulct agitation now on in Dubuque reaches its fruition twenty-five liquor dispensaries will go out of business. That is, a careful estimate of the situation based on statements from proprietors at this time indicates that this number will fail to pay their quarterly assessments when the month of October arrives.

There are now in operation in the county 175 saloons. A half dozen went out of business when the last quarterly tax was due owing to the limitations which the Bonson decree placed upon the hours of operation and the general regulations placed upon an industry that never before had been in any manner or way controlled, save that since 1898 the mulct tax of $600 had been collected regularly. Prior to that time the only tax that was paid was one of $100 annually levied by the city.

Attorney A. P. Gibbs has demonstrated that he means business in his prosecution of the saloons of the county. His original notices were served a month ago. On the 1st the first installment of the petitions demanding injunctions was placed on file. The balance will be in the hands of the county clerk inside of ten days.

There are wild and unreasonable saloon men here—men who have known but little law in the past—but it is worthy of comment that not one today but realizes the mulct law is scheduled. No definite action has been taken by the saloon men with regard to securing attorneys, but it is given out when the time comes legal talent will be on hand and the chief purpose of such talent will be not to fight the proceeding, but to find as easy and as graceful a way out of the difficulty as possible.

A notable incident in connection with the present affair is the announcement of Eichhorn & Bechtel, the oldest saloon keepers in Dubuque—men who for forty-two years have been in the business and who in that time never have had an arrest of any and without ceremony they have decided difficulty in the place, to retire on the first of October. They are operating a saloon in connection with a grocery store. The building is within the 300-foot limit of a school house

PTOMAINE POISONS CHILDREN

Seven Are Laid Out in Row on Keokuk Porch.

Keokuk.—Seven children all laid out in a row on the front porch, sick with ptomaine poisoning from eating ice cream were attended to by Dr Hughes, who was called to the residence of A. S. Cooper.

The children were from three families and were part of the wholesale lot of poisoned people who ate some ice cream at Hamilton.

The adults were also sick, but not so severe as the children, and one other child was taken sick but not as bad as the others. The whole party of a dozen were poisoned by the ice cream.

The children of A. S. Cooper of Keokuk and George Cooper of Hamilton, also the children of a Burlington family en route to Texas, together with the parents, were in Hamilton enjoying a visit and ice cream was served.

Faces a Blackmail Charge.

Iowa Falls.—Under the charge of attmpted blackmail, Ira Danger of Owasa, has been held to the federal grand jury at Ft. Dodge and is out on $500 bonds. Danger is charged with mailing letters to Thomas Berry at Hampton in which it is claimed that the father-in-law of Berry, Thomas Walker a well known resident of this county, alienated the affections of Danger's wife, which he threatened to make public unless $250 was forthcoming.

Jeweler Suicides.

Marengo.—Ed Eckert, a leading jeweler of this city and prominent as an automobilist, was found dead near South Amana. Suicide is supposed to be the cause of death. He has been in poor health for some time. He leaves a wife and several young children.

Brakes Shoulder Blade.

Mount Pleasant.—Leo Smith, 15 years old, fell from a load of oats and broke his shoulder blade and was badly bruised.

"HELP! HELP!!"

SANDS DIES AWFUL DEATH

VANDERBILT'S STEPSON DIES IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

Smash-up and Explosion of Motor Car Occurs Near Stepfather's Beautiful Country Seat.

Paris.—In one of the most terrible automobile accidents in many years in France G. Winthrop Sands, a stepson of W. K. Vanderbilt, was killed Wednesday morning just outside the grounds of Mr. Vanderbilt's beautiful country seat, the Château St. Louis De Poissy, 20 miles from Paris.

Mr. Sands was driving his 50-horse power car along at a terrific clip, in a desire to reach the chateau, where Mrs. Sands and her infant daughter were staying. He had always been known as a reckless driver and, as he had been delayed at railroad crossings, he opened the throttle wide as he approached the chateau grounds.

Almost immediately a tire burst and the machine crashed into a tree, turning turtle and burying Mr. Sands under the forward part and pinning the chauffeur, Pickins, to the ground. An explosion followed and in a moment the car was in flames.

Peasants working in the adjoining fields were the only witnesses to the accident. They rushed to the rescue, but fearing a further explosion of the gasoline tank and deterred by the sweep of flames, they stood idly by, not knowing how to give assistance to the injured men. Finally they managed to raise the rear of the car and release the chauffeur, and a little later, after beating down the fire, they dragged out the torn, bleeding and burned body of Sands.

Help soon arrived from the chateau, which is in the center of Mr. Vanderbilt's great breeding farm. The injured men were carried to the house, where it was found that Sands was beyond the hope of recovery, but that the chauffeur was not seriously injured.

BIG FIRE IN PHILADELPHIA.

Hamburg-America Pier and Quantities of Merchandise Burn.

Philadelphia.—The Hamburg-America line pier of the International Mercantile Marine company, at pier 46 South Delaware avenue, was destroyed by a spectacular fire Friday night, entailing a loss estimated at $400,000. The German steamer Albano, from Hamburg, was anchored at the pier and had to be towed out into the river. The cargo of the boat was on the wharf and was destroyed together with great quantities of merchandise, including 1,000 bales of burlap.

Weds a Japanese Noble.

La Crosse, Wis.—An international romance was consummated here Thursday when Shegetaro Korikubo, member of a noble Japanese family, was married to Miss Marie Louise Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Harrison of this city. Mr. Korikubo is a graduate of two American universities. His brother is one of the leaders of the Japanese parliament and his father, now deceased, was governor of one of the Japanese provinces.

Detroit Man Slays His Wife.

Detroit, Mich. — Crazed by the heat and also somewhat under the influence of liquor, Tim Minahan, a lineman, wound up a quarrel with his wife by shooting her twice through the head and the heart Wednesday, killing the woman instantly. Minahan then turned the revolver upon himself and inflicted a dangerous wound in his forehead.

FARMAN FLIES WELL.

Successful Tests of French Aeroplane Are Made.

New York.—Rising from the ground like a giant bird and darting through the air at express train speed, Henry Farman's aeroplane, the interesting heavier-than-air flying machine just brought here from France to demonstrate his ability to fly, made its initial flight in this country late Friday afternoon at Brighton Beach.

It rose from an especially prepared runway at the will of the inventor and after attaining a height of 25 feet flew straight ahead on a direct line finally alighting with exquisite grace when the noted air pilot diminished the motive power.

During the brief space of time in which the aeroplane was skimming over the center field of the racetrack the few hundred spectators, most of whom were friends of the inventor or rival aviators, watched the flight with breathless interest. The instant the trim-looking machine landed cheers rent the air—cheers far more enthusiastic and vociferous than those of the racetrack crowd. Farman was surrounded and literally hugged by the jubilant aeronauts. Members of the Aero Club of America, under whose auspices Farman will conduct his public flights at Brighton Beach, wanted to carry the successful inventor off the field on their shoulders.

TO BUILD G. A. R. BATTLESHIP

Veterans in Ohio Start Movement for Popular Subscription.

Marion, O.—A movement to raise money by popular subscription to build a mammoth United States battleship was inaugurated Friday by Owen Gray post, G. A. R., at Larue, this county. The only request to be made of the national government, according to the resolutions adopted by the post is that the battleship shall bear the name "Grand Army of the Republic" as a memorial to the veterans of the civil war. It is expected that every Grand Army post in the country will take up the movement. Contributions of one dollar or more are to be received from all citizens.

PECULIAR DEATH OF A GIRL

Leakage of Heart, Caused Probably by a Needle Point.

Warsaw, Ind.—Within five minutes after she awakened her mother early Friday to tell of a peculiar sensation that had come over her, Violet Bowen, aged 16, passed away from leakage of the heart. It is one of the most peculiar cases that has ever come to the attention of local physicians. A post-mortem examination developed that a minute sharp instrument, resembling the point of a needle, had entered her heart through the arteries.

Michigan Convention Dates.

Grand Rapids, Mich. — The Republican state central committee at a session here Wednesday afternoon decided to call the state nominating convention for September 29 at Detroit. James O. Murfin of Detroit will be temporary chairman. The county conventions were called for September 9. E. E. Alward of Clare was made secretary of the state committee and Charles Moore of Detroit treasurer.

M. Fallieres at Christiania.

Christiania.—The French battleship Verite, having on board President Fallieres and convoyed by a squadron of French warships, arrived here Friday afternoon. King Haakon boarded the battleship and greeted M. Fallieres.

here was a moment of silence. In firelight she was as beautiful as a re of Greuze. That vagrant thing, had come back. But whence?

w?

Sally, what's the matter? I nefer saw you look so. My God! what's the matter?"

"Shut your eyes!"

The light of the fire flooded her face now and made it too wonderful to close his eyes upon.

"Sally—for the Lord's sake—" pleaded the old man.

"Shut your eyes," she glanced over her shoulder, "and be happy."

"Don't, Sally."

She slipped to the floor and knelt at his feet.

"Pappy, to-night I am a magician. To-night I can give you anything you want. But you must ask for what you want most."

She smiled lovingly upon him.

"Shut your eyes and ask."

Poor old Baumgartner did as she commanded. And, for a long moment, there was silence. Then a tear dropped on his face. For in the firelight poor, sad, sorry old Baumgartner was making a picture, too; a white, old, hopeless, piteous, pleading face, framed in masses of hair, shaggily gray when Seffy went away, senilely white now. The sunken eyes spoke of hastening peace after sorrow, and the whole piteous figure begged for those tears which fell upon its face.

"Oh, pappy, excuse me," said the voice which had gathered to itself all the music of the life he thought broken, "but you have so often called me beautiful that I want to tell you now that you have the most beautiful face I have ever seen! Pappy—pappy, dear pappy, God bless you!"

And her lips descended upon his, her dear fingers closed his eyes once more, her handkerchief wiped away the tear she had dropped upon his face and others which had followed it, and she said:

"Are your eyes shut? Yes! Now, ask for anything you want on earth or in heaven—and you shall have it. Do not be afraid! The very dearest thing you can think."

"Seffy—" he whispered brokenly—"Seffy and you—and me—together!"

"Presto! Open your eyes!" cried Sally.

He did so—and there, kneeling before him, was Seffy—and one arm was about Sally, the other reaching out to him—not quite certain how it would be received, but with the old smile of Seffy. He seemed bigger, and he had a young beard on cheek and lip, and he appeared quite worthy to be the president of the Kansas State League of Farmers' clubs.

Old Baumgartner looked without a word, at first to be sure, then to fill all his being. And then he rose to his feet and shook off all the years that had accumulated during Seffy's absence, and, when his arms were about them both, and theirs about him, their joint shadow rose and filled all the room and ceiling—blotting out all else. And, lo, it was not three shadows, but one!

"Seffy," asked his father, while his arm went about his shoulders with the unconsciousness of what seemed yesterday, "how did you efer git president of that sing?—what is it?"

"I fought for it, pappy."

"You? Gosh-a'mighty!"

They both laughed happily.

"Yes—you and Sally were right—I needed to learn to fight. I went out into the world where you sent me—thank you both—and found life. And I found it a fight from start to finish. Only with some there is no quarter."

"But not with you," said Sally.

"But not with me," agreed Seffy. "That is not necessary to success."

"Gosh! Seffy," said his father, "you are as wise as ol' Kellerman, the preacher. Say, you remember him?"

"I remember everything—the smallest—and it is all precious, pappy—more precious than you can know. If one were never to leave this Happy Valley, one might live and die as I began. And, if one should never learn better it is good—good! But it is not the life of the world out there. And, for me, it is gone for ever! In one way I am sorry. For the world has nothing to exchange for these little things. Out there my heart has always yearned for them and always will. You and Sally must keep them as they are—nay, as they were. And I shall live in them and with them and we shall be happier for them."

During all this Seffy's arms and hands had been busy in the old fashion of the days of their simplicity. It was good to see and better to be!

"I don't beliefe it," cried his happy old father, returning his caresses. "You ain't forgot a sing! You chust the same—except the dictionary words—chust the same—our Seffy! Ain't so, Sally? Why don't you talk, anyway?"

"Just—the—same," said Sally. But the tears were in her dear eyes and she knew that her words were for the father and not the son—for him she understood that it would never be the same—quite, and it was she who had sent him forth to lose the simplicity of the Happy Valley.

"Not a bit—you ain't changed!" repeated the father, as if saying it might make it so.

"Yes, I am," laughed Seffy.

"You ain't!" said his father.

"Oh, yes! Sam couldn't get away with me now!"

"Nor Sally, hah?"

"Nor Sally."

"Don't," pleaded Sally, "you hurt me!"

"You see," Seffy went on, "you notice the changes in me, but not in yourselves. Shall I tell you about them? For none of us will ever again be quite as we were. Shall I tell you about the changes in you?"

"No," begged Sally quickly, with drooping head.

"They are beautiful! All beautiful!"

"No!" she repeated.

His father had dropped into his chair, still happy but very tired. For, you know, great happiness tires one, too.

"Seffy," he sighed, "why did you wait so long—tell I got old?"

"There is still one thing you haven't noticed about me, or spoken of, if you did, in which I am not changed a bit."

"What?"

It was Sally's quick voice—Sally, who thought she had already inventoried every difference between this Seffy and the old one—Sally, who hungered for the least thing in which he might be unchanged!

"I'm stubborn as ever—thank you, pappy!"

"Goshens! That's so! You was a stubborn little idjiot!"

"We were," laughed Seffy.

"If it hadn't been for that—"

"I wonder what would have happened? Do you know?" Seffy said to Sally.

"No," sighed Sally.

"I think," said Seffy, with a grace and tenderness he never had in the old days, "that we get and lose what we deserve—to get and lose. I didn't deserve you then, dear. Perhaps I dc now?"

Sally said nothing—she could not Her face was deep in his overcoat And she was making it so very wet—that, presently, she lifted her face, and, with her handkerchief, dried it.

"That is the sweetest thing you have ever said to me—and it breaks my heart—for I don't deserve it—that one little, simple word—dear!"

"Well, well," broke in happy old Baumgartner, drying his own eyes, "is this a time for weeping and wailing and gnashing of the teeth? The prodigal has returned. We got to find a nice fat calf."

"Well," laughed Seffy, not relinquishing Sally, "what is the first thing? I'm ready for work. I'm used to it!"

"To-morrow, Seffy," said his father briskly, "you better let Sally marry you. Remember she bought you."

He gave Sally time to blush, and Seffy time to find both her hands and her lips, and then he finished:

"And make it early—mebby the first thing in the morning. In the afternoon we'll take down the fence. All three of us. It's waiting for us. Sally kep' it waiting. Ain't so, Sally?"

Sally affirmed this.

(THE END.)

SOME ERRORS OF THE TYPES.

Really Amusing Blunders of Which Record Has Been Kept.

An author who has a scrapbook devoted to typographical errors was showing the articles to a friend. One item concerned a dance. The word "bonnier" was misprinted, with this deplorable result: "There was no bonnier ladies present than the mayor's own daughters, and this fact was further emphasized by the perfect fit of the shepherdess costumes they wore." A country paper, after telling how a cow got in front of a train, said: "As the safest course, under the circumstances, the engineer put on full steam, dashed into the cow and literally cut it into two calves." A New York society editor, misprinting the word "chill," published this statement: "Mrs. Astor was unavoidably absent from the reception, being kept at home by a bad child."

One by Gen. Miles.

Gen. Miles used to tell of a surgeon at a certain post during the civil war who was chaffed a great deal for his flowery and extravagant style of expression, both written and oral. On one occasion it appears that the colonel of the regiment had appropriated the surgeon's tent for a mess-table, without the usual formality of stating his intentions. Whereupon the surgeon sent a complaint to the officer in command. Among other things he said: "I have not so much as a fly to interpose between my head and the star-decked heavens above me." This unique document followed the regular routine and eventually returned to the unfortunate surgeon with the following endorsement: "Col. Brown will cause a fly to be interposed between the head of the complainant and the star-decked heavens above him as soon as possible."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Little "Originality."

There is almost no such thing as "originality." As some one says: "The ancients have stolen our best thoughts." Shakespeare, Milton, Cervantes, Goethe, Moliere, Montaigne, Sterne, Swift, the whole company of great writers, "borrow" right and left. Goethe declared one day that if all that he had borrowed should be taken away from him, he would have but a few pages left, and Montaigne does not hesitate to say that he helped himself to whatever he could find.

The Slowpoke.

"Isn't Dubley the back number, though? He's begun now to take up the study of jiujitsu." "That so? How's he making out?" "Wonderfully for him. He has almost learned how to pronounce it."

ALL RUN DOWN.

Miss Della Stroebe, who had Completely Lost Her Health, Found Relief from Pe-ru-na at Once.

Read What She Says:

MISS DELLA STROEBE, 710 Richmond St., Appleton, Wis., writes: "For several years I was in a run-down condition, and I could find no relief from doctors and medicines. I could not enjoy my meals, and could not sleep at night. I had heavy, dark circles about the eyes.

"My friends were much alarmed. I was advised to give Peruna a trial, and to my joy I began to improve with the first bottle. After taking six bottles I felt completely cured. I cannot say too much for Peruna as a medicine for women in a run-down condition."

Pe-ru-na Did Wonders.

Mrs. Judge J. F. Boyer, 1421 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., says that she became run down, could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit. Peruna did wonders for her, and she thanks Peruna for new life and strength.

WONDERED WHY
Found the Answer Was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak.

"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 lbs. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

EDITOR TIMES—
Dear Sir:

Since our last letter we spent three delightful days in villages and among the farmers of northwest Prussia near the borders of Holland. On our way we stopped off four hours in Oldenburg. Here the government has a large military school. They were mustering out soldiers the day we were there. To acquaint ourselves with village life we made Bippen our headquarters. On both sides of the narrow street which zigzags through the "Dorf" live the farmers. Many of them keep their stable to the front and the people live in the rear of the building. Here stands the old church hid among trees in a back alley, as it were, where so many of our kin worshiped and were confirmed a half century or more ago. It is practically the same building today. We entered this church Sunday morning at promptly 10 the time for service, but there was no one there but the organist and a few children. We took a place in one of the pews which consists of an 8 inch oak plank and a 2x4 for a back rest. The floor is stone and walls look cold. As the big organ began its doleful tune the people began to enter which continued fully 30 minutes. After the service all rushed out without manner or grace.

We visited the village Furstenau, Ohrte, Strup and Vectel. At the latter place we found a number of old buildings from 50 to 100 years old in which some of our friends in Iowa lived at one time. Everywhere horses, cows, hogs and chickens are housed in one end of the building and the family lives in the other end. A great many farmers still drive cows. They are all making hay but we only saw two or three mowers. Everywhere men, women and children gazed at us as we passed by and for miles around the people knew of our being among them.

We next went to Hamburg which is a city of about 900 000 inhabitants. We attended several sessions of the North Germany conference and made the acquaintance of a number of the ministers. We visited the deaconess home and Bethesto hospital and were shown thru' every department. This is a very fine structure, only it lacks a few American appliances. Near by stands the city hospital in which there were more than 2,200 patients at the time. One of the most interesting sights was Hagbeck's animal garden. Here nearly every known animal, bird and reptile can be seen. But the most wonderful feature was the performance of trained animals. For example. four walruses appeared on the stage and played ball, beat the drum and played horns. At another time there were lions, two grizzley bears, two black bears, five tigers and two dogs on the stage and went through some astonishing performance.

We entered but one cathedral the St. Jacobi church which was built about 800 years ago.

Hamburg is a much more cosmopolitan city than Bremen. The arrangement of stores and the hustle on the streets is much like that in the centre of Chicago but instead of being confined to a small section as in Chisago, it stretches out for miles. A stranger among such a sea of humanity must keep his head clear or he will soon loose himself. We have been very fortunate in finding good hotel accommodations so far. Everything is different here. We have not found a hotel so far where they have day rates, it is so much a room and frequently includes a light breakfast of coffee and bread. The other meals are in courses. Dry goods and clothing are very cheap but groceries are high. On the streets may be seen at one and the same time a fine team and elegant carriage, an automobile, a wagon drawn by two cows or a horse on one side of the wagon tongue and a man on the other, or a dog drawing a milk wagon and a man pushing, or a good sized wagon drawn by men, or a woman carrying a large basket on her head, But Germany is the place for the bicycle today. One sees thousands of them, nearly every farmer boy has one.

Since we have been in Europe it has rained more or less every day except one.

We reached Berlin this morning and expect to get through with this place tomorrow. It counts more than one and a half million of people. More about it in our next letter.

Yours truly,
Rev. G. H. Wessel.

TAFT ACCEPTS NOMINATION; DECLARES HIS POLICIES

Makes His Notification Speech at Cincinnati, While City Is in Gala Attire to Receive Him as a Conquering Hero---Text of His Speech.

Cincinnati, O.—Candidate William Howard Taft, bearing the banners of the Republican party as its choice for president of the United States, struck campaign keynotes of many tones when he formally accepted the presidential nomination and replied to Senator Warner.

This city was in gala attire and took a holiday upon Taft's arrival in town. Guns boomed, fireworks cracked everywhere, and in general the scene was that of welcoming home the conquering hero. The feature of the entire celebration, however, was the notification which took place during a lull in the activities of the citizens. The occasion was an auspicious one.

Mr. Taft spoke as follows:

"Senator Warner and Gentlemen of the Committee:

"I am deeply sensible of the honor which the Republican national convention has conferred on me in the nomination which you formally tender. I accept it with full appreciation of the responsibility it imposes.

Strength in Roosevelt Policies.

"Gentlemen, the strength of the Republican cause in the campaign at hand is in the fact that we represent policies essential to the reform of known abuses to the continuance of liberty and true prosperity, and that we are determined, as our platform unequivocally declares, to maintain them and carry them on. For more than ten years this country passed through an epoch of material development far beyond any that ever occurred in the world before. In its course, certain evils crept in. Some prominent and influential members of the community, spurred by financial success and in their hurry for greater wealth, became unmindful of the common rules of business honesty and fidelity, and of the limitations imposed by law upon their action.

"This became known. The revelations of the breaches of trust, the disclosures as to rebates and discrimination by railways, the accumulating evidence of the violation of the anti-trust law by a number of corporations, the over-issue of stocks and bonds on interstate railways for the unlawful enriching of directors and for the purpose of concentrating control of railways in one management, all quickened the conscience of the people, and brought on a moral awakening among them that boded well for the future of the country.

What Roosevelt Has Done.

"The man who formulated the expression of the popular conscience and who led the movement for practical reform was Theodore Roosevelt. He laid down the doctrine that the rich violators of the law should be amenable to restrain and punish as the offender without wealth, and without influence, and he proceeded by recommending legislation and directing executive action to make that principle good in actual performance. He secured the passage of the so-called rate bill, designed more effectively to restrain excessive and fix reasonable rates, and to punish secret rebates and discrimination which have been general in the practice of the railroads, and which had done much to enable unlawful trusts to drive out of business their competitors. It secured much closer observation of railway transactions and brought within the operation of the same statute express companies, sleeping car companies, fast freight and refrigerator lines, terminal railroads and pipe lines, and forbade in future the combination of the transportation and shipping business under one control, in order to avoid undue discrimination.

"President Roosevelt directed suits to be brought and prosecutions to be instituted under the anti-trust law, to enforce its provisions against the most powerful of the industrial corporations. He pressed to passage the pure food law, and the meat inspection law, in the interest of the health of the public, clean business methods and great ultimate benefit to the trades themselves. He recommended the passage of a law, which the Republican convention has since specifically approved, restricting the future issue of stocks and bonds by interstate railways, to such as may be authorized by federal authority.

Function of Next Administration.

"The chief function of the next administration in my judgment is distinct from and a progressive development which has been performed by President Roosevelt.

"The chief function of the next administration is to complete and perfect the machinery by which these standards may be maintained by which the law breakers may be promptly restrained and punished, but which shall operate with sufficient accuracy and dispatch to interfere with legitimate business as little as possible. Such machinery is not now adequate. Under the present rate bill, and under all its amendments, the burden of the interstate commerce commission in supervising and regulating the operation of the railroads of this country has grown so heavy that it is utterly impossible for that tribunal to hear and dispose, in any reasonable time, of the many complaints, queries and issues that are brought before it for decision. It ought to be relieved of its jurisdiction as an executive, directing body, and its functions should be limited to the quasi-judicial investigation of complaints by individuals, and by a department of the government charged with the executive business of supervising the operation of railways.

Constructive Work Detailed.

"The field covered by the industrial combinations and by the railroads is so very extensive that the interests of the public and the interests of the businesses concerned cannot be properly subserved except by reorganization of bureaus in the department of commerce and labor, of agriculture, and the department of justice, and a change in the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. It does not assist matters to prescribe new duties for the interstate commerce commission which it is practically impossible for it to perform, or to denounce new offenses with drastic punishment, unless subordinate an auxiliary legislation shall be passed, making possible the quick enforcement in the great variety of cases which are constantly arising, of the principles laid down by Mr. Roosevelt, and with respect to which only typical instances of prosecution with the present machinery are possible. Such legislation should and would greatly promote legitimate business by enabling those anxious to obey the federal statutes to know just what are the bonds of their lawful action. The practical constructive and difficult work, therefore, of those who follow Mr. Roosevelt, is to devise the ways and means by which the high level of business integrity and obedience to law which he has established may be maintained, and departures from it restrained without undue interference with legitimate business.

Railway Traffic Agreements.

"It is agreeable to note in this regard that the Republican platform expressly and the Democratic platform impliedly approve an amendment to the interstate commerce law, by which interstate railroads may make useful traffic agreements, if approved by the commissions. This has been strongly recommended by President Roosevelt, and will make for the benefit of the business.

"Some of the suggestions of the Democratic platform relate really to this subordinate and ancillary machinery to which I have referred. Take for instance, the so-called physical valuation of railways. It is clear that the sum of all rates or receipts of a railway, less proper expenses, should be limited to a fair profit upon the reasonable value of its property, and that if the sum exceeds this measure, it ought to be reduced. The difficulty in enforcing the principle is in ascertaining what is the reasonable value of the company's property, and in fixing what is a fair profit. It is clear that the physical value of a railroad and its plant is an element to be given weight in determining its full value; but as President Roosevelt in his Indianapolis speech and the supreme court have pointed out, the value of the railroad as a going concern, including its good will, due to efficiency of service, and many other circumstances, may be much greater than the value of its tangible property and it is the former that measures the investment on which a fair profit must be allowed. Then, too, the question what is a fair profit is one involving not only the rate of interest usually earned on normally safe investments, but also a sufficient allowance to make up for the risk of loss both of capital and interest in the original outlay. These considerations will have justified the company in imposing charges high enough to secure a fair income on the enterprise as a whole.

What Roosevelt Said.

"As Mr. Roosevelt has said in speaking of this very subject:

"'The effect of such valuation and supervision of securities cannot be retroactive. Existing securities should be tested by laws in existence at the time of their issue. This nation would no more injure securities which have become an important part of the national wealth than it would consider a proposition to repudiate the national debt.'

"The question of rates and treatment of railways is one that has two sides. The shippers are certainly entitled to reasonable rates; but less is an injustice to the carriers. Good business for the railroads is essential to general prosperity. Injustice to them is not alone injustice to stockholders and capitalists, whose further investments may be necessary for the good of the whole country, but it directly affects and reduces the wages of railroad employes.

"For what has been said, the proper conclusion would seem to be that in attempting to determine that whether the entire schedule of rates of a railway is excessive, the physical valuation of the road is a relevant and important but not necessarily a controlling factor. Physical valuation properly used will not generally impair securities.

National Control of Corporations.

"Another suggestion in respect to subordinate and ancillary machinery necessary to carry out Republican policies is that of the incorporation under national law or the licensing by national license or enforced registry of companies engaged in interstate trade. The fact is that nearly all corporations doing a commercial business are engaged in interstate commerce, and if they all were required to take out a federal license or a federal charter, the burden upon the interstate business of the country would become intolerable.

"It is necessary, therefore, to devise some means for classifying and insuring federal supervision of such corporations as have the power and temptation to effect restraints of interstate trade and monopolies. Such corporations constitute a very small percentage of all engaged in interstate business.

Roosevelt's Proposed Classification.

"With such clasification in view, Mr. Roosevelt recommended an amendment in the anti-trust law, known as the Hepburn bill, which provided for voluntary clasification, and created a strong motive therefore by granting immunity from prosecutions for reasonable restrictions of inter-state trade to all corporations which would register and submit themselves to the publicity regulation of the department of commerce and labor.

"The Democratic platform suggests a requirement that corporations and interstate trade having control of 25 per cent. of the products in which they deal shall take out a federal license. This classification would probably include a great many small corporations engaged in the manufacture of special articles or commodities whose total value is so inconsiderable that they are not really within the purview or real evil of the anti-trust law It is not now necessary, however, to discuss the relative merit of such propositions, but it is enough merely to affirm the necessity for some method by which greater executive supervision can be given to the federal government over these businesses in which there is a temptation to violations of the anti-trust law.

Construction of Anti-Trust Law.

"The possible operation of the anti-trust law under existing rulings of the supreme court has given rise to suggestion for its necessary amendment to prevent its applications to cases which it is believed were never in the contemplation of the framers of the statute. Take two instances: A merchant or manufacturer engaged in a legitimate business that covers certain states, wishes to sell his business and his good will, and so in the terms of the sale obligates himself to the purchaser not to go into the same business in those states. Such a restraint of trade has always been enforced at common law. Again the employes of an interstate railway combine and enter upon a peaceable and lawful strike to secure better wages. At common law this was not a restraint of trade or commerce or a violation of the rights of the company or of the public. Neither case ought to be made a violation of the anti-trust law. My own impression is that the supreme court would hold that neither of these instances are within its inhibition, but if they are to be so regarded, general legislation amending the law is necessary.

Democratic Plank Discussed.

"The suggestion of the Democratic platform that trusts be ended by forbidding corporations to hold more than 50 per cent. of the plant in any line of manufacture is made without regard to the possibility of enforcement or the real evil in trusts. A corporation controlling 45 or 50 per cent. of the products may by well known methods frequently effect monopoly and stamp out competition in any part of the country as completely as if it controlled 60 or 70 per cent. thereof.

Proper Treatment of Trusts.

"Unlawful trusts should be restrained with all the efficiency of injunctive process and the persons engaged in maintaining them should be punished with all the severity of criminal prosecution, in order that methods pursued in the operation of their business shall be brought within the law. To destroy them and to eliminate the wealth they represent from the producing capital of the country would entail enormous loss, and would throw out of employment myriads of workingmen. Such a result is wholly unnecessary to the accomplishment of the needed reform, and will inflict upon the innocent far greater punishment than upon the guilty.

"The Democratic platform does not propose to destroy the plan of the trust physically, but it proposes to do the same thing in a different way. The business of this country is largely dependent upon a protective system of tariffs. The business done by many of the so-called trusts is protected with the other businesses of the country. The Democratic platform proposes to take off the tariff in all articles coming into competition with those produced by the so-called 'trusts' and to put them on the free list. If such a course would be utterly destructive of their business as it is, indeed, it would not only destroy the trusts, but all of their smaller competitors.

Effect of Democratic Policies.

"To take the course suggested by the Democratic platform in these matters is to invoke the entire community, innocent as it is, in the punishment of the guilty, while our policy is to stamp out the specific evil.

"This difference between the policies of the two great parties is of special importance, in view of the present condition of business. After the years of the most remarkable material development and prosperity, there comes financial stringency, a panic, an industrial depression. This was brought about not only by the enormous expansion of business plants and business investments which could not be readily converted, but also by the waste of capital in extravagance of living, in wars, and other catastrophes. The free convertible capital was exhausted. In addition to this, the confidence of the lending public in Europe and in this country had been affected by the revelations of irregularity, breach of trust, over issue of stock, valuations of law and lack of rigid state or national supervision in management of our largest corporations. Investors withheld what loanable capital remained available, it became impossible for the soundest railroads and other enterprises to borrow money enough for new construction and reconstruction.

Restoration of Prosperity.

"Gradually business is acquiring a healthier tone. Gradually wealth, which was hoarded, is coming out to be used. Confidence in security of business investments is a plant of slow growth and is absolutely necessary in order that our factories may all open again, in order that our unemployed may become employed, and in order that we may again have the prosperity that has blessed us for ten years. The identity of the interest of the capital of the farmer, the business man and the wage earner in the security and profit of investments cannot be too largely emphasized. I submit to those most interested, to wage earners, to farmers and to business men, whether the introduction into power of the Deomcratic party, with Mr. Bryan at its head, and with the business construction that it openly advocates as a remedy for present evils, will bring about the needed confidence for the restoration of prosperity.

"The Republican doctrine of protection, as definitely announced by the Republican convention this year, and by previous conventions, is that a tariff shall be imposed on all imported products, whether of the factory, farm or mine, sufficiently great to equal the difference between the cost of production abroad and at home, and that this difference should, of course, include the difference between the higher wages paid in this country, and the wages paid abroad, and embrace a reasonable profit to the American production.

Advantage of Unions.

"To give to employes their proper position in such a controversy to enable them to maintain themselves against employers having great capital, they may well unite, because in union there is strength and without it each individual laborer and employe would be helpless. The promotion of industrial peace through the instrumentality of the trade agreement is often one of the results of such union when intelligently conducted.

"There is a large body of laborers, however, skilled and unskilled, who are not organized into unions. Their rights before the law are exactly the same as those of the union men, and are to be protected with the same care and watchfulness.

What Labor Cannot Do.

"What they have not the right to do is to injure their employers' property, to injure their employers' business by use of threats or methods of physical duress against those who would work for him or deal with him or by carrying on what is sometimes known as a secondary boycott against his customers or those with whom he deals in business. All those who sympathize with them may unite to aid them in their struggle, but they may not, through the instrumentality of a threatened or actual boycott, compel third persons against their will and having no interest in their controversy to come to their assistance. These principles have for a great many years been settled by the courts of this country.

"Threatened unlawful injuries to business, like these described above, can only be adequately remedied by an injunction to prevent them. The jurisdiction of a court of equity to enjoin in such cases arises from the character of the injury and the method of inflicting it and the fact that suit for damages offers no adequate remedy.

"The injury is not done by one single act, which might be adequately compensated for in damages by a suit at law, but it is the result of a constantly recurring series of acts, each of which in itself might not constitute a substantial injury or make a suit at law worth while, and all of which would require a multiplicity of suits at law."

HUNDREDS PERISH IN CANADIAN FIRE

SIX FLOURISHING TOWNS ARE TOTALLY DESTROYED.

HUNDREDS FLEE INTO OPEN

Property Loss Is Estimated at $10,000,000—Wole District Seething Fire.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Aug. 3.—Hundreds are dead in the bush fires which invaded Fernie, B. C., on Sunday and almost destroyed the place. But a few homes are standing in a region 100 miles square and fully 12,000 are homeless.

The property loss is places at $10,000,000.

The whole country is a seething fire on the Crows' Nest line of the Candadian Pacific. Hosmer, a Canadian Pacific smelter town, was wiped out.

Thousands are fleeing from Michel to the open country. Several lives have been lost there. The bush fire covers 100 miles square. Beside Fernie, Elko, Cokate, Sparwood, Olson and Homar are totally destroyed and 5,000 are homeless in the adjoining region. The loss of life is probably the greatest since the San Fransisco disaster.

At Fernie every building except the coal company's office and a few shacks are totally destroyed. Fully three thousand are homeless.

Cranbrook has been wired to forward all available provisions and a relief train is now on its way.

The body of Peter Miller was found on the Canadian Pacific tracks near Michel. Hosmer, Elko, Sparwood, Olson and Cokato are reported to be completely destroyed by the fire. It is feared the loss of life will be very great. The Canadian Pacific railway is rushing relief trains with doctors, nurses, food and clothing to the destitutue.

A bulletin from Michel says: "This town is doomed unless the wind changes. Canadian Pacific railway making up special trains to carry inhabitants to safety."

W. W. Tuttle, mayor of Fernie, has wired Mayor Ashdown of Winnipeg for relief, saying there are 6,000 homeless.

Over 100 lives are known to have been lost in Fernie alone. A territory of 100 square miles in extent is a seething mass of flames. Through it are scattered hundreds of lumbermen and prospectors, so that the actual loss of life will not be known for days. The tracks of the Canadian Pacific and the Great Northern railways have been destroyed, and the bridges and rolling stock burned, so that it is impossible to enter or leave the burning area. The inhabitants of the towns have fled to open districts in the vicinity in the hope of safety. The railway companies have placed all available trains at their disposal and unless there is a change of wind within the next twenty-fours hours the whole of the Crow's Nest country will be left to the flames.

There is no possibility of estimating the loss of life and property which will result, for the flames are being driven by a heavy gale, making it impossible to fight against their Advance. The conflagration is the greatest which has ever visited Canada and ranks only with the San Francisco disaster. Estimates from several sources place the loss as high as $10,000,000.

For the past month forest fires have been raging in the mountains of the Elk River valley country, but they have not been considered serious. Saturday morning a heavy wind sprung up from the west and early in the afternoon the flames appeared over the crest of the mountains to the west of Fernie. They ran down the mountainside, and before a fire guard could be organized had entered the town. Within an hour the town was doomed and the inhabitants sought safety in flight, leaving everything behind. All night and Sunday morning the exodus continued, the destination being a small prairie in the valley south of the town. At present 3,000 people are camped there in the open, their only protection being shelters built of brush or blankets, while a constant shower of sparks from the burning area kept falling through the pall of smoke by which they are surrounded. For a time communication with towns to the east was kept open, but with the burning of the bridges across the Elk river this was closed. Scattered through the valley are many small prairies, and all of these have their groups of refugees. The hills in all directions are a seething mass of flames, cutting off every avenue of escape. The fire spread with unprecedented rapidity and it is feared that several parties who tried to get through the pass have been cut off. Families have been separated and there is at present no means of checking up the fatalities.

TO FIGHT OIL DECISION

CONFERENCE OF AUTHORITIES AT LENOX, MASS.

Attorney-General Bonaparte Announces That Attempt Will Be Made to Secure New Hearing.

Lenox, Mass.—After an all-day conference of the leading government prosecuting officers and Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, one of the special counsel for the government in certain civil suits, it was announced by Attorney General Bonaparte Wednesday that every effort would be made to secure a revision of the recent decision and opinion of the United States circuit court of appeals in the case of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and that an application for a reargument of the case and a motion for a modification of the opinion would be submitted to that court.

The following statement was made by the attorney general:

"The government will make every effort in its power to secure a revision of the recent decision and opinion of the circuit court of appeals for the Seventh circuit in the case of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, either by the court of appeals itself, or if necessary by the supreme court of the United States. The gentlemen who have been in consultation with me all unite in my opinion that in the interest of the impartial and effective administration of our laws, such action on the part of the government is imperatively demanded by the circumstances of the case and the possible consequences if this opinion should stand as authority without question by the government. To this end an application for a reargument of the case and a motion for a modification of the opinion will be submitted to the circuit court of appeals on behalf of the United States at the earliest possible moment. Other appropriate steps will be taken afterward, their character to be determined by the court's action upon this application."

F. DORR SUSPENDS BUSINESS.

Prominent Broker Closes His Many Offices.

San Francisco.—Frederick Dorr, a broker with offices in this city, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Butte, Mont., and Spokane, Wash., a member of the New York stock exchange and the Chicago board of trade, telegraphed Tuesday from New York to his local manager to suspend business. Lack of patronage, due to dull times, is the cause given for the suspension.

He maintained expensive offices in Los Angeles and this city, with leased wires connecting them with eastern cities, Dorr wired from Chicago:

"No one has lost any money, or will. I am not trying to sell my membership in any exchange. They are absolutely clear, and no money is being borrowed on them."

Dorr is well known socially on the Pacific coast.

ASSAULTER BURNED AT STAKE.

Greenville, Tex., Public Square Is Scene of Dire Vengeance.

Dallas, Tex. — "Tad" Smith, a negro boy, 18 years old, charged with criminal assault on Miss Viola Delancey at Clinton, Hunt county, was captured by officers Tuesday. He was taken before the young lady and identified. The prisoner was then hurried to the Greenville jail. Before arriving there, however, a mob of citizens overpowered the officers, took the prisoner and prepared to hang him. This idea was given up, however, and the mob agreed to burn him at the stake. Fagots were piled up in the public square at Greenville and the negro was placed thereon. Kerosene oil was poured on and a match applied. Smith slowly burned to death while 1,000 people witnessed the execution by fire.

Parachute Jumper Killed.

Jackson, Mich.—William Oliver, a young aeronaut of Mason, Mich., was killed Thursday while making a parachute drop at Hague park, on Vandercook lake near here. Just as the parachute filled the strings on one side snapped and the aeronaut dropped 2,000 feet to his death, the parachute trailing, a useless rag, after him. Oliver landed near a crowded merry-go-round and lived five minutes after being carried to the nearest house.

IT SEEMED INCURABLE

Body Raw with Eczema—Discharged from Hospitals as Hopeless—Cuticura Remedies Cured Him.

"From the age of three months until fifteen years old, my son Owen's life was made intolerable by eczema in its worst form. In spite of treatments the disease gradually spread until nearly every part of his body was quite raw. He used to tear himself dreadfully in his sleep and the agony he went through is quite beyond words. The regimental doctor pronounced the case hopeless. We had him in hospitals four times and he was pronounced one of the worst cases ever admitted. From each he was discharged as incurable. We kept trying remedy after remedy, but had gotten almost past hoping for a cure. Six months ago we purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies. The result was truly marvelous and to-day he is perfectly cured. Mrs. Lily Hedge, Camblewell Green, England, Jan. 12, 1907."

This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Ga., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death.

"One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured.

"Every woman suffering with any female trouble should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The Sort of Thing He Liked.

In an early day in Stone county, Missouri, a farmer's boy rushed into the office of Dr. T. J. McCord of Galena and urged the doctor to come quickly to see his father, who seemed to be dying. Said the doctor. "What ails him, and what has he eaten?"

The boy said: "Oh, nothing much but 14 roastin' ears for supper."

"Well," said the doctor, "just go back and throw him a couple of bundles of oats and tell him I will be up there in about 30 minutes."—From Judge's Library.

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and their attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you Remove the cause.

SHOWING THE WEDDING GIFTS.

Charming Exhibitions Made at French Bridals.

In Paris most charming conceits are devised to enhance the effect of an exhibition of wedding gifts in the bride's home. Sometimes the furniture is removed from one or two rooms to give space to show cases, where is made a tasteful array of the most delicate parts of the trousseau, and numberless bivelots. The heavier articles are suspended from screens or round the walls from hanging ribbons, pictures, or even dados of crinkled papier velours in some subdued shade. One of the most telling arrangements is dispersal against the walls of small tables covered with mignonette-green silk, and on which are artistically displayed the bridal treasures, to each of which is attached with a pink ribbon the card of the giver. The contents of every table are partly veiled by vaporous tulle held up to the wall by some bracket lamp, high statuette, and draped at the sides with large choux in pink satin. The coloring depends evidently on the prevailing tones of the house decoration. Such a treatment is light, tasteful and not too expensive. A scheme which involves larger reception rooms and a greater outlay of time and money consists of a triumphal arch in bamboo at the entrance to every door, often covered with climbers, whilst through the whole suite of rooms are distributed in profusion palm trees, jardinieres, tall vases and corbeilles full of flowers, giving the impression of a bower of flowers and foilage, in which are nestled the marvels of the bride's outfit and of her friends' generosity and taste.

How He Hunted Bear.

A New York Irishman was visiting a friend in the Adirondacks and was taken with a desire to go hunting. Borrowing a gun from his friend he set off alone in search of game. Some time after his host heard a distant report of a gun. A few minutes later he heard some one shouting. From a window he spied, in the distance, his friend, hot-footing it for home, and behind him a bear, gaining at every step. Nearly spent, the pursued reached the door just in time to cry out:

"Quick, Mike! Quick! Open the door! I'm bringing him home aloive!"

ALLISON AT REST.

Simple Ceremonies Attend Funeral of Dead Statesman.

Dubuque.—As he lived so was Senator William B. Allisan laid to eternal rest on the afternoon of the 8th, with the simplest ceremonies devoid of all ostentation. Services were held at the residence of the dead statesman, and while not private, the accommodations at the home only permitted the presence of the distinguished visitors and the senator's closest friends.

The services were very simple, Rev. J. T. Bergen, D. D., of the Westminster Presbyterian church officiating, and consisted of the reading of the Twenty-third Psalm and the First Epistle of Paul, the Apostle to the Corinthians, 15th chapter, and a prayer. There was no music. The interment at Linwood cemetery was private and after the Presbyterian committal service had been read by Dr. Bergen, the body of the honored dead was lowered into its last resting place on the hillside which overlooks the Mississippi river.

All Debuque paid silent tribute to the memory of Senator Allison during the day. From 4 until 6 o'clock not a whell turned throughout the city and every business house closed its doors. The city was in sombre hue. Flags hung at half mast from public buildings and hundreds of homes and all buildings displayed crepe, and crepe framed portraits of the dead senator were displayed in the windows of all business houses. A most effective feature of the city's insignia of sorrow was the festooning with black and white of the trolley poles the entire length of Main street.

The body of the senator lay in state on Friday afternoon and evening and thousands of the people of the city viewed the remains. The body reposed in a plain bronze casket on a bier in the front parlor of his home. The only floral tributes were a blanket of American Beauty roses which completely covered the casket, an emblem of the Loyal Legion and the national flag. The features of the senator were calm in death and there was little evidence of his having failed during his last illness. The pallbearers were intimate friends of the deceased and all Dubuquers.

There were many distinguished visitors, men high in the councils of the state and nation, in attendance at the funeral. Besides the congressional committees named by Vice President Fairbanks and Speaker Cannon, there was a large delegation from Des Moines consisting of Gov. Cummins and other state officers.

ENGINE EXPLODES.

Men Hurled Against Straw Stack Badly Scalded.

Crawfordsville.—While standing in the barnyard waiting for a machinist, who was only a mile away, to come and repair it, a threshing machine engine belonging to the Wells-Twinan farm, near this place, exploded, killing Harold Twinen, aged 25 years, and Sam Truax, a young lad of 13, who was employed on the farm. So great was the force of the explosion that the young men were hurled for a distance of 100 feet with terrific force against a straw stack. The engine crashed through a nearby building for a distance of twenty feet.

Word had been sent to Washington for a machinist to come and make repairs on the engine, which was sadly defective at that time. The repairer did not start till morning, and when the accident occurred was only a mile away. The owner of the farm on which the accident occurred may be held for the death of the young men.

The victims of the explosion were standing near the engine at the time it blew up. A rush of steam and boiling water rushed over them, scalding their entire bodies frightfully. They were picked up and carried to the house and medical aid summoned. Nothing could be done to save their lives, however, and they died in agony shortly after noon.

Threatens to Kill Farmer.

Mason City.—A dispute between two Floyd county farmers, Gus Schroeder and Adolph Herbrechtmeir almost ended in a tragedy when Schroeder threatened to shoot Herbrechtesmeir with a revolver but was prevented by friends. Schroeder was arrested and after a hearing, was fined. He made no defense, but pleaded guilty. The dispute arose over some cattle which had been on Herbrechtsmier's farm and were owned by Schroeder.

GET TIME EXTENSION.

Burlington Federation Lenient With Liquor Houses.

Burlington.—A somewhat peculiar thing has happened in the campaign which the Burlington Civic Federation is waging for the full enforcement of the mulct law here. Soon after the decision of the state supreme court was made against what was known as partial decrees in saloon cases and holding that a judge could not enforce part of the mulct law, but must take cognizance of all the provisions in dealing with any phase of it, the Burlington Civic Federation issued notice to all saloons that they must get under the mulct law entirely by August 20 next.

All saloon owners and proprietors at once began active preparations for the inevitable. Now the announcement is made that the civic federation has notified certain saloon keepers that they will be given an extension of time until October 1 before action is taken against them. This is the result of certain representations in which the saloon keepers have made to the officers of the civic federation; viz.: that each has paid the required mulct tax on July 1, and that if they are closed up on August 20 they will lose practically half their tax. They point out that there are certain provisions of the law which it will be impossible for them to meet by Aug. 20—for instance, securing the consent of the adjoining property owners and getting out of the 300 foot limit from any church.

Realizing that under these circumstances the enforcing of the mulct law on Aug. 20 would be a serious hardship to the saloon men, the federation has notified them that in those particulars complaint will not be made against them until Oct. 1.

Another interesting feature of the mulct law campaign is the fact that the supreme court having declared the partial decree of the district court illegal and void, some of the saloons are taking advantage of it to open their places on Sunday. At least the report is made that a number of Burlington saloons did a good business last Sunday.

HELD FOR COUNTERFEITING.

Albia Man Is Found with Bogus Coin in His Pockets.

Ottumwa.—William Fay of Albia was held by United State Commissioner Hunter to the federal grand jury under $2,000 bonds on the charge of passing counterfeit money. Fay came to Ottumwa a few days ago and two counterfeit 5-cent pieces are said to have been taken from his pocket by one Jennie Stubbs, whom he was visiting. The woman informed the police and Fay was arrested. Chief of Police Gallagher went to Albia and secured the dies with which Fay is said to have made the spurious coins.

Fay claims that he intended using the money and dies with other contraptions he had in presenting a moving picture show depicting the life of a counterfeiter from the moment of making coins until he is finally arrested and landed in prison by the federal authorities. Fay's story, however, had no effect on Commissioner Hunter, and he was accordingly bound over to await the action of the federal grand jury. If nothing else, Fay is securing excellent material for his show and his experiments in Ottumwa so far can easily be put into shape for one or two acts.

Incident to the Fay case, Commissioner Hunter let it be understood that the Ottumwa jail and the Wapello county jail were not safe places in which to keep Uncle Sam's prisoners. He accordingly ordered Fay taken to the Davenport jail to await the action of the grand jury. Recent outbreaks from both the city and county jails have made the government officials wary.

Clinton Bridge Half Done.

Clinton.—The mammoth $2,000,000 Northwestern bridge across the Mississippi from this city is complete from the Illiois side to Little Rock Island in the center of the river. Trains yesterday ran over that portion of the structure for the first time, using the old bridge for the west half of the trip. The draw and the second section will be completed within a year.

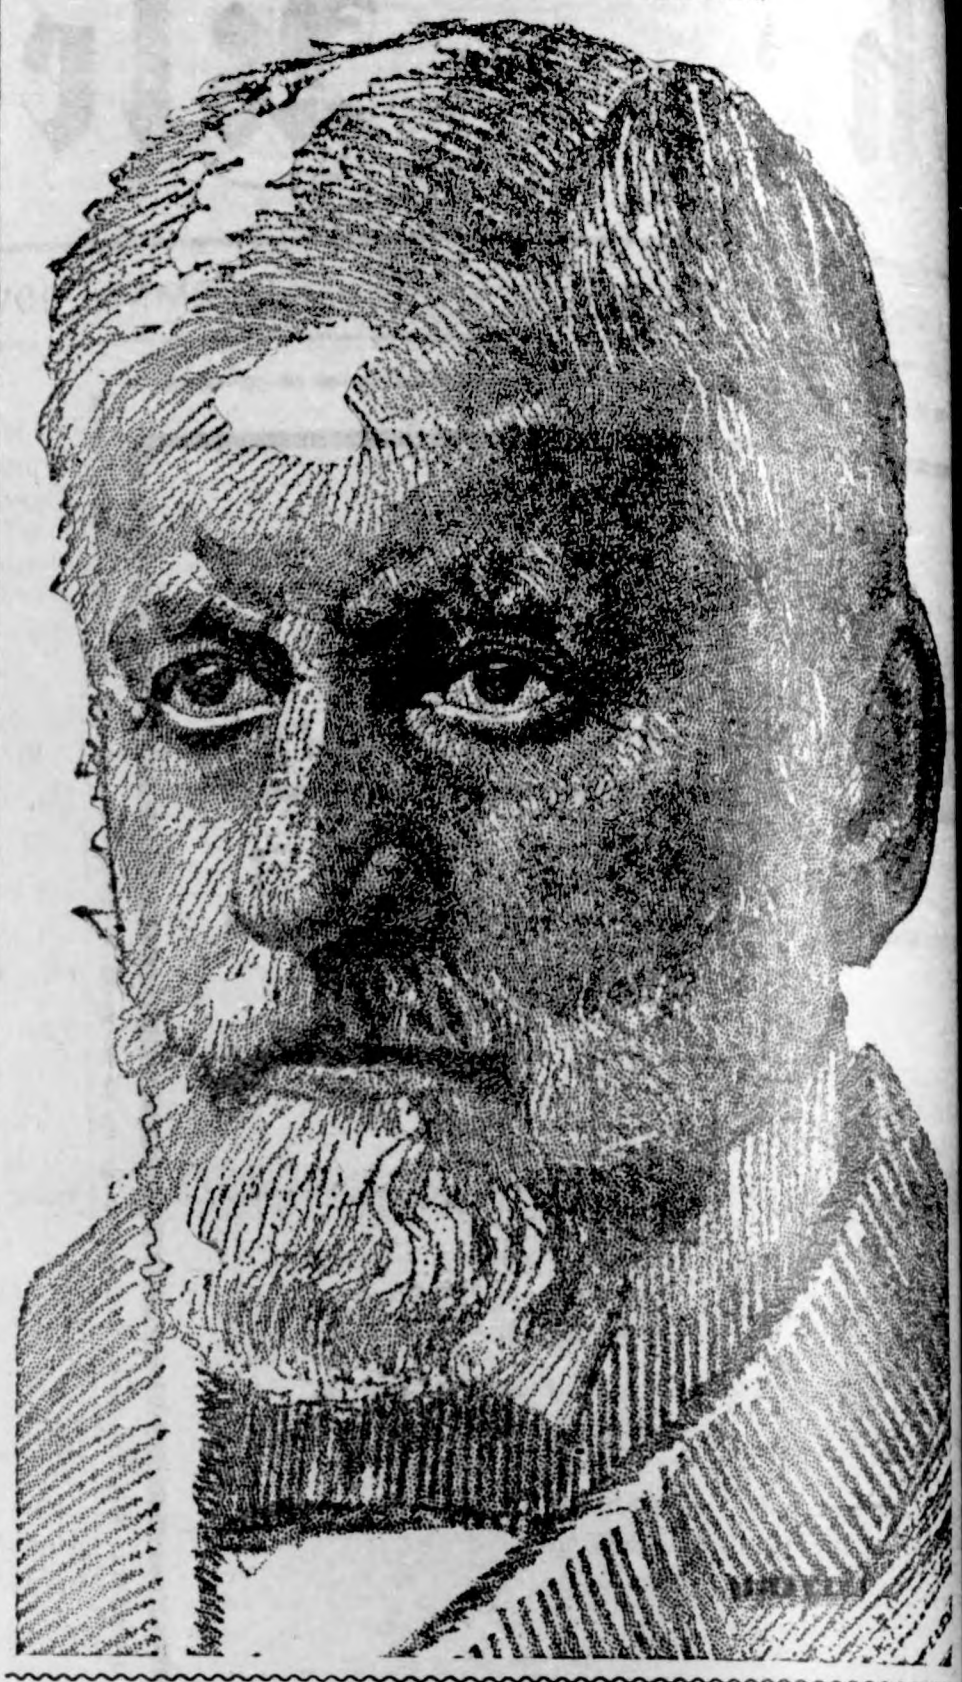
Mason City.—The Palmer livery barn at Greene, burned together with seventeen horses. The estimated loss is $7,000.

WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON.



SENATOR ALLISON DIES IN DUBUQUE

LIFE OF AGED SENATOR COMES TO A CLOSE.

UNCONSCIOUS THREE DAYS

Nature of Affliction Cause of Excruciating Pain Inducing Coma.

Dubuque, Aug. 5.—Senatar William B. Allison is dead. This announcement came yesterday afternoon at 1:33 o'clock from his residence on Locust street, where he passed away, and struck the community, the people of the state and the nation like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. The end came as the result of a sudden heart weakness, according to the statement of Drs. Hancock and Lewis, his attending physicians.

He has answered the last call but not until he had established the longest of all records for continuous congressional service. While for the last two years Senator Allison was in declining health, and while he suffered the loss of much vitality during the past month of the present summer, there was no news emanating from his home indicating theseriousfrom ris home indicating the seriousness of his condition.

Three weeks ago Senator Allison consulted a Chicago physician and a fortnight ago the senator went to the country home of Mrs. Fannie Stout, a few miles from the city, to escape the torrid heat and secure the benefit of country air and quiet. He remained at the home of Mrs. Stout until last Saturday morning, when he was removed back to his city home. During last week nurses were supplied to care for the senator for the first time since his illness and this was the first intimation any one had of a change for the worse in his condition.

The senator lost consciousness after last Saturday and did not recover his mental faculties up to the time of his death. He had been under the constant surveillance of physicians the last few days. Saturday morning when Senator Allison was removed to his city home, his condition grew rapidly worse. His mental vigor was wholly spent and his condition was one of absolute dependence. Two nurses were in constant attendance upon him, and efforts to maintain secrecy as to his condition were redoubled, while every means was adopted to insure his rest.

Senator Allison suffered from the worst form of prostatic enlargement, which made relief difficult, and resulted in a state of coma. Kidney trouble also added to the ailment.

As is usual in such cases the senator suffered frequently from periods of faintness and weakness and while these continued he lost possession of his faculties. These spells have frequently recurred of late, and the last of them had its beginning on Friday, finally resulting in the patient's death.

Senator Allison had been a suffered for a number of years. For the last two years he required relief twice daily and was regularly visited by a physician. He consulted the best authorities regarding his affliction but his advanced age was the strongest argument against the operation, which might have corrected the defect. The senator fell away in flesh rapidly and close friends noted upon his return from Washington following his attendance upon the last session of congress that his mental faculties were not as keen as they had been.

They knew that it was but a question of time when death should claim him, but a chivalrous sense of loyalty to the aged man sealed their lips, with the result that the state at large has not been advised regarding his condition. At an early hour on Tuesday morning Senator Allison was stricken with the fatal illness which resulted in his death at 1:33 Tuesday afternoon. He summoned a servant of the household and a physician was immediately called who pronounced his condition critical. About noon the veteran statesman lapsed into an unconscious condition and at 1:33 passed peacefully away.

At his bedside when he answered the final summons were Mrs. Brayton, for years in charge of the management of his household, his close personal friend, Mr. John McDonald of this city and Dr. John T. Hancock, his attending physician.

Senator Allison had been feeling the effects of the intense heat during the past few days, but only Monday was his condition considered dangerous. His sudden change Tuesday morning alarmed the members of his household, and every possible effort was made to restore lost strength, but without avail. He lapsed into unconsciousness and passed away at the hour named.

Senator Allison was born at Perry, O., March 2, 1829, the son of John and Mary Allison. His boyhood days he spent on the farm, which was his birthplace. Reaching young manhood, he secured his education in Allegheny college in Pennsylvania and in the Western Reserve college of Ohio, in both of which schools he distinguished himself, winning high honors in all the branches which he studied.

Senator Allison was admitted to the bar in 1850. He was married to Miss Anna Carter of Wooster, O., at Ashland O., in February, 1854. From 1850 until 1857 he practiced law in Ohio. In 1857 he removed to Dubuque, where he took up the practice of the law.

The Kiteologist

By Don Mark Lemon

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

ust come up on the roof, sir, and show you the cage and tell you all t I know about the professor, but ore we go a step further let me rn you that I don't believe a word what the newspapers printed about . No, sir, I won't and can't believe such a true gentleman as the proor always showed himself to be ld have deliberately set out to rob government of over $15,000. It's posterous to think of, but it's just the newspapers to make the matas sensational as possible.

ake care you don't tear your coat that nail. I'll have my boy pull it when he comes home from school. w, sir, step this way, and you can for yourself how innocent the prosor was of any evil intentions. ok! Do you think this flat tin roof ks like a robber's roost? It's ridulous; yet to read the newspapers would think that we landlords are friends of robbers, and all manner thieves. We landlords have a hard ugh struggle to live, without the wspapers making it any harder us.

es, sir, this is the cage where the fessor kept his three big eagles, now I'll tell you how he came to with me, and why he had such ange-like pets. You see, I had just ely taken this house and had spent last dollar I had in the world in nishing it, and was glad enough to e such a nice gentleman as the prosor come along the second day after ut up my sign and ask if I hadn't furnished front room to let, with ning water and a good deep closet ere he could keep his clothes.

Well, sir, I snapped him up at once, I could see he was a gentleman, d, besides, he looked neat and prosrous, and I felt I wouldn't have to

rry about him not paying his rent time. But before he took the room asked if he couldn't go up on the of and see if it would suit him for a rtain purpose. I was somewhat surised at him wanting to rent the of, but thinking him a photographer, something like that, I brought him here and he was real pleased. So told me his business, and I rented s roof to him without any hesitation all. It isn't every day one can rent scrap of roof for more than a good my front room, and you can't blame for doing so.

Well, sir, he was a kiteologist, as he d me. He flew kites to study the nds and the temperature at a great ght. He wasn't in the employ of e government, but was studying on s own account. He took his silk t off and sat down right over there, d explained all about it to me. His es weren't like those that the boys , nor were they like I have seen ctures of in the papers—great big x-like things—but they were eagles real live eagles. He had three of em, and he would attach a strong ing to their legs and let them fly into the heavens with a thermomer and barometer attached, or some ch-like scientific instruments, and hen he was ready, he would gently aw them down again.

Well, sir, it was a pleasure to hear m talk; he knew everything about gles and kites and the heavens, and course I consented for him to bring s birds and fly them from my roof, t supposing the landlord I get the use from would care at all. Which can say, he didn't. So the next day e professor came with his three gles and placed them up here on the of in that big cage, and it was good see how he did love those birds, and ay with them, and teach them all nds of tricks. My gracious, but they ere strong! I really think the small- t of the three could have lifted a big child in its claws; and the professor explained how that they must be strong to carry his scientific instruments so high in the air.

Well, a week passed and he didn't fly his eagles, for he was waiting for them to get accustomed to their new location, so they would return like carrier doves in case the string tied to their legs got broken; and at the end of the week, before the professor could try his experiment at all, that dreadful accident happened, which the papers made so much of, and which frightened the professor, who was timid, like all real scientific men, so that he never came back, even for his clothes.

You see, just across the street from here is the subtreasury, and every little while a wagon drives up to the door filled with big canvas bags full of gold, and the clerks will come out and get the gold and carry it into the vaults. Well, on Tuesday morning, just after I had finished some washing and was going out to get a new handle to my irons, which had got broken, the wagon drove up before the subtreasury door and the clerks began to take out the sacks of gold and carry them into the bank.

I can truly say that I'm not by nature a covetous woman, but, naturally, I paused and watched the men a moment or two, thinking what I could do if I had what was in just one of those sacks. Why, there must have been as much as $4,000 or $5,000 in each sack, and there were dozens of them, I believe.

Suddenly, as I was standing there, a darkness seemed to come over the sun, and at the same time a strange flying sound made me look up, and there were the professor's three eagles broken loose from the cage—I felt real sorry for the professor, to think that his birds had got loose—and down they came and lighted on the wagon full of gold. I lifted up my apron to shoo them back to the roof, when if those three mischievous birds didn't settle right down into the bags full of gold, and each one grab a bag in his claws, like I saw them grab a bag with a dead rabbit in it on the roof one day, and no sooner had they grabbed the bags of gold than up they flew again to the roof.

I was astonished beyond measure, but the clerks who were carrying in the gold were simply dumfounded. And no wonder! Supposing the eagles should spill the gold or fly away with it, why the poor clerks might have to return it out of their salaries, and I hear they don't get paid so much, though they are employed by the government.

Well, sir, the moment I could collect my scattered senses, I rushed back into the house to tell the professor what had happened, for, as I hadn't seen him on the roof, I supposed he was in his room. Of course the clerks followed me, and we all hurried up here where you are standing now. The three eagles were gone, and the professor was nowhere to be found. Poor man, he was out somewhere in the city, and I felt like running down and warning him not to return, for fear they would hold him responsible for the gold.

I saw that the eagles each had lately had a long cord tied to its legs and I thought nothing of it more than proper, but the clerks acted like a lot of wild men. They vowed that the eagles had been let down to steal the gold, and when they saw that this roof leads over to the next building yonder, they said that the owner of the birds had taken the gold and climbed through an open window in that building into an empty room, and that way escaped with the $15,000.

Of course I saw at once how dreadfully dishonest it all might be made to look, and I sat down and almost cried. At first the clerks and the officers paid no more attention to me than if I had been a sick kitten, but when they learned that I was the landlady and knew all about the eagles and the professor, they asked me a thousand questions, and I was dragged off to court like a criminal, and the poor professor's name was mixed up with robbery and thieving, and I don't know what else. But, somehow, he learned about the mischief his eagles had got into and never returned.

Of course the eagles flew away with the gold bags- poor birds, I don't blame them a bit for making the most of their liberty—and I wouldn't at all be surprised if the police should find that the birds had dropped the gold on some roof, when they discovered that the bags didn't contain rabbit, as they had imagined.

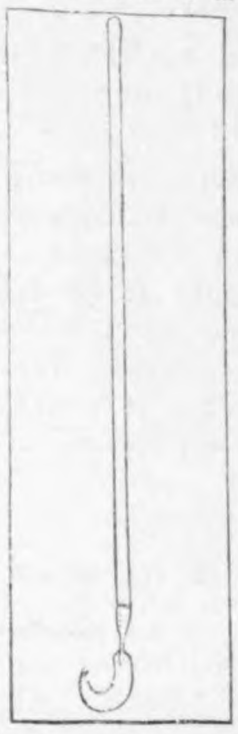
FARM AND GARDEN

DEVICE FOR BERRY GROWERS.

Cutting Off the Runners Made Easy for the Worker.

The problem of disposing of the surplus runners is always a perplexing one to the strawberry grower. Too commonly the runners are allowed to run and form a dense mat at their own sweet will. Placing runners is no easy job, as everyone must admit who has tried that back-breaking labor. Yet it is demonstrated every year in every plantation that it is the only method of raising uniformly large and brightly colored berries. Wherever a spot is found where from some cause the plants are thin on the ground, it is there the best berries are always found. Many plans of placing or spacing runners have been tried, and nearly every grower has his own distinctive way, which he varies from time to time when he thinks he has discovered something better. It really does not matter so much what arrangement of the runners is made, provided they are given plenty of room. Next to spacing them is the labor of cutting off the surplus ones that are not needed. An early-set, vigorous plant will send out a multitude of runners during the growing season and keep it up till freezing weather has stopped growth. Pinching or cutting them off with a knife or scissors is slow work and requires constant stooping, which is relished neither by old nor young. This work may be lightened as follows:



Take a worn-out hoe, says Orange Judd Farmer, and have the blacksmith straighten the blade on a line with the shank. You can have it any width the hoe will admit. For cutting around single plants a narrow blade is best; for narrowing in the side of a row the wider the blade the better. For narrowing the row an ordinary plow counter may be used. It may be fastened to the cultivator or it may be attached to handles, whetted sharp and trundled along by hand.

After the raspberries and blackberries are through bearing is the best time to cut out the old canes. Another simple instrument is also made out of an old hoe for this work, only in this case the hoe blade is turned in a sickle shape, so as to catch firmly around the cane. This allows the man to do all the cutting while standing erect. His left hand should be provided with a strong glove to hold the canes and pull them out. The illustration shows how the cutter looks when completed.

BRACING A CORNER POST.

Here Is Another Good Way of Stiffening a Fence.

To brace a corner post in the way shown in the accompanying illustration bend a hook in the end of a piece of ⅝-inch iron and cut a thread on the other end, says the Prairie Farmer. A is a wooden brace and B is a wire hooked on the iron C which is turned till the wire is taut.

How the Bracing Is Done.

FARM NOTES.

Cultivation should be mostly to keep down weeds.

Stock barns should be light, dry and well ventilated.

Dairying is the one branch in which no man should engage who has not a real liking for cows.

When the potato vines are half grown they have filled the ground with lateral roots. Cultivate over the roots and not through them.

The dairy cow requires five times as much of the carbon in her food as of the protein because she must from that produce both heat and energy.

THE SIN OF LAND-MURDER.

Seriousness of the Situation Not Generally Realized.

The deterioriation of fertility under cultivation that is lacking in care for the future is far more noticeable in some portions of the south than in the middle west. The Progressive Farmer, recognizing the seriousness of the situation, speaks as follows:

"The truth is, that it is time now to see that a man who wears out a piece of land sins—just as a man sins who wears out a human body with drunkenness or dissipation. We are coming to the time when a man will be as much ashamed of owning a gullied hillside as of owning a skin-and-bones horse. As James J. Hill, than whom there is hardly a greater American living, declared in Washington:

"'North Carolina was, a century ago, one of the great agricultural states of the country and one of the wealthiest. To-day as you ride through the south you see everywhere land gullied by torrential rains, red and yellow clay banks exposed where once were fertile fields, and agriculture reduced because its main support has been washed away. Millions of acres, in places to the extent of one-tenth of the entire arable area, have been so injured that no industry and no care can restore them.'

"And the seriousness of this land-murder is not appreciated by one man in a thousand. You see an acre of land ruined and you say: Well, there is $10, $20, or $50 loss, according to the price of land in your community. But the truth is, that the merely temporary estimate put upon land values, as indicated by present prices, does not indicate at all the far-reaching extent of the damage. Three hundred years ago you could have bought that land from the Indians at ten cents an acre, but if an acre of it had been ruined then, would the damage, as we see it now, have amounted to only ten cents? A hundred years ago the same land may have been worth only a dollar an acre; but we know now that to have ruined an acre would have meant more than a dollar's loss. And so the price of land to-day is no criterion by which to judge the damage and the sin against posterity wrought by the man who murders an acre of God's heritage to the human race—a heritage he meant to last as long as time itself. The nation does well to give the matter serious thought."

STRAINING JELLY.

Handy Device Made Out of a Turned-Up Chair.

A pupil from the high school class of cookery, South Kensington, London, Eng., told me about this substitute for a jelly bag, and I have found that it works to perfection, being much less troublesome than the old-fashioned jelly bag, says a writer in Farm and Home.

A Substitute for Jelly Bag.

Clean a plain wooden kitchen chair thoroughly, and then turn it, legs upward, on a kitchen table. Tie a clean single or double piece of white cheesecloth securely by the corners to the chair legs, being careful not to allow too much fullness to prevent too much sagging. Place a bowl underneath the bag on the under side of the chair seat, and then pour some boiling water from the kettle into the bag. When it has run away, and the cloth is still hot, quickly remove full bowl and put another in its place, and pour the hot fruit to be strained into the jelly bag. Again change bowls and pour the first juice back into the jelly bag. Then throw a clean, white mosquito netting over the chair, and leave the jelly juice to strain all night. Of course, chair, table, floor and every utensil used, as well as the cheesecloth and mosquito netting, must be scrupulously clean.

Thirty Years of Dairying.

In 30 years the dairying of the world has been revolutionized. The various inventions to save time and protect the milk from contamination and keep the butter made have so facilitated the production of milk and milk-products that it is safe to say the aggregate production has been enormously increased. In 30 years the business has become one founded on the most scientific of principles.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

Astonished Great Pianist.

A collection of anecdotes of musical celebrities just published at Leipsic contains this one under the head of Anton Rubinstein. When the great pianist was making his tour of the United States he sat one day in a railroad train looking out upon the scenery. Suddenly a man sitting across the aisle spat over Rubinstein's head out of the open window. The master drew back and gazed in astonishment and anger at the vulgar American, who smiled and said, soothingly: "Don't worry; I know my distance."

New York's German Population.

A Berlin paper says that New York is the third German city in the world in point of population. "With its 650,000 Germans," it says, "it is exceeded in size only by Berlin, which has about 2,000,000, and by Hamburg, which has 730,000. The other large German cities are Munich, 520,000, and Dresden, 500,000.

On to Him.

"Yes," said the red-eyed clerk. "I'm a little late this morning. The midnight oil, you know—"

"H'm!" interrupted his employer. "Oil, eh? Well, the next time you paint the town I'd advise you to use water colors exclusively."

ALMOST A SHADOW.
Gained 20 lbs. on Grape-Nuts.

There's a wonderful difference between a food which merely tastes good and one which builds up strength and good healthy flesh.

It makes no difference how much we eat unless we can digest it. It is not really food to the system until it is absorbed. A Yorkstate woman says:

"I had been a sufferer for ten years with stomach and liver trouble, and had got so bad that the least bit of food such as I then knew, would give me untold misery for hours after eating.

"I lost flesh until I was almost a shadow of my original self and my friends were quite alarmed about me.

"First I dropped coffee and used Postum, then began to use Grape-Nuts although I had little faith it would do me any good.

"But I continued to use the food and have gained twenty pounds in weight and feel like another person in every way. I feel as if life had truly begun anew for me.

"I can eat anything I like now in moderation, suffer no ill effects, be on my feet from morning until night. Whereas a year ago they had to send me away from home for rest while others cleaned house for me, this spring I have been able to do it myself all alone.

"My breakfast is simply Grape-Nuts with cream and a cup of Postum, with sometimes an egg and a piece of toast, but generally only Grape-Nuts and Postum. And I can work until noon and not feel as tired as one hour's work would have made me a year ago." "There's a Reason."

A HYBRID IN HARNESS.

Department of Agriculture Has Hopes of Making a New Beast of Burden in This Country.

By means of two male zebras, imported from Abyssinia as the gift of King Menelik, and which are now at the National Zoological park in Washington, the department of agriculture hopes to make in this country a new beast of burden—a cross between the zebra and the horse, says Country Life in America. Experiments in this direction by the French authorities at Paris have been very successful. The hybrid is smaller than the horse. It is an exceedingly tough and wiry animal and will be suited to the warmer sections of the United States. The history of the American mule is suggetive of the possibilities of the zebra. A century ago the mule was a very scarce animal in the United States. Washington had done much to direct attention to his merits and had loaned the services of a large Spanish jack, presented to him by the king of Spain. But the mule did not become popular until well into the century. At our last census, however, we had nearly 3,000,000 mules, with a taxable value of $250,000. The possibilities from the two zebras are immense—they may combine with the donkey and back into the horse and thus introduce entirely new strains.

BUILDING FIRE IN OPEN.

Something Worth Remembering by Those Who Delight in the Pleasures of the Camp.

How to contrive a satisfactory fire in the open, say, at a picnic, is not known to everyone. The best way is to make a "tramp's" log-fire, the logs being placed—as this diagram plan indicates—with their ends over lapping in the center, which arrangement insures a good draught of air through the fire. The dotted portion of the diagram indicates the heap of leaves, twigs, etc., that is to be burned. As their ends are consumed the logs are pushed further into the fire.

Last Year's Flower Novelty.

One of the flower novelties of last year which was successfully grown by many experts is a tobacco plant which produces scarlet flowers, nicotiana Sanderae. It is named for its producer, an expert of England. The plant was originated by crossing two South American tobacco plants, one of which had white and the other red flowers. The result was a flower varying from a light pink to the deepest red.

Delusions About Police.

There is one class of persons who believe that the policeman of London is a kind of knight-errant. They believe that on the vigil of his appointment he watches his helmet, truncheon and large boots in some dim and sacred chapel, and that he would wear his lady's colors on his helmet if the rules of the service permitted it. It is one of the innumerable delusions of mere wealth.—Illustrated London News.

EDITOR TIMES—

Dear Sir:

We spent nearly three days in Berlin including Sunday. Our hotel was on Wilhelm's street where most of the government buildings stand which are all guarded by soldiers. At the end of "Unter den Linden" stand the palaces. We spent nearly an hour in the king's palace. From the outside this building looks disappointing. It is plain, dirty looking, small windows, the court in the center is of rough cobble stone, a brick walk leads upwards one story like climbing a hill. The visitor steps inside and slips felt slippers over the shoes so as not to mar the floors. As the guide leads the way from room to room, stopping long enough in each to explain everything in the room including furniture and paintings, your admiration and wonder grows till you reach the "Crowning room, where one is simply awe striken with the splendor and beauty. Words cannot explain the slightest conseption one sees here. We were very anxious to see Emperor Wilhehm, but he was not there. We also went through the palace of Emperor Wilhehm I. Everything is as he left it before his death, likewise the Empresses apartment. Some of these rooms are also very fine but all wears the mark of age and the death stillness in the palace makes you feel uncomfortable. Emperor Frederick's palace was not accessible. Another building of interest was the Royal museum. This is so large that we found it difficult to find our way out again. The collection is so large that it would take two weeks to see all. We only looked at some of the great sculpture works and old relics. The collection from 500 to 600 B. C., is very large. We also looked at a number of tablets claimed to be over 5000 years old.

We also visited St. Peter's Dom which is a new building and of the latest architecture. We worshisped there Sunday morning but was very much disappointed as there is such an echo in the building that it is almost impossible to understand the speaker. We took a run to Charlottenburg and visited the mausoleum where several kings and queens lie in their sacrlogue. We also made a trip to Schoeneberg and other parts of the city. Berlin has more automobiles and motor wagons than any city we ever visited. They pass you by the dozen and twenty at a time Sunday is a great galla day in Berlin to go out for sport and sight seeing.

Sunday evening we preached in one of the churches in the center of the city. Six o'clock is the time for their evening service. After the service the audience repared to a near by restaurant and partook of coffee and lunch. At eight o'clock the young people begin their meeting. As it had been announced that we would speak to the young people, nearly all remained. We told them of our work in Iowa. Much of it was astonishing to them. When we told them that the preachers in Iowa could not use street cars but had a span of horses to drive from place to place, their astonishment knew no bounds.

We next stopped at Dresden. This is an old city. Its history runs back a 1000 years at which time it already was a noted place. Here stood the church where they claimed to have a splinter of the real cross on which Christ was crusified, and thousands walked many days to worship it. Dresden the land becomes rolling, with an occasional hill. As we passed on south the scene was constantly changing, now a deep valley, then great forests of fir, again splendid fields, now we climb a long assent and an extra engine pushes our train, then we roll down a steep encline into a broad valley. As it was raining hard we did not make as many stop-offs as we had planned but travelled all day till we reached Nuerrnberg. This place with its 320,000 inhabitants is very interesting. The buildings are all of a queer style, the streets are of all widths from 4 feet to 4 rods. Most of the city was built in the 12-14 century. We visited the museum, theatre, king's tower, tower, art building, Klara churches built 1220, Hans Sach's monument, crossed the isle Schutt, saw the first sun dial, Katherine cloister, Holy Ghost hospital, the greatest hop market in the world, the "Beautiful well," the "Henkersteg," where prisoners were hung and then dropped into the stream, and the Women's church tower as the clock struck 12 two small doors open and seven nobles come out three times and pass infront of their superior. Then we went thru' the old king's fort. Around this fort is a mighty wall and around the wall a deep ditch. On this wall on a high hill are several towers. One of these towers is called the king's palace. Here a long list of kings lived from the tenth century on. We were taken through every room of this palace. In an other are stored all sorts of instruments used during the 30 years war and the reformation to torture people. Here we saw chairs covered with sharp pegs on which they made their subjects sit, iron jackets with sharp spikes, cradles with spikes in which they were rocked, tongs to tear out the tongue and tongs which were made hot and placed in the mouth and the most horrible of all, the so called iron virgin, which when closed, looks like a woman. As the unfortunate was asked to kiss this virgin, a double door opened and then slowly closed with great spikes piercing the eyes, heart and breast. Then the doors were opened and a trap door dropped the body into a mill below, where it was ground to pieces and carried off with the water below. Here also was a sword with which more than 800 persons were beheaded. We looked into the noted well 335 ft deep which took 30 years to dig it. Nuerrnberg was a great catholic stronghold till the reformation, when it became protestant. A number of the old catholic churches are now hospitals or protestant churches. If all goes well we will write our next letter on the alps. With kind remembrances to all our friends.

Yours truly,
Rev. G. H. Wessel.

GOOD CAUSE FOR WRATH.

Art Collector and Irritated Waiter Had the Same Feelings.

A Chicago art dealer was talking about the wrath of William T. Evans, the New York collector upon whom so many bogus paintings have been imposed.

"He's awfully angry," said the art dealer, repressing a smile. "Some of his costliest pictures, you know, have turned out fakes. His blood boils when he thinks of the way he has been duped.

"He told me the other day that he could hardly understand the rage that possessed him against every petty little insignficant dealer that had cheated him. He said it was like the rage of a waiter that he had noted one afternoon at luncheon.

"At luncheon, Mr. Evans said, he called his waiter's attention to a dead fly in some dish or other.

"The waiter, as he took the dish away, muttered with a malevolent look at the limp insect:

"'I'd give a two-dollar bill if I knew for certain that this was the fly that's been buzzing about my nose all the morning.'"

SHE COULD NOT WALK

For Months—Burning Humor on Ankles —Opiates Alone Brought Sleep —Eczema Yielded to Cuticura.

"I had eczema for over two years. I had two physicians, but they only gave me relief for a short time and I cannot enumerate the ointments and lotions I used to no purpose. My ankles were one mass of sores. The itching and burning were so intense that I could not sleep. I could not walk for nearly four months. One day my husband said I had better try the Cuticura Remedies. After using them three times I had the best night's rest in months unless I took an opiate. I used one set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, and my ankles healed in a short time. It is now a year since I used Cuticura, and there has been no return of the eczema. Mrs. David Brown, Locke, Ark., May 18 and July 13, 1907."

HARD TIMES, INDEED.

"Poor man! so you are a victim of the late financial panic?"

"Yes, lady. You see, folks along de route is too poor now ter hand out free grub!"

Her Reason.

Not long ago there was tried in an Ohio court a suit for damages wherein the principal witness, a woman living near Dayton, was induced to come to court only after several subpoenas had been served upon her.

When the dilatory witness was finally brought before his honor, he said in his severest tone:

"What reason can you assign, madam, for disobeying the summons of the court?"

"I ain't got none, Jedge," answered the woman, meekly, "only we've got small-pox down to our place, an' I thought mebbe you'd be kinder prejudiced agin it."—Illustrated.

Few Horses Used in China.

The only places in China where horses are used to any great extent are Shanghai, Esing-Tau and Tien-Tsin. Australian "walers," so called because they originate in New South Wales, are the most popular. These horses are imported into Shanghai in batches of from 20 to 50, are well taken care of on the voyage, and, arriving in excellent condition, are put into use within a couple of weeks after arrival.

And She Is Proud of It.

Two ladies were lunching together one day, when one who is a member of the Colonial Dames said to the other: "Why do you not join the Colonial Dames? You surely must be eligible."

"Oh, yes," responded her friend. "I forget just now the name of my ancestor, but I know we have been descending for many years."—Emily Rhodes, in Lippincott's.

The Manner of an Expert.

"I guess my father must have been a pretty bad boy," said one youngster.

"Why?" inquired the other.

"Because he knows exactly what questions to ask when he wants to know what I have been doing."

The desire of riches does not proceed from a natural passion within us, but arises rather from vulgar, out-of-doors opinion of other people.—Plutarch.

DENEEN IS NAMED

IN SIXTY-TWO COUNTIES HE IS THE WINNER.

YATES AND FOSS BEATEN

Hopkins Is Nominated United States Senator, but Foss May Contest.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—At 2:30 o'clock this morning complete returns from the 88 counties out of 102 in the state give for republican nomination for governor:

Deneen	181,509
Yates	170,205
Plurality	11,254

Eighty-eight counties give for the republican senatorial indorsement:

Hopkins	117,822
Foss	99,709

Chicago, Aug. 10.—At 2 o'clock this morning the indications were that Gov. Charles S. Deneen had received the republican nomination for governor and that Senator Albert J. Hopkins had obtained the republican indorsement for United States senator. The result, however, is not definitely established in either case, and both the Yates and Foss managers claim their man will ultimately be named.

The returns available at 2 o'clock consisted of the vote in eighty-seven out of one hundred and two counties in the state for senator and in sixty-two counties for governor. Chicago and Cook county were included in both sets of figures. The vote on senator was: Hopkins, 97,051; Foss, 88,573; Mason, 62,596. On governor the vote was: Deneen, 167,151; Yates, 154435.

The friends of Governor Deneen predict that he will secure the nomination by a majority of at least 10,000 over Yates, and the Yates managers make about the same prediction for their man.

Senator Hopkins declared late tonight that he believed that he would be indorsed for the senatorship by a plurality of 25,000 to 27,000.

The Foss managers claim that they have carried many of the senatorial districts and that when the legislature comes to vote for senator the men from these districts must be guided by the vote in those districts irrespective of what the vote of the entire state may have been. They argue that in this way Foss is certain to receive the election from the legislature even though he runs behind in the primaries.

The situation on the democratic ticket outlined early in the night was confirmed by late returns. Lawrence B. Stringer has been indorsed for senator and Adlai E. Stevenson has been nominated for governor. The returns continue to come in very slowly and definite figures are not obtainable on lieutenant governor on the republican ticket, and the clerk of the supreme court on the democratic ticket. It is generally believed by politicians that irrespective of the popular vote on senatorial indorsement a bitter fight will be precipitated at the next session of the legislature between Foss and Hopkins.

WRIGHT'S FLIGHT ASTOUNDS.

Two American Brothers Do Wonders in France.

Le Mans, France, Aug 10.—The successful flight made by Wilbur Wright with his aeroplane on Saturday puts an end to the long, anxious wait in America and Europe to see what the Wright brothers were capable of accomplishing. In Europe the "mysterious Wrights" have been an absorbing problem for levitation enthusiasts, and they have interested the representatives of various governments.

It was shortly before 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the aeroplane which is the same as that used in the United States, was brought out of its shed and mounted on a small single-wheeled chariot which in turn was resting on a single rail on the ground. After a preliminary test of the apparatus, Mr. Wright declared all was ready and took a position beside the motor. By means of a falling weight rigged on a beam erected on the ground and connecting with cords running to it, the chariot was started running over the rail and the aeroplane, thus having been given a forward motion, suddenly left the chariot and ascended like a bird to a height of about forty feet. Then it swerved in its course and sailed up the field. It dipped gracefully up and down, attaining a height of sixty feet and then descended to between thirty and forty feet. Mr. Wright thus thrice circled the field and then, stopping the motor, brought the aeroplane directly in front of the improvised grand stand, which was filled with wildly cheering spectators. The descent was sure and easy, and was carried out with great nicety, without causing shock to either the machine or its operator.

Estimates vary as to the distance covered by the aeroplane, but the average was about six miles.

SENATOR W. B. ALLISON DEAD

AGED IOWAN DIES SUDDENLY AT DUBUQUE, IA.

Long a Big Figure In the Upper Branch of Congress—Cummins Candidate for Toga.

Dubuque, Ia.—Senator William Boyd Allison died in his Locust street home at 1:33 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, aged 79 years. With him at dissolution were members of the household and a physician. In a bulletin announcing the death, Drs. Hancock and Lewis assigned heart failure as the cause.

Announcement of the senator's death came as a shock to his neighbors and the community, as few were aware of his illness. While for the last two years he was in declining health, and while he suffered loss of much vitality during the months of the present summer, there was no news emanating from his home indicating the seriousness of his condition.

Senator Allison passed through a serious illness at Washington last winter. Three weeks ago he consulted a Chicago physician and a fortnight ago went to his country home a few miles from this city to escape the heat and secure the benefits of country air and quietude. He remained there until last Saturday morning, when he was brought back to his city home.

During last week nurses were employed to care for the senator for the first time since his illness, and this was the first intimation anyone had of a change for the worse in his condition. The senator lost consciousness after Saturday and did not fully recover his mental faculties up to time of his death. He had been under the constant surveillance of physicians for the last few days.

Lake Forest, Ill.—Gov. Albert B. Cummins of Iowa Tuesday night announced himself as a candidate to succeed Senator Allison in congress. The governor paid a glowing tribute to his late political adversary's services to Iowa and the country at large, then frankly declared his ambition to be elected to the upper house by the legislature of his state. He also announced that "some one will be appointed at once to occupy Senator Allison's seat for the remaining months of his unexpired term."

Whitecap Outrage in Indiana.

Rushville, Ind.—Beaten to almost insensibility by whitecappers, perforated with small holes caused by a nail-pronged board, covered with tar and feathers, John Tribbey, well-to-do farmer, was found bound to a tree Thursday. Tribbey said he had been taken from his home by 18 masked men, who had tortured him.

Iowa Woman Commits Suicide.

Wapello, Ia. — Mrs. R. R. McWhirter, a resident of Cairo, Ia., was found dead at her home Friday with her head under a pillow and her mouth and nostrils stuffed with cotton. It is thought that she committed suicide because of grief over the sentencing of her son to the penitentiary.

Winnipeg, Man. — The steamer Premier, Capt. Stevens, was burned to the water's edge at Warren's Landing, the northern terminus of Lake Winnipeg, Thursday. Six passengers and two of the crew lost their lives.

RELIEF FOR ELK RIVER VICTIMS.

Aid in Form of Provisions and Clothing Sent to Sufferers.

Fernie, B. C.—Relief for the sufferers from the terrible forest fires in the Elk river district, which destroyed a dozen large and small towns, was generously tendered from the northern part of the United States and from all over Canada. Great trainloads of provisions, clothing and everything else which the sufferers most need were sent to the stricken towns.

The latest estimates on the loss of life range in the neighborhood of 200, although the authorities declare that when the final calculations are made the number dead will not exceed 250. The monetary loss was $7,500,000, the insurance on which is estimated at not over $1,500,000. More than 6,000 persons were rendered homeless by the awful conflagration.

At latest reports such towns as Michels and Hosmer were still fighting the fires. Many bodies were recovered in this city as soon as the heat from the smouldering ruins reduced and made it possible for rescue parties to go into the stricken parts of the city. Trains bore the people away in large numbers, but now they are returning in family groups, and it is the intention of authorities to again build up the town. This intention has been expressed also in most of the other villages and towns which suffered by the fire.

PERISH IN ARCTIC.

Danish Explorer Erichsen and Two Companions Lost.

Copenhagen.—Mylius Erichsen, the Danish explorer, met death in the far north. According to information in a telegram to the committee of the Denmark-Greenland expedition Erichsen and two companions who sailed with him from Copenhagen June 24, 1906, to the unexplored regions of the northeastern coast of Greenland, perished in a snowstorm. The three men were on a journey over the ice when disaster overtook them.

A later telegram brings the information that Erichsen and his companions were on an ice floe when they were overtaken by the snowstorm, and that the floe drifted out to sea. They drifted for several days, growing weaker and weaker. When the floe finally was driven back to land the three men did not have sufficient strength to make the effort necessary to return to the station. They must have perished on the shore. The Eskimo who brought the news of the disaster arrived at the station in a dying condition and succumbed immediately after making his report.

Paris Is Dark for Two Hours.

Paris.—Paris was plunged in darkness for two hours Thursday night because of an attempt of electricians to carry out a general strike similar to that of March, 1907. The maneuver which fortunately proved abortive, is attributed to a desire of the revolutionary laborites for revenge for an order issued by the prefect of the Seine closing the labor exchange to the federated unions of the department of the Seine because of the part the labor exchange played in the recent disturbances.

Censure Executive Council.

Many of the country newspapers of the state are assailing the executive council because it recently cut down the primary election expense bill filed with it by the county auditors.

In the process the executive council saved the state treasury about $25,000. The total expense to the state treasury, when the council got through cutting the bills, was slightly more than $80,000.

The primary law provides that half of the expense of the election shall be borne by the state and half by the counties. It provides that in each county "the board of supervisors of each county shall audit the entire expense and certify the same to the executive council, which shall thereupon order a warrant for one-half the amount to be delivered to the county, which shall thereupon pay the entire amount."

The objectors claim that the council has nothing to do but order the warrants drawn.

It was the theory of the state authorities that if the law had contemplated that the executive council had not the power to see that the expenses paid by it for the primary election were within the law, it would have provided that the auditor of state, the officer empowered by the law to drawn warrants, should have drawn the warrants for the primary election expense without their submission to the council.

The council has nothing to do with the drawing of warrants. Its sole duty is as an auditing board. The attorney general held it to be the duty of the executive council to review the expense accounts of the several counties relative to the primary election to the extent of determining whether the various items of expense were authorized by and within the law. Several other minor rulings were furnished by the legal department which are contained in the action of the executive council.

A very large item of the expense cut by the council was in the bills charged the counties for the publication of the election notices.

The Senatorial Vacancy.

While immediate political interest centers in the decision of Governor Cummins as to filling the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Allison, the politicians are giving much attention to the question of whether there will be a contest over the full term before the legislature of next January.

Governor Cummins has declined to discuss either question, and declines to be quoted with respect to the senatorial succession.

It is commonly understood, however, that a conference of the progressive republicans will be held in Des Moines probably the latter part of this week, with a view to discussing the governor, and it is supposed among politicians that he will then be prepared to make a statement with regard to his plans.

This would include announcement of his decision as to whether to resign or appoint temporarily or call a special session of the legislature to fill the vacancy; and an announcement as to his candidacy for the full term before the legislature next winter.

That the governor will be a candidate for the senatorship is taken for granted among the politicians. Whether he will plan to take the short term before being a candidate for the long term is not known, and it is believed that he, himself, has not yet reached a conclusion on the subject.

A Better Rate for Fair.

The Commercial club has received notice from the passenger department of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad that that road will put in force during the state fair a minimum round trip charge of 25 cents, thus beaking away from the other roads which had agreed at the hearing before the Western Passenger association some days ago to make a round trip rate of 1½ cents per mile and establishing a minimum charge of 75 cents.

This will mean that all territory outside of the city at a distance of eight miles or more will be served be the reduced rate, whereas the 75 cent minimum would only give the reduced rates to points at a distance twenty-two miles or more from Des Moines. This will add an area of over 3,000 square miles of the most thickly populated portion of the state which will receive the reduced rate.

THAW IS BANKRUPT

RECEIVER APPOINTED AT PITTSBURG AT HIS REQUEST.

LIABILITIES ARE $453,140

Petition Says Many Creditors Are Seeking to Enforce Unjust Claims—Loans from Mother Not Disputed.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed after eight o'clock Friday night in the United States court by Attorney Morschauser of New York, representing Harry K. Thaw, who is now confined in the Duchess county (N. Y.) jail.

In the petition Thaw states that his assets are $128,012.38 and his liabilities $453,140.43.

Roger O'Mara, a well-known Pittsburg detective and personal friend of the Thaw family, was appointed as receiver. His bond was placed at $200,000, and John Newell and James W. Platt, two prominent business men of this city, became securities for Mr. O'Mara.

The most interesting information given regarding the proceedings is to be found in the petition asking for the appointment of a receiver in which it is alleged that the action is taken for the purpose of preventing his property being dissipated in litigation over claims, many of which are unjust. The figures in the bankruptcy petition show that this refers to the lawyers and doctors.

Thaw states that he is confined in jail in Duchess county, N. Y., and is likely to be there for some time. He says some of his creditors have commenced suits against him and others are contemplating similar action. He is unable, he says, to give the litigation his attention, owing to the confinement.

Loans amounting to $191,500 from his mother, Mrs. William Thaw, are not disputed.

Among the disputed claims are the following: John B. Gleason, New York, $80,000; Hartridge & Peabody, New York, $60,000; J. J. Graham, Newburg, N. Y., $2,954; Dr. Hammond, New York, $1,000; Dr. Wagner, Binghamton, N. Y., $4,040; Dr. Jolliffe, New York, $5,245; Dr. Jones, Morristown, N. J. $6,000; Martin Littleton, New York, $8,055; Dr. Hamilton, New York, $12,000; Dr. Dana, New York, $1,600.

SEVERE STORM IN BOSTON.

Rainfall Is Heavy and Store Basements Are Flooded.

Boston.—From a meteorological standpoint Friday was "black Friday" in Boston, the city being visited in the afternoon by the heaviest electrical disturbance in years.

The storm lasted for nearly an hour, during which time the rain gauge at the United States weather bureau registered a fall of 1.65 inches

Heavy damages resulted from the flooding of basements in the down town sections of the city. In some of the newspaper offices on Washington street there was two feet of water in the press rooms.

Close Call for Fifty Passengers.

Springfield, Ill. — Fifty passengers on board a Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis train, bound from Peoria to Springfield Friday afternoon, narrowly escaped death on a burning wooden bridge which spanned a high embankment. The locomotive and the baggage car ran 50 feet on the bridge when the rails spread and the locomotive bumped over the ties until nearly across then it turned over and stopped the passenger coaches clear of the fire. The baggage car caught fire and was consumed.

Minnesota Bank Closes.

Washington.—The First National bank of Belle Plaine, Minn., was closed Thursday by order of the comptroller of the currency upon advice received from National Bank Examiner Frank O. Hicks that the bank was insolvent, followed by the suicide of the president of the bank, J. G. Lund. George C. Ball was appointed receiver.

Lester M Nelson of Naples, Maine, says in a recent letter. I have used Dr. King's new Discovery many years for coughs and colds and I think it saved my life. I have found it a reliable remedy for throat and lung complaints and would no more be without a bottle than I would be with out food. For nearly forty years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventive of pneumonia and healer of weak lungs it has no equal. ADVICE BY EXPERT.

EASY MEANS OF ATTAINING A GRACEFUL FIGURE.

Simple Exercise Recommended by a Famous Physical Culturist—Mistakes of Beginners.

An English physical culturist has invented some exercises which he calls the empire exercises. He took them to Paris, but he found that the women there did not need them. And now he has sent them to this country.

These exercises, gathered together briefly, are these: They are called the empire exercises, and they are for the reduction of the belt line. Only this, and nothing more, unless one is full in the throat, when there are exercises for making the throat smaller.

Most people practicing the empire exercises will tighten up the belt. But this is not the way. The belt should be very loose to give the waist muscles full play. The corset should be taken off while one is exercising.

The empire exercises are simple enough. Put on something loose and do this: Step forward and sink upon knee. Regain your position and step forward with the other foot and sink upon the other knee. One foot goes forward and the other knee bends. That is the way to do it. The rule is to keep on until you are pretty well tired out.

The English instructor advises moderation. He says amateurs do too much in the beginning, and the result is a serious relapse. They get so tired that they take to the couch, and then there is no more exercise for weeks and months. Maybe the disgusted beginner gives it up forever.

The next of the empire exercises consists in bending from side to side. This is hard enough, and most likely a strain upon the muscles. But the enthusiast can take hold of a chair by way of assistance, and not bend too far either way. The idea is to bend the body until it feels supple. The more one bends in moderation the better.

The neck must be small if one is going to get the empire figure, and next winter one must have this figure, even though one does not plan to wear an empire gown. All dresses are to be a little shorter in the waist line, and not a word is heard about the straight front.

A Complete Defense.

An Irish woman was accused of having stolen an iron soap kettle and cracked it, so that its usefulness was ended.

Her defense, when brought before the judge, was as follows: "Oi have witnesses here, yer honor, t' prove, first, that Oi niver had th' kittle in me possession; second, that Oi returned it t' Mrs. Casey widout a crack in it; and, third, that th' old kittle was cracked whin Oi s'hole it."

Spoken by Her Father.

Were the words which made Miss Florence Schaub wife and gave her a new name.

ONLY RELATIVES WERE PRESENT

The bride was beautiful indeed as she stood within a Festoon of rosebuds.

The marriage of Miss Florence N. Schaub, oldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Schaub to Mr. Edgar Klemer took place yesterday at precisely 5:30 p. m. in the home of the bride's parents, the father of the bride officiating. There were present the bride's parents, her brothers L. Fred and Edward and her sister Miss Bertha, also the groom's parents and one brother, all of Faribault Minn. The bride was elegantly gowned in white and standing with her handsomely attired bridegroom within a festoon of rosebuds and Marguerites, she looked beautiful indeed. After the impressive ceremony, which made them husband and wife had been performed, a bountiful dinner was served. At nine o'clock the newly married pair left on the Milwaukee for a month's wedding tour. After the trip they will settle upon their fruit farm in Hood River, Oregon.

Miss Florence Schaub is well known in this city and community. She is a graduate from our city high school and when her father was sick she acted as his deputy county superintendent for over a year and she did her work with complete satisfaction to teachers and citizens of the county. For almost two years she has been a student of Charles City college, and last year she was one of the eminently successful assistant teachers in this institution. She would have completed her course next June. On the whole she's young woman of sterling qualities, of brilliant mind and of irreproachable Christian character. All her friends, and they are numerous, wish her well.

Mr. Edgar Klemer is a stranger in this city, but he comes not only from an excellent family, but he is himself a young man of good education and of true manhoon fully worth of his estimable young wife.—Charles City Daily Press.

Does the shah take his country for a Persian carpet to be dyed blood red?

There is a streak of yellow in the crooked butter dealer as well as in his product.

Over 23,000 tons of rabbit meat were received in London from Australia last year.

A butter churn holding only one quart of cream is now made for domestic use.

The newest forge does away with the usual bellows, being fitted with a compressed air tank.

Without underrating the prowess of daring and athletic women, their sex will always break more hearts than records.

Over in New York they are talking about having a hotel for chorus girls exclusively. How would you like to be the clerk?

There is no more pathetic sight than the arms of the well-meaning girl who was trying to get tanned and succeeded only in getting sunburned.

Of course, remarks the St. Joseph News, you understand that work in the harvest fields is not intended for the professional unemployed.

The Illinois woman, aged 75 years, who has just entered a summer school evidently believes in the truth of the saying that one is never too old to learn.

Count Zeppelin's airship would undoubtedly be a success if it could only be made strong enough to keep from breaking when it happened to hit things.

One hundred American businessmen are to be invited to Japan "to promote international trade." What do you suppose the real reason can be?

Americans are complaining they are being discriminated against by the Japanese in Manchuria. This is not surprising when the Chinese have made the same complaint.

London theatrical managers complain that, while there are plenty of chorus girls, few of them are able to sing. Who ever heard of a chorus girl chosen on account of her voice?

The St. Louis chief of police has dug up an ordinance under which he has stopped the boys of that city from flying kites. Shades of Ben Franklin! And St. Louis the home of aeronautics, too!

Maybe Peary thought he had to start at once if he wanted to succeed in discovering the north pole before the perfect airship made a trip from America to Europe by way of the north pole scenic route.

Scientists predict a great increase in lunacy with the development of aerial navigation. They probably got a tip from the girls who are anxiously looking forward to airship trips in the light of the nocturnal orb.

As the result of a practical joker pulling a chair from under a boy at a place of public amusement in Philadelphia the other day, the boy is likely to be crippled for life. Such jokes as this are criminal, and the practical joker should be severely punished.

A writer in the North American Review declares that there are regiments of young men, fresh from school and college, who, knowing amperes, ohms and volts, can tell you all about the lights in your house, but not one word about the lights in the sky. And it isn't because the young men regularly go to bed at sundown, either.

The horses in the postoffice department at Washington are to be given 30 days' vacation in pasture with their board paid. According to the opinion of the local authorities, the horses who are valuable in the department work, deserve this vacation as well as the persons who receive 30 days' vacation and 30 days' sick leave.

Those uneasy Central American nations are getting all tangled up again. It may be in order to remind them of the agreement to be good into which they entered some months ago. And the United States and Mexico, in the capacity of staid older brothers, may feel called upon to administer a gentle admonition as to the advantages of behaving themselves.

To say that anything is "as blue as a sapphire," is to make use of an incorrect comparison. Sapphires are not exclusively one color. The sapphires of Ceylon vary from a soft blue to a peacock blue, which last is practically a green. There is also a red sapphire, sometimes called a Ceylonese ruby. Further, many fine sapphires are yellow and white.

SPEND ENORMOUS SUMS.

Harrison County Spends Half Million for Public Good.

Logan.—In addition to individual labor and township appropriations, Harrison county for the year ending June 30, has expended $13.424.26 to improve the public roads.

To reclaim 70,000 acres of swamp and lands subject to overflow the farmers and land owners on the Missouri bottoms in Monona and Harrison counties will expend $465,000. At the present rate of progress it is thought that this engineering drainage project will reach completion about July, 1909.

One hundred and one thousand dollars are to be expended by the land owners along the Soldier river in the future for protection against floods and to reclaim about 40,000 acres of land. This drainage project was planned by J. S. Wattles and accepted by the board of supervisors July 22, and it is expected that the project will be completed at the close of the coming year; $40,396 has been expended in the construction of the Allen creek ditch, which has its origin in Harrison county and termination in Pottawattamie county; $28,576.35 has been expended in the construction of the Willow creek ditch of Harrison and Pottawattamie counties; $14,266.75 has been expended in the construction of Boyer river cut off No. 1; $45,492 for Boyer river cut off No. 2, both of Pottawattamie county. Allen creek and Willow creek and the two cut offs are engineering projects planned to reclaim about 60,000 acres of swamp lands subject to overflow in Harrison and Pottawattamie counties. Forty thousands dollars has been recommended by Seth Dean to straighten the Boyer river east and north of Missouri Valley. Number of acres to be benefited 6,883.

As these tracts of land to be reclaimed and to be protected against overflows are of unsurpassed fertility, producing, when unaffected by floods, from 75 to 100 bushels of corn per acre, and as corn is now selling at 75 cents per bushel, and as the cost of reclamation is but a small part of one crop, it may be easily understood why the men who own the respective tract of land are pushing the drainage project.

In addition to the improvement of the public roads, the reclamation of large tracts of swamp and land subject to overflow, Harrison county is to have a new $100,000 court house. The present building was erected in 1876, and is now so wanting in vault capacity that the in the offices of the auditor, recorder, clerk and treasurer, a large per cent of the books of record are outside the vaults both day and night and without fire protection.

MAKE DENATURED ALCOHOL.

Marengo Distillers Organize Company to Build a Plan.

Marengo.—Marengo is to have the first plant for the manufacture of denatured alcohol to be built in this or any other western state. Charles R. Cooper of Milwaukee has succeeded in interesting a number of local citizens in the enterprise and an organization has been effected with H. H. Brimmer as president, J. C. Baker as secretary, and H. E. Oldaker as treasurer. They are incorporating with $10,000 capital, all of which has been secured. They are now awaiting plans for their building, which will be erected on ground purchased of Mr. Brimmer just west of the greenhouse west of town. They expect to be ready for business in a few months. The capacity of the plant will be 200 gallons a day. The products they will use will be grain, fruits and vegetables.

MEN ESCAPE JAIL.

Two Prisoners Get Away Successfully at Ottumwa.

Ottumwa.—A daring jail delivery was perpetrated when William Day, colored, and Stanley Wiley, white, at the point of a revolver got away from the Wapello county jail.

The men escaped just at supper time. Just as the door to the cage in which the two men were confined was opened to hand them their suppers, Day drew a revolver and pointed it at John Smith and B. Wyatt, two trustees, who brought the meal, rushed upon them, and he and Wiley made their escape.

The police are searching the town for them, and an effort is being made to find the party who smuggled the revolver into Day. This is the third delivery at the jail in the past six weeks.

COLLINS MAN DISAPPEARS.

Creamery Proprietor Leaves Creditors to Mourn.

Nevada.—Frank Heahl, late proprietor of the Collins creamery, is gone. With him has gone the cash of a number of creditors, and up has sprung a mystery. Meahl left on the 8th after having disposed of most of his Collins property and made arrangements to open up a creamery at Cambridge. His present location does not appear to be public property yet, and his going was evidently not long premeditated.

He had sold his creamery property, horse and buggy and some other personal property and was making all preparations to leave for Cambridge, and just why he so suddenly disappeared from sight is a mystery. His creditors got out an attachment and levied on such property as they could find left in Collins.

The next day after he left he mailed the balance of wages due to his assistant and the money he owed on board, in currency from a Great Western train, but said nothing about his whereabouts or intentions.

He has butter and other property on hand which will more than liquidate his indebtedness. His disappearence is a seven day wonder in the little town of Collins.

BUYS MORE EQUIPMENT.

Iowa Central Lets Contract for $612,050 Worth.

Marshalltown.—The Iowa Central Railway company has let, or is about let, contracts for new equipment, both both motive power and rolling stock, that aggregate a sum of $512,050, a little over a half million.

Included in the contracts already let are six mogul engines from the Baldwin Locomotive works, two Baldwin switch engines, 200 60,000 capacity box cars of the latest pattern; 250 80,000 capacity gondola cars all let to the Mt. Vernon Car company, of Mt. Vernon, Ill. General Purchasing Agent Fred Wing has also received bids for thirteen new cabooses and fifty steel side cars to let ,contracts for new equipment soon.

The Mt. Verron company has promised to begin work on the cars within thirty days, and turn them out at a rate of twenty-five per day. The new equipment is being purchased to make ready for fall business, which the company anticipates is to be exceedingly heavy.

AUTOISTS MUST STOP.

Must Recognize Rights of Horse Drivers When Warned.

Des Moines.—Superintendent Hamery will compel autoists to stop their cars when a person, riding or driving a shy horse, raises his hand. And every copper will be given special light on the state law to aid him in educating the horse users to exercise their rights. The section that gives horsemen this peculiar authority to stop any auto when necessary, any place in the state, was brought to Hamery's attention by Councilman MacVicar, who drives a horse.

Hamery will tell the coppers to enforce the law. He will take up the cause of horsemen and educate them in their rights.

Mayor Schunk Will Quit.

Dubuque.—Mayor Schunk, of Dubuque, has announced that the liquor house which bears his name would be closed up for good and that he is through with the liquor business for all time. Recently an injunction was granted against the plant which bears his name on several grounds, among them the fact that it had been kept open on election day. It was claimed that Mayor Schunk was not operating the place; it was in his wife's name.

Prank Results in Death.

Dyersville.—Ben Lichtenberg, a young farmer of Petersburg, is dead at his home at that place as the result of playing in the harvest field. He was showing a friend how he could jump from one load of barley to another, and the heavy wagon passed over his body, causing injuries from which he died.

Notorious Man Is Killed.

Ottumwa.—Ben Woods, a notorious cocaine "doctor" of "Smoky Row" was run down by a Burlington switch engine and instantly killed. His body was severed at the hips. Woods was 55 years old, and leaves a wife and two children in Sigourney.

GETTING TIPS FOR TEDDY!

AEROPLANE IS WRECKED

WRIGHT TRIES NEW METHOD OF DESCENT AT LE MANS.

Frame of Machine Torn—Accident Follows Some Remarkable Flights.

Le Mans, France. — The Wright aeroplane suffered an accident Thursday which will require several days and possibly a week to repair.

After two superb flights Wilbur Wright essayed a new and daring method of descent. He stopped the motor at a height of 75 feet and tried to come to earth on a gradual descending glide. The calculations were not absolutely correct and the left wing of the aeroplane came in contact with the ground. This tore the frame of the machine. Mr. Wright was not injured.

Mr. Wright said he did not regard the accident as serious, and explained that these were only incidental experiences devoted to acquiring complete mastery of the difficulties of aviation and the execution of new maneuvers.

Mr. Wright's first flight Thursday eclipsed all his former efforts. He made seven complete tours of the field over the tops of the trees. According to the official time he was in the air eight minutes and 53 seconds. The aeroplanist was incommoded by a 15-mile breeze, but in spite of this he showed greater facility in maneuvering than he did when there was a dead calm. His landing was easy and successful in every way.

Mr. Wright's second flight, which lasted two minutes, was a novel one. The aeroplanist soared and descended at will, executing bewildering turns. Suddenly, as viewed from the grandstand, the machine lost its speed and began curving slowly toward the earth. All appeared to be going well until it was tilted to leeward and the delicate frame-work struck the ground, with the result that it was damaged and torn.

Mr. Wright calmly stepped out and examined the wreck. He was quickly surrounded by anxious friends, to whom he explained that there had been no accident in the air, but that he had merely decided to try a new descent. He shut off the motor at a height of 75 feet and endeavored to float downward.

DISASTER IN FRENCH NAVY.

Six Men Killed on Gunnery School Ship Couronne.

Toulon.—Six persons were killed and 18 injured in a gun explosion aboard the gunnery school ship Couronne Wednesday off Les Salins d'Hyeres.

The accident occurred while a number of recruits were receiving instructions in handling a 164-millimeter gun, the breech of which blew out. Three of those wounded are in a desperate condition.

Acquitted on Fifth Trial.

Roanoke, Va.—The fifth trial at Floyd courthouse of John Richards, the Floyd county school teacher charged with the murder of his rival in love, Maurice K. Francis of Roanoke, ended Friday in acquittal. The first, second and fourth trials resulted in disagreements. The third trial resulted in conviction of murder in the first degree and Richards was sentenced to be hanged. The supreme court granted a new trial.

ever quite knew how it was that Vincent with me, except that we needed a holiday at the same and the same kind of holiday ap- to us both. Vincent's whole and title is Lord Wilfred Vin- for he is the younger son of the uke of Totten. Men of his own all him "Freddy," but I call him nt or Wilfred, because I con- curtailed appellations undignified. nt is an artist—that is, he calls lf one; his friends call him "a er in art." He doesn't really go it seriously, you know, but he ittle sketches of cows and that of thing rather well I fancy. So greed that our aim was to find le old village, far away from on, and get rooms in some old house. My idea was that Vincent go out and paint the cows while uld lie in the hammock and the ady would bring me buttermilk. red had an idea that he, too, d like to spend a good bit of his in a hammock, but with this dif- ce, that the old lady's beautiful hter was to bring him lemonade. I pointed out to him that the reason that I was running away town was to get rid of the tantes, and therefore he'd have to the fair ones out of our air castle. r plan was just to bask in Nature, e had six weeks to bask in. The gn office doesn't seem to require of Wilfred's time and he doesn't nything else except "dabble." Of e, being a younger son, he hasn't lling of his own, but the old duke s him a comfortable allowance, use he dotes on Wilfred as much e detests his eldest son, Edmund, heir to the dukedom. So, when ent complained of feeling "all run " it was easy for him to get six s off, although, as I tell him, he been getting "six weeks off" ever e he left Oxford, two years ago. sn't 24 yet.

evertheless, Vincent is one of the little chaps in the world. I don't that he is undersized, for he ds six feet two in his stockings; is so good natured, so jolly and ble and straight—well—just natur- nice, don't you know—that every- is "just crazy about him," as the rican girl I met last summer used ay, and all the men, young and old e, have gotten to calling him "lit- Vincent" or "Freddy" from his days, just by way of endearment. course, I'm much older than Vin- —to be more exact, there's a mat- of 12 or 15 years between us—but st say I can't help being drawn im. I've known him ever since he born, and then, you see, we're Oxford men, belong to the same s, and, of course, Terhune is as name as Vincent, even if it hasn't handle to it, and, if I do say it, e's never a dinner given in Lon- town that Archibald Terhune is invited. But, somehow, in this, my h season, I became utterly weary he limelight, the dinners, the balls, match-making mammas (for I am "eligible bachelor"), and, most of the debutantes, with their edu- d smiles and cultivated stares. I that I must flee from London to pe, and thus, as Vincent is al- s ready for a holiday, we found elves one fine day well started on journey. We had taken the noon n for Kingsbridge, and changing e were to go on to Cuppstone, h an artist friend of Vincent's had mmended to us as just the place were looking for.

Jolly lark this," said Vincent, after had been some time on our way; y hope Cuppstone and Damer's n will be what we want. Graham ked it up to the skies."

That's the trouble," I complained; en a thing's talked up too much sure to disappoint one."

Wait till you see it, old pessimist!" Vincent, with a cheerful grin. got cows which provide butter- and art, and I've got some lem- in my grip for the lemonade. The thing that troubles me is the lady's beautiful daughter. I'm id she'll be a minus quantity." n he put his feet across on my of the carriage and lit a nasty, lly, old pipe. That's the worst Vincent; he's so young he doesn't k how a thing like that may get one's nerves. But I wouldn't hurt feelings for anything, and so I had et him smoke.

bout three o'clock in the after- n, when we had left the comfort- carriages of the main line for ramshackle ones of the branch we came to a sudden stop in the ter of a big stretch of meadow d. A few miles away we could see the spires and roofs of a little village, and, what was more noticeable, a big castle, that stood on higher ground some distance above the town, but not far from where the train had stopped. I asked the guard what the trouble was, and he told me that something was wrong with the engine and it might be a couple of hours before we could go ahead.

Just as he finished his explanation Vincent, who had been looking out of the window with great interest, sprang to his feet and shook my shoulder excitedly. "Look there! Do you see them?" he cried, pointing at the beautiful meadows with their winding stream and gentle slopes.

"See what?" I demanded somewhat testily, adjusting my glasses and surveying the landscape without perceiving anything of unusual interest.

But Vincent, in a fever of haste, was kneeling and unstrapping his golf clubs. "Hooray," he cried, "Terhune, a golf course as I'm a sinner. Come on, we'll have some sport. The old train's due to wait an hour, anyhow."

I looked again, and, sure enough, I saw that at intervals the close-cropped grass was dotted with little red flags like sparks of fire on a carpet of green velvet. Vincent has many fads, but I think he is keener on golf than anything else. I was disgusted with him. "Vincent," I said with decision, "this is nonsense. You can wait till we get to Cuppstone to play golf. Graham said there were public links there."

"Yes, and he also said that it was the rottenest course he ever played over," said Vincent with some heat. "I made him admit it. And this one is a beauty. A private one, I'll wager. Look at that turf. It is just like velvet, my dear fellow—like velvet," and he swept a practiced eye over the wide green slopes.

Now, I am fond of the game myself within reason, and certainly the prospect was inviting, for I was tired of the confinement of the carriage and Vincent was most persuasive. I knew it was a foolish thing to do; the train might not stay so long as we expected and we might get left; and yet, as I say, it is hard to refuse Vincent anything. I unwillingly permitted him to get out my clubs.

"Whose links are these?" I asked the guard. "Do they belong to the castle?"

"Yessir," replied the guard. "They belong to Castle Wyckhoff, the family seat of Baron Wyckhoff. They're all dead now, though, all 'cept the Honorable Agatha, and she lives in the castle and owns all these acres, sir, all you can see," and the guard waved his hand grandiloquently toward the imposing old pile on the hillside and the green meadows stretching away far below it.

"She must have money," I said, reflectively. Vincent, meanwhile, was hunting in his grip for an atrocious red coat he wears when he golfs.

"Money?" repeated the guard. "Money? Lor' bless you, sir, she 'as millions an' millions. Her own father was Baron Wyckhoff, but 'e died when 'is darter were a little thing. 'E never 'ad a shilling, but 'er stepfather, that married Baroness Wyckhoff two years later, was H'american and 'ad more pounds than there is stones in that castle, sir, an' arter 'is wife died 'e 'ad the place built up again. An' now they're both dead, sir, and 'is stepdaughter, the Honorable Agatha, as 'er title is, sir, is heiress of all his millions and 'er mother's estate."

"She ought to marry," I said, still reflectively, and without any personal meaning.

The guard smiled knowingly. "There's many a one arter her, sir," he said; "but they don't seem to make no progress against 'er stepfather's will."

"Her stepfather's will?" I repeated, with interest. "Do you hear that, Vincent?"

But Vincent, his beloved coat at last found, was half out of the carriage. "Come on," he shouted, "we're wasting time." And I, perforce, was obliged to follow him, although the guard's story promised to be very interesting.

After we had played the first hole and I had won (I seldom win a hole from Vincent, so I was in a good humor) I told him what the guard had said. "So these grounds belong to the Honorable Agatha," I concluded, "and I have curiosity enough to wish that we might behold this mysterious lady."

But Vincent wasn't a bit excited; you can never depend upon him when he's playing golf. "Bosh!" he said; "I'd rather play on her links than see her. If she saw us she might put us off. I'll bet she's a crabbed old maid. I'm surprised at you, Terhune, with your romantic notions. I thought you'd left all that sort of thing behind you in London."

I felt myself reddening slightly, though I knew Vincent didn't mean anything, and was about to make some retort when he drove off unexpectedly, and I stopped in admiration of the clean, fast shot he made. It just cleared a natural bunker and sped on beyond.

AGATHA FIRST.

At that instant a discordant mixture of sound burst upon our ears, as that of a dog yelping and a vigorous scolding in a high but sweet feminine voice. With one accord we rushed up the gentle rise, and in the depression beyond we beheld one of the handsomest girls I had ever seen in my life. She was bending over a setter puppy and scolding him. The dog's yelps had subsided to a whimper and he was holding up one of his paws as if he had been hurt. "I told you not to come, Rudolph," she was saying, "and I told you to keep out of the way, and I told you you'd get hurt if you didn't."

She was a tall girl, but beautifully proportioned, and wore no hat on her mass of dark hair. When we got nearer we saw that her eyes were big and black, her profile perfect, and her coloring delightful.

Vincent capitulated at once and I let him make his impression first. He's the younger and it always seems a shame not to give such a promising boy a chance.

"I beg your pardon," he said, advancing and baring his head, so that the gold in his brown hair caught the sunlight, "but would you tell me if these are private links and to whom they belong? I fear we are trespassing?" He said this just as if I hadn't told him all about it.

The girl turned to him uncertainly; then she smiled a wide, jolly smile of good fellowship. I knew she would—they all do that at Vincent.

"Was that your ball?" she said, not heeding his question. "I'm very sorry. It hit my dog."

Vincent was all concern in a moment.

"What a shame," he said. "Did it hurt him?" and he knelt down to examine the dog's paw.

"Oh, no, Rudolph's all right," she answered; "but it spoiled your drive, and I'm sorry for that," and then she, too, knelt on the grass beside the dog.

I felt that it was time to step forward. "My dear young lady," I said—she couldn't have been more than 20, so I did not hesitate to address her thus—"My dear young lady, will you please tell us whether we are trespassing in using this court? To whom does it belong?" You see, I had to pretend ignorance to get more information. I have many of the intuitions that go to make up a great detective, and I had a presentiment that this girl was none other than the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff herself.

IN ONE TACTFUL UTTERANCE.

Great Man Broke Up the Most Profound Social Frost.

I was lately told a delightful story of a great statesman staying with a humble and anxious host, who had invited a party of simple and unimportant people to meet the great man. The statesman came in late for dinner, and was introduced to the party; he made a series of old-fashioned bows in all directions, but no one felt in a position to offer any observations. The great man, at the conclusion of the ceremony, turned to his host, and said, in tones that had often thrilled a listening senate: "What very convenient jugs you have in your bedrooms! They pour well!" The social frost broke up; the company were delighted to find that the great man was interested in mundane matters of a kind on which every one might be permitted to have an opinion, and the conversation, starting from the humblest conveniences of daily life, melted insensibly into more liberal subjects.—Arthur C. Benson, in Putnam's and the Reader.

Dene-Holes in England.

A large group of the singular excavations known as dene-holes was recently discovered in the forest between Woolwich and Erith. Their positions were indicated by cup-like depressions in the ground. Two of the holes have been explored. Each possesses a circular shaft about three feet in diameter, with holes in the sides, apparently intended for the support of ladders. The holes run down about 50 feet through earth, then pass through four or five feet of chalk, and expand into caverns 18 feet in height. Each cavern has six chambers, grouped radially round the bottom of the central shaft. This is the ordinary arrangement found in dene-holes, which have been thought by archeologists to be secret receptacles for the storage of grain used about the time of the Roman occupation of Britain, or earlier.

Ruskin as a Chess Player.

Many people may have overlooked the fact that Ruskin loved the game of chess. Some of his letters reveal this interest. He was at one time a constant visitor to Maskelyne & Cooke's entertainment, where he once played a game with "Psycho," and he tried his skill against other chess automata. "Indeed, it was a matter of pride to him," say his latest editors, "that he had obtained more than one victory over the famous Mephisto at the time when it was performing at the Crystal palace with considerable eclat. He was a vice-president of the British Chess association."

MAGNETIC BRAKE FOR TRAINS.

New Device, It Is Claimed, Can Be Applied by Hand.

A magnetic track-brake recently developed by the British Thomson-Houston Company is interesting because it may be applied by hand and is intended for service and emergency stops. Says the Tramway and Railway World (London), as abstracted in the Electrical Review (New York):

"The brake consists of two steel shoes, each formed of a number of poles placed so that they alternately become north and south poles when the current is passed through a single exciting coil. Excited in this way, the shoes are drawn down upon the rail midway between the wheels of the car with a force of several tons. Exciting current is furnished by the motors, running as generators, thus rendering the brake independent of the trolley circuit. Between the two shoes is connected a channel iron and a system of brake-levers and chains attached to brake spindles at each end of the car to enable the shoes to be pressed down upon the track by hand in the usual manner of track-brakes. It is intended to use the brake in this way for controlling the speed of the car on down grades, and for slowing up under usual conditions. When thus used the car can be stopped either by increasing the pressure due to the hand-lever, or by exciting the electromagnets. The thrust occasioned by the retarding action of the brake is taken by a tongue-shaped steel bracket, which is bolted to the truck and engages with jaws on the sides of the magnet. The wearing shoes of the brake are attached to the poles of the magnet, and the bolts may be renewed when necessary. The exciting coils are entirely inclosed in a water-tight case."

SMART TRICK OF CROW.

Gets His Breakfast Every Morning on a Fast Passenger Train.

Tales of the big gulls which accompany the army transports all the way in the long journey from San Francisco are not infrequent, but it has remained for a California crow to wear the laurel, says the San Francisco Call. If you pass Hornbrook any fine morning at 7:30 o'clock sharp and crane your neck out of the Pullman window up toward the sky you will observe a fine black devil of a crow sitting complacently in the topmost branches of an old pine, preening his feathers and apparently half asleep.

But he is far from being asleep. On the contrary, he is very much awake for he is keeping a bright lookout for train No. 14, whose smoke is visible every morning at this hour as it comes tearing along the road. As the cars approach the tree there is subdued stately flutter of two black wings Master Crow rises slowly into the air and picks up No. 14 with the abandon and ease of a crow hobo as it passes

He drops to the roof of the car as if it were his rightful home, and though the engineer has tried every way to play a joke on him by tooting the whistle, ringing the bell madly and making a general racket, the crow solemnly refuses to be dislodged. He is an old friend now and the passengers on the 7:30 have learned to look for him as regularly as they do for their morning papers.

Appetizers are thrown at him all the way to Siskiyou, which is reached at 8:45 o'clock, where his ebony majesty enjoys a royal meal, to which his acumen and perseverance have fairly entitled him.

Avoiding Accidents.

As an instance of the Great Eastern railway's elaborate precautions for the safety of travelers on its system, an English exchange says that at Broxbourne, for the purpose of advising the station signalman when a train has passed his down or up advanced starting signal, a rail contact is placed about 300 yards ahead of the respective advanced starting signals, and on the engine reaching the rail contact a bell is rung in the signal-box, and this bell continues ringing until the signal is replaced to danger.

MARRIED.

Rev. A. C. Lillie of Klemme, Iowa and Miss Almeda Struble of Spring Hill, Kansas were united in holy matrimony the evening of Aug. 5th, 1908 at the M. E. parsonage of Spring Hill, Kansas. The Rev. W. J. Mitchell the M. E. pastor officiated. Mr. Clifford and Miss Osa Williams both of Spring Hill, Kan. were the only guests present. After the ceremony the young couple with a few friends and relatives drove to the bride's home six miles south of Spring Hill where a delicious supper was served and all present seemed to enjoy themselves.

The young couple were both natives of Kansas and have grown up together.

Honors Easy.

People who were present smiled at the little passage of arms which took place between two young ladies at a luncheon recently. One of them, a bride, shaking hands in her characteristically cordial way, said to the other:

"I'm so glad to meet you! You have afforded me so very much amusement just lately."

"Amusement?" said the other.

"Oh, yes," went on the bride. "I've been through my husband's desk, and I've read all his old love letters. I found several very affectionate letters from you, and I enjoyed reading them, really, ever so much."

"I'm so glad you enjoyed them," purred the other. "But do come and see me very soon. Here is my card. I have the answers to all those letters and you might like to read them as well. Mr. X——'s letters are so much more affectionate than those I wrote to him. I know you'll enjoy reading them ever so much more than you did mine."

How He Hunted Bear.

A New York Irishman was visiting a friend in the Adirondacks and was taken with a desire to go hunting. Borrowing a gun from his friend he set off alone in search of game. Some time after his host heard a distant report of a gun. A few minutes later he heard some one shouting. From a window he spied, in the distance, his friend, hot-footing it for home, and behind him a bear, gaining at every step. Nearly spent, the pursued reached the door just in time to cry out:

"Quick, Mike! Quick! Open the door! I'm bringing him home aloive!"

"Have ye anny ancisters, Mrs. Kelly?" asked Mrs. O'Brien.

"An' what's ancisters?"

"Why, people you shprung from."

"Listen to me, Mrs. O'Brien," said Mrs. Kelly, impressively. "I come from the rale stock of Donahues, thot shpring from nobody. They shpring at thim!"

New Decorative Idea.

The hostes who wishes something different is asked to try using striped and fancy grasses, rushes and little wild foliage plants that grow in damp places and along streams. A table can be made very pretty with these, using no flowers. Try it.

EDITOR TIMES—

Dear Sir:

On our way to Munich we were told that all hotels were crowded since a continental fair is being held there from May till October this year. But in less than five minutes after we stepped from the train we were in our room. Munich has 557,000 inhabitants and is next to Berlin, the cleanest city we visited thus far. The streets are mostly wide and cemented. We made a trip to the fair grounds, to several museums, the palace of the vice regent and the Maximilian palace and monument. A goodly number of noted artists and sculptures live here and many of them live along the same street. We took a drive through the oldest part of the city where the streets are very narrow and crooked and many of the buildings are from 800 to 900 years old. Here also is situated the great university where more than 4000 students are annually in attendanca.

Our next stop was at Lindau which is built on a little island on the banks of lake Constance (Bodensee) but shortly before we reached this place we caught our first glimpse of the mountains. At first they were so dimly seen that one could not distinguish where the mountains ended and the clouds began. A strange feeling came over us as we drew nearer to these might towering rocks At Lindau, Germany, Austria and Switzerland corner. It is a pretty little place to stop. The lake is so quietly nestled among the mountains which encircle it with a number of small steamers on it to carry on the traffic between the small towns on its shores. It took us 70 minutes to cross it the next day and land us in Romanshorn. We were now on Swiss territory and after a short stop went on to Zurich. This is one of the central points for tourists. Tho' it is not so large having 170,000 inhabitants it has been called the "Athens on the Limmati." For many years the saying was: "Whom God loves, He gives a home in Zurich." The city lies in a valley with a mountain range on either side. Above the city is the Zurich lake, with the Limmati, as an outlet, flowing thru' the city. In primeval times the lake dwellers settled here as well as the Cetts and later on the Romans. There still stands a Rowan fortification, which was later converted into a German imperial palace. Sunday morning we attended the Grossmuenster church, which has stood nearly 1000 years. Here on this very spot, the Roman chief Decius ordered Felix and Regula the Thebans, to be beheaded because they introduced Christianity. In this church the catholics worshiped 500 years and since then the Protestants. We stood on the platform where the great Swiss reformer Zwingle, stood for the first time on New Year's day 1519 and continued as preacher for many years. We visited a number of other churches, the Swiss national museum, the Polytechnic school and university building, which cost two and one half million francs, and one of the art galleries. After a three days stop we started up into the mountains. We took our breakfast at Art Goldau, with the Rigi at our right towering at our right up into the sky, thousands of feet. After a few hours we went on to Brunnen, claimed to be the most romantic spot among the alps. It lies at an angle of lake Lucerne with the snow caped mountains around it towering nearly two mile high. As our ticket gave us the choice to go on by boat or rail we took the boat to Fluelen. After dinner we again took the train and after winding up the mountain for several hours, making three complete circles, in tunnels, each circle bringing us many feet higher, we were now at a dizzy height beside the valley when we entered the St. Gothard tunnel. It took our train 20 minutes to pass thru' the tunnel. We were now speeding down on the other side of the Alps and made our next halt at Bellenzona, where we took supper and went sight seeing several hours We were now beginning to feel the heat and as the evening was cooler to travel we changed our former plans and went on to Milan that evening.

As we crossed into Italy at Chiasso we had to pass thru' the custom house and for the first time we were in a land whose language we could not understand. The southern parts of Switzerland and northern part of Italy is a forsaken country. Houses and small villages dot the hill sides but many of them are empty. Every few miles along the mountain side stand churches, but most of them in a forlorn condition. Whole villages are depopulated and the buildings tumbling down. From Milau south for many miles the country is level as a floor. Here the harvest was passed and on a few places we saw a threshing machine at work, tho' most of the grain was threshed. In many fields they were cutting the stubbles with a hand sickle and taking them home. Others were gathering branches from the trees hauling them home for feed. The ground looked very dry and the whole country seemed covered with dust. Near Genoa the Appeniner mountains made their appearance and soon we were passing out of one tunnel and into the next. No one need make this trip for pleasure. For at least two hours we were of'ener in the tunnel than out. The sea shore was beautiful, but we only caught glimpses of it now and then. It did not take us long to see Pisa. Our coachman tried to explain some statues and buildings to us, but we only understsod one word out of twenty. The leaning tower and several old monasteries were all that interested here. Many of the streets look quite primeval. Women sat on the streets sewing or spinning, cobblers were making shoes, in the doorway, the butchers had whole beaves hanging in front of their shops and others were eating their meals on the streets. The odor filling the air from such living may be imagined. The streets are full of beggars and they are most imposing. As it is very hot down here we are passing thru' Italy as quickly as possible to get back to the mountains. A ten hour ride from Pisa landed us in the "Eternal City" of which we hope to tell you more in our next letter which we think will be interesting.

Sincerely,
Rev. G. H. Wessel.

BABY CRIED AND SCRATCHED

All the Time—Covered with Torturing Eczema—Doctor Said Sores Would Last for Years—Perfect Cure by Cuticura.

"My baby niece was suffering from that terrible torture, eczema. It was all over her body but the worst was on her face and hands. She cried and scratched all the time and could not sleep night or day from the scratching. I had her under the doctor's care for a year and a half and he seemed to do her no good. I took her to the best doctor in the city and he said that she would have the sores until she was six years old. But if I had depended on the doctor my baby would have lost her mind and died from the want of aid. But I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and she was cured in three months. Alice L. This woman says that after months of suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her as well as ever.

Maude E. Forgie, of Leesburg, Va., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from feminine ills so that I thought I could not live. I wrote you, and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and using the treatment you prescribed I felt like a new woman. I am now strong, and well as ever, and thank you for the good you have done me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Governor Makes Statement.

Des Moines.—Governor A. B. Cummins has issued a statement that he wishes to receive advice from members of all republican factions as to what he shall do in regard to the senatorial succession.

He says there will be no progressive conference to determine his action, but the probability is he will take no steps until after the general conference of republican leaders here August 25.

The governor's statement follows: "Hitherto I have not said a word for publication upon the senatorial matter, except a brief eulogy upon the life of Senator Allison, which I gave to a reporter in Chicago within an hour after I heard of his death. The time has come when I may, with propriety, put to rest some of the rumors which are current in the state.

"It has been stated that I will shortly call a conference or caucus of progressive republicans to consider the subject and to determine a policy to be pursued. I do not expect to bring any such conference or caucus together.

"Senator Allison's death has created certain questions of great importance which I must decide, not as a candidate for office, but as governor of the state.

"I want to decide these questions justly and wisely, and I want all the help I can get, whether from friend or from enemy. I have received many letters of advice, and I hope to receive many more. I have talked with many persons, some who have been friends and some who have been unfriendly, and I expect to talk with many more.

"I cordially invite help in the solution of the problems before me, whether from political supporters or political opponents; but when all is said that is to be said, and when the time comes to act, the decision will be my own, and I will take the whole responsibility for it.

"The matters to be decided have become a part of my duty as governor, and in performing that duty my first concern will be to promote the cause of good government and the welfare of all the people, and my second concern will be to serve, as best I can, the interests of the political party of which I am a member."

Want Legislature Called.

Dave Brant, in the Iowa City Republican, has indorsed the idea of having an extra session of the legislature to amend the primary law so that the republicans of the state may settle the senatorial succession at the time of the general election.

This expression from Mr. Brant was coincident with the favorable expression to the same effect from the Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

Both the Nonpareil and the Republican have been in opposition to Governor Cummins. Close friends of the governor say their attitude is an indication that the standpatters believe the way to determine the senatorial succession without endangering the ticket at the polls in November is to follow this course.

Friends of the governor are said to be inclined now to advise him to call the extra session. At first a large majority of them wished him to resign and accept an appointment to the vacancy, but they appear to have changed front to the plan indorsed by Mr. Brant and the Nonpareil.

Voting Machines for Polk.

The Polk county board of supervisors will buy $35,750 worth of voting machines. This was decided at the meeting of the board when the order was given for a contract with the Standard Voting Machine company. This means that election returns will be in immediately upon the closing of the polls in future elections.

Fifty-five machines, enough for all the polling places in the county, can be purchased for $35,750. The machine that will be installed here will be a forty-key machine, costing $650 each and can be used at any election save the primary.

It takes a fifty-key machine to handle a primary election and in case the coming legislature changes the primary law so as to make voting by machine legal, the forty-key machines will be taken back by the company and a fifty-key machine, costing $50 more, substituted. This was the agreement entered into between the board and the representatives of the Standard company.

Censure Executive Council.

Many of the country newspapers of the state are assailing the executive council because it recently cut down the primary election expense bill filed with it by the county auditors.

In the process the executive council saved the state treasury about $25,000. The total expense to the state treasury, when the council got through cutting the bills, was slightly more than $80,000.

The primary law provides that half of the expense of the election shall be borne by the state and half by the counties. It provides that in each county "the board of supervisors of each county shall audit the entire expense and certify the same to the executive council, which shall thereupon order a warrant for one-half the amount to be delivered to the county, which shall thereupon pay the entire amount."

The objectors claim that the council has nothing to do but order the warrants drawn.

It was the theory of the state authorities that if the law had contemplated that the executive council had not the power to see that the expenses paid by it for the primary election were within the law, it would have provided that the auditor of state, the officer empowered by the law to drawn warrants, should have drawn the warrants for the primary election expense without their submission to the council.

The council has nothing to do with the drawing of warrants. Its sole duty is as an auditing board. The attorney general held it to be the duty of the executive council to review the expense accounts of the several counties relative to the primary election to the extent of determining whether the various items of expense were authorized by and within the law. Several other minor rulings were furnished by the legal department which are contained in the action of the executive council.

A very large item of the expense cut by the council was in the bills charged the counties for the publication of the election notices.

The Senatorial Vacancy.

While immediate political interest centers in the decision of Governor Cummins as to filling the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Allison, the politicians are giving much attention to the question of whether there will be a contest over the full term before the legislature of next January.

Governor Cummins has declined to discuss either question, and declines to be quoted with respect to the senatorial succession.

It is commonl understood, however, that a conference of the progressive republicans will be held in Des Moines probably the latter part of this week, with a view to discussing the governor, and it is supposed among politicians that he will then be prepared to make a statement with regard to his plans.

This would include announcement of his decision as to whether to resign or appoint temporarily or call a special session of the legislature to fill the vacancy; and an announcement as to his candidacy for the full term before the legislature next winter.

That the governor will be a candidate for the senatorship is taken for granted among the politicians. Whether he will plan to take the short term before being a candidate for the long term is not known, and it is believed that he, himself, has not yet reached a conclusion on the subject.

Carroll to California.

Auditor of State B. F. Carroll and Insurance Examiner John A. McKellar have gone to California in the interest of the policy holders in Iowa of the Pacific Mutual Life of Los Angeles.

This company is in no trouble and is perfectly sound. But there are questions of its relations to the policy holders in Iowa of some of the companies which it has absorbed which require the attention of the Iowa authorities, and which it is anticipated, will be easily settled without friction.

Boards of Health Confer.

Arrangements have been made for a joint meeting of the state and local boards of health at Des Moines, Oct. 15 and 16. The state board and Dr. E. W. Doolittle, president of the Health Officers' association, have agreed on this date for the meeting.

TROOPS KEEP PEACE IN ILLINOIS STATE CAPITAL.

4,200 MILITIAMEN IN CITY

Aged and Inoffensive Negro Lynched By Mob on Saturday Night.

Sprinfield, Ill., Aug. 17.—Two deaths from injuries received is previous mob fights, the attempted cutting of the fire alarm wires, the exoneration of Private J. B. Klein, company A, First Illinois infantry by a court of inquiry, for the killing of Earl Nelson at Kankakee on Saturday, and the pursuit of a mob by guardsmen, were the chief of yesterday's developments in the race war in Springfield.

The attempt to cut the telephone and fire alarm wires, leading into the city hall was not successful. A policeman saw three men on top of an outbuilding trying to reach the lines overhead. He turned in an alarm to the headquarters of General Wells, commanding a provisional brigade, and the latter dispatched a wagon load of soldiers to the scene. They arrived before the trio had done any damage. The would be wire-cutters fled, leaving their nippers behind. They escaped.

The court of inquiry which considered Private Klein's case, was composed of Major James Miles, Captains Jacob Judson and S. r. High, and Lieutenant F. D. Dunford, all of the First Illinois. After sitting all day they reported to Adjutant General Scott that Klein's act was performed in lineofduty Klein had been placed as one of a guard on the baggage car, on the first section of the Illinois Central train, which brought the infantry to sprinfield on Saturday.

The train was a special one and the baggage contained property owned by the state. Klein, guarding the front door, was instructed by Lieutenant Guilford, to allow no one not officially countenanced, to enter the car. At Kankakee, four young men, according to report, climbed to the front platform and all attempted to enter the car. Klein barred the way, using the only weapon visible, a bayonet. As the train started the four young men left the platform. Kelin was not aware that Nelson or any one had been injured States Attorney Cooper of Kankakee, probably will insitute action against Klein in the criminal court at Kankakee The attorney general of the state is compelled to defend national guardsmen in such case.

A genuine scare was caused at headquarters in the arsenal last night, after a squad had been sent to disperse a crowd at Allen and Spring streets. Five minutes later a report reached Lieutenant Colonel Eddy that shots had been fired in the threatened district. He immediaely sent a full platoon to the place to reinforce the squad. When the additional soldiers appeared the crowd broke and ran. The soluiers pursued them for several olocks and the district which is near the scene of last night's lynching, was in an uproar for a few minutes.

The arsenal was crowded last night with negro refuges from Springfield and surrounding towns. About 200 men, women and children sought the shelter of the building and slept on the floor or in chairs. Most of these people were old and infirm, but they endured the hardships of their quarter rather than face the prospect of passing the night in their homes, beset with momentary fears of attack.

The entire national guard of Illinois, with the exception of the Sixth infantry and Eighth infantry (negro) was on duty in the riot-ridden districts last night. In all 4,200 guardsmen are in the city.

AGED NEGRO LYNCHED.

Inoffensive Cobbler Victim of Race Prejudice.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—With one more victim added last night to the roll of fatally injured in the race riots which began here on Friday night, Springfield spent the night in anxiety.

The leader of the mob which wrecked Loper's cafe on Friday night was, it is claimed by the police, definitely discovered to have been a woman. She was arrested and gave her name as Kate Howard.

Last night's victim of race prejudice was William Donigan, a negro, 80 years old. Donigan was a cobbler and respected as a simple and inoffensive citizen. His shop was within two blocks of the state house. In the absence of a patrol, a mob set fire to the shop and the venerable negro was compelled by smoke to run to the street. His appearance was greeted by a shower of stones and bricks and as he staggered under the cut. A rope was then run through fusillade he was seized and his throa the wound and the victim bound to a tree. There he was found later, unconscious and all but dead. Dr. Tuttle, who dressed the wound, reported that death was a matter of hours.

IRA D. SANKEY DIES

FAMOUS SINGING EVANGELIST HAS PASSED AWAY.

BLIND AND BROKEN DOWN

He Wrote the Gospel Hymns of the World and Traveled with D. L. Moody for Many Years.

New York.—Ira D. Sankey, known as an evangelist throughout the Christian world, died Thursday night at his home in Brooklyn, but the news of his passing did not become generally known until Friday. Mr. Sankey was 68 years old.

For the last five years he had been blind and had suffered from a complications of diseases brought on by overwork. But almost to the very last he worked at hymn writing. His tours throughout this country and Europe with Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, brought him into wide prominence.

Sankey, it might be said, wrote the gospel hymns of the world. In China, Egypt, India, Japan, in almost every language known to man, Sankey's hymns are sung. He received a large income from his publications and leaves a considerable estate. Among Mr. Sankey's most familiar compositions are "The Ninety and Nine," and "When the Mists Have Rolled Away." His songs are said to have had a circulation of more than 50,000,000 copies.

He was a rapid composer and wrote book after book of gospel hymns. During the last five or six years of his life he was interested in preparing and publishing the story of the gospel hymns. At the same time he saved his wonderful voice for posterity by singing into phonographs. The records were sent all over the world.

Sankey first met Moody at a Y. M. C. A. convention in Indianapolis. Moody was so charmed with the young man's voice that he urged him to accompany him on his evangelistic tours. Sankey explained that he was married and could not give up his position. "You must come," said Moody; "I can't get along without you." Sankey consulted his wife and they cast in their lot with Mr. Moody. They visited Great Britain from 1873 to 1875, and again in 1883, and made many tours throughout the United States.

PITTSBURG MAN DEFRAUDED.

Invests $600 in Faro Game and Has Dealer Arrested.

New York.—A story of a faro game at high stakes in a luxuriously furnished private dwelling in the fashionable section of the upper West side was disclosed Thursday at the hearing of Martin Phillips, who was arrested, charged with larceny. Phillips was arraigned in the West side court and was held in $1,500 for trail.

Neville R. Moxley, formerly of Pittsburg, Pa., who gave his present address as this city, was the complainant, alleging that he lost $600 in a faro game dealt by Phillips. In his story to the court, Moxley said he came to New York to work "a system" with Phillips. Moxley said Phillips wrote to him saying they could make $2,000 out of Phillips' employer. Moxley, it was alleged, was to put the necessary money and to get 60 per cent. of the proceeds, the remaining 40 per cent. to go to Phillips. Moxley said he came to this city with $600, to which Phillips added $300, saying that much was needed to work the "system." When the magistrate asked Moxley if he did not know the arrangement he had entered into was illegal. Moxley hesitated and he was severely lectured by the court for his part in the matter.

BIG BENEFIT FOR CY YOUNG.

Dr. Gustave A. Eisengraeber, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. S. A. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."

Dr. J. E. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."

Dr. R. E. Eskildson, of Omaha, Neb., says: "I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known and I recommend it."

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

Novel Flower Party.

At an afternoon party given for 15 or 20 girls, each was requested to come wearing something to indicate a "flower." It certainly was a regular "flower garden of girls" that assembled on the broad flower decked porch. The hostess gave out little hand-painted flower shaped booklets for the guesses to be written in and a prize of a huge bouquet of asters was awarded to the girl who guessed the most and a box of marshmallows to the one having the least correct guesses. Some of the representations were exceedingly clever; a row of pins conspicuously worn on the front of the gown was "rose," several pink bows of huge proportions was "pinks," while a button fastened on with a nail was "bachelor's button;" a girl resplendent in silver stars proudly said she was a whole bouquet of "asters."

Space forbids giving any more examples, but it will be readily seen how this idea could be adapted to almost any entertainment. Ice cream was served in individual "flower" molds.

Riddles.

Here is a most ingenious riddle by Bishop Wilberforce which will afford keen amusement arranged as a contest. At the head of the paper write: "I am a singular piece of mechanism, as every one admits;" then write the following questions:

15—The steps of a hotel.
16—The sides of a vote.
17—Fine flowers.
18—A fruit.
19—Two scholars.
20—Two places of worship.
21—Ten Spanish noblemen to wait upon me.
22—A way out of difficulty.
23—A poor bed.
24—A desert place.
25—A probable remark of Nebuchadnezzer when eating grass.

ANSWERS.

Emergency Outfits.

Every household should have an emergency outfit made up of clean linen rags or sterilized gauze, a roll of absorbent cotton, several rolls of bandages, from one-half to two and a half inches wide (each roll containing about five yards), a spool of adhesive plaster a half inch wide, an ounce of boracic acid powder, a two or three ounce bottle of carbolic acid, a bag of clean salt, a cake of clean aseptic soap, a bottle of lysol, a clean, white porcelain washbowl, clean towels, a piece of stout new muslin bandage about a yard long, smooth stick 18 inches long and a half inch in diameter, a graduate measuring glass. Besides these, two fomentation cloths a yard wide by two yards long.

All these should be made clean and sterile, or free from germs and wrapped in a clean sheet, and then in a square of clean, new mackintosh, and then placed where they can be gotten at at once.—The Housekeeper.

THINKS IT SAVED HIS LIFE.

Lester M Nelson of Naples, Maine, says in a recent letter. I have used Dr. King's new Discovery many years for coughs and colds and I think it saved my life. I have found it a reliable remedy for throat and lung complain's and would no more be without a bottle than I would be without food. For nearly forty years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventive of pneumonia and healer of weak lungs it has no equal. A Paris man who remained in the air with a flying machine for 20 minutes gets a prize of $2,000 awarded to the aeroplane that should float for a quarter of an hour or longer. It may seem a very important matter in England, where court and official etiquette is an overwhelming issue, but it does look silly in American eyes to hear these grave speculations as to whether a long and brilliant naval career is to be closed because an admiral at a social function doesn't want to shake hands with a member of the cabinet.

Cactus, instead of petroleum, is the mosquito exterminator that is being tested by the sanitary authorities of Gaboon, French Africa. The thick, pulpy leaves are cut up and macerated in water, and the sticky paste so formed is spread over stagnant pools, giving the isolating layer that destroys the mosquito larvae by preventing them from coming up to breathe.

An Italian captain recently navigated his ship up the Tiber, from Ostia to Rome, in order to attract attention to the necessity of dredging the river and developing the old port at its mouth. He touched ground several times, and had to wait till the rain raised the water in the river before he could return to the sea. The harbor at Ostia was not very good even in the days of the Caesars, but modern engineering skill might find a way to prevent it from filling up with silt.

A year or more ago it was decided, as a measure of economy in time, to omit stamping letters on the back with the name of the receiving station and the time of receipt. The brief trial has not resulted satisfactorily, and at the instance of business men of New York, and of Postmaster Morgan of that city, the department has decided to return to the old practice. The back stamp was a useful check upon the speed and accuracy of postal employes.

Events of Recent Occurrence Throughout the Commonwealth.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

Two Hundred Guests Pay Respects to Aged Couple.

Centerville.—iFfty years of wedded life were completed for ex-Attorney General A. J. Baker and his wife on the evening of the 19th. The event was fittingly celebrated at a reception tendered to the people of Centerville at Maywood, the Baker home which was attended by fully 200 guests. Eight children and nineteen grandchildren, with the exception of two, were present of the immediate family. The celebration was the biggest social event Centerville has enjoyed for many aday. There were gifts given the happy couple.

General and Mrs. Baker were married in Winterset, Iowa, August 19, 1858, and have been prominent in Iowa for over fifty years. There have been eight children and nineteen grandchildren born in that time and but one death in all those years, a little grandson.

General Baker has been prominent in Iowa for over fifty years, having been practicing law more than that length of time. He was twice elected attorney general of Iowa, and once of Missouri; he practised law in Winterest, Leon, Ottumwa and Centerville Iowa; in Lancaster and St. Louis, Mo., and in Tacoma, Wash. He was a law partner for several years with the Hon. T. P. Shonts, here in Centerville several years ago. He was the first dean of the faculty of the Drake University law school and was attorney for the M. I. & N. railroad and the Great Western, during the period of construction of these roads He is past grand master of the Iowa Odd Fellows and has been chancellor commander of the local K. of P. lodge.

The general is a native of West Virginian while Mrs. Baker was born in Ohio, and they both came to Iowa sixty years ago. Mr. Baker is a veteran of the Civil War, having served as first Lieutenant in the Seventeenth Iowa regiment until he was forced to resign on account of ill health. In recent years he has been stronger than for some time and unusually strong for a man of his years, having passed his seventy-sixth milestone.

WHINERYS HOLD REUNION.

Fourteenth Annual "Session" of One of Iowa's Largest Families.

Bangor.—The fourteenth annual reunion of the Zimri Whinery association, which comprises in its membership one of the largest family gatherings in the state, was held here on the 18th, and was largely attended. Mrs. F. W. Galloway of Marshalltown was elected secretary to succeed the late Mrs. J. P. Kirk. The other officers are: Samuel Whinery, Marshalltown, president; A. E. Hollingsworth of this place, vice president, and Nathan Kirk of Bangor, treasurer. Marshalltown was chosen as the place of reunion in 1909. The only two surviving children of Zimri Whinery who was one of the early settlers of this township, are Samuel Whinery of Marshalltown and Mrs. Sarah Jane Hollingsworth of Bangor. Both were present. There were ten children in the original family.

Creston Chautauqua Paid.

Creston.—The Chautauqua management announce that after all bills against the association are paid for the season of 1908, and that will include about $150 for permanent improvements, besides the new auditorium, that there will be a cash balance in the treasury of $200. By special agreement, stockholders are not entitled to any of the cash balance, but it is all to be used for park improvements.

Hospital Corner Stone Laid.

Des Moines.—The cornerstone to the large west side addition to Mercy hospital was laid at 1:30 p. m. on the 21st. Father Mulvihill, pastor of the St. John's church, blessed the stone. Many interesting articles were placed in the cornerstone box. The addition of this wing to Mercy hospital will almost double the capacity of the institution, which has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in the west. Great credit is due to the Sisters for the success of Mercy hopital.

Heat Kills $1,000 Hog

Creston.—H. U. Hainlaine, of New Orient, brought a $500 hog to the fair grounds to enter in exhibition at the coming fair. As the afternoon was so intensely warm, the animal became overheated in transit and it died during the night. Mr. Hainlaine estimates his loss at $1,000.

FACES FRAUD CHARGES.

Creditors Declare Bankrupt Stock Man Misrepresented Business.

Des Moines.—Louis R. Hough and his financial troubles found their way into the district court when J. O. Piles & Company, of Oakland, started suit against the Century Savings Bank to recover $2,800 deposited there by Hough as receipts for sales of hogs which they made to him just before the crash.

The petition charges that Hough secured the hogs by fraud in that he represented that he was making money fast, when instead he knew himself to be insolvent. The amount asked is that on three cars of animals and the plaintiff avers that he chose to rescind the sale.

But his $2,800 isn't all that Piles claims Hough owes him because of alleged fraud. He says there were five other cars that Hough bought from him after he knew he was flat broke. Before Referee Ethridge at the Hough hearing Piles averred that he asked Hough why he had not made a remittance. To this, he said, Hough replied.

"Well, really I've been so busy with the enormous business that we do here to properly attend to that. But you needn't speak of it again, for we shall be much more prompt hereafter."

So Piles now claims $7,500 as due him, and which he wishes to make preferred because he sold hogs worth that to Hough upon the latter's statement that he was financially sound when he was $35,000 in the hole.

Saturday afternoon the hearing on petitions of intervention in the L. R. Hough bankruptcy matter, was ended and the shorthand notes will be transcribed and forwarded to Judge Smith McPherson. Creditors testified again that Hough made them believe that he was prospering when, in fact, he was on the verge of bankruptcy. No decision is expected from Judge McPherson for several weeks, and many of those who heard the evidence are of the opinion that Hough will never secure a discharge.

EXPERIMENT IN OILING ROAD.

Auto Club to Undertake Work When Road is Ready.

Council Bluffs.—Messrs, J. E. Hollenbeck, John Davis and S. S. Elliot, the committee appointed by the newly organized automobile club to investigate the matter of oiling a section of road along upper Pierce street and McPherson avenue, say that the work will be started as soon as possible. The committee was accompanied on a trip of inspection by Col. W. F. Baker, who has agreed to put the road into condition for oiling. Col. Baker said recently that he would not superintend the work. The citizens Gas and Electric company have agreed to furnish enough oil to cover a mile of road if the club will put it on. It is estimated that the cost of the oil will be about $300. With the application of this amount it is thought there will be a stratum fully six inches deep of oiled surface.

MAY CLOSE WIDE OPEN CITY

Clinton's Boast May Be Ended Through Law Enforcement.

Clinton.—Clinton, the "widest open town in the Mississippi Valley", as it is called, may not be so wide open in the future. Taking fright at rumors and murmurings heard about the city, to the effect that there will be things doing if the saloonkeepers do not obey the mulct law more strictly, the keepers of saloons held a meeting and decided to "come under" that law by closing their places of business at 10 o'clock at night, and keeping them closed on Sunday. An enthusiastic meeting of all of the young people's societies of the Clinton churches was held recently, when a temperance society of larger proportions than has ever been existent in Clinton, was formed. The object is to create a wide spread sentiment on which to work in an impending crusade against the liquor traffic in Clinton.

River Traffic is Great.

Burlington.—The Diamond Joe Packet line, running steamers from St. Louis to St. Paul and intermediate points reports a phenomenal passenger business for this seaon. Usually there is a shortage on pasengers during the hot weather, but at this time the through and short line packets are crowded to their capacity. It is considered a good omen of improved business conditions throughout the Mississippi valley.

If the Simple-Minded Old-Timer Had But Known the Ways of Mo Tourists!

CONGO TREATY IS PASSED

BELGIAN DEPUTIES ADOPT THE ANNEXATION MEASURE.

Atrocities in King Leopold's African Realm Now Probably Will Come to an End.

Brussels.—After several months of bitter struggle, the chamber of deputies Thursday adopted the Congo annexation treaty by 83 votes to 55, and although this action probably will insure the solution of the great Congo problem, there still remains open the important question of Belgium's financial responsibility.

This action on the part of the chamber had not been expected and at the last moment nearly caused the collapse of the cabinet. The colonial bill, which also was adopted, was amended so as to relieve Belgium of the responsibility of guaranteeing the payment of interest on the Congo debt, despite the efforts of the government.

At the conclusion of a long meeting of King Leopold and the members of his cabinet it was announced that the ministry would not resign, the government temporarily accepting the chamber's action on the financial question.

The passage of the Congo treaty means that the annexation of the state to Belgium is now practically assured, as the senate and King Leopold are ready to indorse the bill. The personal rule of King Leopold in Africa is now drawing to a close—in the future he will have nothing to do with the state which is to be administered by Belgium—and the hope is wide-spread that there will now be an end to the atrocities and maladministration in this part of the world which, for years past, has been a subject of investigation and bitter complaint by humanitarians all over the world.

Last year Great Britain and the United States about decided to interfere in the Congo administration unless the situation there improved.

DECAYED MONEY REDEEMED.

Arkansas Man Loses Only $25 of $10,000 He Buried.

Washington.—Of $10,000 in decayed greenbacks sent to the treasury department for redemption by O. D. Earl of Morrilton, Ark., all but $25 has been identified and a check for $9,975 was mailed to Mr. Earl Friday.

Fearing the banks were unsafe, Mr. Earl buried his savings in an old pail in 1904. Recently he dug up his treasure only to find that the bills were so decayed that he could not discern their numbers. All that was left of the roll was a bunch of paper resembling a package of dried leaves, with here and there the torn end of a note displaying a figure. Mrs. A. E. Brown, the burnt money expert of the redemption division, was given custody of the unrecognizable mass. After much tedious work she succeeded in identifying most of the money.

John V. Farwell Is Dead.

Chicago. — John V. Farwell, Sr., for years one of Chicago's best known men and head of the J. V. Farwell company, wholesale dry goods, died Thursday night at his home in Lake Forest, aged 83 years. He had been ill a long time, and relatives and friends were at his bedside when the end came.

Mr. Farwell was born at Campbelltown, N. Y., in 1825 and came to Chicago in 1845. Three sons, John V., Frank C. and Arthur L. Farwell, survive him.

JOHNSON IS NAMED.

Minnesota Democrats Renominate Governor.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The Democratic state convention met Wednesday in Minneapolis and after a scene of indescribable tumult, caused by the mention of his name and which continued for 64 minutes, Gov. John A. for a second time was nominated for re-election.

This action of the convention was contrary to his wish, since he had repeatedly refused to be a candidate and declared that if nominated the campaign would be carried on without the general. His secretary, Frank A. Day, said he had no knowledge of the governor's intention and refused to make a prediction as to what his course might be.

In the roll call of counties Adams yielded to Ramsey and Mayor Lane of St. Paul began his eulogistic speech. At the first mention of Gov. Johnson's name the delegates forgot his repeatedly-expressed objection to be considered and went into a frenzy of enthusiasm.

Owing to the unsettled condition of the minds of the delegates at the opening of the convention regarding the entire ticket it was decided that a committee, to be composed of one member from each judicial district, make recommendations for the filling of all places on the ticket except that of governor.

The following recommendations were made by this committee and adopted by the convention:

Lieutenant governor—Julius A. Reiter of Rochester.

Secretary of state—Richard Lamb of Clayton.

State treasurer—Henry F. Nelson of Nibbing.

Attorney general—M. E. Matthews of Marshall.

Railway and warehouse commissioners—Hans P. Bjorge of Ottertail county, Robert Nee of Rice county.

FLEET ARRIVES AT SYDNEY

Half a Million Australians Greet American Battleships.

Sydney, N. S. W.—Early Thursday morning a thin veil of smoke on the horizon signaled to the watchers on the coast the approach of the American warships, and at 5:35 official notification was sent out that the fleet had been sighted.

Fully half a million people assembled on the shores of the beautiful harbor to welcome the battleships which as they passed through the Sydney heads in double column were attended by convoy steamers and greeted with a roar of salutes from the forts. The American salute boomed forth a salute to the port as soon as they were safely moored in their anchorage, official visits were exchanged.

Lunatic's Blow Kills.

Peoria, Ill. — William Flinn from Chicago, the negro insane tuberculosis patient whose skull was fractured by a fellow inmate of the tent colony at the general insane asylum at South Bartonville Thursday morning, died Friday, his brain being so seriously injured from the blows with a hammer in the hands of the crazed assailant that fragments of bone were driven deep into it.

Fire Sweeps a Village.

Bellingham, Wash.—A forest fire Thursday night nearly wiped out the little town of Bow, ten miles south of here. The saw and shingle mill and drying kilns owned by Daniel Cole with half a million shingles were destroyed, as well as five cottages belonging to the mill company.

SYNOPSIS.

d Wilfred Vincent and Archibald une are introduced at the opening of tory, in England, the latter relating tale. The pair on an outing miss train and seeking recreation meet Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff."

is proved to be the case. As I essed myself to her the girl rose dignity and replied: "I am the orable Agatha Wyckhoff and I these grounds. So, you see, you are passing."

ut her tone was laughing and her ression not at all severe, so I ptly told her who we were, and hook hands, the Honorable Agatha ing at me somewhat the way she smiled at Vincent, though perhaps ifle more appreciatively.

We didn't mean to," said Vincent, d I hope you don't mind. You'll ive us, won't you?"

he girl laughed, and it was a laugh t I like to hear, not the silly, re-sed giggle of a London debutante. e'll very nearly do," I thought, en if she isn't more than 20."

Forgive you?" she repeated. "Of rse I will. I think it's great fun. aven't seen a new man for six ks."

was wondering what she meant using the word "new" and waiting Vincent to reply, when, instead of wering her, he suddenly pointed r my shoulder with a look of hor-"The train," he cried, "the train!" ure enough, when I turned I saw train had started and, although ving slowly, was well on its way he little town in the distance.

We were three-quarters of a mile n the tracks by this time, and of rse pursuit was useless.

Left behind," cried Vincent, dra-tically, and burst out laughing. That's just like him—he always ghs at everything. For my own t I couldn't see anything funny ut it. Here we were set down in a le town that probably did not con-an inn, while our luggage traveled rily on to Cuppstone, all because a foolish whim of his. The girl ghed, too, so there was no use in ing him what I thought of him then. Well, what are we going to do?" I ed sharply.

Do?" echoed Vincent. "Why, with permission, we'll play a game of d with the Honorable Agatha, and n go on to the station, whatever its me is, and take another train for ppstone."

Its name is Wye," said the Honor-e Agatha, "the town of Wye, and t's a very good plan. That's just at we'll do."

And it was just what we did do. And n should have seen that girl play f! By the time we had been around 18-hole course I felt a little fatigued one has to keep in training to do t sort of thing at a minute's notice but Vincent and the Honorable atha seemed as fresh as when we rted and proposed a race to the tion. I told them to run on ahead d I'd meet them later, so away ey dashed, with Rudolph leaping and rking in front of them, never doubt-g that the whole thing was planned r his especial benefit.

When I reached the station at last, stead of seeing about our train or egraphing to Cuppstone about our e arrival, there was Vincent sitting the luggage-truck with that girl, d, I am ashamed to say, he was hold-g her hand. When they spied me the l tried to pull her hand away, but ncent held on.

That you, Archibald?" he called, as it could have been anyone else. ome on up here. We've been telling rtunes, and Miss Agatha's hand is ry interesting."

No doubt," I answered, dryly; "but at have you done about telegraphing Cuppstone, and what train have you nd we can take?"

There isn't any train," said Vin-nt, as cheerfully as if he were tell-g me a bit of good news. "Only two ains a day run through Wye from ndon, and ours was the last. Any-y, your friend, the guard, thought e ought to get off here and put off all r luggage."

I looked around in consternation and ere were our boxes, all piled neatly the far end of the platform.

For goodness' sake, Wilfred"—I d him Wilfred when I am angry—I id, turning on Vincent, who was ain busy telling fortunes—"do take me interest. What are we going to ? Isn't there a station master here o can tell us about the inns of this ace, if there are any? I'm starving."

Vincent looked up and again iled that irritating smile of his. "Don't get hot," he drawled; "it's all right. The Honorable Agatha has invited us to the castle and she's telephoned for the dogcart and a wagon for our luggage. Haven't you, Angel?" he ended, turning his handsome bronzed face to the girl, with one of his best smiles, one of the kind he reserves especially for the fair sex.

I frowned. Vincent really makes advances too quickly.

"Why didn't you say so at first?" I said, rather peevishly, as I sat down on the steps to await the dogcart which one could see already, a black speck in the distance on the winding road from the castle. The speck finally disappeared behind a clump of trees, and when it emerged and drew up at the station we saw what a stunning little turnout it was. The horse was as fine as any you'd meet on the Lady's Mile, the harness was clinking and shining with ornaments, and the cart and the groom's livery were faultless.

The Honorable Agatha mounted the box seat. "Christopher," she said to the groom, "I'm going to drive. You'd better ride back with the 'trunks.'"

Then, before I had time to interfere, Vincent leaped nimbly up to the seat beside her and I was obliged to take the rumble with Rudolph, who leaped up beside me as if to his accustomed seat. I was too anxious to get to the castle and get something to eat, however, to mind, and the Honorable Agatha proving to be as good a whip as she was golfer, we were soon winding up the last gentle slope that led to the big building. As we drove down the long avenue another dogcart approached us rapidly, and as it came almost abreast, to my surprise I recognized the young man who was sitting with the groom as young Murray Brancepeth. He saw us at the same moment and both dogcarts stopped.

"Hullo, Murray!" said Vincent and I together.

But he never paid the slightest attention to us. Instead, he jumped lightly from his high seat and came around to the Honorable Agatha's side of our cart. Reaching up he caught her hand

AGATHA SECOND.

"I don't care whether you're the real Agatha or not," he said, his dark face flushed with the intensity of his feeling. "You've got to marry me some time. I'm not after money. I've some of my own and I'll make some more. When you're tired of this folly I'm coming back for you. Good-by." And he wrung her hand till the Honorable Agatha winced. Then he was gone in a rattle of gravel and dust.

We couldn't help hearing what he said and he didn't seem to care whether we did or not. But we could hardly believe our ears. Young Murray Brancepeth, that gilded idler, declaring himself the victim of a mighty passion, and, more astounding still, swearing that he would make some money! He, who had never done any work in his life besides that necessary to bleed his rich old uncle of his living expenses.

"What was it he said," I thought, "about the 'real Agatha' and 'folly?'" What did it all mean?

As we drove up to the castle entrance two girls of about 19 and 20, I should say, came tearing around the corner, tennis racquets in hand, and shrieked aloud, evidently with surprised delight at seeing us.

"Oh, Agatha," cried the foremost of the two, a tall, brown-eyed, brown-faced sylph, with a profusion of wavy and very disorderly brown hair. "Oh, Agatha, where did you get them? I'm so tired of Brancepeth."

"Yes," cried the other one, "where did they drop from? I thought you were playing golf." She was a jolly little thing, this second one, small, but plump, with fair skin and blue eyes, really very attractive.

This was somewhat embarrassing to me, but Vincent stood there, utterly unperturbed, bowing with that easy grace of his, as the Honorable Agatha introduced us. But imagine our surprise when she presented each of those two young things as "the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff!"

"But I thought you were the Honorable Agatha," I cried, unable to repress my astonishment.

"So I am," she answered, smiling, and we followed her into the house, silent but wondering.

CHAPTER II.

The inside of the castle gave every evidence of enormous wealth and every imaginable luxury was provided. After a little interchange of pleasantries in the spacious hall our black-haired friend raised her voice in a stentorian shout, in answer to which a brisk, elderly lady came down the mahogany stairs and welcomed us cordially. She was introduced as "our aunt and chaperon, Mrs. Armistead," amid peals of laughter from the girls, although we couldn't see any joke. We then went to our rooms, which contained everything we could possibly have desired, and when we came down to dinner the footman told us that Mrs. Armistead and the young ladies were awaiting us in the drawing room.

We crossed the hall, and when the heavy curtains that separated it from the huge drawing room were lifted to admit us, we saw at least 20 girls ranging in age from 18 to 23, standing or sitting around the room in attitudes of expectancy. I found out later that there were really only six of them, but, at the time, there looked to be 20. They were all pretty, all wore evening dress, and all were talking at once; but as Vincent and I entered they stopped and Mrs. Armistead came forward and presented us to the three girls we had not yet seen.

The first of the new three, Agatha Fourth, as Vincent and I called her later, was tall and very fair, with wonderful blue eyes and a beautiful figure. That our bewilderment and astonishment increased when she also was presented to us as the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff may be easily understood. The next one had light-brown hair with gold lights in it and her eyes were a golden hazel. As she, too, was introduced as the Honorable Wyckhoff I bowed mechanically, as did Vincent, not daring to trust myself to utter a word or repeat the name. Then, turning from Agatha Fifth, we met the Honorable Agatha Sixth and last, and I thought she was the prettiest of all. Delicate and small she was, but every inch an aristocrat from her small charming head to her dainty little feet. Her eyes were dark brown, her complexion clear olive, and her hair straight and soft and jet black. I took to her at once, though I thought she looked rather sarcastic.

The introductions over, we went in to dinner, and such a meal as that was! At one end of the table sat Mrs. Armistead, while I sat at the other. Agatha First sat on Mrs. Armistead's right, next to her sat Vincent, and next to him, Agatha Fourth—the tall, fair-haired beauty. I have described them at length so that it is not difficult to keep them apart. Next to her, on my left, sat the plump little girl with the blue eyes, Agatha Third. Then on my right—oh, fortunate me! sat my little lady aristocrat, Agatha Sixth, and next to her Agatha Second, her unruly brown curls somewhat subdued, and looking very fetching in a costume of pink and white. I should have thought that these girls were American had I not had reason to believe that they were English; there was that breezy simplicity and becomingness about their gowns which seems to be distinctly American.

But I have omitted from my category Agatha Fifth, the Agatha of the hazel eyes. I will not now take time to do justice to her many charms, but shall do so later for reasons which will soon appear. Mrs. Armistead's secretary, who came in late and slipped into the seat at Mrs. Armistead's left, completed the number of persons at the table. She was a quiet young woman dressed in a severely simple gown of gray, and her hair, which was done very plainly, was distinctly red in color. Mrs. Armistead introduced her to us as her secretary, Miss Marsh.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE CRIMINAL.

Vicarious Punishment a Common Thing in the East.

The numbers of aged men among the prisoners in the jails of India is said to be very large, and the explanation is this:

It is a common practice, when a theft is brought home to a man by the police, for him to get an old father or uncle to take the blame on himself, or he puts up a younger brother to do so. Before the court they make full and circumstantial confession. They are convicted, and the real thieves get off. It is done to benefit the family. A sturdy young man is able to do more for the family support by honest labor or by thieving than an old man or a boy.

This is a custom which prevails more or less in all Oriental countries. The judges and the people seem to argue in this way: "Somebody has committed a crime, therefore somebody must be punished. Now the law is no respecter of persons, and one person is the same as another; therefore, it can make no difference to the law who is punished. So, if the law punishes some person for the crime, it makes no difference if he did not commit the crime, the law has been vindicated."

Remember These Blessings.

It is well for persons not contented with their lot to remember that even a Croesus cannot eat more than three meals, or sleep more than eight hours a day with comfort, and that most of the purest pleasures in life are free to all capable of appreciating them. Dr. Brown of Edinburgh, author of "Rab and His Friends," said in musing over such thoughts:

"What a blessing it is to be able to enjoy these innocent plain things—a bit of green earth, of the sky, a flower, a child's eye twinkling from under the long eyelashes, these are the common things which I would not give up for the treasures of silver and gold."

MAGNETIC BRAKE FOR TRAINS.

New Device, It Is Claimed, Can Be Applied by Hand.

A magnetic track-brake recently developed by the British Thomson-Houston Company is interesting because it may be applied by hand and is intended for service and emergency stops. Says the Tramway and Railway World (London), as abstracted in the Electrical Review (New York):

"The brake consists of two steel shoes, each formed of a number of poles placed so that they alternately become north and south poles when the current is passed through a single exciting coil. Excited in this way, the shoes are drawn down upon the rail midway between the wheels of the car with a force of several tons. Exciting current is furnished by the motors, running as generators, thus rendering the brake independent of the trolley circuit. Between the two shoes is connected a channel iron and a system of brake-levers and chains attached to brake spindles at each end of the car to enable the shoes to be pressed down upon the track by hand in the usual manner of track-brakes. It is intended to use the brake in this way for controlling the speed of the car on down grades, and for slowing up under usual conditions. When thus used the car can be stopped either by increasing the pressure due to the hand-lever, or by exciting the electromagnets. The thrust occasioned by the retarding action of the brake is taken by a tongue-shaped steel bracket, which is bolted to the truck and engages with jaws on the sides of the magnet. The wearing shoes of the brake are attached to the poles of the magnet, and the bolts may be renewed when necessary. The exciting coils are entirely inclosed in a water-tight case."

EDITOR TIMES—

Dear Sir:

It was ten o'clock in the evening as our train pulled into Rome. The city was wrapped in darkness save a small portion near the depot. The thought that we were in Rome sent a thrill thru' us. We thought of its history in connection with the apostle Paul, Martin Luther and others. We were some what concerned about finding a good hotel and had made up our mind to go to Hotel National. As we stepped out of the depot we saw the hotel bus near by. A man stood aside the wagon and we supposed him to be the driver. He took our baggage as we told him we wanted to go to Hotel National. But instead of placing us in the bus he started off in spite of our protest All we could understand was "not far." After a walk of about two blocks he landed us in hotel Michel one of the finest hotels in the city. When we got matters explained he felt very much ashamed and started off to take us to Hotel National but we paid him a franc and put up in hotel Michel. We soon were very glad for this mistake as we learned that most Americans stopped here. We had a fine room on the first floor and with meals, including a seven course dinner, it was only nine francs per day. Our readers may ask "how did you get along with the language," we answer "very well." One evening at the dinner table, Lurena picked up a card and claimed she could make out that the second course would be soup, but she soon learned that the card was a program of a concert to be given during the dinner hour, but we got the soup just the same. We found a very pleasant man who spoke English fairly well as our guide. Space will not permit us to refer to all the things of interest seen in Rome so we will mention part of them. We at first looked at the old city wall which was built in the second century and was about 20 miles long. Most of it has made room for buildings, but parts of it are well preserved. Near by our hotel stands an old church built by Diocletian in the first century. It only remains as an old relic.

We next went to the Bascila (church) of St. Lorenzo which is a very beautiful structure on the inside. A number of fine paintings adorn the ceilings and lifelike statues stand on either side. We noticed a number of people worshiping these statues. In a seperate department in the rear is the grave of pope Pius IX We had only expected to get a peep at this noted place, but to our surprise a monk unlocked the gate and led us to the sepulcher which is of marble and stands in a recess of the wall. After a hasty look into a tempie built in the time of Augustus and the temple of Margueretha built in the first century, we visited parts of the old aqueducts which were begun by Caligula and finished by Claudius where by they conducted the waters from the springs Cerulea and Curtia into the city. One of these walls was over 60 miles long and the other over 40 miles and at places attained a height of over 100 feet. All thru' the city and for miles and miles out in the country we could see pieces of this old relic. We next visited an old city gate which was built during the time of the republic, before the birth of Christ. The first patriarchal church of the occident, founded by Constantine and built about 324 on the ruins of the ancient palace of the Laterans next interested us.

On a little hillside stands a modest little church called "Pudenciana" which St. Augustine had built to commemorat the gruesome deeds of Nero. On this spot stood a building, during the persecution of the christians and many sought refuge here, but were slain and their bones afterwards found. Another relic of old history are the Roman and Augustian Forums. Only parts of the walls and a few columns remain, but as we rested awhile among these old ruins and thought of much which happened here, the very stones seemed to speak to us Near by stands one of the old watch towers built in the 15th century when Rome had trouble within and without.

But most of all we were interested in the Colesseum. We walked up and down its aisles from top to bottom and as we looked on the great arena and thought of its past it fairly made us shudder. Near by on the Palatina hill lies the garden, where the wild animals were kept. From this garden there were tunnels leading into the arena. The openings are still to be seen where the iron gates opened and let the fierce animals into the arena. To one side of the garden stands an old wall which at one time inclosed a fountain where the gladiators washed themselves after the fight. Back of the garden stand a few old walls as the remains of Caesar's palace, while on the other side of the colesseum are a few broken and shattered walls of the palace and gardens of Nero. In the back ground of this is, part of the temple of Venus, but the statues of the 12 gods have been removed to the Vatican. After visiting a number of buildings, our guide took us to a church where they claimed to have a stairway out of the temple in Jerusalem over which Christ often passed. These steps are considered sacred and people are only allowed to crawl up and down in a kneeling position but our guide said we might walk up along the side. The most costly church seen is St. Paul's. It consists of five great aisles with magnificent pillars in the centers. On either side of the center aisles are medallions in mosaic, representing the twelve apostles. Words cannot describe the splendor of this building. As we looked at its beauty, a monk beconed us to follow him. As we did so he unlocked a great iron gate and locked it back of us again, then unlocked a small door which opened to a narrow stairway leading to a dark room below. We hesitated to go down, but he urged us and down we went. Here in a dark room was a most beautiful statue representing Christ seated and a deciple leaning on his breast. An electric light was so thrown against it to make it real life like. They claim this to be the spot where St. Paul was buried. Be this as it may it was very impressive. We did not visit the Vatican as time did not permit. In fact the vatican is regarded by the majority in Rome, some thing like we regard a prison, but not as a necessity rather an imposition. We were much surprised to notice how disrespected the priest hood is in Italy. We saw hundreds of priests, but we only noticed once that a man bid one a respectful nod. The churches all tell of a glory once possessed but fast passing away. Our visit in Naples we cut very short as the weather was hot and the filthy streets were like a pest to us. Every where the streets were used as closets. Children ran on the streets naked. A stench filled the air.

We did not go up old Vesuvius, but only looked on its ash covered crown from the banks of the bay.

A long dreary trip brought us to Florence where we spent Sunday. The government thermometer reported the tempature 110 degrees that day, but we seemed to suffer no more than the natives. Monday morning we took an early train for Bologna and after a short stay went on to Venice. Here we did not find much of interest aside from several old cathredals and buildings but we saw the city built on the water. Not a horse or wagon was to be seen in the whole city. From Venice we went to Verona and then to Milan. In six days we had traveled over 1200 miles by rail, which is all but pleasant in a country where the track winds around the mountains through tunnels. down one valley and out another. Add to this the hot sun and dusty roads during the dry seasons and you get value received for your pleasure. Another day brought us back into the Alps where it is cool.

Sincerely,
Rev. G. H. Wessel.

State Capital Gossip

Many Items of Interest from Our Correspondent at Des Moines.

Want Nominees' Opinions.

Des Moines.—In a personal letter sent to republican candidates for the next legislature, Secretary of State Hayward and Treasurer of State Morrow have been seeking to ascertain the sentiment among candidates as to extra session of the Thirty-second General assembly to amend the primary law so as to submit the senatorial succession to the voters at the general election.

It is understood that many replies have been received to this letter. from prospective members of the assembly. It is probable that the result of the inquiry, in numbers, will be disclosed soon. There are 133 republican candidates for the legislature and it is said that inquiries have been sent to each one.

This is regarded as a purely nonfactional inquiry, one of the officers mentioned being classed as a standpatter and the other as a progressive, but both are candidates on the republican ticket for re-election this year and simply are anxious to promote the party interests.

Nominees for the legislature have been in receipt of the inquiry and have made replies, at once, in many cases. The Morrow-Hayward letter follows:

"It has been suggested that a special session of the legislature be called to amend the primary law so that the republican voters may express their choice for United States senator at the November election.

"It is urged that this would practically eliminate factional strife in the legislative districts, bringing both factions together in the support of party nominees; that candidates for the legislature when called on by members of either faction for declarations or pledges on the senatorial question could say that they would be governed by the expressed will of the party at the polls, whoever it might be for.

"It is also urged that the expense of a few days' session of the legislature to amend the law might be much less than the expense of a possible if not probable, long drawn out contest over the election of a senator by the next general assembly; that such contest would be prevented by an amendment of the law permitting the republicans of the entire state to select the candidate.

"Does this plan meet with your approval?

"Will you please advise by return mail and also give, briefly, any reasons that occur to you for or against the plan proposed. and greatly oblige."

The inquiry was sent out as the result of the gossip about an extra session. There has been much discussion of the proposition for several days. Indeed, among the closest advisers of the governor it was the proposition of the three confronting the Cummins faction which from the beginning elicited the chief support.

It is regarded among politicians as not altogether unlikely that the standpat leaders will favor the extra session solution of the problems now confronting the republican party.

Come Here Again In 1909.

The Iowa rural letter carriers voted to come to Des Moines for their annual convention in 1909. An early morning meeting was held the 19th and the final business before the convention was closed and the delegates left at 9 o'clock for the trip to Ames.

The old officers of the association were all re-elected, with some change in the directory board. C. V. Adams was re-elected as president; B. B. Child, secretary; C. M. Smith, first vice president, and W. S. Hoon, second vice president. President Adams was chosen as chairman of the delegation which will attend the national convention at Omaha in October.

At the national convention the life insurance feature of the letter carrier's organization will come up for special attention and it will either be abolished or radical changes made in the system.

After the adjournment of the meeting, the entire delegate body took the interurban to Ames, where they were guests of the Business Men's league, and the day was spent in listening to good road discussions and in sightseeing about the town and college grounds.

No Relief for Southwest.

The state railroad commission made an order, to the effect that no additional train service on the Burlington railroad will be ordered at the present time. However, the company voluntarily extends the service from Van Wert to Mount Ayr.

Commission to Consider Fares.

The state railroad commission announced that the Chandler interurban rate petition will be taken up on the 24th and a hearing held. Chandler complained because the interurban companies do not charge on a strictly mileage basis, but charge to the most distant station possible. If a traveler gets off between stations he must buy a ticket to the more distant one. And so, going, he must buy for the longer distance. This petition originated in Des Moines on account of the Granger line. The company established certain pay stations, but also arranged for the convenience of travelers to let them off and on cars at still other stations between. But it claims that it must maintain some system about selling tickets.

The railroad commission has announced a commodity rate for beer, making the intertate rate between Missouri and Mississippi points the maximum rate in this state. This is the rule as to wagons, etc.

A lower rate has been asked for wheat and corn for milling purposes, and this is pending before the board, having been submitted.

For sand a commodity rate of 80 per cent of the soft coal, slack, rate was asked, but the board has denied this.

Plaster board has been put in with salt, lime, cement and stucco in a commodity rate for those things.

Starch in car loads has been given the corn tariff rates.

A commodity rate was asked on lubricating oil, and this is under consideration.

The board denied the petition of Secretary Wrightman of the Iowa Manufacturers' association for the following rule:

"When cars furnished by carriers in response to shippers' request do not, on account of dimensions or condition of the car, hold a quantity of the article to be shipped as great as the minimum weight specified in the classification, charges shall be assessed on the actual weight hauled."

However, a 14,000 pound minimum, class B, was fixed for waste paper in bales, sacks, boxes or crates.

Returning empty iron barrels were given a rate of one-half of fourth class, by the board.

Thomas' Last Hope Gone.

Charles Thomas must serve his full life sentence in the penitentiary for the murder of Mabel Schofild.

The decree of the United States supreme court has been received at the office of Clerk Bousquet of the Iowa supreme court, disposing of the final question raised in the case.

It was on March 23 that the highest tribunal in the land dismissed the appeal of Thomas from the decision of the Iowa courts. But the attorneys for the young man filed a petition for a rehearing. In the decree filed with Clerk Bousquet it is understood both by Assistant Attorney General Lyon, who presented the state's case to the United States supreme court, and by Judge C. C. Cole, attorney for Thomas, that the whole matter is included and that the decision so filed is final.

The only remaining hope of Thomas is the legislature and of course it will be many years before it will undertake to consider the Thomas case.

Des Moines Authors' Books.

Four Des Moines authors come to the front this month with new books. Of this number is Miss Margaret Walker, with her new book entitled "Bird Legend and life," Ed Sabin "When You were a Boy," Edith Rickert, "The Golden Hawk," and Tom Dawson, "The Life of McKinley," which is one of the series of the American statesman.

All of these books come from the same publishing house, which is a peculiar co-incidence, and is that of the firm of Baker & Taylor of New York.

This is the second book for Miss Walker, who is a teacher in Irving school. Her first book venture, "Lady Hollyhocks," has reached its third edition. Mr. Sabin is a versatile writer and has written several books. Miss Rickert is well known for her former book, "Folly," and magazine stories. Mr. Dawson is a brother of Allen Dawson, formerly of the Leader and has previously written a book on South America.

These books have reached the city library and add to an already large colony of Des Moines writers' books in the library.

OPEN DEALING IN PAINT.

Buying paint used to be like the proverbial buying of a "pig in a poke." Mixtures in which chalk, ground rock, etc., predominated were marked and sold as "Pure White Lead," the deception not being apparent until the paint and the painting were paid for. This deception is still practiced, but we have learned to expose it easily.

National Lead Company, the largest makers of genuine Pure White Lead, realizing the injustice that was being done to both property owners and honest paint manufacturers, set about to make paint buying safe. They first adopted a trade mark, the now famous "Dutch-Boy Painter," and put this trademark, as a guaranty of purity, on every package of their White Lead. They then set about familiarizing the public with the blow-pipe test by which the purity and genuineness of White Lead may be determined, and furnished a blowpipe free to every one who would write them for it. This action was in itself a guaranty of the purity of National Lead Company's White Lead.

As the result of this open dealing the paint buyer to-day has only himself to blame if he is defrauded. For test outfit and valuable booklet on painting, address National Lead Company, Woodbridge Bldg., New York.

SHE WAS NO HASBEEN.

Smoking Car Just the One Old 'Woman Was Looking For.

"Madam," said the brakeman as the train stopped at a village station and a little old woman started to enter the smoking car, "the car back is the one you want."

"How do you know?" she tartly asked.

"Because this is the smoking car."

She pushed past him and climbed up the steps, and after taking a seat she pulled out and filled a pipe, struck a match on the sole of her shoe, and after drawing a few puffs she said to a man smoking a cigar across the aisle:

"That young feller out there don't know half as much as he thinks he does."

"How so?" was asked.

"He took me for an old woman that had never rode on the cars before, and told me this was the smoking car."

"And you wanted this car?"

"Why, I never ride in any other—not unless my pipe is broke, my tobacco all out and none o' you menfolks will lend me a cigar."

HIS OPINION OF FIELDING.

At Least, Only Kind Young Broker Knew Anything About.

A young broker in Boston, while visiting a certain household in the Hub not long ago, encountered a number of young women graduates whose conversation suddenly turned to a discussion of the development of the English novel.

The dealer in stocks and bonds speedily found himself "out of it." Presently, during a lull, one young woman asked him:

"What do you think of Fielding, Mr Brown?"

"Oh, fielding is important, of course," quickly responded the broker, "but it isn't worth much unless you've got good pitchers and men who can hit the ball."—Harper's Weekly.

FRIENDLY TIP

Restored Hope and Confidence.

After several years of indigestion and its attendant evil influence on the mind, it is not very surprising that one finally loses faith in things generally.

A N. Y. woman writes an interesting letter. She says:

"Three years ago I suffered from an attack of peritonitis which left me in a most miserable condition. For over two years I suffered from nervousness, weak heart, shortness of breath, could not sleep, etc.

"My appetite was ravenous, but I felt starved all the time. I had plenty of food but it did not nourish me because of intestinal indigestion. Medical treatment did not seem to help, I got discouraged, stopped medicine and did not care much whether I lived or died.

"One day a friend asked me why I didn't try Grape-Nuts, stop drinking coffee, and use Postum. I had lost faith in everything, but to please my friends I began to use both and soon became very fond of them.

"It wasn't long before I got some strength, felt a decided change in my system, hope sprang up in my heart and slowly but surely I got better. I could sleep very well, the constant craving for food ceased and I have better health now than before the attack of peritonitis.

"My husband and I are still using Grape-Nuts and Postum." "There's a Reason."

STOPS EXTRADITION

OHIO SHERIFF'S ILLNESS DELAYS ACTION.

SEARCH FOR WILL IS FUTILE

County Officials in Possession of Home—Property Valued at $10,000 at $20,000.

Loudonville, O., Aug. 24.—The illness of Sheriff Conrad and the half holiday observed at the governor's office delayed any action Saturday in procuring extradition papers in the Porter-Stein murder mystery. Prosecuting Attorney G. G. Frev will go to Columbus himself early Monday morning to see Governor Harris, having all necessary papers drawn for the chief executive's signature.

Frey says that after the return of Mrs. Bayard and Mrs. Stein he will convene a special grand jury and lay the results of his investigation before that body. Marshal Young was asked to go to Ashland to affix his signature to the affidavits, but the disposition of the entire matter was left in the hands of the county officials. Coroner Ash has not completed his investigation, but announces that the body of Miss Porter will be exhumed early next week to procure the bullets from her head to satisfy himself whether one or two revolvers were used.

After a diligent search for a will the heirs of Miss Porter applied to the probate court and an administrator was appointed for her estate, but no property has been appraised as yet. The county officials are still in possession of her home, where the tragedy occurred, and also all of her personal property, which they will retain until they have concluded all investigations for incriminating evidence. The estate is variously estimated at from $10,000 to $20,000.

MORE INDICTMENTS FOUND.

Fifty in All Returned By Springfield Jury.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24.—Twenty more indictments, making fifty all told, were returned by the special grand jury of Sangamon county. The latest batch of accusations includes five indictments against Thomas Marshall and twelve other negroes whom he is accused of having led in a murderous assault upon William Bowe, chief clerk of the county treasurer's office. Bowe has been hovering between life and death for a week.

The negroes are charged with having committed assault with intent to commit murder upon Bowe. In addition they are accused of having committed assault with deadly weapons upon John Wattling, a white citizen, who was shot at Fourteenth and Mason streets on the Friday night riot last week. The other indictments returned today are against whites and are based upon the destruction and lootting of Loper's restaurant in the heart of the business section of the city. Three of these are for alleged burglary and larceny, two for the destruction or defacement of the establishment, and the building in which it was situated, and the balance for riot.

Hains Defense Complete.

New York, Aug. 24.—A number of conferences were held yesterday by the lawyers engaged to defend Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., and his brother Thornton, to decide on a plan of defense. After interviews with a number of prospective witnesses, John F. McIntyre announced that he was prepared to prove that the visit of the two brothers to the Bayside Yacht club had not had the murder of William E. Annis as its object. He had several witnesses, he declared, who could testify that Thornton Hains had entered into negotiations to purchase land at Bayside several weeks before the tragedy and he would establish the fact that the Hains brothers had gone to Bayside to examine the estate offered them and not to shoot Annis.

Mr. McIntyre announced that the line of defense to be adopted in behalf of Thornton Hains had not been definitely determined. As far as the captain was concerned insanity would be invoked as an extenuating circumstance.

27 Degrees at Dickinson.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 23.—Specials from Minnesota, North Dakota and northern Wisconsin tell of a heavy frost Saturday night at Dickinson, N. D., 27 degrees of frost being recorded. A large part of the flax crop is reported injured. Half of the wheat is in shock, and the rest is thought to be ripened and out of danger.

Frost Kills Canada Grain.

Winnepeg, Man., Aug. 23.—A very heavy frost, which appeared here Saturday night, will heavily injure grain, much of which is yet to be cut.

GROSSCUP UNFAIR?

ATTACKED IN PETITION FOR OIL CASE REHEARING.

FILED FOR GOVERNMENT

Document Asserts the Federal Court of Appeals Was Unjust to Judge Landis and Misstated the Facts.

Chicago.—The government filed Friday its petition for a rehearing of the Standard Oil case. The court of appeals is asked to reconsider the reversal by Judge Grosscup, Baker and Seaman of the $29,240,000 fine imposed on the Indiana corporation by Judge Landis, and to ask the advice of the supreme court of the United States on certain vital questions at issue.

This, it is urged, should be done by the court of appeals before that tribunal, in passing final judgment on the case, places an interpretation on the interstate commerce act that practically would nullify the law, making of it "a mere will-o'-the-wisp of legislation, a phantom statute, destitute of strength and substance."

The attorneys for the government rally valiantly to the defense of Judge Landis from the harsh, and as they assert, unjust, criticism which Judge Grosscup and his fellow jurists took occasion to voice in their opinion. They declare that the criticism of Judge Landis by the appellate judge and the reasons for reversing the ruling are based upon misstatements of the records and misinterpretations of his rendering of the law.

"The opinion as it stands," the government's petition concludes, "erroneously states material portions of the record; does injustice to the trial judge; leaves doubtful in a new trial the rule of law to be applied, both as to knowledge on the part of the shipper and as to the number of offenses; appears to be in conflict with the language of the supreme court and with the previous language of the presiding judge of this court, and with the great weight of legal authority; and, if permitted to remain unmodified, will tend to encourage disobedience to law, to impede the enforcement of salutary statutes and largely to defeat their purpose."

The petition, 5,000 words in length, was filed for the government by Chief Clerk William A. Small of the district attorney's office. Counsel for the oil company have 20 days in which to file an answer, and then the petition may be considered by the appellate judges. They may reconsider their decision or they may ignore the government's petition without hearing any further arguments.

Troops Riot in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga.—Late Wednesday police reserves were called to the Terminal station to quell a riot that broke out among two companies of United States regulars en route from Fort Slocum to the Pacific coast.

When the local police officers were unable to curb the soldiers, a call was made upon Fort McPherson for troops, and Capt. Bankhead with a company of regulars responded and soon suppressed the riot. One soldier was seriously stabbed.

Lusitania Sets a New Record.

New York.—With the best previous record for a trans-Atlantic voyage lowered by more than three hours, the Cunard turbine steamship Lusitania arrived off Sandy Hook lightship at ten o'clock Thursday night, having made the run across the Atlantic over the short course in 4 days, 15 hours and 25 minutes. The Lusitania's former record, which was also the ocean record, was 4 days, 18 hours and 40 minutes.

SOUTHERN INDIANA RAILWAY IS INVOLVED IN ACTION.

Myron J. Carpenter Is Selected to Take Charge of Property—Notes Are Owned by Bank.

Chicago. — Judge C. C. Kohlsaat of the United States circuit court appointed Myron J. Carpenter receiver for the Southern Indiana Railway Company, owned by John R. Walsh.

The action followed the appearance of various lawyers who went before Judge Kohlsaat. With the attorneys was E. K. Boisot, who appeared on behalf of the First Trust and Savings bank, the representative of the associated clearing house banks of Chicago, to apply for the receiver.

A statement was given out by James C. Hutchins, one of the lawyers, concerning the new court proceedings follows:

"Attorneys James C. Hutchins, Ovid B. Jameson (Indianapolis) and Lessing Rosenthal, appeared with E. K. Boisot before United States Circuit Judge Christian C. Kohlsaat at a late hour last night on behalf of the First Trust and Savings bank, the representative of the associated clearing house banks of Chicago, to apply for the receiver. Three similar bills were filed by the First Trust and Savings bank, one in the northern district of Illinois at Chicago, one in the eastern district at Danville and one in the district of Indiana at Indianapolis. James Rosenthal appeared on behalf of the railroad companies."

The notes under which this receivership was procured are owned by the First Trust and Savings bank for the account of the associated banks and were acquired at the time these banks took over the assets of the Walsh banks.

CALLS OFF INDIANA STRIKE.

President Lewis Tells All Miners to Return to Work.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Having been defied by the Indiana state executive board of the organization, President T. L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers Friday afternoon issued from headquarters a letter advising all miners now on strike in Indiana to return to work immediately.

It now rests with the miners to obey the terms of President Lewis' letter or suffer the revocation of their charters. The words of the president are not harsh, but they carry an import of determination and authority. In his letter President Lewis intimates that the case at the Hudson mine, which started the strike, is not meritorious.

COAL PRICES MAY ADVANCE.

New Company That Plans to Control St. Louis' Supply.

St. Louis.—Announcement was made Thursday that a corporation is being formed to be known as the Commonwealth Fuel company, embracing 153 Illinois coal mines within a radius of 59 miles of St. Louis, supplying practically all the coal consumed in St. Louis and in East St. Louis.

It is stated the new combination proposes not only to control the output of the mines, but also to control the prices. According to dealers, if the negotiations are consummated an increase of ten to fifteen per cent. in the price of coal may be expected, meaning an increase of from $600,000 to $1,000,000 in the coal bill of St. Louis and East St. Louis.

Wigan.—It is now known that 7 miners perished in the explosion and the fire that followed it in the Maypole mine. The directors have decided to flood the mine.

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

India's Savings Banks.

The postal savings bank of India was established in 1882, in which year the depositors numbered 39,121 and the deposits amounted to $932,243. In 1907 the depositors numbered 1,190,220 and the deposits amounted to $49,223,283, which, perhaps, should not be considered large in a country having a population of some 300,000,000, but the average Indian farmer, mechanic, servant or laborer never deposits money in a bank, but hides it away in a pot or box in the ground.—New York World.

Difficult Advice.

"In your campaign speeches," said the idealist, "and in your private conversation, too, you must tell people only the simple and direct truth."

"Do you know," returned the candidate thoughtfully, "I don't believe people would vote for a man who seemed as ill-natured as all that!"

in the laundry. All three things are important, but the last is absolutely necessary. No matter how fine the material or how daintily made, bad starch and poor laundry work will spoil the effect and ruin the clothes. DEFIANCE STARCH is pure, will not rot the clothes nor cause them to crack. It sells at 10c a sixteen ounce package everywhere. Other starches, much inferior, sell at 10c for twelve ounce package. Weak Kidneys

Cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys become diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and pains in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is imperative that a prompt relief be afforded, which is impossible unless you know the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

The Child's Viewpoint.

Percy Alder, M. P., of London, told an amusing story of a small girl at a recent meeting of the Children's Happy Evenings association. The child had been sent away to the country for a holiday, and questioned as to what in all her holiday had pleased her most, this little slum maiden, whose London home adjoined a waste piece of land, replied: "Seeing no dead cats."

JUDGE CASADY DEAD

NOTED DES MOINES PIONEER PASSES AWAY.

NEARLY 90 YEARS OF AGE

Leaves Wife and Two Sons—He Was Member of Senate In 1848.

Des Moines, Aug. 31.—Judge P. M. Casady, for a half century one of the most popular, prominent and influential residents of Des Moines, died at his residence in this city this morning at 1 o'clock.

He had been confined to his room by illness for about one week, but he was nearly 90 years of age, and his constitution was unable to withstand the inroads of the attack.

Phineas M. Casady was born Dec. 3, 1818, near Connorsville, Ind. He was admitted to the bar Feb. 16, 1841, and in the following year was appointed deputy clerk of the courts for Rush county. This position he held until the summer of 1846, when he removed to Des Moines and began the practice of his profession. After serving for a time as postmaster of Fort Des Moines, then but a small office, he resigned at the end of the year 1848 to form a partnership with Robert L. Tidrick. This partnership continued until 1853.

Judge Casady has held numerous offices of trust and honor. For a few months he was school fund commissioner of the county. In 1848, after a spirited campaign, he was elected state senator on the democratic ticket for the district comprising Marion, Polk, Dallas and Jasper counties, organized and unorganized, on the west as far as the Missouri river and on the north to the Minnesota state line. In 1854 Mr. Casady was elected judge of the Fifth judicial district, embracing at that time Polk and several other counties, but soon after entering on the duties of his office he accepted an appointment from President Pierce as receiver of public money in this United States land district.

He resigned this office in 1857, when he formed a law partnership with Gen. M. M. Crocker, a partnership which in 1859 was strenghened by the addition of J. S. Polk. In 1861 General Crocker left the firm to enter the union army, and in 1864 Judge Casady himself retired in order that he might have more time to devote to his private business. In 1875 he, with others, organized the Des Moines Savings bank, which under his direction as president, grew to be one of the strongest financial institutions in the city and state.

On June 27, 1848, Judge Casady was united in marriage to Miss Augusta Grimmel, a daughter of Dr. F. C. Grimmel, who survives him. Three children were born to them—Simon, who is vice president of the Des Moines Saving bank; Frank, and Rose, now deceased, who married George F. Henry. There were other children, who died in infancy.

Judge Casady always affiliated with the democratic party, but for many years refused to accept nomination for public office. He was a regular attendant at the Presbyterian church.

Made False Bank Statements.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 21.—Bank Commissioner O. Royce has issued a formal order disbarring the Central National bank of Kansas City, Mo., from further recognition by the state department as a reserve agent for Kansas state banks. The reason for this action is the charge that Cashier D. Thornton of the Central National bank made false statements to W. T. Watson, a deputy bank examiner, concerning the condition of the reserve of a small Kansas bank. This reserve was hypothecated by the personal note of the treasurer of the small bank. The treasurer of the small Kansas bank has been removed and his shortage made good.

Bank Robbed of $150.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 31.—The Bank of Easton at Easton, Mo., about twelve miles east of St. Joseph, was robbed early yesterday morning of $150, the funds belonging to the postoffice. The robbers were frightened before securing the bank's funds. The vault was wrecked. Four men who committed the robbery were seen at their work for two hours by a woman from across the street, but she was too frightened to give the alarm.

MELBOURNE GREETS TARS

AMERICAN BATTLESHIPS REACH AUSTRALIAN CAPITAL.

Seventy Thousand Visitors Arrive In City to Participate in the Entertainments.

Melbourne.—The American battleships steamed into Melbourne harbor Saturday. The warships were in column formation. The warships arrived at Port Philip Head on schedule time Saturday morning.

Melbourne was on the tiptoe of excitement when welcoming the American battleship fleet. The weather cleared and the day was beautiful. The warships were due at the Head at about noon, but arrived earlier. A wireless dispatch from the fleet said that since leaving Sydney the fleet experienced good weather and smooth seas.

The visit of the American fleet to the capital of the Australian commonwealth is the most remarkable military event in the history of Australia. The welcome to the American officers and men by the people of Australasia which began at Auckland and which Sydney continued, reached its climax here.

The federal state and municipal authorities were busily planning to receive the fleet for about three months. Private organizations eagerly co-operated with the authorities to give the Americans a cordial welcome. The Salvation Army chartered a steamer and, accompanied with several of its best brass bands, proceeded to the heads at the mouth of the harbor to welcome the fleet upon its arrival.

There are fully 70,000 visitors in Melbourne during "American week." As this city and its suburbs have a population of above 500,000 the streets of the city were thronged to their fullest capacity. Hotels and boarding houses entertained their overflow guests at private houses.

The public entertainment of the Americans was on a more extensive scale than has ever been known here. The state government expected to spend about $50,000 in entertainments, not to mention the expenses of the federal government and the municipality composing "Greater Melbourne."

PERISH IN BLAZING MINE.

Nearly Thirty Lives Lost in Shaft at Haileyville, Okla.

McAlester, Okla.—Nearly 30 miners are believed to have perished in Hailey-Ola coal mine No. 1, at Haileyville, 14 miles east of McAlester, Wednesday morning, when fire destroyed the hoisting shaft and air shaft and cut off air from the men below. Twenty-five bodies had been recovered by Wednesday night.

After the entombed miners had gone down in the cage a fire broke out, occasioned by the ignition of a barrel of oil which a miner was trying to divide. The flames spread at once to the hoisting shaft and the air shaft, and all communication with the top was cut off. Hundreds of miners rushed to the scene and tried to get into the air shaft, but this was impossible, as flames and smoke were coming up with such force as to drive them back. Then an effort was made to operate the cages running up and down the hoisting shaft, but it was found that the cages, the cables and the guides had been burned. There was absolutely no help for the imprisoned miners.

THREATENS ATLANTIC CITY.

Gov. Fort May Send Troops to Enforce Sunday Closing.

Seagirt, N. J.—In a startling proclamation issued Thursday from the summer capital, Gov. Fort declares that unless the excise law is observed in Atlantic City Sunday and all saloons and cafes are closed, he will call an extraordinary session of the legislature and may send the New Jersey troops to the famous resort, declaring the city to be under martial law. This is the most drastic action ever threatened to enforce a general law in New Jersey. The executive refers to Atlantic City conditions as a "saturnalia of vice."

FIVE DIE IN MINE ACCIDENT.

Runaway Car Strikes Train Loaded with Workmen.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Five men were killed, another fatally hurt, and five seriously injured in a collision Friday afternoon at the Warrior Run colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, six miles from this city. The men were being hoisted up a slope when a runaway mine car struck a train of cars on which were 20 men who were employed in the mine. Only six of them escaped injury. Those killed were horribly mangled.

COL. VILAS PASSES AWAY

WELL-KNOWN WISCONSIN MAN SUCCUMBS TO PARALYSIS.

Second Stroke of Paralysis the Cause —His Career as a Soldier and Statesman.

Madison, Wis.—Col. William F. Vilas died at 10:45 o'clock Thursday following five weeks of illness.

When Dr. Philip Fox called upon the colonel Thursday he found him unusually cheerful and bright and believed he showed signs of remarkable improvement.

Shortly after ten o'clock, while the nurses were administering a bath to the patient, they noticed that he weakened very quickly. An attempt was made to reach the doctor, but Col. Vilas died before he could be reached.

Dr. Fox believes that the immediate cause of the death was a second stroke of paralysis.

Col. William Freeman Vilas, former United States senator and noted lawyer, was born at Chelsea, Vt., July 9, 1840. He was a pioneer of Madison, his family having settled there in June, 1851. Col. Vilas graduated from the University of Wisconsin law school at the age of 18, in 1858. In 1860 he graduated from the Albany law school and set up his shingle in Madison. In July, 1861, he enlisted in Company A, Twenty-third Wisconsin regiment, and took part in the Vicksburg campaign. After carrying off his share of civil war honors he returned to Madison in 1863 and resumed the practice of law. He was elected a member of the Wisconsin legislature in 1885. He was made permanent chairman of the national Democratic convention in 1884. He was postmaster general of the United States from 1885 to 1888. He was secretary of the interior 1888 and 1889. In 1891 he was elected a member of the United States senate, which office he held until 1897. He held many positions for the civil war veterans.

EARLE IS OUT ON BAIL.

"Affinity" Man Immediately Begins Search for His Wife.

Goshen, N. Y. — After spending two sleepless nights in the jail here on a charge of beating his wife, Ferdinand Pinney Earle, he of "affinity" and "soul-mate" fame, was released Thursday on furnishing $2,000 bail. Immediately upon leaving the jail he began a search for his wife, Mrs. Julia Kuttner Earle, whom he married after inducing his first wife to go to France and get a divorce from him.

Earle was surrounded by newspaper correspondents the moment he stepped from the jail, but he stopped only long enough to say:

"I am going to find my wife no matter where she is. I know that if I can talk with her for ten minutes she will forgive me and everything will be all right again. This whole trouble has been twisted and I have been misrepresented. I must hurry to find my wife."

Burglar's Conscience Hurt Him.

Philadelphia.—Joseph G. Mantell surrendered himself to the police here Friday, declaring that he was wanted for robbing the home of Miss Bertha Brand in City avenue, Brooklyn, on October 28 last, and also the home of William Gluck, fourth assistant examiner in the patent office at Washington. The latter robbery was committed, he said, on November 9, 1907. "I have been tortured by my conscience and can get no rest day or night, so I want to face trial and end it all," Mantell told the detectives.

SHOT ON THE BOARD WALK.

Mystery in Fatal Attack on Baltimorean at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J.—A mysterious shooting, the details of which became known Thursday, occurred on the board walk late Wednesday night during a heavy rain, when Charles R. Roberts, president and treasurer of the National Supply company of Baltimore, Md., was probably fatally shot by an unknown man who dashed from a hotel pavilion and, after firing, fled. The bullet penetrated Roberts' side.

Roberts was being pushed along in a rolling chair with Mrs. W. F. G. Williams, also of Baltimore, when the stranger appeared suddenly. He commanded Roberts to get out of the chair and as the latter was about to respond, brandished a revolver and shot. Mrs. Williams fainted and the colored attendant called a policeman, who had Roberts removed to his hotel suite.

Mr. Roberts is 38 years old. He is a member of all the leading clubs of Maryland, including the Maryland club, the Baltimore Country club and Elk Ridge Hunt club.

WOMAN MOB CHIEF A SUICIDE.

Mrs. Howard of Springfield Takes Poison When Indicted for Murder.

Springfield, Ill. — Mrs. Kate Howard, leader of the mob in the recent race war in Springfield, Wednesday night killed herself by swallowing poison while being taken to the jail following the return of an indictment against her charging murder. The woman had made threats to commit suicide if indicted for the lynching of Scott Burton and William Donnegan.

Mrs. Howard was arrested following the destruction of Loper's restaurant and was released on $1,000 bail. Then came four indictments charging her with the destruction of property and malicious mischief. A saloonkeeper furnished bond on the indictments while the grand jury prepared to indict her for murder.

Springfield, Ill. — The Seventh Regiment, I. N. G., was ordered to withdraw from the city and left at ten o'clock Wednesday morning. At a conference held between Gov. Deneen, Sheriff Werner and representatives of the military forces in the city, it was decided that the further presence of the armed men was unnecessary.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT IS BRAVE.

Stops Runaway, Saving Woman and Children from Death.

Oyster Bay, N. Y. — It was stated here Thursday night that Kermit Roosevelt, second son of the president, stopped a runaway pair of horses after a wild chase on horseback along the shore road into Bayville, and probably saved the lives of Mrs. Frank Hilton of New York and her two small sons.

Kermit seized the horses' reins while the animals were galloping at full speed and brought them to a standstill. Mrs. Hilton and her two children were in the carriage. They were unhurt. Mr. Hilton was thrown out when the horses took fright but was not injured.

Hains Are Held Without Bail.

New York. — Capt. P. C. Hains, Jr., and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, were held without bail over the action of a grand jury Friday on a charge of the murder of William E. Annis.

Three witnesses testified for the prosecution. Patrolman Charles W. Baker, who arrested the brothers after the shooting, said that when he arrived on the yacht club float Annis was lying there wounded.

SYNOPSIS.

Lord Wilfred Vincent and Archibald Terhune are introduced at the opening of the story, in England, the latter relating the tale. The pair on an outing miss their train and seeking recreation meet "the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff." Her hand is much sought after, because of her wealth. On visiting the Wyckhoff castle they are introduced to two other girls, both known as Agatha Wyckhoff.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

The meal was well cooked and beautifully served, and by the time the salad course arrived Vincent and I had lost much of our constraint and self-consciousness and were talking and laughing with the best of them. The levity and freedom from the conventionalities usually observed at a dinner party, in which those girls indulged, was a bit shocking to me, although it did not seem to disconcert Vincent in the least.

After dinner our adventure developed its most astonishing feature. At the close of the meal the ladies arose, and we were invited to remain and smoke some exceptionally fine cigars, but before she left the room the secretary came over to us and in a low tone told us that, when we had finished our smoke, Mrs. Armistead desired that we should join her in the library to discuss business. She—the secretary—would come for us, as we would not know the way.

We were amazed. Business? What business could we possibly have with Mrs. Armistead? However, we told the secretary that we would be happy to join her mistress in the library in about 20 minutes, although, as I said, we hadn't the wildest idea what we could possibly have to discuss with her.

When the secretary withdrew Vincent burst into a flood of excited conjecture. "Are we in a girls' boarding school, or a lunatic asylum, or what?" he demanded. "I don't know what to make of it. If it's an asylum then I'm distinctly for lunatics! They're the most attractive lot I've ever seen, but if they're all sisters why didn't Papa and Mamma Wyckhoff find different names for 'em? Six Agathas, and all 'the honorable' at that! It's absurd! But it doesn't seem to bother them; they call each other 'Ag,' and 'Aggie,' and 'Agatha' just as if it were Rose, or Gwen, or Maud! What do you suppose it all means? My head's in a whirl!"

"My dear fellow," I said, "I have a presentiment that we shall find out what it all means when we join Mrs. Armistead in the library." And we did. As I have said, my intuitions seldom fail me.

The library was a little room at some distance from the dining hall. It was beautifully furnished, like the rest of the house, and a big fireplace took up one side of the room. Before it was a massive armchair, worn and old, as if the barons of Wyckhoff for ages back had sat in it. On the large table were some legal-looking papers, and as we entered Mrs. Armistead arose and placed her hand upon them. The secretary closed the door and took up her position beside her mistress, while we stood before them, ill at ease and expecting we knew not what.

"Gentlemen," began Mrs. Armistead with great gravity, "I am right, am I not, in presuming that you are candidates for the hand of the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff?"

Yes, that's just what she said: "Candidates for the hand of the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff." It took my breath away, and before I had time to speak and set her right I heard Vincent calmly assuring her that we were candidates! As he had thus rashly committed himself I couldn't go back on him, so I let him make all the other answers that were necessary.

"Then you wish to hear the will?" continued Mrs. Armistead, and Vincent assented.

"Read the will," said Mrs. Armistead to the secretary, and the young lady in gray picked up one of the legal-looking papers.

"This is to certify," she began, and read to the finish, while I held my breath, for, when I had heard the whole of that extraordinary document, I was filled with amazement and curiosity, not unmixed with a certain excitement. In brief, the provisions of this remarkable will ran thus:

Fletcher Boyd, stepfather of the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff, had left her his entire fortune of about $20,000,000, provided that she obey the conditions of his will. Should she disregard them the whole sum was to go to the endowment of a Presbyterian hospital at New Bedford, Mass., his native town.

The will then went on to say that, wishing to protect the girl, who was not yet 21 years of age, from fortune-hunters, her stepfather desired her, at the completion of her education, to secure not less than three, nor more than six, girls from 18 to 23 years of age, each bearing the name of Agatha, who would be willing to live with the Honorable Agatha at her castle in Shropshire near Wye, England, for two years; in return for which they were each to receive a generous monthly stipend, enjoy luxurious lodgings and rich fare, and to live a life of idleness, with ample entertainment.

It was further directed that, before the girls left for England, some English lady of rank or position be secured to dwell at Castle Wyckhoff in the capacity of chaperon, in consideration of a handsome salary, this lady to be, preferably, Mrs. Armistead, sister of the real Honorable Agatha's mother. For the first year after Mr. Boyd's death the Honorable Agatha was to observe mourning by not going to London festivities; but during this time she was to be permitted to amuse herself and friends by entertaining at the castle any young men of whom the chaperon might approve. Mrs. Armistead (should she be the chaperon secured) was likewise charged to keep the castle supplied with guests, the best young men that England could boast, as her large acquaintance permitted her to do. Each visitor in the role of suitor for the hand of the Honorable Agatha was limited to six weeks' stay at the castle, as Mr. Boyd considered that length of time sufficient for him to find out whether he loved any of the Agathas or not and the suitor was not to make his declaration until the very last day of the six weeks allotted him, and, of course, was limited to one proposal. In the event of any of the young men proposing to any of the Agathas who was not the stepdaughter of Mr. Boyd, the will permitted her to marry him, if she desired, but with the distinct understanding that she was not the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff. In that case Mrs. Armistead was to secure another Agatha, and the girl who desired to marry was to receive a dowry amounting to the full sum of the monthly stipends which she would have received had she remained at the castle for the entire two years. The same provision for her companions was made in the event of the real Agatha's marriage before the expiration of the time. If any young man proposed to the real Agatha, ignorant of her identity, and she accepted him, she was directed by the will to produce and wear upon the third finger of her left hand the betrothal ring of her mother's family, a gold ring set with a big cross of emeralds, as proof of her identity as the real Agatha. Mrs. Armistead and all the girls were to be bound by oath not to reveal the identity of the real Agatha, and each of the latter was to be likewise addressed as the "Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff," by suitors and servants, in order to preserve the secret. This condition could be carried out without fear of recognition by the servants, as the real Agatha had not been in England since her early childhood. Thus her identity could be easily concealed, and, by this means, if any proposal of marriage were made to her it would be from a man whose motives were not mercenary, but purely those of natural affection, which was the stepfather's object in making the will.

The will closed with the appointment of executors and trustees and then came the witnesses, the date, and the place of residence.

"Then we can stay in thus bully old place for six weeks," said Vincent. "Hooray!" He's such a kid!

The secretary smiled at his enthusiasm, and Vincent must have thought her smile very attractive, because he drew aside and began to talk to her in low tones, while I discussed the will with Mrs. Armistead, who seemed perfectly willing to impart whatever information we desired. It was just like Vincent to begin a flirtation with the secretary, just as if there were not six handsome girls of his own station in the castle. But anything feminine will do for him as long as she has a sweet smile or soulful eyes, or some other equally trivial attraction. He'd flirt with Mrs. Armistead herself, I'm sure, if that estimable dame, begging her pardon, would give him a chance.

"I am delighted, Mr. Terhune," said Mrs. Armistead, after we had seated ourselves in the library, "that you and Lord Wilfred have decided to stay with us, and I think it would be well to put off our other visitors who were to come to us for this six weeks. I do not believe in having more than two or three young men at once. The time is so very short."

"It would give us a better chance," I agreed, and she turned toward the secretary, who was evidently in the secret.

"My dear," she said, "as these gentlemen are going to remain with us for six weeks, I think it would be as well if we put off the Percivale brothers till the six weeks after that. Will you wire them this evening to that effect?"

"Certainly," replied Miss Marsh, "I will see to it immediately, Mrs. Armistead."

At this a thought struck me and I turned to Vincent. "And you had better wire the good people at Damer's farm," I said, "to inform them of our change of plan."

"Indeed you must," said Mrs. Armistead, "and, by the way, Mr. Terhune, if you and Lord Vincent wish, I can provide you with a copy of the will—it is difficult, I think, to remember all its conditions."

"Perhaps that's a good idea," I answered. "It is certainly an extraordinary document; and what an extraordinary man this Fletcher Boyd must have been, Mrs. Armistead, to conceive such a plan as that."

Mrs. Armistead laughed. "I think he was," she said. "I saw my brother-in-law only once in my life, but that was enough to impress me with the strength of the man's character and his eccentricity. He was intensely American—what they call a 'self-made man' over there, I imagine—and it was his determination that his stepdaughter, the Honorable Agatha, in spite of her English birth, should be educated in America. To this her mother agreed, on condition that she should be allowed to bring her daughter out in England and that she should make that country her home when her schooling had been completed. Accordingly, when Lady Wyckhoff died, the child being about 11 years old, Fletcher Boyd promised his wife to carry out her wishes in that respect. A few years later he began the work of building up this old castle of Wyckhoff and putting in every modern convenience, as you see, so that it should be ready for his daughter to live in temporarily, before he established her in London with some good lady to oversee her presentation into society, according to her mother's ideas."

This was a long speech for the good Mrs. Armistead, and she paused for breath.

"I see," I commented. "He made a very excellent job of it. Then, as I understand it, his daughter has never been in England since her early childhood?"

"No," said Mrs. Armistead. "Poor child, it's practically all new to her. But I mustn't pity her! The way she and those friends of hers take hold of things passes my understanding."

"And where did she find so many attractive girls, each bearing the Christian name of Agatha?" I inquired. "It is an unusual name, and I should have thought that part of the will difficult to fulfill."

AGATHA THIRD.

PERILS OF LIFE IN TROPICS.

Animals and Reptiles Alike Invade Rest and Comfort There.

The perils of daily life in the tropics are almost inconceivable to dwellers in other climes. In a Borneo village, a man and his ten-year-old son were sleeping in their house inside a mosquito netting. They were on the floor near the wall. In the middle of the night the father was awakened by his son calling out. It was totally dark and the father passed his hand over his son, but found nothing amiss, so he turned over and went to sleep again, thinking the boy was dreaming. Shortly afterward the child again called out, saying that a crocodile was taking him. This time the father, thoroughly aroused, lighted a lamp, and found that a snake had closed its jaws on the boy's head. He shouted, and the snake, releasing its hold, drew the whole of its body into the house and encircled the body of the father. He was rescued by the neighbors, who were attracted by the cries for help of the terrified couple. The snake when killed was found to be 15 feet long, and the head and forehead of the boy was surrounded with a circle of punctured wounds produced by the python's teeth.

Learning Early.

A Sunday school teacher had been telling her class the story of the Good Samaritan. When she asked them what the story meant, a little boy said: "It means that when I am in trouble my neighbors must help me" —Universalist Leader.

Comfort for Workers.

The Anglo-Saxon races have discovered that comfort, a high salary and limited hours of work, make a more powerful instrument of the worker.

WHAT THE TRADE MARK MEANS TO THE BUYER

Few people realize the importance of the words "Trade Mark" stamped on the goods they buy. If they did it would save them many a dollar spent for worthless goods and put a lot of unscrupulous manufacturers out of the business.

When a manufacturer adopts a trade mark he assumes the entire responsibility for the merit of his product. He takes his business reputation in his hands—out in the limelight—"on the square" with the buyer of his goods, with the dealer, and with himself.

The other manufacturer—the one who holds out "inducements," offering to brand all goods purchased with each local dealer's brand—sidesteps responsibility, and when these inferior goods "come back" it's the local dealer that must pay the penalty.

A good example of the kind of protection afforded the public by a trade mark is that offered in connection with National Lead Company's advertising of pure White Lead as the best paint material.

That the Dutch Boy Painter trade mark is an absolute guaranty of purity in White Lead is proved to the most skeptical by the offer National Lead Company make to send free to any address a blow-pipe and instructions how to test the white lead for themselves. The testing outfit is being sent out from the New York office of the company, Woodbridge Building.

PICNIC FOR THE PUP.

His Devotion to Duty Rewarded by Strange Luxuries.

A Boston bulldog owned by George H. Clapp was so determined to capture a woodchuck which he had chased into its den that he followed after and staid in the hole all night.

When the dog had got his jaws about the enemy he found that he could not get out owing to the small size of the animal's hole.

Rather than lose his prey the dog retained his hold on the woodchuck over night, and was helped out by his master in the morning. The dog was nearly exhausted, and revived after feeding and drinking in a curious manner.

He consumed about two quarts of unguarded ice cream, which had been set aside for a party, and capped the climax by falling into a bucket of lemonade.—Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.

CURED HER CHILDREN.

Girls Suffered with Itching Eczema—Baby Had a Tender Skin, Too—Relied on Cuticura Remedies.

"Some years ago my three little girls had a very bad form of eczema. Itching eruptions formed on the backs of their heads which were simply covered. I tried almost everything, but failed. Then my mother recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I washed my children's heads with Cuticura Soap and then applied the wonderful ointment, Cuticura. I did this four or five times and I can say that they have been entirely cured. I have another baby who is so plump that the folds of skin on his neck were broken and even bled. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and the next morning the trouble had disappeared. Mme. Napoleon Duceppe, 41 Duluth St., Montreal, Que., May 21, 1907."

A Few Funny Facts.

The Georgia legislature has had under consideration a bill which would make null and void a matrimonial compact into which a woman has wheedled a man by means of paint, powder, perfume, cosmetics, artificial teeth, false hair, corsets, hoops, high-heeled shoes, low-cut waists, lace or rainbow hosiery, or by any other artificial means or practices. Why not limit the woman's "wheedling" privilges to the method of absent treatment? It is plain the poor men need at least a ten-mile start.

EDITOR TIMES—

Dear Sir:

The St. Gothard railway is the great international highway of Europe between the north and south and serves as a commercial route as well as a pleasure tour. The trip is exciting and full of interest as the train passes in quick succession through tunnels, across bridges, by luxuria it meadows interspersed with picturesque villas and farm houses, along steep precipices and sudden glimpses of snow peaks or beautiful lakes. At the foot of this mountain pass, although it is 437 feet above the sea level, lies the beautiful lake Lucerne or lake of the four Cantons. On the south end of the lake is the town of Fluelen. A ten minute walk up a valley is the little village Altdorf which figures conspicuously in the story of William Tell. Here Gessler ruled and here the famous cross-bowman pierced the apple on the head of his son with a well directed bolt. Two fountains mark the spots where Tell and his son are said to have stood. Down the lake a short distance stands Tell's Chapel which marks the spot where the Swiss hero escaped from the boat in which Gessler was conveying him to prison. It is visited yearly by thousands. Along the lake from Fluelen to Brunnen, runs the famous Axenstrasse, nine miles in length which affords truly enchanting scenery. Running at times high above the lake and in many places cut of the solid rock it pierces the projections of the mountain side with tunnels, the openings in which afford charming glimpses of the deep blue lake below the grotesquely retorted rock rising to a dizzy height on one side and picturesque fir-woods on the other. A great many tourists prefer to walk this distance to drink in all the beauty of the surroundings. We, however made the trip by boat. At Brunnen the lake makes a sharp angle to the left and after a short ride we stopped at the little village of Vitzmau almost sheltered under the shadow of Rigi. Here we took the Rigi railway to the summit of ihe mountain which is 6000 feet high. We will admit we felt a little nervous as our train began the ascent. But rising higher and higher the lake below us afforded such an entransing view that we forgot all our fear. The higher we assended the more colossel the snow Alps appeared as they gradually emerged. About 20 minutes after starting we passed through a tunnel 240 feet long and immediately after crossed a bridge 235 feet long with a gorge yawning 70 feet below. Higher and higher our train ascended, stopping at several stations when almost suddenly as we come out of a deep cut an overwhelming surprise met us and a whole landscape of enormous extent spreads out before us. It's bewildering beauty evoked cries of cheer, amazement and delight from every mouth. The hilly well watered region of north Switzerland with its famous like gardens, the gleaming lakes, the innumerable villages, the distant view of the Jura range, the Vosges and black forests, in a word, the most magnificent of all panorama lays ofen before us. The top is reached at last.

Like a last wave of the mighty sea of billows of the European Alps, the renowned Rigi steps out toward the undulating plain and gains thus by its isolation a grand twofold view of the contrasts of mountain and valley and from the clear close nearness to vision from the imposing height to a dizzy depths below, offers to eye and mind a feast of satisfaction. No wonder that annually 140,000 passengers frequent this place. After spending most of a day on this mountain, we took the steamer from Vitznau to Lucerne is the center of American and English tourists. The place is not large but has 87 hotels, some having as many as 600 beds. Situated in the heart of Switzerland, within easy reach of all that is grandest in the scenery of the Alps, it is the point which converge all who travel. Thus it is that from the time when the chestnuts on the quay are opening their blossoms to the spring breezes, till late in October when the autumnal winds begin to strip the trees, the flood of foreign visitors never ceases to flow and from 250,000 to 300,000 visit the town summer after summer. We dare not take the space to tell of the buildings, churches, museums, the Lion monument, the Glacier garden and the chapel bridge with its 112 old paintings. One of the principal attractions at this point for most visitors however is mount Pilatus, rising so defiantly and presenting such a rugged and savage aspect, as it towers 6962 feet in the air. As the weather was very foggy we did not go up the Pilatus. From Lucerne we went by rail to Brienz over the Bruenig a line vying with the St. Gothard in its importance the much shorter. Passing along lake Lucerne, through a fertile valley, amid green meadows, studded with fruit trees, we reach the health resort Kerns. Crossing ever a bridge 318 feet in height, we enter the romantic Melcha-Ravine and reach Flueli with its chapel and vine-covered parsonage which was once the home of the hermit Nicholas, who composed the disputes of the Swiss Confederates. After a short stop we hear the wheels click as they strike the cog rail, which tells us we are climbing up the mountain side. Soon we catch glimpses of the valley of Oberwalden far below us. Little waterfalls sometimes spraying the hand as it is held out of the car window, gives variety to the trip. Now a short decent and we reach the pretty lake of Sarnen, fringed with walnut and maple trees, as it lies at the foot of the historic Landenberg. At the end of the valley we again ascend 650 feet, through wood lands and mountain passes till we reach the of Lungern. Another ascent brings us to the summit of the Bruenig 3395 feet high. Slowly our train now decends till we reach Brienz, where we take the steamer over the lake of Brienz to Interlaken. Tho' the artist can paint beautiful pictures of lakes and rivers, no painter can produce anything to resemble the beautiful deep blue of lake Brienz. Interlaken is another great summer resort. The streets were fairly crowded with tourists From here several routs lead to the Berner highlands. As it rained one day and was cloudy the next we did not make the trip till the third day, which was ideal. From our hotel we could see the renowned Jungfrau and it appeared to be only about a half mile away, but our train ran at good speed a full hour till we reached Lauterbrunnen, and still the snow peaks were some distance away. Here we began the steep ascent, 25 degrees much of the way for which we need special built engines and only one coach to an engine, so we must change cars. In less time than it takes to write it, four trains were filled and about 20 of us are left to take the next train 30 minutes later. This gave us time to look at the beautiful water-fall, coming down over 1,000 feet from the Frohenalp. As the trip on the Rigi was interesting, this was far more exciting. For more than half an hour our train went up and up with mighty rocks towering over us to one side and the constantly increasing depth on the other. A short stop and up and up we go again. Nearer and nearer we come to the snow line. At length we reach the station Scheidegg. We are now 6770 feet high with snow at our feet. The beagtiful white snow which had fallen two days before filling the air with a wintery briskness, some how excited us to go higher, so we climbed another 1009 feet. Here Mrs. Wessel and Lurena halted while ye scribe and many others went on. At length the banks are so steep that only the more daring go on. We were now about 9000 feet high with snow drifts from 10 to 30 feet high before us and the summit of the Jungfrau still 4000 ft. above us. No pen can describe nor camera portray this scene. In every direction there is either a mighty mountain peak or deep chasam to meet our gaze. Toward evening we decended on the other side, past the Moench, Eiger, Wetterhorn and Schreckhorn, making a stop of several hours at Grindewald. The next morning we boarded a steamer on lake Thun. A two hours ride brought us to Thun. Here we took a train and passing through the finest farm region we saw since we left Iowa, the capitol of Switzerland. The next day we again went south to Lausanne where we took a steamer at Ouchy and passing over the beautiful peacock blue waters of lake Genera, we went to Vevey and Montreux, returning to Lausanne by evening. At these latter places we seldom heard anything but French spoken. Another trip brought us to Biel and then to Basel. Here we pass over the boundry into Germany In this section of the country the farmers are just beginning to harvest their wheat and oats. The weather has been very cool of late. By the time our frieuds read this letter we will be starting for home.

Sincerely,
Rev. G. H. Wessel.

What is Pe-ru-na.

Are we claiming too much for Peruna when we claim it to be an effective remedy for chronic catarrh? Have we abundant proof that Peruna is in reality such a catarrh remedy? Let us see what the United States Dispensatory says of the principal ingredients of Peruna.

Take, for instance, the ingredient hydrastis canadensis, or golden seal. The United States Dispensatory says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes lining various organs of the human body.

Another ingredient of Peruna, corydalis formosa, is classed in the United States Dispensatory as a tonic.

Cedron seeds is another ingredient of Peruna. The United States Dispensatory says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a substitute for quinine.

Send to us for a free book of testimonials of what the people think of Peruna as a catarrh remedy. The best evidence is the testimony of those who have tried it.

USED CHURCH AS SCHOOLROOM.

Proceedings That Somewhat Astonished the Sexton.

The sexton of one church that keeps open doors all day long didn't know whether to regard the matter in the light of a desecration or a devotional exercise. He paid no attention when the three women, watched by a man who stood at the lower end of the aisle, walked the length of the church and back again. Even when they made the trip a second time he scarcely gave them a thought, but when the trio started around the church a third time and the man called out, "Step a little more briskly, please," he began to wonder, and presently made inquiry.

"I hope you won't be offended," the man replied. "I am a physical culture instructor. I am teaching these young ladies to walk. I have already taught them to walk in the street, in the drawing room, in the theater and every place else they are likely to find themselves. I am now teaching them to walk in church. Very few women can walk there properly. Some lope, some swagger, some skip, others adopt a mincing gait. All these styles are very inappropriate for church. A dignified, subdued gait alone is suitable for devotional purposes. Church is the best place for pupils in walking to receive practical instruction, therefore I have brought them here."

"Great fathers!" gasped the sexton. "What next?"

But he said no more till the walking exercise was ended. Then he followed the class to the door.

"I hope," he said, "you will practice the lesson learned to-day by coming here to church once in a while."

OCULIST A MAN OF RESOURCE.

Has a Blind Beggar Woman to Advertise His Business.

Enterprise takes various forms, even in Warsaw. A young oculist, finding that patients were few and far between, hit upon an original means of advertising.

He engaged a blind woman who sits and begs by the Church of the Holy Cross to hold a light board whereon are written his name, address, professional qualifications and consultation hours.

As the church is in the busiest thoroughfare of the town the notice attracts a good deal of attention. The beggar herself says she is quite satisfied with the results, as many people notice her who would otherwise pass by, and as the doctor has added his assurance that she is hopelessly blind benevolent old ladies throw coppers into her tin mug, sure that their money is not wasted on an impostor. It is not yet known whether the number of patients has increased.

English Sense of Humor.

In one of his burlesque sketches on English history Bill Nye spoke of Julius Caesar's jumping into the water as he approached the English coast, wading ashore, running up to London, and walking through Regent street

"An acquaintance of mine reported to me," said Mr. Nye, "that he had asked an Englishman how he liked the story. 'Not at all, not at all,' was the reply. 'That fellow Nye doesn't know what he's about. There wasn't any Regent street then, you know.'"

Splitting One at a Time.

"Gracious, Nora!" called the housewife, impatiently. "Isn't dinner nearly ready?"

"No, mum," responded Nora, through the speaking tube, "awn it won't be ready for two hours yet."

"Two hours! Why, what in the world is the cause of the delay?"

"Why, mum, you said you wanted split pea soup, awn, faith, it hos taken me two hours awn twinty minutes to split thrae hundred peas, awn thor are four hundred awn sivinty-noine to be split yet. Oi counted thim meself."

State Capital Gossip

Many Items of Interest from Our Correspondent at Des Moines.

Cost of Extra Session.

Des Moines.—The chief argument by opponents of the extra session is that it will entail large expense on the tax payers.

Section 11 of article 4 of the constitution provides that the governor may, "on extraordinary occasions, convene the general assembly by proclamation, and shall state to both houses, when assembled, the purpose for which they shall have been convened". But in Morford vs. Unger it was held that the assembly, in extra session, has full legislative authority, and "its action is not confined to the special purpose for which it is convened, and may enact any law that it might at a regular session".

So that, if convened to amend the primary law to submit the senatorial succession to a vote of the republicans, the assembly could elect a senator for the short term or do anything else it saw fit which could be done in regular session.

But the theory is that it would not be in session to exceed three days unless it undertook to elect a senator which might take until the second Tuesday after convening, meaning ten days. However, some of the opponents of the plan say that there might be filibustering on the passage of the proposed primary law amendment, all sorts of propositions made and difficulty of agreement which might lead to prolonged session.

Section 12 of chapter 2 of the code provides that in extra session of the legislature the members shall be paid the same compensation per day that was paid during the preceding session but in no case may the "compensation for any extra session exceed $6 a day exclusive of mileage."

The average compensation for the eighty-seven days of the session of 1907 exceeds $6 a day, so that $6 would be the limit on the per diem of the members serving in the extra session. There are 158 members but three at least would not be present—Crossley of Madison is in Alaska, Hickey of Cherokee is dead and Cottrell is out of the state. It is possible that there are others who would not be present. At $6 a day 155 members would draw $930.

But, a number of members have said that they will serve without compensation in an extra session. It is assumed if any actually make this plain and do not take per diem the others will not.

The mileage expense would be the same. The members in 1907 drew $2,159.20. It comes at the rate of 5 cents a mile.

Employes of the assembly of 1907 cost $42,148.05. It is supposed that very few employes would be necessary for the extra session.

Chaplains got $645 in the session of 1907. Chaplains for the extra session would cost $5 a day for each side.

The cost of the session of 1907 which was always regarded as average, summarized, follows:

Salary to members	$86,900.00
Mileage to members	2,159.20
Wages to employes	42,148.05
Chaplains	645.00
Visiting state institutions	1,215.05
Total	$133,067.30

This was an average of $1,529.50 a day.

If there were a dead lock in a regular session on the election of a senator, for instance, it would cost therefore about $1,500 a day for the time it lasted, it is argued by those who urge a special session.

Depot Is Ordered.

East Des Moines citizens won in the fight for a new East Side depot when the state board of railroad commissioners ordered the Wabash, the C., B. & Q. and the Chicago Great Western railroads to furnish adequate accommodations on the East Side. The order requires that the new station be adequate in every respect. It must be comfortably heated and lighted and large enough to accommodate travelers. Moreover, the order provides, it must be clean and comfortable and safe for women. At a later hearing the contention of the Rock Island's counsel that the state commission is not vested with power to order a road to build a station will be heard. If the board decides against the railroad, the Rock Island may elect to combine with the "landlord" corporation of these roads in building the union station that East Des Moines seeks.

Banks Submit Statements.

Two more of the Des Moines banks have submitted comparative statements of their deposits on hand as shown by their reports to the state auditor's calls of May 14 and Aug. 14, respectively. The Home Savings bank reports a total of deposits on hand on Aug. 14, of $773,440.58, as compared with a total of $767,345.01 on May 14, a gain of $6,095.57. The Iowa Loan and Trust company reports at total of deposits on hand at the close of business on Aug. 14, of $426,412.85, as compared with a total of $307,167.79 as shown by the statement of May 14, a gain of $119,245.06. The deposits proper of the Iowa Loan and Trust company show comparatively small in comparison with the amounts on deposit, owing to the practice of transferring deposits into debenture bonds, which are not listed as deposits. With the above two reports the amount on deposit in fifteen state and savings banks of Des Moines, as shown by their statements made to the auditors's call of Aug. 14, is $12,680,067.77, as compared with $12,485,710.59 as shown by the statements of the condition on May 14 last, a gain of $193,357.15.

Lay Y. W. C. A. Cornerstone.

With songs of praise, scriptural reading and addresses by prominent men and women of Des Moines, members of the Des Moines Y. W. C. A. laid the cornerstone of their new building at Ninth and Pleasant streets, at 6 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 23. At the close of the service Ernest Harwood rendered several religious numbers on the chimes of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church. Brief addresses were given by Gov. A. B. Cummins, Mrs. J. J. Hamilton, first president of the association and charter member of the board, on behalf of the board, and Miss Mary Golden, on behalf of the association members. The scriptural reading and prayer were given by Rev. A. L. Frisbie; Rev. E. T. Hagerman gave the dedicatory prayer; several musical numbers were given by the Y. M. C. A. quartet. Miss Meribah Wright, assistant secretary of the Des Moines Y. W. C. A., sealed in the cornerstone the box of information regarding the Y. W. C. A.

State Should Own Horses.

The coming report of Major Boughton, of the National War college at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., who was the government expert representative at the Iowa encampments this year, is being awaited with much interest in militia circles. He will report that the state should own a troop of horses sufficient in number to equip an entire corps of regimental infantry officers. The horses could be passed from one regiment to another, thereby saving the expense of hiring horses at high prices during encampment.

The recommendation is also made that the horses be kept at the Iowa State college during other times of the year where they can be used by the students there in their military work.

The next state legislature may take up the matter and an appropriation may be asked for by the committee on militia affairs.

Farmers Form New Union.

The Farmers' and Breeders' union filed articles of incorporation in the office of the Polk county recorder on the 27th. Its purpose is the promotion of business of men engaged in farming and stock raising, and it is of a national scope. Charles Griffith, of Urbane, Ill., is president; W. B. Daggett of Des Moines, secretary; Walter Bartlett, of Pierce, Neb., treasurer.

Elevator Bids Are Many.

There will be no dearth in bids for the establishment of elevators in the new Polk county house is assured. Already Supervisor Morris has received nearly a dozen bids from different elevator concerns who want to install the lifts. The date for the opening of the propositions will not be fixed until all companies have a chance to get into the game.

Short Line Boosts Capital.

An amendment raising the capital stock of the newly organized St. Paul & Des Moines railway to 2,500,000 has been filed in the secretary of state's office. The previous capital stock was $1,000,000. The recording fee was $1,500. The St. Paul and Des Moines railway was formerly the Des Moines, Iowa Falls & Northern.

PREHISTORIC WALL OF ROCK.

Remarkable Discovery of Work Done by Unknown Race.

As the cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum were discovered by digging a well, so the most prehistoric rock wall in the United States was discovered in 1857 by a farmer who now lives in Rockwell, Tex., says the New Orleans Picayune. But whether in that portion which is surrounded by this wall is a Pompeii or for what purpose it was built has never been ascertained up to the present.

Here and there portions of the wall are exposed at distances of several yards. Even in some places it is covered up for a mile or two. One day a farmer, not knowing that the wall was there, dug a well along the side of this wall 30 feet deep. Near the bottom of his well he discovered an arched opening, which was two by three feet. This opening has been seen by several of the inhabitants of Rockwell, and it is believed this must have been used as an entrance into the wall. The bottom of the wall was not reached at a depth of 30 feet. This has been the only opening ever found, because the wall has never been exposed, except last fall, when two young men of Rockwell dug about the wall five feet in width and about the same in depth. This gave one a good idea of the wall. The rocks were nicely laid with abridged joints in regular fashion, but the substance between them was not mortar, but clay. A closer examination reveals no sign of any hard tool used upon the rocks, and no doubt wooden mallets were used to give them their sizes.

On the east side of the wall the rock is smooth, while on the west it is rough. They are all composed of sandstone, with streaks of mica and pebbles of iron. It is said that in the surrounding regions no rock can be found similar to this, except in the chimneys and wells which the farmers own.

The rocks at the opening found are from two to six feet long, three feet wide and two feet thick. An effort was made to bring some of them to the surface by the men who dug the well, but they found the task too difficult. On top the rocks are much smaller, running about 18 inches long, three inches thick and eight inches wide. The farmers claim that the wall is about 16 miles long, and they know exactly its course.

There is no doubt that this is the most prehistoric wall in the United States, and so far as known, the Smithsonian institution of Washington, D. C., has never made any effort to expose the length and width of the wall or give any explanation of its origin.

Somerest Field Names.

Why the place is called Babylon nobody can tell. The name lasts beyond the memory of the oldest inhabitants, and for anything they know it may have been called Babylon for all time. A study of the names of the fields in a country parish is of much interest. It illuminates local history, revives memories of feuds, discoveries, claims, of old families that once owned the soil and made history, of countless parochial details. All sorts of quaint and curious field names there are near Babylon—names historical, like Pennsylvania; names descriptive, like Look-about Batch, Wet Mead, Honeyhole, Gooseland, Three-corner Paddock; names reminiscent of local dealings, like Hard-and-Sharp and Greatcoat Cleeves; or of local holdings, like Copylease and Pepperleas. Then there are romantic names, like Little Perdigate, which has a flavor of Arthurian romance; grim names, like Bloody Paddock, which has an epic sound; grotesque names, debased from some noble original, like Hoke and Pinchiu; names expressive of local sarcasm, like Forty Acre, which is a field comprising 14 perches; suggestive names, like Apsall's and Poor Apsall's; or personal names, like Pearce's Leg, a long, narrow field of uncertain shape.—Spectator.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth a man wearing a beard had to pay a tax of 3s, and 4d. for the privilege.

Secretary Metcalf of the Navy Department is giving attention to the question of the practicability of using oil instead of coal as fuel for surface torpedo-boats, and interesting experiments will soon be made along this line. It has been estimated by officers that the radius of operation of a torpedo-boat would be increased at least twenty per cent, if oil were substituted for coal as fuel.

MAN OF 70 MURDERS WOMAN.

Horrible Crime is Committed in Town of Manson.

Manson.—J. M. Brown, a wealthy retired farmer of this place, killed his son's wife on the 29th with an Indian club, beating her head to a pulp. He then left his home and meeting a friend remarked: "Well, I have just killed George's wife. It is the best deed I ever did in my life. One thing is certain, she will never insult my wife again."

His son, George G. Brown, left home a month ago for Colorado Springs in the last stages of consumption. For over a year his parents have lived at his home. They have had stormy times with his wife, it is declared. Mrs. Brown, Sr., had her hip broken in an accident a year ago and has been bedridden since.

People of the town, while telling of the good graces of the deceased, sympathize with the old man. Mrs. Brown, who was the only eye witness to the murder, testified before the coroner's jury that the last dispute started over a key. Brown and his son's wife had hot words, she went upstairs and assaulted the old lady, calling her vile names. She then went downstairs and renewed the quarrel, during which she is said to have threatened to stab the old lady to death. Brown caught hold of her, but she broke loose from him and started upstairs. The old lady heard her coming and began to scream. She was trying to get into a closet when the son's wife caught her and was shouting to her: "I'll stab you. I'll stab you." Brown hurried up and on the way picked up an Indian club. He heard the cries of his son's wife and the screams of his wife, and struck as soon as he could get within reaching distance.

Brown, Sr., was arrested and taken to the county jail after a coroner's jury rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree.

The dead woman was very handsome. She was a member of the Congregational church and took an active part in charitable work. Two years ago she presented the church with a bell. George Brown, her husband, owns the best business block in town and the finest residence.
